UNION CO. CLUBS' RALLY

Details Announced for League's Monster Mass Meeting at Elizabeth, Oct. 22.

G. O. P. SONGS A FEATURE.

President Trimble to Make Address of Welcome—Red Fire, Brass Band Music and Enthusiasm.

A special sub-committee has arranged some of the details for the big rally which is to take place under the auspices of the Union County League of Republican Clubs in the Lyceum Theatre, Elizabeth, October 22. Just who the speakers will be on that evening has not been fully decided, but many other matters pertaining to receiving the visiting clubs, the decorations, fireworks and music were arranged by the committee and the affair promises to be a huge success from every standpoint.

There will be a band stationed between the two depots to greet the incoming clubs, and reception committee will be appointed to look after the comfort of the club members and care for the guests until they are escorted to the theatre. The plaza will be illuminated with red fire, as will also be Broad street to the theatre, during the time of the marching of the clubs to that place. At the theatre there will be an usher selected from each of the clubs in the league to seat the audience and the band will play outside of the theatre until the entire audience is seated. The stage will be in charge of a stage manager and an assistant who will seat the various candidates, speakers and vice-presidents. The theatre will be profusely decorated and each person attending the rally will be furnished with a small American flag.

The tentative program for the evening, arranged by the sub-committee Saturday evening contemplates the opening of the meeting, after introductory music, by Attorney Charles A. Trimble, of Elizabeth, president of the League, who will make an address of welcome and introduce the permanent chairman. The audience will then be called upon sing, "My Country 'Tis of Thee." The words of the song will be printed on the program as well as the words of other songs that will be sung during the rally. The secretary of the League W. O. Freeman, of Rahway, will be call the roll of the clubs of the league and the presidents of the various clubs or a representative, will be asked to make a five minute speech. The audience will then be asked to sing another patriotic air and then the National speakers will be introduced. All of the candidates present will be called upon for a short address and the meeting will be closed by singing, "The Star Spangled Banner."

A letter has been sent out to all the clubs in the league extending to them an invitation to attend the rally. The letter reads as follows.

"The Union County League of Republican Clubs has arranged to hold a monster mass meeting at the Lyceum theatre, Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J., on Thursday, October 22, 1908, at 8 o'clock p. m. We aim to make this the most interesting and successful meeting of the campaign and we want and expect your help. You are requested to attend the meeting in a body, bringing with you as many members as you possibly can, and the same invitation has been extended to every club that is a member of the league.

"Please notify the secretary of the league as to the train that will bring your club to Elizabeth, so that proper arrangements can be made to have our reception committee meet you at the station and conduct you to the theatre—this is important. There will be plenty of music, red fire and enthusiasm, and arrangements are being made for speakers who will both instruct and entertain. All of the candidates have been invited to be present, and we have been assured that they will be.

"The rolls of the club will be called and the president of each of the clubs, or someone named by him for the purpose will be called upon and expected to make a five minute address. The presidents will rise and respond to the invitation to speak from where they may be in the body of the house when called upon.

"This feature is sure to be interesting and will tend to bring the club members closer together.

"The National airs will be printed and distributed and all present will be invited to join in the singing and will be expected to do so. Be sure to be with us and bring as many as you can.

"Yours for continued, triumphant Republicanism,

"UNION COUNTY LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN CLUBS."

Tarvia Proves a Success.

The Board of Freeholders of Passaic county, after an experiment covering a period of six months or more has come out in favor of the Tarvia preparation for roads. Market street, Paterson, much used by autos and heavy trucks, had been treated with Tarvia, which proved a great success. A number of the county roads used by automobiles will be treated with the preparation in the spring.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"My God, Miss!" the trainer exclaimed, "you can't do it, what would people say—what would your mother say?"

"People will say the race was well ridden, if I'm any judge, and mother won't be interested enough to know whether Lucretia was hitched to a buggy in the derby or not."

"But the judge would never allow a girl—"

"There'll be no girl in it;" and Allis explained in minute detail the result of her deep cogitation.

"It won't work; you never could do it," objected Dixon, with despondent conviction. "That big head of hair would give you dead away."

"The hair won't be in evidence; it will be lying in my trunk, waiting to be made up into a wig after we've won."

"No, no; it won't do," the trainer reiterated; "everybody'd know you, an' there'd be a fine shindy. I believe you could ride the horse all right enough, an' if he has a chance on earth you'd get it out of him. But give up the idea, everybody'd know you."

The girl pleaded, but Dixon was obdurate. He did not contend for an instant that she was not capable of riding the horse—only in a race with so many jockeys she would find it different from riding a trial gallop—but his main objection was that she'd be known.

Allis closed the discussion by saying that she was going home to encourage her father a little over the mare's defeat in the handicap, and made Dixon promise not to engage Redpath for Lauzanne till her return next morning.

XXVII.

John Porter was undoubtedly brightened by his daughter's visit. Allis intimated, rather than asserted that Lucretia might possibly have a slight cold—Dixon wasn't sure; but they were going to run Lauzanne also. Like the trainer, her father had but a very poor opinion of the chestnut's powers.

"Who'll ride him?" he asked petulantly. "It seems you can't trust any of the boys nowadays. If they're not pin-headed, they're crooked as a corkscrew. Redpath didn't ride Lucretia out in the handicap, and whether he rides the mare or Lauzanne it seems all one—we'll get beat anyway."

"Another boy will have the mount on Lauzanne," Allis answered.

"What difference will that make? You can't trust him,"

"You can trust this boy, father, as you might your own son, Alan."

"I don't know about that. Alan in the bank is all right, but Alan as a jockey would be a different thing."

"Father, you would trust me, wouldn't you?"

"I guess I would, in the tightest corner ever chiseled out."

"Well, you can trust the jockey that's going to ride Lauzanne just as much. I know him, and he's all right. He's been riding Lauzanne some, and the horse likes him."

"It's all Lauzanne," objected Porter, the discussion having thrown him into a petulant mood. "Is Lucretia that bad—is she sick?"

She leaned over and kissed her father in a hopeful, pretty way. The contact of her brave lips drove a magnetic flow of confidence into the man. "You are a brick, little woman, if ever there was one. Just a tiny bunch of pluck, ain't you, girl? And, Allis," he continued, "if you don't win the derby, come and tell me about it yourself, won't you?"

"I won't come and tell you that we've lost, dad; I'll come and tell you that we've won; and then we'll all have the biggest kind of a blow-out right here in the house. We'll have a champagne supper, with cider for champagne, eh, dad? Alan, and Dixon, and old Mike, and perhaps we'll even bring Lauzanne in for the nuts and raisins at dessert."

"Now I must go back to my horses," declared Allis, with another kiss. "Good-by, dad—cheer up!" and as she went up to her room the smile of hope vanished from her lips, and in its place came one of firm, dogged resolve. Allis needed much determination before she had accomplished the task she had set herself—before she stood in front of a mirror, arrayed in the purple and fine linen of her brother. She had thought Alan small, and he was for a boy, but his clothes bore a terribly suggestive impression of misfit—they hung loose.

Her crusade had its side of comedy; she chuckled as, muttering, "In for a penny; in for a pound," she reincarnated herself completely, so far as outward adornment was concerned. Then she examined herself critically in the glass. The mirror declared she was a passable counterfeit of her brother; all but the glorious crown of luxuriant hair. Perhaps she had better leave it as it was until she had met with the approval of Dixon—the terrible sacrifice might be for nothing. She wavered only for an instant—no half measures would do. "In for a penny; in for a pound."

Twice she took up a pair of scissors and each time laid them down again; then, shrinking from the grinding loss of the cutting blades, she clipped with feverish haste the hair that had been her pride. It was but a rough job at best, but the change in her appearance was marvelous. She drew her cap over her shorn head, packed her own garments and a few of her brother's in a large bag, buttoned her new market coat tight up to her throat, and once more surveyed herself in the glass. From head to foot she was ready. Now she was ready to pass her mother as Allis in her own long cloak, and appear before Dixon without it as a boy.

"I'm taking some clothes back with me, mother," she said, when she descended. "Let Thomas bring the bag down, please."

"You're getting dreadfully mannish in your appearance, daughter, it's that cap.'

"I have to wear something like this about in the open," answered Allis.

"But for traveling, girl, it seems out of place. Let me put a hat on you. I declare I thought it was Alan when you came into the room."

"I can't wait; this will do. I must be off to catch my train. Good-by, mother; wish me good luck," and she hurried out and took her seat in the buggy.

XXVIII.

Some hours later Dixon, sitting in his cottage, oppressed by the misfortune that had come to his stable, heard a knock at the door. When he opened it a neatly dressed, slim youth stepped into the uncertain light from a lamp on the center table.

"Is this Mr. Dixon?" the boy's voice piped modestly.

"Yes, lad, it is. Will you sit down?"

The boy removed his cap, took the proferred chair, and said somewhat hesitatingly, "I heard you wanted a riding boy."

"Well, I do, an' I don't. I don't know as I said I did, but"—and he scanned the little figure closely—"if I could get a decent lightweight that hadn't the hands of a blacksmith, an' the morals of a burglar, I might give him a trial. Did you ever do any ridin'—what stable was you in?"

"I've rode a good deal," answered the little visitor, ignoring the second half of the question.

"What's your name?"

"Mayne."

"Maine what?'

"Al Mayne," the other replied.

"Well, s'posin' you show up at the course paddocks to-morrow mornin' early, an' I'll see you shape on a horse. D'you live about here—can you bring your father?"

The boy's face appealed to Dixon as being an honest one. Evidently the lad was not a street gamin, a tough. If he had hands—the head promised well—and could sit a horse, he might be a good find. A good boy was rarer than a good horse, and of more value.

"I guess I'll stay here to-night so as to be ready for the mornin'," said the caller, to Dixon's astonishment; and then the little fellow broke into a silvery laugh.

"By jimminy! If it isn't—well, I give in, Miss Allis, you fooled me."

"Can I ride Lauzanne now?" the girl asked, and her voice choked a little—it might have been nervous excitement or thankfulness at the success of her plan in this first stage.

"Do they know at home?" the trainer asked.

"No, nobody is to know but you, Mr. Dixon—you and Mrs. Dixon."

This suggested a thought to the trainer. "The good wife's at work in the kitchen; I'll bring her in. Perhaps she'd like to hire a help," and he chuckled as he opened a door and called, "Come here for a minute. This is a boy"—he turned his head away—"I'm takin' on for Lauzanne."

"Oh," said Mrs. Dixon. Then, with severe politeness, "Good evenin', young man."

The two figures in male attire broke into a smile simultaneously. The good lady, oblivious to the humorous side of her greeting, flushed in anger. "Appears to be mighty funny," she said. "What's the joke?"

"Oh, nuthin'," replied her husband, speaking hastily. "Can you give the lad a bed? He wants to bunk here."

"Why, Andy, you know I can't. There's only Miss Allis' room."

"Give her—him that."

"Are you crazy, Andy?"

"It's too bad, Mrs. Dixon; I shant let your husband tease you any more. I am Allis; but I'm glad you didn't know."

"Oh, Miss Allis, where's your beautiful hair gone? Surely you didn't cut that off just for a joke?"

Then she was taken fully into their confidence; and before Allis retired Dixon had been quite won over to the plan of Allis' endeavor.

In the morning the trainer asked the girl whether she would ride Lauzanne a working gallop, or would she just wait until race day and take her place in the saddle then.

"I'm afraid Mike'll spot you," he said—"even Carter may."

"I'll ride to-day," declared Allis; "I mustn't take any chances of losing this race through my inexperience. Even Lauzanne will hardly know me, I'm afraid."

"Here's a boy's sweater, then," said Dixon, "the collar'll half hide your face. I'll get a pair of ridin' breeches an' boots for you to-morrow. The little mare's in for it sure," he added; "her legs are swellin' an' she's off her feed—just nibbles at a carrot. I feel as bad as if it was a child that was sick, she's that gentle. You're still bound to ride the chestnut?" he asked, by way of assurance.

"Yes, I am."

"Well, we'll get five pounds off the weight for 'prentice allowance—that's somethin'. I'll arrange about a permit for you. What did you say your name was, Mister?"

"Al Mayne, please, sir," this in the humble tones of a stable boy.

"Well, Miss—Al, I mean—you can carry Lauzanne around her course at nine o'clock sharp; then you'd better come back here and rest up all day—lay low."

"A new boy, I'm tryin'," Dixon explained to Gaynor, after he had lifted a little lad to Lauzanne's back at the paddock gate, and they stood watching the big chestnut swing along with his usual sluggish stride.

When Allis came around and back to the paddock, she slipped quietly from the horse, loitered carelessly about for a few minutes, and then made her way back to Dixon's quarters. Nobody had paid the slightest attention to the modest little boy. Riding lads were as plentiful as sparrows.

"How did the horse like it?" Dixon asked of the girl when she returned home.

"Oh, he knew. I whispered in his ear as we cantered along, and he'll be all right—he'll keep my secret."

"Well, I think he's due for a pipe-opener to-morrow. It's just three days till the derby, an' we've got to give him a strong workout. To-morrow mornin' you had better canter him just slow around once, and then send him a full mile an' a quarter as though there was money hung up for it. I'll catch his time, an' we'll get wise to what he can do."

This program was carried out, and Dixon looked thrice at his watch after the gallop to make sure that he was not mistaken in the time, 2:11.

"He can move; he surprised me," the trainer said to Allis, as she dismounted. "He's not blown, either. Gad! we'll do those blackguards up yet, I believe."

The gallop had attracted Mike's attention also. As Allis moved away he called after her, "I say, b'y, hould on a minute. What's yer name, enny-way?"

"Al," answered the small voice.

"Well, by me faith, ye didn't put up no bad roide. Ye handled that horse foine. Don't run away, lad," he added, hurrying after the retreating Allis.

Before she could escape him, he had caught her by the arm, and turned about face to face. Even then he didn't recognize her, for Allis had taken a most subtle precaution in her make-up. The delicate olive of her cheeks was hidden under a more than liberal allowance of good agricultural cosmetique.

"Lord, what a doirty face!" exclaimed Mike. "But ye kin roide, b'y; so dirt don't count; clean ridin's the thing."

If Allis hadn't laughed in his face, Mike would not have recognized her—even then he didn't hit it off quite right.

"Alan Porter!" he gasped. "Bot' t'umbs up! Is it ye b'y?"

"Hush!" and a small warning finger was held up.

"Don't fear, b'y, that I'll give it away. Mum's the word wit' me. But I'm d——d if I t'ought ye could roide like that. It's just in the breed, that's what it is. Yer father could roide afore ye; none better, an' Miss Allis can sit a horse foiner nor any b'y as isn't a top-notcher. But this beats me, t'umbs up, if it doesn't. I onderstand," he continued, as Allis showed an inclination to travel, "ye don't want the push to get on to ye. They won't nayther—what did ye say yer name was, sonny?"

"Ye'r a good b'y, Al."

As Allis moved away, Mike stood watching the neat figure.

"That's the ganie, eh?" he muttered to himself; "the gal don't trust Redpath no more'n I do. The b'y didn't finish on Lucretia an' that's all there is to it. But how's Alan goin' to turn the trick in a big field of rough ridin' b'ys? If it was the gurl herself—" a sudden brilliant idea threw its strong light through Mike's brain pan. He took a dozen quick shuffling steps after Allis, then stopped as suddenly as he had started. "Mother a' Moses! but I believe it's the gurl; that's why the chestnut galloped as if he had her on his back! Jasus! he had."

A HARD STRUGGLE.

Many a Plainfield Citizen Finds the Struggle Hard.

With a back constantly aching.

With distressing disorders,

Daily existence is but a struggle.

No need to keep it up.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Plainfield people endorse this claim:

Robert Love, 44 Duer street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For eight or nine years I was a victim of kidney complaint. Every cold I contracted, settled in my kidneys and caused my back to ache severely. Any heavy lifting or much standing on my feet gave me additional pain. In the morning upon arising, my back was in a bad condition and the lameness did not disappear until I had exercised for some time. I doctored and used several so-called kidney cures, but this was only a waste of money. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. When I had taken about half the contents of the box my condition was greatly improved and before long the pain left me entirely. I will always speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills when the opportunity offers."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

May Ward in "The Cash Girl" seems to have been well placed considering her comedy talents. Few women can so charmingly disregard the doll-like prettiness and play comedy from the start as Miss Ward. For some years she has been one of the cleverest vaudevillians in the country and her advent as a star is one with interest. "The Cash Girl" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night.

The village gossips wondered who he was, what he was, what he came for, and how long he intended to stay. They were anxious to find out all this about a young lawyer from Boston named Quincy Adams Sawyer who had come to live at a small Massachusetts village for a year or so. A very successful book, which has its famous title from this young man's name, was written around Mr. Sawyer's doings in the country and around the village gossips who "wondered" all these things about him, and now the book in play form is to be elaborately produced here next Monday night at the New Plainfield theatre. A strong company of well known players appear in the production. It has proven "the best New England play ever written," during the successful run at the Academy of Music in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Martin have returned from the Thousand Islands, where they spent the past season at their summer home.

Baseball and Running Events.

In connection with the baseball game to be played between Clinton Avenue, champions of Union county, and Bound Brook, at the latter place Saturday, there will be two running competitions, two prizes of $2.50 gold pieces. One will be given to the Bound Brook player who reaches first base in the quickest time, and the other to the home player making the circuit of the bases in the quickest time. The competitions will be held at 3 o'clock and the ball game will be started at 3:15 o'clock. Skillman is announced as the pitcher for Bound Brook, while Randolph will officiate for Clinton Avenue. The admission fee will be the same as charged at Crescent Oval. This game will close the season at Bound Brook.

A Fairy Story in Pictures.

Today's big feature film at the Bijou theatre, East Front street, is "The Blue Bird." It tells a pretty fairy story in a realistic way. The bill also includes three reels of subjects that are positive death to the blues.

The association team was organized last year by Physical Director Listman and Jacot, Miller, Conway and Peacock were the only new members of the club. Ralph Schoonmaker, who was captain and catcher, was the mainstay of the team both in hitting and fielding, and he leads his mates in stolen bases. Considering that this was his first year behind the bat his record is a good one.

John Jacot held the initial sack down in good shape and he improved wonderfully since the beginning of the season, being among the leaders in fielding and hitting. Harry Gilmore at second, put up a steady game, his hitting being a feature. Howard Craig, who covered short, is rated as one of the best in this section of the State. Owing to an illness he was unable to play the entire season, but when in the game his work was of a high class. Craig captained the team last season.

"Jim" Conway played third base for the team for the first time, though well-known from his work on the high school team and on other teams, since he left school, his work has improved. Largely through his efforts the pennant comes to Plainfield.

Charles Loizeaux, who played second base and shortstop, was a member of the high school team last season. He is rapidly developing into a good hitter and sure fielder and another season should be able to hold a regular position. "Dave" Pond, who covered left-field, is without an equal as a fielder in his class, and equals the best in base running. Will Schoonmaker in centre field, proved himself just as reliable as Pond and his hitting has been a feature.

M. Miller occasionally played in rightfield and many a run was scored as a result of his batting. "Jimmie" Scott, one of the main twirlers, did good work all season, although he was handicapped by a little trouble with his arm. When in condition he is hard to beat. He did good work with the stick and in running bases. "Jack" Peacock, the other twirler, is fast rounding into one of the best pitchers on the team. With more experience in the box he should prove a valuable man for the team. At one time during the season, Peacock led the team in batting.

arranging for the pacific settlement of all international dispute by appeal to a permanent tribunal, the conference had established a supreme court of the world, had made arbitration compulsory, instead of merely arbitrary, had taken measures to stop wars between three of five continents and land conquests, and had arranged for an automatic, periodical, self-governing conference—the first steps toward a parliament of man.

Mr. Holt was introduced to the club members by Lindsey Best, president of the church organization. At the conclusion of the lecture, the speaker distributed lists of books on the movement for universal peace, and during the informal hour which followed the lecture, there was considerable individual discussion of the subject. In accordance with the custom of the club, refreshments, consisting of sandwiches and coffee, were served.

Thieves at Berkeley Heights.

The Berkeley Heights public school and the Lyceum building were broken into by thieves, last night who stole a number of articles worth a small amount of money. From the school they took some of Principal Woodruff's clothing, a number of books and a large quantity of pencils, while from the Lyceum they carried away a handsome American flag, 12 by 18 feet, which adorned the wall. There is no clue to the guilty persons.

CASE ASSAILS DUNGAN

Young Lawyer Bitterly Flays Somerset Democratic Senatorial Nominee.

SAYS HE IS INCONSISTENT.

The Major's Record on the Excise Proposition Cause Arraignment at G. O. P. Meeting.

Mercilessly flaying Nelson Y. Dungan, the Democratic candidate for State Senator in Somerset, especially for his alleged attitude on the question of local option, Clarence Case, a prominent young lawyer of Somerville, addressed a large gathering of Republicans in Saengerbund Hall, last night. The fact that it was known that Mr. Case was to speak particularly on the excise question and show Mr. Dungan's relations with the liquor interests of Somerset county, created unusual interest in the meeting.

Mr. Case declared that Mr. Dungan, during the past three years had represented more liquor places under indictment and on application than any other lawyer in Somerset county; that he was the counsel for the Somerset County Liquor Dealer's Association. Speaking more definitely he cited the alleged fact that only recently he was instrumental in securing licenses for two undesirable applicants, held up purposely by the court to allow protests, and that after his success he went to the office of a newspaper at Somerville and requested that his name be withheld from the proceedings, because of the fact that he was a candidate for office, and that it was withheld. These and other statements were made by Mr. Case to show the alleged inconsistency of Mr. Dungan in his appeal to the voters of his county.

The members and supporters of the Anti-Saloon League were shown up by the speaker, who declared that they were "working" the members of churches to vote for Mr. Dungan because he had proclaimed himself to be a friend of local option and home rule. He exposed the alleged trick of the opponents of Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who are trying to show that the latter is in favor of an open Sunday, and showed it to be a political dodge as proved by the Senator's record and recent declaration as to his position on local option. Mr. Case went considerable into details and related some personal experiences to prove the alleged questionable methods employed by Mr. Dungan in his fight for office.

At the outset Mr. Case said that there is one phase of the political situation in Somerset county which appears to overshadow everything else. Never was there a more persistent attempt to sidetrack the main issue. Right in the midst of a great Presidential election, when it is important that the right man be elected; when there is to be elected a representative in Congress for two years, a State Senator, who will vote for the next United States Senator, together with all the great national issues before the people, there is the spectacle of candidates dribbling about side issues.

"The candidate for State Senator on the Democratic ticket, Nelson Y. Dungan, is a man of honesty and ability," continued Mr. Case, "and I am not here to accuse him of any wrong doing. But in his anxiety to be elected he has plunged into inconsistencies. In Bound Brook we find one condition, in the country districts another and in North Plainfield still another. Every district has a different condition and there is a dose for every complaint. At Bound Brook they are accusing Senator Frelinghuysen of being responsible for the increase in tax rate, when it is due entirely to local conditions, including a new $65,000 school house. In the country districts Mr. Dungan is telling the farmers that Mr. Frelinghuysen is not representing them because he supported a bill compelling 12 per cent. solids in milk, when in his opinion ten or eleven would be sufficient. As a matter of fact that bill was a law four years before Mr. Frelinghuysen went to Trenton.

"The excise question is one that must be considered carefully and with calm reasoning. Until the last month or two we heard of no local option in Somerset county. We heard about good roads and other matters of county interest, but not a word about local option. In a public statement in the press we learn that Mr. Dungan pledges himself to vote for local option. In a word local option means that the voters in any community are privileged to decide whether or not they want license. It does not change the licensing power."

Just at this point Mr. Case read Senator Frelinghuysen's published

In Honor of Wedding Anniversary.

In honor of the fifth anniversary of their wedding, a few friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Mantz, of East Fifth street, arranged an informal reception for them at their home last night. There were about a dozen guests present and the evening was pleasantly passed in a social manner, a feature being vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served. A pleasant surprise was given Mrs. Mantz, when she was presented with a handsome set of dishes. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mantz received the congratulations of their friends and wishes for many happy returns of the day.

SUIT OVER R. R. TICKET

S. Rosenbaum's Commutation Card Lifted and He Wants $500 for Humiliation.

THE DECISION IS RESERVED.

Incident on a Jersey Central Train Has Its Climax in District Court—Briefs to Be Submitted.

Seeking to recover damages for humiliation and the loss of the use of his commutation ticket, S. Harry Rosenbaum, of this city, was the plaintiff in an action against the New Jersey Central, in the district court, this morning. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was counsel for the plaintiff, and the company was represented by Edwin Miller. Decision was reserved and counsel was requested to submit briefs bearing on the law in the action.

According to the evidence presented, Mr. Rosenbaum was riding on a New Jersey Central passenger train on August 9, last, when Conductor George Van Ordwick took up his commutation ticket. For several days afterward he rode to and from New York on excursion tickets and then purchased another commutation ticket to complete the month. The action in tort is for $500.

The company's defense was that the conductor had punched Mr. Rosenbaum's ticket in the hands of another person a few days previous at which time a note was made of it. When it was offered by Mr. Rosenbaum it was taken up. The latter testified that he had never leased or hired his ticket out and the fact that there wer only thirteen punches in the ticket and it was the ninth of the month when it was taken up, there was little opportunity for the owner hiring the ticket, inasmuch as he is a commuter. According to the company's testimony, the ticket in question was offered by another person on August 5, four days before it was taken up by the conductor.

Wedded at Newark.

Fred Miller, night distributing clerk at the local postoffice, and Miss Ethel Leek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Leek, of Newark, were married at noon today at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only immediate relatives. After a three days' wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home in the Manning building on West Front street. The parents of the bride formerly resided on East Fifht street and were prominent workers in Trinity Reformed church.

MANY CASES HEARD IN DISTRICT COURT

Several cases were quickly disposed of at the weekly session of the district court, this morning. The action of Spencer Scribner against the P. S. C., was reported settled by F. J. Blatz, counsel for the plaintiff, and the cases of Clarence T. Brokaw against Henry Leahy and V. W. Nash, Jr., against Henry Leahy, claim of property, were reported discontinued.

The contract case of Titus H. Laury against David S. Dunavan, was not moved and was reported off the list. Judgment was given the plaintiff for $49.62 in the case of John Herrman against James T. Dawe and for $72.63 in the contract case of F. W. Wohlfert against James T. Dawe. In the contract action of Catherine Bergen against Wilbur Brighton, judgment for $12 was given the plaintiff.

In the replevin suit of Sheerer & Crown, a corporation, against O'Donnell Brothers, the court found title to the goods in question in the claimant and judgment accordingly.

Robert Newton Crane, counsel for Christopher Meyers, complainant against the P. S. C., in an action for damages to his wife, seeks a new trial, having lost the first one. FUGITIVE CHARGE FAILS Connecticut Man's Accusation Against Plainfielder Proves to Be a Fizzle.

CASE IN THE CITY COURT.

Defendant Acquitted by Judge Runyon and Swears Out Warrant for Perjury in Retaliation.

On a charge preferred by John J. Orton, of Lakeville, Conn., declaring him to be a fugitive from justice, Albert U. Martin, mining speculator whose home is at 520 West Seventh street, was arrested by the local police yesterday as he was on his way to the North Avenue station. He was taken to headquarters where he vigorously denied the allegation and asserted that Orton's action was the result of spite work resulting from differences they had when they were in partnership as brokers. The Connecticut authorities were communicated with and information came last night that led to the defendant's discharge when he was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning.

Martin immediately preferred a counter-charge of perjury against Orton and the latter will be arrested as soon as possible. He was not in court as he went to Hartford last night, as he said, for the purpose of getting papers relating to his complaint and failed to return. The police of that city will be asked to take him into custody pending the arrival of a Plainfield officer.

Orton's charge against Martin was based on an alleged warrant issued in 1896, accusing the Plainfielder of embezzling a large sum of money from the complainant. Orton told Chief Kiely that repeated efforts had been made to get Martin since then, but that he had never been located until the present time. The amount of money involved, he said, was $5,000. Orton was insistant about a fugitive warrant and Judge Runyon issued one, at the same time instructing the police to proceed carefully in the matter.

When Martin entered a general denial of the fugitive charge or of having been accused of embezzlement, the authorities at Hartford were telegraphed. Responses came from the chief of police and the prosecutor to the effect that they had no knowledge of any such embezzlement as alleged by Orton, or that any attempt had been made to apprehend Albert U. Martin. In addition to these dispatches, one came from a close friend of Judge Runyon's at Hartford, stating that he had looked up the matter and that so far as he could learn there was nothing to it. The complaint against Martin was accordingly dismissed, after which he swore out the warrant for Orton.

Martin is a man of attractive personality and is well known in New York's brokerage and financial circles. He has offices at No. 42 Broadway. In his statement to Chief iKely he declared that Orton is possessed of considerable means, but has been acting in a vindictive mood toward him ever since they failed in the brokerage business during the financial panic that followed Bryan's nomination in 1896.

PLAINFIELDERS WIN AT ESSEX POULTRY SHOW.

Plainfielders figured prominently in the prize poultry exhibit now being held at the Essex County Fair in Newark. A. C. Bechstein, of Park avenue, sent four Buff Orpingtons and received four prizes, a first for a cock, a first for a cockerel, a second for a hen and a fifth for a pullet; also one pair of Japanese silkies, for which he received two firsts.

Harold W. Schenck, of West Front street, showed four single comb black Orpingtons and was awarded four prizes, a second for a cock, a first for a hen, a second for a pullet and a fourth for a cockerel.

Sidewalks a Disgrace.

The sidewalks along West Front street in the business section are being relaid in several places; but the workmen have in a few instances left the walks in a condition that is likely to cause trouble. Yesterday afternoon a woman turned her ankle at one of these bad spots, where the stone was raised to the supposed grade. A prominent business merchant in speaking of the matter said today that he thought the condition of the sidewalks in the business part of Plainfield was a positive disgrace to the city.

Hoboken Condemned Local Cars.

It may be of interest to patrons of the local trolley lines to know that several cars now being operated on the Somerset and Netherwood and Fourth street lines were formerly used in Hoboken. They were condemned by the city officials there, who compelled the Public Service Corporation to replace them with modern cars.

Dungan will make a reply to the attack on him by Clarence Case, of Somerville, at the borough Republican rally last night. MISS FRANCES DUMONT IS NOW MRS. RADFORD

Miss Frances Mallaby Dumont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dumont, of Madison, and LeRoy S. Radford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Radford, of Park avenue, this city, were married last night at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Stephen Simpson, of New York, a relative of the bride, in the presence of a large number of relatives and intimate friends.

The bride's gown was of white satin and princess lace and she wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried white chrysanthemums. She was attended by her sister, Miss Natalie Dumont, whose gown was of pink chiffon over messaline of the same shade and she carried pink chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Harold A. Chandor, of this city, as best man. The ushers were William H. Dumont, brother of the bride, and Robert Lester Radford brother of the groom.

The house was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, palms, ferns, autumn flowers and leaves. The bride received many handsome and costly gifts, including silverware, cut-glass, China, jewelry, mahogany furniture and several checks, one of which was presented by the firm of bankers, in whose office the groom has been employed for a number of years. His friends in the office also presented him with a handsome Tiffany clock.

After an extended trip through the south the couple will reside in Roseville, where they will be at home after November 5.

Ladies' Aid Society Busy.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, will resume fall activities on Tuesday night when a social will be held in Vincent chapel. The committee in charge will comprise those members whose names are included in the letters A. to H. On November 20, a tea and sale of useful and fancy articles will be held at the home of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller on Washington avenue. The society is also planning a series of afternoon lectures to be given druing February and March, further announcement of which will be made later.

Returns from Western Trip.

Edwin Langley, Plainfield's well-known "transcontinental traveller," returned to the city last night after a seven months trip through the middle West. He visited many of the larger cities in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Missouri, returning by way of Albany and the Hudson river towns. Mr. Langley declares that the industrial conditions are bad almost everywhere and that there is no prospect of any betterment. He will remain in Plainfield but a week and will then go to New England for an indefinite stay.

Lauder Theatre Party.

Judge William N. Runyon, John Nicol, John H. Cose and Elmer D. Cutting made up a theatre party that witnessed Harry Lauder's appearance at the Lincoln Square theatre last night. They were greatly enthused over the Scotchman's droll of humor and his singing of "hoot mon" ballads.

NO POLITICS IN CHURCH

Father Bogan Says American History Disproves the Calumny.

CATHOLICS OF ALL PARTIES.

St. Mary's Rector Astonished at Suggestion for One Party for All Catholic Laity.

Denying that it has ever taken any hand in politics in this county and denouncing a suggestion that it should, Father Bernard M. Bogan, made an eloquent address before the members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, in which he declared that the charge that the Roman Catholic church dictates to the faithful in political affairs is a base calumny.

When a member had put a question whether it would not be advisable for all Catholic men in this country to unite in one political party, the scholarly priest of St. Mary's, arose and made a most vigorious speech. After expressing his astonishment that such a suggestion should be made by an intelligent man among intelligent men, he explained the position of the church, one of absolute non-interference.

"This very question," said Father Bogan, "contains the spirit of accusation against all Catholics which I had hoped had long since left the minds of all intelligent men. Among all the calumnies that have ever been invented to bring odium upon American Catholic citizens, none has done half so much to arouse against us the suspicion, the hatred and the bitter persecution of our non-Catholic fellow citizens as has the oft-repeated charge that we owe political allegiance to the Pope of Rome. Many assert, and some honestly believe, that the Pope, through the bishops and priests, of the church, control the political as well as the religious belief of American Catholics. Hitherto, the most conclusive refutation of this monstrous calumny has been found in the fact that while Catholics are united in religious faith, they are as much divided in politics as the members of any other religious denomination.

"It is a noted fact, and a complete vindication of Roman Catholics against the charge of looking to the Pope for their politicol opinions is that during our terrible civil war, Roman Catholics while remaining a unit in religious faith, were as much divided in opinion as to the issues of that war, as any other class of American citizens. In fact many of the most distinguished generals, both Federals and Confederates, as well as many of the bravest soldiers in the ranks of either side, were Roman Catholics, professing the same religious faith, and kneeling at the same altar. This fact stands as conclusive proof to all but prejudicial minds that these brave men serving in opposing armies, while worshipping at the same shrine, did not derive both their religion and political faith from the same source. But what we have taken, as the saying is, 'from Rome,' is the moral sense of responsibility that is ours, that the nation we love so ardently must depend upon the right conscience of the individual for the perpetuation of its traditions."

Another Chance to Register.

Evening gymnasium classes at the Y. W. C. A. are filling up rapidly. There is still room in the afternoon classes for more registrations and those who expect to enter are urged to report at the rooms this week so that the classes may open with a full membership. There will be an opportunity for those who have not had their hearts and lungs examined to do so at the rooms this evening from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock. This work is especially beneficial for young girls and it is hoped that the junior classes for girls between the ages of 8 and 14 years will be well filled.

Gave a "House-Warming."

Having completed extensive improvements to his home on West Front street, Joseph H. Wright gave a "house-warming" to a few of his friends last night. The affair was a "stag" and during the evening there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, followed by the serving of refreshments. Those present were Dr. Ralph Waldo Emerson, Dr. W. Kempton Browning, Arthur Spicer, Edward Hardingham, Harry Moulton, Albert Lederer and H. B. Paul.

STATE SCHOOL HEAD GIVES HEALTH HINTS

Rules compiled by State Superintendent C. J. Baxter, formerly of this city, on "How to keep well and prevent consumption" were posted in the local public schools today. These are the rules, which, by the way, are just as efficacious for the grown folks:

Air—Fresh air and sunshine are necessary to good health. Cold, damp, fresh air does no harm if the skin is kept warm. Night air is as good as day air. Breathe only through your nose. Avoid hot, crowded, dusty, dark or damp rooms. Breathe deeply and throw back the shoulders frequently.

Food—Live on plain food and eat regularly. Eat slowly, chew thoroughly and avoid fried food. Drink water freely (not iced). Have your own cup if drinking fountains are not provided at school.

Exercise and Rest—Regular exercise is essential to good health. Go to bed early and sleep with the windows open. Never sleep in a damp bed.

Clothing—Wear only loose clothes. Wear no more clothing than you need for warmth. Never sit with wet feet or in damp clothing.

Cleanliness — Consumption and other diseases are spread by careless spitting. Spittle on the floors of rooms, hall, stores and cars will certainly be breathed in the form of dust. Keep clean, wipe and dry the body quickly every day. Keep your finger nails clean and wash your hands and face before you eat. Clean your teeth after each meal and before going to bed. Never hold money, pencils, pins or other things in your mouth. Never lick your fingers while turning pages of a book or counting money.

Thinking all the teachers were out of the public school building at Woodbury late Monday afternoon, the janitor locked the doors, and one of the women teachers was empelled to jump out of a window, which is ten feet from the ground.

Mrs. Rachel Henderson, a Millville florist, who was injured in a rear end collision of trolley cars while traveling from Washington Park to Camden last week, was more seriously hurt than was at first thought, and it is feared that she will not recover.

For the fortieth consecutive year John T. Bottomley has been elected superintendent of the Linden Baptist Bible School in Camden. During his incumbency the superintendent has seen the school grow from a mere handful to one of the largest of that denomination in Camden.

Thieves broke into Christ Protestant Episcopal church at Bordentown Monday night by forcing a door. They searched every room for plunder, breaking open all closets and forcing windows. All that is known that they secured was a bottle of communion wine. This makes the second time the church has been robbed recently. The previous time they carried away the poor box and cash.

statement showing his position on the local option question, in which he says that he cannot wholly support local option because it would afford communities the right to sell liquor every day in the year and might result in an open Sunday and that he is unalterably opposed to an open Sunday.

"Col. Dungan has and is using local option as a dodge," continued Mr. Case. "I have here a letter written by Rev. Dr. James LaFevre, of Somerville, to Rev. Dr. Morgan, of Newark, who tonight is addressing a big local option meeting at Somerville, in which he says that Mr. Dungan is making local option a personal issue and that if the latter should be elected he would not be the weight of a straw in Trenton. Yet, the Anti-Saloon League is rallying to its support the church organizations and is asking churchmen to elect Mr. Dungan.

"When an organization like the Anti-Saloon League comes into Somerset county and berates the man I love and admire, I say I resent such influence. It is unfair and a misrepresentation of facts. No such condition exists here. I hold here in my hand a copy of 'The Issue,' of October 2, in which Senator Frelinghuysen is pictured by the Anti-Saloon League as opposed to local option and by inuendo pictures the Senator seated in the midst of a lot of beer barrels and represented as a boss. The picture is labelled 'Candidate against local option.' I see that J. Frank Burke is the editor of this paper.

"This Anti-Saloon League has gone into Somerset county and declares that it is imperative that the church shall make a good county. They publish the statement that Mr. Frelinghuysen is opposed to local option, that the league stands for Mr. Dungan. Such statements bring a blush of shame to my face. Is it right? Last Friday J. Frank Burke wrote a lot of incoherent questions to Senator Frelinghuysen and before they could be answered they were published in pamphlet form and distributed in the county. I recall from the Legislative records that this J. Frank Burke was severely censured by the Legislature last March and further privileges of the floor were denied him.

"About a year ago when Mr. Dungan was a member of the Consistory of the First Reformed church at Somerville, a Mr. Burke was advertised to address the congregation one Sunday morning. I happened to be there taking the place of an absent member. Mr. Dungan approached me and said: 'Who is this man Burke? Is he the man that was lobbying at Trenton last winter? If he is he shall not address this congregation with my consent.' Mr. Dungan even went so far as to write a note of protest which he sent to the pastor of the church. Fortunately, it was J. Frank Burke's brother who spoke and any trouble was averted.

"The question is whether Mr. Dungan's present attitude entitles him to the support of the temperance people. During the last three years Mr. Dungan has represented more liquor places under indictment and on application than any other lawyer in Somerset county and he has been the counsel for the Somerset County Liquor Dealers' Association. These facts do not hang well together and should not give Mr. Dungan all the local option support. It was through his efforts that two undesirable applicants received their licenses and at his request the Somerset Democrat withheld his name from the proceedings.

"At Rocky Hill, Mr. Dungan makes an address and among other things states that if every hotel was conducted as Mount's Hotel there would be no cause for trouble. After the meeting Mr. Dungan went to Mr. Mount, explained that he had paid him a compliment and wanted to know what he was going to pay for it, whereupon Mr. Mount replied, 'Let us have a drink,' and Mr. Dungan had a drink.

"Mr. Dungan once said, 'I would rather lose my election than hurt my friend, Col. Earley, of Somerville.' The candidate is carrying water on both shoulders, playing both ends against the middle. I don't say that it is wrong. I might do it myself if I was a candidate, but it is all wrong to line the church up to vote for Col. Dungan. A man in Somerville recently urged a friend to vote for Mr. Dungan adding that he is the man to get your license.

"We have a candidate in Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen who is fair and frank and who leaves no doubt as to where he stands on all the important questions of vital interest to the voters. As to local option the condition for it does not exist here. With conditions like those in Plainfield everyone would be satisfied. You cannot legislate thirst out a man's throat and if your community should 'go dry' those who want liquor would get it. It is better to have the business under proper control as provided for in the Bishops' bill with proper amendments. Our candidate is a man who has brought Somerset county to the front and he should be continued in office."

Prior to the speech-making and afterward a professional entertainer from New York kept the audience in good humor with funny stories and songs.

Dr. Justus H. Cooley presided at the meeting. After the speeches refreshments and cigars were passed.

Stephen Stover, of Oak Tree, a clerk in Smith Brothers' grocery store, has obtained a two weeks' leave of absence, and will spend the time traveling in the west.

Anyone who has followed the ramblings of Dickens' Mr. Pickwick must have a sincere longing for a pot of good old ale such as Mr. Pickwick and his jovial companions enjoyed daily at the dear old public houses.

Bartholomay's sparkling ale is a good ale, very pleasing to the palate. It has that happy tang that delights the conniseur and pleases everybody.

DATES ANNOUNCED FOR TEACHERS' INSTITUTES.

Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, announced yesterday the schedule of county teachers institutes for this year. Only eleven counties in the State are to be favored with an institute under the usual plan in vogue since the appointment of a State High School inspector. The counties which this year will have no institute are Essex, Mercer, Hudson, Atlantic, Bergen, Camden, Cumberland, Gloucester, Passaic and Union.

The schedule is as follows: Cape May county, Ocean City, October 14, 15 and 16; Salem county, Salem, October 19 and 20; Burlington county, Mt. Holly, October 21, 22 and 23; Ocean county, Lakewood, October 26, 27 and 28; Monmouth county, Ocean Grove, October 30 and 31; Sussex county, Newton, November 4, 5 and 6; Morris county, Dover, November 9 and 10; Warren county, Hackettstown, November 11, 12 and 13; Somerset county, Somerville, November 16 and 17; Hunterdon county, Flemington, November 18, 19 and 20.

NEW STAMP ISSUE IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Washington, Oct. 14.—A set of United States postage stamps to replace those now current will be issue before the end of the year. The idea for the new series of stamps originated with the postmaster general several weeks ago, and he immediately asked Edward Ralph, director of the bureau of engraving and printing, to execute it. It required some time for the engravers to make a design which met Mr. Meyer's idea, but today Mr. Ralph presented to him a fac simile of the stamps which he found to be exactly what he wanted.

The colors of the stamps will be the same for each denomination as those now current, and the historical characters now commemorated will not be changed. The chief departure is in the position of the faces. At present full face portraits are shown on all the stamps, but the new set will present a clear cut profile view. Mr. Ralph is enthusiastic over the postmaster general's design and says the stamps will be the finest ever issued by the government. It is probable that the first will be put on sale next month, or as soon as the old set, of which there rae five hundred million in the bureau of engravin galone, is exhausted. As two-cent stamps sell at the rate of thirty million a day, it is not likely that much time will elapse before the new set is needed.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

State Political Issues.

In his speech at Jersey City last night Governor Fort laid down a broad program of State policy. His address probably outlined reforms in the executive mind upon which he will ask the next Legislature to act. These are the important things the Governor said was necessary:

To strengthen and extend the direct primary law.

To pass a public utilities bill that will meet the advanced thought of the people.

To hold and improve the civil service law.

To see to it that the laws of the State, when enacted by the representatives of the people, are obeyed and enforced.

To put the riparian lands under better statutory regulations, that they may be conserved for future generations in the interests of free schools.

To abolish useless State commissions; to recognize and consolidate others in the interests of greater efficiency.

To meet and satisfactorily settle the excise issue.

Should the Governor succeed even in settling the excise issue he will retire from the Governorship with the assurance that he will be remembered gatefully by the people of the State.—Elizabeth Journal.

FAIRBANKS, SHERMAN PREACH G.O.P. GOSPEL

A tremendous and enthusiastic crowd greeted Vice-President Fairbanks and James S. Sherman, the Vice-Presidentatial nominee, in the Krueger Auditorium in Newark last night. The hall, the largest in the city, was jammed to overflowing long before the hour set for the meeting, and before the Vice-President was introduced there were hundreds clamoring in vain to gain admission, who eventually had to be turned away.

Ex-United States Senator John F. Dryden was chairman of the meeting. When Judge Taft's name was mentioned the crowd went into an uproar. Apparently the only question in the minds of those present at the end of the meeting was to how large the Republican majority in New Jersey would be.

Mr. Sherman did not reach the Auditorium until the Vice-President had almost completed his address. As he entered he was recognized almost instantly, and a great outburst of applause greeted him.

The Vice-President, who had been a guest since Sunday of State Chairman Franklin Murphy, was escorted to the hall by the Frelinghuysen Lancers, under the direction of Major Jesse R. Salmon, of Newark. In a brief speech Mr. Dryden introduced Mr. Fairbanks, and in recalling his visit to the city four years ago referred to the history of the party in New Jersey during the last four years.

It was several minutes after Mr. Sherman was introduced before he could begin his speech, for the cheering was deafening. He discussed the more important issues of the present campaign. At the end of the meeting the Vice-President and Mr. Sherman returned to Mr. Murphy's home, where refreshments were served.

POLITICAL NOTES.

It was an enthusiastic gathering of Republicans that met Monday night in the Republican headquarters at Elizabeth, and the Republican Citizen's Auxiliary Committee of Sixty, of Elizabeth, was formally organized. Officers were elected as follows: President, Robert B. Cissell; vice-president, William F. Groves; treasurer, John J. Stamler; secretary, Charles Wagner; executive committee, Neil McCarthy, Edward S. Atwater, Jr., C. M. Hiller, Charles Matthews and Dr. P. DuBois Bunting.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Taft and Sherman Club of Westfield, was held at headquarters in the old Westfield Hotel Building Monday night, at which time Charles N. Codding explained for the benefit of newcomers to the town the system of government for State, county and town, and how the primary and general elections are conducted. The club is trying to arrange a monster massmeeting for the evening of October 23, at the Westfield Club Hall, at which time Charles N. Fowler and several other speakers are to be present.

Instead of the World poll indicating a Bryan sweep in Greater New York, it gives him a prospect of only 7,000 plurality in New York city, with a Taft plurality of 147,100 up state. This is the result of an analysis of the figures by Charles A. Conant, a gold Democrat.

The nominations made by the Socialists for the city of Elizabeth and county of Union are as follows: State Senator, Christopher Jerome Cosgrove, of Roselle; members of Assembly, Charles Zeitelback of Westfield, William Walker, of Elizabeth, and Issac Evans, of this city; Sheriff, Max Theimer, of Elizabeth; Coroner, John Kauffman, also of Elizabeth; Mayor, Gustave Theimer. In the First ward Valentine Marx has been named for Council and Charles Bobertz for Assessor. In the Third ward the nominee for Council is John Ware and in the Fifth ward August Buethe, Jr., for Council and Albert Cramer for Assessor. Philip Kreis is the nominee for Council in the Seventh ward and Frederich Mair for Assembly. In the Eighth ward William Frederich Wurster and Rudolph Steingass for members of the Board of Education. Benjamin F. Briesford has been named in the Ninth ward for Council and Rudolph Stark for Assessor, and in the Tenth ward Howard Leroy Keiper is named for Council. The Freeholders nominated are Theodore Buickerood Benjamin M. McClaren, Alfred Brestschnieder and Charles Kuell.

The Prohibition nominees for election this fall are George R. Sayre, of Elizabeth, for State Senator; J. Malcolm Brookfield, of Rahway, for Sheriff; William H. King, of Summit, J. Robert Given, of this city, and Edward Massett, of Westfield, for Assembly, and Frederick W. Myles, of this city for coroner.

Former United States Senator John M. Thurston, of Nebraska, was the principal speaker at an enthusiastic Republican rally last night at the People's Palace in Jersey City. There was a large attendance, many women being in the gallery. Ex-Senator Thurston was slightly hoarse and said in beginning his speech: "I have been talking so much that my voice has grown as rough and as ragged as the Democratic platform."

Miss May Ward, who will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, tells an amusing story that happened while rehearsing "The Cash Girl" in New York city. Miss Ward was detained at the theatre until the wee sma' hours, but finally the long rehearsal ended and she started for home. The car which she boarded was deserted except for one man, whose fullness was more than enough to balance the emptiness of the seats about him. The wine had not drowned his courtesy, however, and as Miss Ward climbed into the vehicle he rose unsteadily to his feet and said, "Take my seat little girl." Miss Ward was unwilling to argue with a drunken man, and so the car proceeded up town with its bench vacant, except for the comedienne and her companion clinging unsteadily to a strap.

Two very striking and much talked of features in "Quincy Adams Sawyer," New York's latest and greatest rural drama success, to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, occur in the last act. One is the "asking the blessing" at the evening meal, and the other consists of concluding the evening's performance with the singing of the Doxology, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." Both incidents are natural elements in the development of the story and add realistic detail to a play of great realism.

There are no less than six full-fledged love stories in process all the time through the story of "Quincy Adams Sawyer," and this is without the aid of a villian. There is no villian in this rural drama; neither is there a wronged girl, a lost will, a mortgage on the farm, nor a cruel uncle. These unique features have been great elements in the success of the play everywhere.

POLICEMAN LOSES EYE AND MAYBE HIS LIFE.

Called to throw a crowd of roysterers out of the saloon of Michael Yatcho, 83 Catherine street, early yesterday, Israel Weitzen, a policeman of Perth Amboy, was beaten so badly that he will lose the sight of one eye and may die.

One of the assailants was captured by Patrolman Kozusko, who followed Weitzen into the place, but the mob turned on him and beat him so badly that he was left unconscious. Afterward Joseph Solmar was arrested as one of the men who had a hand in the fight. He was held without bail to await the result of the men's injuries.

Solmar was afterward identified by Weitzen as the man who dealt him the blow which deprived him of his eyesight.

DIVORCE DENIED TO BOTH.

Vice-Chancellor Dismisses Bill and Cross-bill of Reeses.

William W. Rees and wife, Mrs. Julia R. Rees, both of Trenton, were yesterday refused divorces by Vice-Chancellor Walker, who takes occasion to score the husband for failing to properly prove the charges of dissipation which he made against his wife and for only "feebly" denying her cross-charge that he was infatuated with another woman.

Rees filed a petition on the grounds of desertion, asserting that his wife left him because he reproved her for indulging in liquor and cigarettes. He declared that when he reproved her she told him that unless she was allowed to follow her own inclinations she would leave him, and that she did this, going to New York to live.

Mrs. Rees replied with a cross-bill in which she also sought a legal separation. She denied that she was addicted to the use of either tobacco or intoxicating liquors, and charged her husband with infatuation for another woman and with using vile and indecent language.

KENNEDY CHOSEN CHIEF.

Regulars Win in Rahway Firemen's Election.

The annual election for chief engineer and two assistants of the Rahway fire department took place Monday night, the regular or downtown ticket winning by an overwhelming majority over the independent ticket. Davided E. Kennedy, of Washington Chemical Company No. 1 was elected chief, defeating Charles Schafer, of Independence Hook and Ladder Company No. 1. The assistant engineers elected are William Melbourne, of Washington Hose Company No. 1, and John McCoy, of Lincoln Hook and Ladder Company No. 2.

Following the election, the victorious companies, headed by bands and drum corps, and midst a blaze of red fire, paraded. The newly elected chief was also serenaded at his home, Irving and Lewis streets.

XXIX.

The news that Lucretia was sick had got about. The Porters' stable traveled out in the betting for the Brooklyn derby until a backer—if there had been one—could have written his own price and got it.

Langdon had informed Crane of this change in their favor.

"I'm sorry that Porter's mare has gone wrong," Crane said. "I think we would have won anyway, but it'll just about ruin them."

Figuratively, Langdon closed one eye and winked to himself.

Just as they thought they had destroyed the chances of their strongest opponent came a new disturbing feature. Other eyes than Dixon's had seen Lauzanne's strong gallop; other watches than his had ticked off the extraordinary good time, 2:11 for the mile and a quarter, with the horse seemingly running well within himself, never urged a foot of the journey, and finishing strong, was almost good enough to warrant his winning.

Langdon also had observed the gallop. And the same boy was to ride Lauzanne in the race, he understood, for Redpath had been released and was looking for another mount. Langdon admitted that he had never seen such improvement in a horse as had been made in Lauzanne. Shandy had told him that it was Miss Porter's doing, that she had cured him of his sulky moods; the gallop Langdon had witnessed seemed to bear out the truth of this. What was he to do? They couldn't repeat the trick they had played on Lucretia. The Dutchman might win; he had worked the full derby distance—a mile and a half—in 2:45, nearly all out at the finish. Lauzanne's gallop was only a mile and a quarter; he might not be able to stay the additional quarter, but there was ten thousand dollars at stake for Langdon. He sought to discover the identity of Lauzanne's rider; but nobody knew him. Perhaps he could be got at; that would simplify matters greatly.

The morning after her fast work on Lauzanne, Allis arrived at the course before the horses. As she was leaning over the paddock rail waiting for Lauzanne to come, Langdon sauntered up carelessly to the girl and commenced to talk. After a free preliminary observation, he said: "You're the boy that's ridin' for Andy Dixon, ain't you?"

The small figure nodded its head.

"I seen you gallop that chestnut yesterday. Where you been ridin'—you're a stranger here, I reckon?"

"Out west," answered Allis, at a hazard.

"Oh, San Francisco, eh? Are you engaged to Dixon?"

"I'm just on trial."

"Goin' to ride the chestnut in the race?"

Again the boy nodded.

"He ain't no good—he's a bad horse. I guess I've got the winner of that race in my stable. If he wins, I'd like to sign you for a year. I like the way you ride. I might give you a thousand for a contract, an' losin' and winnin' mounts when you had a leg up. How do you like ridin' for Dixon?"

"I ain't goin' to ride for him no more after this race," answered the other.

"I don't blame you. He's no good; he don't never give his boys a chance. They ain't got no money, that's why. The owner of my candidate, The Dutchman, he's a rich man, an' won't think nothin' of givin' a retainer of a thousand if we won the race. That'll mean The Dutchman's a good horse, and we'll want a good light boy to ride him, see?"

Allis did see. Langdon was diplomatically giving her to understand that if she threw the race on Lauzanne, she would get a place in their stable at a retainer of a thousand dollars.

"We can afford it if we win the race," he continued, "for we stand a big stake. Come and see me any time you like to talk this over."

After he had gone, just as Allis was leaving the rail, she was again accosted, this time by Shandy.

"Good mornin', boy," he said, cheerfily. "I used to be in Dixon's stable. It's hell; and he's a swipe. I see my boss talkin' to you just now. Did he put you next a good thing?"

Allis nodded her head, knowingly.

"He's all right. So's the other one—the guy as has got the mun; he's got a bank full of it. I'm on to him; his name's Crane—"

Allis started.

"You don't know him," continued the imp, "he's too slick to go messin' about. But if the old man has promised you anything, God blast me, you'll git it. Not like that other skin-flint hole where you don't git nothin'. I stand in five hundred if our horse wins the derby."

"Do you ride him?" asked Al Mayne.

"Ride nothin'. I don't have to. I've did my job already."

"I don't believe they'll give you five hundred for nothin'," said Allis, doubtedly, knowing that the boy's obstinate nature would drive him into further explanation.

"Say, you're a stiff. What'd the old man want you to do—pull Lauzanne?"

Allis nodded.

"I knowed it. What was the use of stoppin' the mare, an' let the chestnut spoil the job?"

"Is that what you get the five hundred for?" asked Allis, a sudden suspicion forcing itself upon her.

"Say, what d'you take me fer, a flat car? But she's sick, ain't she? An' you jes take care of the chestnut now, an' I'll give you a hundred out of my five, God bli' me if I don't."

As he spoke Shandy looked hastily about to see that no one was listening, then he continued: "If you give me the double cross an' peach, I'll split yer head open." His small eyes blazed with venomous fury. But I'll give you the hundred, s'help me God! I will, if you don't ride the chestnut out. Mum's the word," he added, bolting suddenly, for Dixon had entered the paddock with his horses.

With the horses also came Mike Gaynor. While their blankets were being taken off and saddles adjusted he came over to Allis. There was a suppressed twinkle in his weather-beaten eyes.

"Good mornin', Al," he said, and putting a strong accent on the name.

Mike had determined to keep from the girl the fact that he had penetrated her disguise. With Irish gallantry, he reasoned that his knowledge might make her uncomfortable.

"I see that fly-by-night divil Shandy talkin' to ye as I come in. What new mischief is he up to now?"

"He wants me to pull Lauzanne."

"He ain't got no gall, has he? That come from headquarters; it's Langdon put him up to that."

"He was talkin' to me, too."

"I t'ought he would be. But he didn't know ye, Miss Allis—"

Heavens! It was out. Mike's suntanned face turned brick-red; he could have bitten off his unruly Irish tongue. The girl stared at him helplessly, her cheeks, that were scarlet, tingling under the hot rush of blood.

"There ye are, an' believe me, I didn't mean it. I was goin' to keep me mouth shut, but I never could do that."

"You knew then, yesterday?"

"Indade I didn't, an' that's a good sign to ye nobody'll know. But whin I t'ought wit' meself I knowed that Alan couldn't ride Lauzanne the way ye did; an' ye didn't deny ye was him, an' if ye wasn't him ye must be yerself, see? I think ye're doin' just right, Miss—Al, I mean; s'help me, I believe ye'll win on the chestnut—that gallop was good enough."

"Do you think I can do it, Mike, among all those jockeys?"

"Sure thing, ye can, A—Al, me b'y; he won't need no ridin' in yer hands; all ye'll have to do is sit still an' keep him straight. He'll win the race in the stretch. I'll just kape close to ye an' kape any wan that's likely to spot ye away, if I have to knock him down."

Then the girl told Mike all that Shandy and Langdon had said. It only confirmed Mike's opinion that between them they had poisoned Lucretia. He felt that with a little more evidence he would be able to prove both crimes—the one with Diablo and the one with Lucretia.

The Brooklyn derby was to be run the next day. Allis was glad that it was so near; she dreaded discovery.

XXX.

After Crane left the money for Porter's note with Mortimer the latter took the three one-thousand-dollar bills, pinned them to the note, placed them carefully in a cigar box and put the box away carefully in the bank safe, to remain there until the 14th of June, when it became due. Incidentally Mortimer mentioned this matter to Alan Porter.

Crane in writing to the cashier, stated that he had left the money with Mr. Mortimer to meet the note when it matured.

The day before the derby, the 12th of the month, Alan asked his day's leave and got it. Crane had intimated in his letter that it would please him if the lad were to have a holiday.

Alan went up to New York that evening. Earlier in the day he somewhat hesitatingly confided to Mortimer that he had backed Lucretia when she was well; now she was scratched, and his money was lost. Bearing in mind what Crane had said about The Dutchman's chances of winning, even with Lucretia in the race, he felt now that it appeared almost like a certainty for Crane's horse. If he could have a bet on The Dutchman he could surely recoup his losses. Alan explained all these racing matters very minutely and with great earnestness to Mortimer, for the latter was quite familiar with the science of gambling. Having stated his predicament he wound up by asking his companion for a loan of two hundred dollars.

Mortimer had little less horror of betting and it's evil influence than Mrs. Porter, but under the circumstances he would perhaps have complied with the boy's request had he been provided with sufficient funds. As it was, he said: "I don't like the idea of lending you money to bet with, Alan; if you lost it you'd feel uncomfortable owing me the money. At any rate, I haven't got it."

"Oh, never mind, then," answered Alan, angrily, stiffening up, because of Mortimer's lecture.

"I'll lend you what I've got."

"I don't want it. I can get it some other place."

"You'd better take—"

"Take nothing—I don't want it."

Mortimer remained silent. What was the use of angering the boy further? He would be all right in a day or two.

During the rest of the day Alan preserved a surly distance of manner, speaking to Mortimer only once—a constrained request for a bunch of keys in the latter's possession which unlocked some private drawers in the vault.

The next morning it suddenly occurred to Mortimer that Porter's note fell due that day—either that day or the next, he wasn't sure. The easiest way to settle the question was to look at the date on the note.

He stepped into the vault, took out the little cigar box, opened it, and as he handled the crisp papers a sudden shock of horror ran through his frame. One of the bills was gone; there were only two one-thousand-dollar notes left.

The discovery paralyzed him for an instant. He was responsible; the money had been left in his charge. Then he looked at the note; it matured the next day. All the money had been in the box the morning before, for he had looked at it. Only the cashier and Alan Porter knew that it was in the vault."

The whole dreadful truth came clearly to Mortimer's mind with absolute conviction. Alan, infatuated with the prospect of winning a large sum over The Dutchman, and failing to borrow from him, had taken the money.

Bit by bit he pieced it out. The boy, inconsistently enough, had reasoned that the money was his father's, and that he was only borrowing family property. No doubt he had felt sure of winning, and that he would be back in time to replace the thousand before it was needed.

But if the boy lost the money, what would happen? He couldn't repay it; the shortage would be discovered and Allis' brother would be ruined, branded as a thief.

Mortimer would willingly put the money back himself for Allis' sake, but he hadn't it. What was he to do? If he could find Alan and force him to give up the stolen money he could yet save the boy. But Alan had gone to Gravesend.

Like an inspiration the thought came to Mortimer that he must go after him and get the money before it was lost. He shoved the box back in its place, and came out into the office.

The cashier had not come yet. Mortimer's mind worked rapidly. He must make some excuse and get away; anything; he must even lie; if he saved the boy it would be justifiable. Why did not the cashier come? Each minute seemed an age. He would need money. He drew a check for a hundred dollars. A hasty inspection showed that he still had a trifle more than this amount to his credit. Why he took a hundred he hardly knew; fate seemed writing the check. He had barely finished when the cashier appeared. At once Mortimer spoke to him.

"I want leave of absence to-day, sir," he said, speaking hurriedly.

The cashier frowned in astonishment. "Impossible! We are short-handed with young Porter away."

"I'll be back in the morning," pleaded Mortimer. "My mother is very ill. I've opened up, and Mr. Cass can manage, I'm sure, if you'll let me go. I wouldn't ask it, but it's a matter of almost life and death."

Unwillingly the cashier consented. Mortimer almost ran to the station. At eleven o'clock he got a train for New York. At twelve he was in town.

BATTIN HIGH DEFEATS N. P. H. S. AGGREGATION

Outweighed by the opposing eleven by more than twenty pounds and weakened by the absence of Tone Overton in the first-half, the North Plainfield High School football team, lost its first game of the season yesterday to Battin High School, of Elizabeth, on the Cricket Field. The final score was 7 to 5, and the contest was hard-fought throughout. Although Battin High School had the game well in hand for twenty minutes, the team was unable to score until late because of the good tackling on the part of the borough boys.

While watching the game, Tone Overton seeing that his team was being defeated, rushed home donned his football togs. He played a few minutes in the first half and all of the second. Webster, Conroy, A. Overton, Powlison and Tone Overton deserve special mention for good work. In the thick of the battle, Battin High School was penalized for yelling "Hey!" which gave the local team fifteen yards. The borough eleven was held for downs with the ball five yards from the goal.

After losing the ball on fumbles, Battin High School regained it and while advancing it through forward passes, Conroy captured the pigskin and made a dive for a goal. He was downed one yard from safety. C. Smith was sent through for a touch down. The ball was not kicked quares and the score stood 7 to 5 in favor of Battin High. The visitors played a clean game throughout. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.—Left end, G. Webster; left tackle, C. Lee and H. Smith; left guard, C. Steiner; centre, L. Powlison; right guard, L. Zeglio; right tackle, F. Becker; right end, A. Overton and P. Dunning; quarterback, R. Conroy; left halfback, H. Smith and Tone Overton; fullback, C. Smith; right halfback, G. Parsons.

Officials—Referee, William Hamilton; umpire, B. J. Phelps; timers, Roy Woodhull, P. H. S.; Rogers, of Elizabeth; linesmen, Killiugh and Laggren, of Elizabeth; G. Bailey, N. P. H. S.

EX-POSTMASTER'S DENIAL.

Edward Burroughs, former postmaster of Metuchen, entered a plea of not guilty in the United States District Court at Trenton yesterday, upon a charge of embezzling about $2,000, while postmaster, in December, 1906. He was held in bail to await trial. An indictment against Burroughs was found by the last United States Grand Jury.

Since the discovery of the alleged embezzlement Burroughs has been ousted as postmaster, and a full settlement of the claim which the government then had against him has been made. His bail was fixed at $2,000. W. T. McAdams, of Metuchen, is his bondsman.

Albert Steinburg, of Passaic, pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal distilling. Louis Lachesky, of Passaic, pleaded not guilty to landing, embezzling and removing spirits. Nathan Smith, of Paterson, pleaded not guilty to unlawful distilling.

The little Buick's average of 45 miles an hour for the four laps of the Vanderbilt Cup Course is better than the average of 60 per cent. of all cars competing in all classes of Saturday's Sweepstakes.

The consistent, steady running of the speedy little Buick was a pronounced feature of Saturday's race. Its time for the different laps was:

ON INDIA AND ITS PEOPLE

Rev. Dr. A. E. Kittredge Gives Illustrated Lecture at the Trinity Reformed Church.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CITY.

Describes Conditions and Tells of Odd Customs—His Lecture Was Most Interesting.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Kittredge, pastor of the Madison Avenue Reformed church, New York, who recently made a tour of the world, spending several months in India, visiting all the missionary stations, and who has a brother who has been engaged in business in Bombay for over thirty years, gave a delightful illustrated lecture in Trinity Reformed church, last night, on India. The speaker's long stay in India gave him an exceptional opportunity to study conditions there, as well as the people and their manner of living.

The views shown were very clear and the lecture by Dr. Kittredge was highly interesting. He has a clear well modulated voice and a happy way of telling the story of his tour. There was a large audience and a liberal silver offering. So well pleased were the people that Dr. Kittredge will be asked to return to Plainfield and give his second lecture on beautiful Japan.

At the outset of his remarks, Dr. Kittredge stated that India with its population of 294,000,000, of which 209,000,000 are Hindoos, is the most wonderful country in the world, its history dating before Christ and its religion being the oldest known. The speaker started with Bombay the gateway of India, with a population of 800,000. He described it as being the most beautiful city in the world and possesses one of the finest harbors. He said that there are eight hundred different languages spoken in Bombay and no two persons dress alike. The streets are narrow, so narrow that it seems impossible for a carriage to pass. The buildings are very beautiful, some of them being marvels of architecture, the materials used being highly carved white marble and granite.

In referring to the Hindoos, Dr. Kittredge said that they have a peculiar mode of dress. When Dr. Kittredge's brother built a railroad in India the Hindoos told him that he would have to place partitions in the coaches for the various castes, but Mr. Kittredge replied: "There are the cars. You can either ride or walk," and at least in this respect the castes intermingle.

The speaker gave an interesting description of the form of burial in India. The ground is sacred and the bodies are taken to the towers of silence and placed across a grating to be devoured by vultures.

Referring to the women of India Dr. Kittredge explained that they are of the low class, lower than even a servant in most American homes. The wife and mother never eat with husband and son, it being held quite an honor to eat after them and partake of what they leave. A woman cannot speak unless permitted to do so by her husband and the minute he dies she puts on a peculiar dress to signify that she is a widow. According to the belief of the natives a woman has no soul. She walks behind her husband and obeys his orders. He is her god and she is not permitted to go to the temple.

The speaker then related some interesting facts about Calcutta, with its population of 850,000. Here it is the belief of the natives that the River Ganges comes straight from the throne of God, and they lay great stress on bathing in this river. In speaking of the Mosque at Dehli, Dr. Kittredge said that it will accommodate 10,000 people, each one having space enough to kneel and pray and yet not touch the person next to him.

Mrs. Joseph Kitchen.

Mrs. Sarah C. Kitchen wife of Joseph Kitchen, died last night at her home on Everett place after a brief illness. She was twenty-three years old and leaves four children, one an infant three weeks old. She was the daughter of the late Charles Tilton, who lived at Dunellen for many years. The funeral will be held at the home of her father-in-law, William Kitchen, of Everett place, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A Double Surprise.

Miss Jean Muir and Joseph Muir, of Essex street, were given a surprise party, last night in honor of their seventeenth birthday. Twenty-five young friends were in attendance and enjoyed an informal program of games and music supper being served in conclusion. The affair was arranged by the Misses Mabel Hunter, Edith Meyer and Minnie Muir.

ORTON NOT ARRESTED AS DISPATCHES ALLEGE

Despatches sent out from Hartford, Conn., last night, stated that John J. Orton, charged with perjury by Albert U. Martin, of this city, had been taken in custody on the order of the Plainfield police. When Chief Kiely was asked about the matter, this morning, he stated that such is not the fact as he had sent instructionss not to arrest Orton but to keep him under surveillance pending a full investigation of the angle. If he had been apprehended, the chief said, he would have been officially notified.

Martin's charge against Orton was based on the fact that the latter had accused him of being a fugitive from justice on an old embezzlement warrant and caused his arrest Wednesday morning. The Connecticut authorities claim to have no knowledge of any such document and Martin was accordingly discharged from custody. He immediately prefefred the charge against Orton but the local authorities did not believe it advisable to have him arrested until they became fully satisfied as to the existence of an old warrant. Orton produced several legal papers to show that some action had been taken as he alleged and if it should develop that Martin had been accused of embezzlement, it would seriously complicate matters.

The whole affair is the result of a business quarrel between the two men, growing out of a partnership that existed between them twelve years ago and which was terminated after a failure.

COURSES IN INSTRUCTION AT Y. M. C. A. ARE ANNOUNCED.

Miss Mary Farrel, the instructor in domestic science at the Young Women's Christian Association, has consented to teach a class in cookery at the association on Tuesday afternoons, beginning Tuesday, October 20, at 2:30. This class is especially for young housewives.

A millinery class under the efficient direction of Miss Ethel Caprne will begin on Tuesday morning. Her class was held on Tuesday afternoons, but because of a popular demand the hour has been changed to a morning one. The evening class will be as sadvertised for Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

There is much inehusiasm at the association about the beginning of classes. The registration is large and the winter's work promises to be successful.

Announcements will be made later about many other attractions at the association. A splendid hour is expected when Mrs. Cochran, of Morristown, tells of her years in China. A trip to New York is being planned for the last of the month, and a Hallowe'en party as well as the beginning of a course of lectures on "The Care of the Body."

Excise Commission Meets.

President Charles J. Fisk and his associates on the State Excise Commission were in session at Trenton yesterday and will continue to meet weekly hereafter, compiling their report, which must be finished and in the hands of Governor Fort by December 15. Each of the probers has a pretty good idea as to what excise reforms he will recommend for the consideration of his colleagues, but, it is understood, there is little unanimity of opinion on the part of the commissioners as to the entire report. A story published elsewhere that Mayor Fisk had given out his views on the subject and that the probe would cost $10,000 is wihtout foundation.

His Sanity Questioned.

Frank Meyer, who says he is a beker and has been employed in Dunellen, is being held at police headquarters pending an examination as to his sanity. He was arrested by Patrolman Meyers, last night, as she was crawling about on his hands and knees on upper North avenue. He stared vacantly and talked in a rambling way when arraigned before Judge Runyon, this morning, and the magistrate had him committed. He will be examined this afternoon by the city physician.

Women Give a Dollar Social.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, a dollar social was held in the parlors of the church yesterday afternoon. Each member was expected to give a dollar and tell how it was earned. In many instances this was related either in prose or poetry. A considerable sum of money was realized for the work of the society. The rest of the afternoon was spent in a social way, during which refreshments were served.

In the City Court.

Charged with being drunk and disorderly at Park avenue and Second street, last night, John Walsh was arraigned in the city court this morning. He paid a $5 fine in preference to going to jail for twenty days.

TAFT'S TOUR OF STATE

G. O. P. Nominee to Speak at Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick and Trenton.

THE ITINERARY ANNOUNCED.

Whirlwind Tour of State Next Monday—Receptions to Be Held in His Honor Along the Line.

William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for President, will spend an hour more in New Jersey than had at first been expected. The news that the State committee could have the candidate for sixty whole minutes more than had been promised former Governor Franklin Murphy Tuesday night was flashed over the wires yesterday afternoon by Chairman Hitchock, of the National committee.

Mr. Murphy, as State chairman, will meet Mr. Taft at the Market street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Newark, at 7 o'clock Monday morning. The Presidential nominee will leave Washington Sunday evening. After breakfast with the former GoGvernor at his home in Newark, Mr. Taft will address a meeting in Blaney's Theatre, in Washington street, in that city, at 9:30 o'clock.

Mr. Murphy says that he has been assured that 3,000 can be comfortably accommodated in Blaney's Theatre.

From Newark Mr. Taft, State Chairman Murphy, Secretary Edward W. Gray, of the State committee; Judge Benjamin F. Jones, of the speakers' bureau, and the others who will conduct him through New Jersey will go to Elizabeth. That city will be reached at 11:10 a. m., and the nominee will be taken at once to the Lyceum Theatre, where he will deliver another address.

Starting from Elizabeth the train will be stopped at Rahway long enough for a speech from the observation platform. At New Brunswick the train will wait while the candidate descends to a stand erected at George street and will speak in the open air. He and his party will have luncheon between New Brunswick and Trenton.

Trenton will be reached at 1:40, and Mr. Taft will speak in Taylor Opera House, that city, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He will leave the State capitol an hour later and arrive in Wilmington, Del., at 4:30. An hour will be spent in the big Delaware manufacturing city, and then the campaigners will move on to Baltimore, arriving there at 7 in the evening, having covered three States in a single day.

Mr. Murphy said last night that he was arranging for a cart-tail speech in front of Blaney's for the benefit of those who will not be able to ge inside next Monday morning.

County Chairman John Rotherham of Hudson, as a member of the State committee, conferred with Mr. Murphy yesterday, but it was found impossible to get Mr. Taft for Jersey City or Hoboken. Rotherham said: "If you can't get him for evening, I don't know as there's much use of having him. Day meetings are not much of a success."

BIRTHDAY PARTY GIVEN FOR FRANK M. RIMMER.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, of Essex street, tendered a reception last night to their son, Frank M. Rimmer, in honor of his birthday anniversary. It was largely attended by friends of the young man, who showered him with congratulations and best wishes. Mr. Rimmer was the recipent of a handsome gold watch and chain from his parents and a number of suitable gifts from friends.

The evening was pleasantly spent playing parlor games, vocal and instrumental selections, after which supper was served. The dining-room was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Michael Rimmer and Miss Alice Rimmer.

The first prize in a donkey party was won by James Kenney, and the consolation prize went to Miss Elsie M. Rimmer. Mr. Rimmer having just attained his majority is much pleased that he will be able to cast his first vote for Taft and Sherman.

Among those present were the Misses Elsie and Alice Rimmer, Edna and Eunice Eckert, Mary N. Mortimer, M. Clara Hunter, Elizabeth Slorah, May Stafford and Messrs. Frank M. Rimmer, Harry Kenney James Kenney, Allen S. Snyder, Peter C. Sweeney, John Slorah and Harold Brownell.

Don't Forget to Register.

GEORGE JUNIOR REPUBLIC

Mr. Davis Relates History and Objects of Children's Self-Government Idea.

AT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

He Sketches Growth of Scheme and Points Out How Successfully It Has Worked.

T. G. Davis, of this city, field secretary of the George Junior Republic, related the history and objects of that movement before the pupils of the Plainfield High School this morning. He spoke with a rich full tone of voice that added greatly to the interest of an unusually excellent address. His pleasing personality and manner of delivery made the talk all the more enjoyable.

In 1890, according to Mr. Davis, Henry R. George, of New York, brought to his native village in Freeville, N. Y., fifty "fresh air" boys and girls, and during the next five years this number increased to more than 250. Soon he drilled into them the idea that they should earn what they got and made them learn to work for their clothing and the like. Gradually he taught them self government and made them sit in judgment whenever any of their number had committed an offense. This was the beginning of criminal jurisprudence among the boys. Then he taught them to save their earnings and finally he had firmly established a system of self-government. Such was the birth of the George Junior Republic, composed of boys and girls

The Republic now has its jails, library, public school, chapel and bank. It also has its courts and its officers, including a President and complete cabinet. It has a legislature, district attorney and has the town meeting plan for choice in governmental officers and policies. The Republic is as absolutely self-governing as any State in the Union even having its own boards of education and other kindred bodies governed by a constitution and statutes. They even have their own police forces. The results have been excellent. Two new republics are now being organized and the George theory has proven to be a practical success.

MISS HOLMES BRIDE OF HAROLD NEWMAN HALL

The wedding of Miss Natalie Holmes, daughter of Robert Holmes, of Madison, to Harold Newman Hall, of New York, took place yesterday afternoon at Grace Episcopal church, Madison. The rector, Rev. Dr. J. M. Blanchard, officiated.

Robert E. Hall was the best man The bride was attended by Miss Helen D. Smyth, of New York, as maid-of-honor. The ushers were Henry R. Burt and John B. Wolff, of New York, and Walter Dutton and Frederick W. Goddard, of this city. The couple will reside at "Holmedale," the home of the bride's parents.

The ceremony was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends of the couple from this city. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are now enjoying an extended wedding trip. Mr. Hall is engaged in business in New York as an architect. He is a brother of George, Henry L., and Robert E. Hall, of this city.

Noah Webster's Birthday.

Today is the one hundred and fiftieth annnversary of the birth of the noted philologist, Noah Webster. He was graduated from Yale college in 1778, and began a successful law practice in Hartford in 1789. In 1793 he established in New York "The Minerva," a daily Federalist newspaper, afterwards called the "Commercial Advertiser," which is still published. In 1807 he published a "Philosophical and practical grammar of the English language." During the same year he began the preparation of the "American Dictionary of the English Language," which has been in such extensive use in its various editions ever since. Many readers will well remember his "Elementary Spelling Book," the sale of which, in its various revisions up to thirty years ago, amounted to about 75,000,000 copies. Webster died May 28, 1843.

VOTERS PACK THEATRE

Great Enthusiasm When Opening Gun of Campaign is Fired by Republicans.

MAC LAUGHLIN MAKES HIT.

Witty Speech of Editor of The Schoolmaster Captivates Crowd —Colonel Farless Talks On Issues.

The scene at the Plainfield Theatre las night on the occasion of the opening meeting for the campaign on the part of the Republican party in the city recalled the old-time enthusiastic meetings of years ago. The interior of the theatre was artistically decorated with flags and bunting, palms and potted plants of various kinds. Preceding the meeting a short parade was made about town by the band, and by eight o'clock the theatre was filled and standing room only left. There were many women in the audience, and the boxes were occupied by parties headed by F. H. Andrews, of the County Tax Board, Hon. Williams Newcorn, judge of the District Court, Attorney Vincent W. Nash, Jr., Samuel Bingaman and others. On the stage were Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, Counsellor J. Henry Crane, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Assemblyman Kirstein, of Rahway, County Physician Westcott, of Fanwood, and many others.

The meeting was called to order by W. S. Angleman, chairman of the city committee, who spoke briefly, calling attention to the need of the vote of every Republican in the city to help out in the county, congressional and presidential contests, and announcing the coming of the Presidential candidate, the Hon. William H. Taft, to Elizabeth, on Monday morning and urging a large representation of Plainfield voters at the meeting to be there then. Mr. Angleman introduced former Judge William R. Codington as the chairman of the meeting.

Judge Codington introduced as the first speaker of the evening Col. William H. Farless, of Virginia, who held the close attention of the large audience for an hour and a half, while he discussed eloquently and instructively the National issues.

Col. Farless laid bare the shortcomings, inconsistencies and failures of the Democratic party in the past. He declared that Bryan, its present candidate is a "trimmer" and has long since proven himself to be a false prophet. His policies unsound and his election would put business at a standstill. Roosevelt came in for a good share of his praise and when he mentioned the President's name there was a hearty outburst of applause. Mr. Taft, he reminded his hearers, is "no man's man" but an independent and gifted statesman of the very highest type and a most worthy candidate to fill Mr. Roosevelt's shoes. The recent panic, he added, is nothing to the terrible calamity that would follow were Mr. Bryan elected. When the colonel praised both Governors Fort and Hughes for their fearlessness and honesty, there was great cheering. The speech was frequently interrupted by hearty and prolonged applause.

The second speaker, Cresswell MacLoughlin, although the hour was late, made a genuine hit. His remarks were interspersed with witticisms that caught the crowd's fancy. He predicted that New Jersey would give Mr. Taft a rousing majority.

Mr. MacLoughlin said that he would introduce himself by giving a short synopsis of his life. He said that he was a Jerseyman, as he was born in Jersey City, which would be a pure town if no one lived there; that he was educated in Boston, where thought was a microbe; and that he had done busness in Philadelphia where the spider spins his web from the trees to the trolley line while the cars are running. Having taken the audience into his confidence, the speaker and the audience continued on good terms to the finish.

Mr. MacLoughlin was entierly different in his method of speaking to Col. Fairless, and seemed to enjoy the situation as much as the audience whom he kept convulsed by his clever talk. When he had finished, the large audience, although they had been listening to the speeches for over two hours, refused to leave the hall and demanded more. City Chairman Angleman, therefore, brought Mr. MacLoughlin again to the front of the stage, where he continued speaking for another ten minutes.

The marked success of the meeting assures those in charge of the campaign here that the people are not as apathetic as many croakers are saying they are, and that Plainfield will not only roll up the usual large Republican majority but will add greatly to it.

MISS NELLIE MULLEN BRIDE OF PHILIP JAHN

Miss Nellie May Mullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mullen, of Basking Ridge, and Francis Philip Jahn, of Scotch Plains, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. J. T. Reeve, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Basking Ridge and was witnessed by 125 relatives and friends. The gathering included many Plainfielders.

Miss Mullen was attended by Miss Marion Jahn, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid. She was gowned in Persian lawn with lace trimmings and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride roses. Miss Jahn's gown was of pink silk and she carried carnations. Miss Julia Allen, cousin of the bride, and Miss Marguerite Jahn, sister of the groom, gowned in white swiss, acted as flower girls. Bertis Mullen, brother of the bride, was best man. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Edna Bowers, of Basking Ridge.

The ceremony took place in the parlor beneath a bower of autumnal foliage. The same material was used throughout in the decorations, producing an unusually striking effect. They were arranged by Mrs. Samuel Childs, of Basking Ridge, a life-long friend of the bride.

With the words pronounced that made the young couple man and wife a brief reception was held during which Mr. and Mrs. Jahn were showered with congratulations. A wedding supper was served in conclusion. The bride and groom took their departure at 9 o'clock for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and other points of interest. They made their escape from the confetti and rice throwers by jumping into William Childs' automobile and proceeded to Morristown instead of the Bernardsville station as originally planned. On returning they will reside on Park avenue, Scotch Plains, where a completely furnished home awaits their coming.

Mr. Jahn is one of Plainfield's best known young business men and is widely acquainted throughout Union county. He is a member of the local lodge of Elks, Perseverance Lodge, Knight of Pythias; Plainfield lodge, No. 44 I. O. O. F., and several other organizations. His bride has always been a resident of Basking Ridge but visited frequently in Plainfield. They were remembered with a handsome array of presents that included silverware, cut glass, furniture, pictures, bric-a-b ac and checks.

SHOOTS SELF IN HEAD

Becoming Despondent, Joseph Soukup, of Dunellen, Attempts Suicide.

HURRIED TO THE HOSPITAL.

Physicians Fail to Extract Bullet and His Condition Is Said to Be Critical.

Despondent because of a long illness and the fact that he had been out of work and unable to obtain employment, Joseph S. Soukup, a well-known resident of Dunellen, attempted to take his life at 11:30 o'clock this morning by shooting himself in the head. The man was temporarily treated by Dr. Whitford, and then hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital in a dying condition.

About a half-hour before committing the deed, Soukup went to Fenner's hardware store in Dunellen and purchased a revolver. He immediately returned to his home and going to his bedroom placed the revolver to his head and fired. The report of the pistol startled the man's wife, who was downstairs, and rushing to the bedroom she found her husband lying prostrate on the floor, blood flowing from the wound and the revolver clutched in the man's hand. Soukup paid no attention to his wife's entreaties as to why he had shot himself.

Frightened almost into hysterics over the occurence, Mrs. Soukup called for the assistance of her neighbors and in the meantime Dr. Whitford was summoned. He made a hurried examination and learned that the man was in a critical condition and from a superficial diagnosis it was his opinion that the bullet had struck a fatal spot. With all possible haste the man was rushed to the hospital in an effort to save his life. When the institution was reached Soukup was at once taken to the operating room, where physicians employed every means to locate the bullet and prevent a fatality.

It was impossible to find the bullet at first and on account of the man's critical condition the physicians decided to wait until later in the afternoon before making another attempt to remove the piece of lead. Soukup remained in an unconscious condition and the chances for recovery are not very good.

Soukup is fifty-two years old, and has resided in Dunellen a long time. Although disheartened over his prolonged illness and inability to get work, his wife tried to cheer him, and tell him that he would get well and find employment. Soukup is an Austrian and prior to his illness was industrious and prosperous.

SOPHIE, THE SCRUB WOMAN, AT HHE SALVATION ARMY.

Sophie, the scrub woman preacher, entertained and helpfully interested a large audience at the Salvation Army hall last night. Her remarks were given with such simple power and heartfelt earnestness, that all were impressed and spiritually strengthened.

Sophie speaks from her own experience, and when one knows that she is sixty-four years old, and has had over forty years of the most active Christian work, her words are given added force and weight.

This consecrated woman at the age of sixty-four years, is supporting two missionaries of the Cross, educating and caring for an orphan child, and has been instrumental in building two churches. Sophie speaks again at the Army hall tomorrow night, and again on Sunday. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends who are interested in our work. Come and bring them with you.

NEW DANCING CLASS HOLDS A RECEPTION.

Miss Florance, who gave the first of her invitation dancing classes yesterday afternoon at the Hartridge School auditorium, met with the warmest of receptions. The hall was filled with the pupils and their mothers and very genuine admiration was accorded the teacher for the ease and grace with which she handled the children. The classes are divided, the younger pupils coming from 2:30 until 4 and the older from 4 to 5:30. Although the enrollment is not complete there were twenty-three pupils in the first class and thirty-nine in the second. After this the classes will meet Tuesday afternoon instead of Thursday.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The Holy Cross club football eleven will play the Somerville High School team on the Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, and the contest will be watched with considerable interest by the local school teams, who declare that Holy Cross is not in their class.

"Our varsity squad will not be large enough to play the games now ahead of us unless a large number of men respond immediately for the second team," is part of an appeal made by the board of graduate coaches to undergraduates of Syracuse University. Lack of sufficient material is bothering the coaches a great deal in their work of developing the team. The Syracuse varsity eleven is made up of veterans, but that doesn't mean that there isn't a chance for anybody else. If Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania and other football centres depended on men who came out only because they felt they had a chance to make the varsity team they wouldn't make much progress or be at the top of the football heap as they are now.

The Syracuse Orange in telling of the Syracuse-Indian game speaks of the wonderful interference the Redmen had, interference which formed at lightning speed and helped the runner along so fast and far that it was one of Carlisle's best assets in the game. On the other hand, the long forward pass with which the Indians stood opposing teams on their heads last year was not effective. Howard Jones had perfected a defence which spoiled this play. Although the Indians couldn't cross the Syracuse goal line they uncovered a rushing attack, the strength of which took Syracuse by surprise. It may be then that the Indians, finding their forward pass solved this year, are making ready to get over the Harvard and Pennsylvania goal lines by the sharpness and power of their line attack. Even if they don't do better than get close up the goal kicking ability of Thorpe may do the rest.

The Indians, it is said—the back field men and the ends—have brown footballs woven in the chests of their jerseys, so that opposing teams don't know just who has the ball. The Syracuse Orange makes no mention of this device which if true recalls the ruse at Cambridge several years ago when a Redskin hid the ball under his jersey and ran the length of the field. Jerseys apparently can serve more purposes than covering the skin.

From 1890 to 1907 inclusive the University of Minnesota elevens scored 3,975 points to their opponents' 639. Since the new rules came in in the last two years and since the cutting in two of Minnesota's schedules there is a big falling off in the scoring, both in totals and points to a game. In 1904 724 points were made to opponents' 12 and in that year more than 100 points were made in two different games. Four times in the eighteen years the Wolverines played games in which they surpassed the hundred point mark. Games of that sort belong to a dead and gone regime.

The Holy Cross club football eleven will play Somerville High School on the Cricket Field, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The North Plainfield High School first and second football teams will play the first and second teams of the New Brunswick High School at the latter place tomorrow afternoon. All football candidates on the borough school team are required to maintain a satisfactory standing in three solid subjects or they will be suspended from the team.

A. H. Douglas, captain of last season's victorious Navy eleven, and Dague, who played end, have joined the Middies' coaching staff.

Harvard's scrub scored on the varsity yesterday by means of the forward pass, preceded by a series of fierce line plunges and dashing runs around the ends. The varsity also got a goal.

West Point regulars battered the scrub up in practise Tuesday, tearing big holes in the lines and sending the ball along at will. The varsity was invincible, the line holding firmly and the backs working without a slip up. The play holes out much encouragement for a strong showing against Yale on Saturday.

Yale varsity had to bow to the scrub Tuesday afternoon by the score of 6 to 0. Murphy, who played quarterback on the second team went through a broken field on a long quarterback run for a touchdown and then kicked a goal.

Coaches at Cornell are up in the air over the poor work on the Ithaca eleven. The scrimmage with the scrub laid bare the same old faults. The varsity was unable to cross the scrub line, but later scored a goal on the freshmen.

Pennsylvania is experiencing its annual slump and the play behind closed gates yesterday was the most disspiriting of the season.

Dartmouth will bear watching again this fall. She crossed Tuft's goal line three times while the admittedly strong West Point team only succeeded in doing so once. Dartmouth plays Princeton at the Polo Grounds, New York, November 7.

Mount Pleasant, Carlisle's former quarterback, who is now playing with Dickinson, had his nose broken in the Navy game. He is a veteran campaigner and has escaped injury before.

The Carlisle Indian scoring machine is busy grinding out the points on the football field, and of the elevens that have played three or more games it has not only scored the most points but averaged more points a game. The Indians have played more games than any other team and for that reason might easily lead in the point total without that fact meaning anything. But they also lead in more convincing proof of scoring activity points averaged to a game. Their point collection has no especial significance otherwise as pertains to other teams, for common opponents haven't been met often enough to draw any fair comparisons. Even if that were true the element of meeting common opponents at different periods of the latter's development often accounts for differences in comparative scores. The Indians, however, did meet Syracuse only a week later than Yale met the latter and made seven more points against them than Yale did. Yale, on the other hand, carried the ball across the Syracuse goal line, which the Indians weren't able to do.

Twenty-four of Carlisle's 126 points are due to goals from the field, and in that manner of adding to the total the redskins easily excel. They generally are at the top too, or near it, in points. Williams has done the best average scoring next to Carlisle but has played in only two games and made all of her points in one of those. Brown really comes next to Carlisle with an average of 21 points a game. Annapolis is next, then Pennsylvania, then Dartmouth. Harvard leads Yale in total points but has played one more game. Yale and Princeton have the same total, 39, each having played three games. Yale has scored in all three of her games while Princeton was unable to score in one of hers.

Fire at Atlantic City Carnival.

Fire almost caused a sad ending to the carnival and mardi gras at Atlantic City last night. Shortly before 10 o'clock fire was discovered on the roof of the stable in the rear of Wilson's Dairy, in New York avenue, and in a few moments the place was a mass of flames. Four or five frame buildings near by caught fire, and the department had a busy time.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Governor Fort will speak at the mass meeting to be held under the auspices of the Plainfield Republican Club at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday night, October 29. He will then be hurried to Elizabeth, where he is scheduled to give a talk. Following him here, Congressman Fowler will make an address.

If the Plainfield Republican Club wants to have a big crowd at its smoker next Wednesday night, it only has to secure Creswell MacLaughlin as a speaker. His wit at the mass meeting last night is all the talk among the G. O. P. leaders here today.

Despite the fact that there were two other political rallies last night, the Plainfield Independence Club held an enthusastic meeting at 316 West Front street. The local club was organized Thursday evening, October 8, and then endorsed the National candidates, Thomas L. Hisgen and John Temple Graves, as well as the National platform, and promised hearty support to the county candidates. The club has been making arrangements to boom things in the remaining weeks before November, and from indications expect a hearty response from this territory. On Tuesday, October 13, a regular petition was filed putting in nomination as the Independence party candidates the following: For Senator, William C. Morton; for sheriff, Henry L. Finkel; for members of assembly, Frank Roosa, Joseph Anderson, John W. Harrison.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith and State Senator Ackerman attended the Essex county fair at Newark yesterday.

Former State Senator Charles Arthur Reed expresses the opinion that the Republican ticket will win in Somerset county by 1,000 and his guess is considered a good one. He also believes that New Jersey will go Republican by 35,000.

Representative Charles N. Fowler, Republican candidate to succeed himself in the Fifth Congress district; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who also seeks re-election in Union county; Robert J. Kirkland, candidate for sheriff; Victor Mravlag, who is running for Mayor of Elizabeth, and the Republican Assembly trio, Carlton B. Pierce, A. W. Schwartz and Alfred F. Kirstein, all spoke at one of the biggest political meetings of the campaign in the German Parish Hall in Elizabeth last night.

Mr. Fowler discussed national issues, Senator Ackerman the arguments in favor of the Republican State administration, and the Assembly candidates and Mayoralty aspirant covering the county and city field.

A largely attended and enthusiastic open air mass meeting was held last night by the Rahway First Ward Democratic Club at the junction of Grand, Bond and Monroe streets in Rahway. Addresses were made by E. T. Benton, Jr., of Washington, D. C.; surrogate Peter F. Daily, of New Brunswick; Frederick C. Hyer, candidate for Senator, and Ray E. Mayham. The club, 300 strong, hetaded by the Twentieth Century Drum and Fife Corps, met the speakers at the depot and escorted them to the meeting.

The Democratic City Executive Committee of Elizabeth will meet this evening at the Democratic headquarters in the Lyceum building at Elizabeth.

A meeting of more than ordinary importance was held Wednesday evening by the Colored Republican County Committee, at Republican headquarters in the Dix building, at Elizabeth. C. R. H. Hawkins, the chairman of the committee, presided.

Besides hearing the reports of the various members, arrangements were completed for the parade and mass meeting to be held in Arcanum Hall in the Isham building, Monday evening, October 26. Besides the county and municipal candidates addresses will be made by colored men of National and State reputation.

The action of Chairman Hawkins in calling a conference of representative colored men of the county in Cranford Tuesday evening was approved. The conference is called to take steps to counteract the anti-Taft and anti-Republican sentiment which seems to be growing among the colored voters of the county. Chairman Hawkins was given full power to go ahead, not only with the conference, but also with all details relating to the parade and mass meeting.

The meeting adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

Funeral of Mrs. Bennett.

The funeral of Mrs. Rachael Bennett, wife of Henry E. Bennett, was held this morning at the home of her mother, Mrs. Johnson, of Watchung avenue. It was conducted by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. During the service, two selections, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "Abide With Me," were sung by E. E. Runyon. There were numerous floral tributes. Burial was made in the new cemetery at Somerville, the following acting as pall bearers: George C. Graves, Percy Culver, Thomas M. Muir and Stephen Kennedy.

We want to tell you now that we probably fit more little feet than you have any idea of. IT PLEASES THE PALATE.

Henry Haurand is the Agent for "Ale As Is Ale."

Anyone who has followed the ramblings of Dickens' Mr. Pickwick must have a sincere longing for a pot of good old ale such as Mr. Pickwick and his jovial companions enjoyed daily at the dear old public houses.

Bartholomay's sparkling ale is a good ale, very pleasing to the palate. It has that happy tang that delights the conniseur and pleases everybody.

Bartholomay's sparkling ale is brewed at the Bartholomay Brewery, Rochester, N. Y. This big brewery as you probably know is renowned for the purity and quality of its products.

Bartholomay's sparkling ale is an appetite creator; it helps a weak stomach to digest a good meal and is a sure sedative in nervous conditions, especially at bedtime.

One or two bottles of ale taken daily will aid you to endure arduous labor without fatigue and is a refreshing drink at mealtime.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Bartholomay's Sparkling ale in Plainfield. Give him your order over the 'phone. His number is 229, or drop him a card to 68 Somerset street. He will fill your order promptly. 10 13 15 16

DUNGAN RAPS OPPONENT

Democratic Candidate Attacks Frelinghuysen and Pays Respects to Case.

Combating the attack made on him the night before by Clarence Case, of Somerville, at a Republican mass meeting in North Plainfield, Nelson Y. Dungan, the Democratic candidate for Senator, addressed a large gathering of Democrats in Debele's Hall, last night, and explained to the evident satisfaction of his audience his position on the important local issues.

It was after 10 o'clock when Mr. Dungan began to speak, having been delayed on his way from Liberty Corner, but he held the close attention of his audience for over an hour, while he attacked the record of his opponent, Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, and declared what he would do if elected to represent the people of Somerset county. He asserted that Senator Frelinghuysen did not represent his constituents when he ignored their appeal for the removal of the voting machine, thereby putting them to the expense of a special election, and when he failed to heed the petition from the citizens that he vote against seating United States Senator John Dryden but on the contrary was the backbone of the late Senator's fight for his high position.

The Democratic candidate declared that Mr. Frelinghuysen is at the head of an insurance trust formed in New Jersey with large offices in New York, and that the people of Somerset county are forced to pay tribute to him. That this combination of insurance companies fix the rates to suit themselves and that they have been raised between fifteen and twenty per cent and all the profits go to one man. He said that Mr. Frelinghuysen had opposed measures in the Legislature to give the people of the State relief from the undesirable features of the present law and in discussing the local option question quoted extracts from various newspapers to show that they do not agree with his opponent.

In explaining that today he stands in favor of local option, he met nearly every attack made against him by Mr. Case, and told the audience of his connection with the liquor interests of Somerset county.

"I understand," continued Mr. Dungan, "that from a platform in North Plainfield, last night, I was accused of being selfish and that I never mentioned the other candidates on the Democratic ticket. I confess that I have not treated national issues, because they are so well covered by other speakers. I believe that the people of this county want to hear about local issues and you will pardon me if I confine myself to this extent. While I will speak of my opponent I will not attack his personality.

"I want to speak of the way he has represented your interest. Take the voting machine. The people were against it and a petition signed by 300 citizens asked for the removal of the machine in the borough. It was sent to Senator Frelinghuysen, but he said that the machine was the best thing in the State and must stay. The borough was put to the expense of a special election and by a vote of 483 to 69 rejected the voting machine.

"The Unionist Gazette has said that a vote for a Republican Senator will be a vote for a United States Senator who will support the protective tariff. I don't know how your industries are in this community, but every mill in Somerville, Raritan and Bound Brook is closed with no prospects of opening and every operator is out.

"Two years ago there was an election of United States Senator, and a petition was sent to Senator Frelinghuysen to vote against John Dryden, the Republican candidate. Instead of heeding the wishes of his people, he supported the candidacy of Mr. Dryden, but be it to the credit of the Republican party there were enough votes to defeat Mr. Dryden. Do you stand for United States Senator John Kean? If you do you will vote for Mr. Frelinghuysen.

"Do you know that there is an insurance trust formed in New Jersey, the head of which is Senator Frelinghuysen, who has large offices in New York. This is a combination of companies and they fix the rates to suit themselves, while you pay tribute to one man. Both Senator Gebhardt and Senator Silzer introduced bills to give the people relief from undesirable features of the insurance law, but they were held up in committee through the efforts of Mr. Frelinghuysen.

"I was asked where I stood on the local option question and I said that since the days of Washington majority rule had been the fundamental, principle, and I would stand by that principle.

"Your licenses in North Plainfield are granted by a judge who lives in Neshanic. He does the best he can by the liquor dealer and his opponent, but does he know conditions here as you do? Local option is prohobition if the majority want it. Judge Schenck can cut off every license in the borough or he can grant one hundred licenses if he desires. Why shouldn't you have this power. But our friend says that you haven't the power or intelligence to decide.

"W. H. Taft, the Republican candidate for President does not agree with Mr. Frelinghuysen, for he says let the various localities decide the question. The Plainfield Daily Press disagrees with the Senator and I here quote from an editorial in that newspaper to prove it." After reading the editorial to the audience, the Major continued: "The liquor interests don't agree with him and Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular as well as the New York Press disagrees with Mr. Frelinghuysen. I have declared that I would not stand for Sunday selling. In the thirty-one States having local option not one has raised the question of Sunday opening. I have yet to find one liquor dealer who favors Sunday opening. The Newark News has stated editorially that the people of the State cannot have Sunday opening under any form of local option.

"Clarence Case, who hopes to be appointed to a judicial position if Senator Frelinghuysen is elected, attacked me personally in this borough last night, stating that during the past three years I had represented more licensed places under indictment and on application than any other lawyer in Somerset county. I want to say that I did represent clients in that respect, but when my law partner was appointed prosecutor of the county I declared that I would not defend a single indictment in the county courts while he was prosecutor and I did not.

"Did you hear Mr. Case say anything about my remonstrances against license applications? I tried to represent my clients fairly as I would anyone else in any form of litigation. I won't be a hypocrite. I won't deny what I did. Mr. Case says I represented the Somerset County Liquor Dealers' Association, which is true. I was asked to prosecute violations of the liquor laws, which I did. He then recalls something which occurred at a meeting of the Consistory of the Reformed church, of which I am a member. Have you ever heard a man telling from a public platform what took place at such a meeting. Such a man is not worthy of respect. I did say that I opposed Mr. Burke and his methods, but it was my vote that brought him to Somerville. When you drag the church into politics in this way it is belittling it. If I was wrong on local option then I am right now.

"As to the incident at Mount's hotel at Rocky Hill, I did speak well of Mr. Mount and afterward at the hotel I did have a drink, but what do you suppose I drank? A glass of milk. If I had wanted anything else I would have taken it.

"It is for you to decide where I stand and whether you want to vote for me. I have always lived in Somerset county and all my work has been there, not in New York. If you believe that I will represent you fairly I want your votes."

While the crowd was waiting for the arrival of Mr. Dungan, it was entertained by several speakers, including Horace Coddington, Clarence Garretson, candidate for the Assembly; George W. Anderson, candidate for county clerk; former Mayor J. B. Furber, of Rahway, who has joined the Democratic forces, repudiating his connection with the Republicans and John M. Burns, of Alabama. S. S. Swackhamer was the chairman of the meeting, introducing the different speakers.

The various candidates made an appeal for votes and sounded the praises of Bryan and Kern, but it remained for Mr. Furber, of Rahway, to explain why he deserted the Republicans and joined the Democratic party. He said that he had been a resident of Rahway eighteen months when he was elected Mayor supposedly as an independent in local affairs. When the party learned that he really did intend to be independent, the members were horrified. He reviewed the history in connection with charges preferred against a Councilman in his town and his fight for what he believed to be right. He also stated that he refused to attend a meeting of the county committee and vote as Frank H. Smith, the county boss, wanted him to do. These and many other things the "real" Republicans took exception to and he was marked as not being a "real" Republican. Then at great length Mr. Furber discussed the financial question with a view to showing the weakness of the present system of banking.

Miss Annette Beeching, of Grandview avenue, who has been very ill with rheumatism, is slightly improved.

The executive committee of the Young People's Association of the First Baptist church, met last night after the prayer-meeting, and discussed plans for the winter.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church had charge of the mid-week prayer meeting last night, when the Endeavor topic "As it is Given to You," was considered.

The East New Jersey Baptist Sunday school Association will hold its fifty-seventh annual convention at the First Baptist church, on Tuesday, October 20, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Miss Tappan, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Miles Roberts, of this city, will tell of the Italian work in the city, at the meeting of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tonight.

The Park Avenue Baptist church, through the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, has introduced a system of daily Bible readings for the winter, intended to stimulate more interest in the study of the Bible. Each week announcements are made of the special passages of Scripture to be read. Thus far the movement has been quite a success on the part of the members.

Distinctiveness In

Fall and Winter Apparel

Without Extra Cost.

We would be justified in adding an extra charge for the high character and smartness which is tailored into clothes of our creating. But the charge is never made.

One reason why we can and do produce garments of unusual distinctiveness as low in price as the ordinary sort, is because of the advantages derived from having our own staff of highly skilled designers and tailormen.

In Fall and Winter Suits we are showing many exclusive patterns in brown, tan, olive and smoke shades, as well as Fall and Winter Overcoats in brown stripe and gray mixed effects; some with inlaid collars and cuffs. Also blacks and oxford.

Every garment shows unusual cleverness in the shaping of the shoulders and lapels and in the finish of the pockets and cuffs.

Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats, $10 to $30.

Boys' Fall Suits, Top Coats and Reefers

In the production of clothing for boys we exercise the same care in the selection of fabrics and the same tailoring skill in the making that has gained such a high reputation for M. & B. Garments for men.

Here is a collection of Boys' Suits, Top Coats and Reefers for the quiet little fellows as well as boys of the most strenuous habits. All the newest fall shades and wanted materials at prices ranging from $3 to $12

A BOSTON GIRL SAYS:

A love affair is like a well, so easy to fall into, and so difficult to get out of.

A man often thinks he will marry a girl, until he discovers that she thinks so, too.

Platonic friendship is like perpetual motion, a beautiful theory that nobody has ever been able to make work.

Of course women should marry; no home is complete without a husband any more than it is without a cuckoo clock ro a cat.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 18, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Commending our society.—IV. By systematic, generous giving.—1 Cor. xvi, 1, 2; Mal. iii, 7-12.

Life is a continual receiving and giving. We receive from God directly and indirectly great blessings and gifts. We are expected in return to give and even to give to God—not that God needs our gifts, but that we need to make the gift. There is a feeling in every thoughtful soul that we must render something unto God for all His benefits. David's exclamation, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits?" finds an echo in every heart. Even the idol worshiping heathen in all ages have felt the operation of this same inward feeling and have responded to it. Freely we have received from God; freely we should give to God.

But how shall we give? What is the divine law upon this subject? It is undoubtedly systematic and generous giving. This method is Scriptural, practicable, effective, and has the promise of God's blessing.

1. Systematic and generous giving is Scriptural. In the Old Testament dispensation a tenth was the demand of God. Abraham probably gave a tenth of his substance to God. Jacob vowed to do so, and it may have been before this that he had failed to do what was required and customary. In Lev. xxvii, 30, it is directly and plainly asserted that a tenth shall be given to God. "All the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's." In the topical reference the prophet Malachi fearfully arraigns God's people for not having given the tithe and declared that in withholding they have robbed God. There can be no question about the law as regards giving in the Old Testament times. In the New Testament Paul asks a stated weekly offering for a special purpose and in another place declares that as God blessed the people they were to give.

2. Systematic and generous giving is just. It is right. It asks of no one what he is not able to give. It requires the least of those who receive the least and the most of those who receive the most. It sets aside so much as belonging to the Lord. It makes it His and not ours and removes the temptation to use it for ourselves.

3. Systematic and generous giving has the promise of the blessing of God. In giving regularly to God and in proportion as He blesses us we are fulfilling a plain duty that is owed to God. Every duty brings its blessing. But God has promised a blessing in the fulfilling of this duty. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in Mine house and prove Me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it." If we fulfill the conditions of this promise, we may also have the blessings, and at the same time we shall commend our society.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxxviii, 20-22; Lev. xxvii, 30-34; Num. xviii, 20, 21, 24; II Chron. xxxi, 5, 6; Matt. vi, 1-4; John iii, 16; Acts ii, 44, 45; xx, 35; Matt. x, 7, 8; Phil. iv, 15-17.

An Enthusiastic Endeavorer.

The New South Wales Christian Endeavor union has a new general secretary in the person of Mr. G. E. Bodley. Mr. Bodley is an enthusiastic Endeavorer who has seen long service. He has used his pen for the cause as a writer for the Roll Call, the official New South Wales organ.

G. E. BODLEY.

How One Pastor Feels.

In a personal letter to Secretary Shaw the famous author of "In His Steps," Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, writes: "Give my greetings to all the friends and say that I have always believed in the Christian Endeavor movement from its very beginning and believe in it now more than ever. I have a live society, which is a great inspiration to me and a genuine help in my work. I should not know how to do my ministerial work without it."

This is increasingly the testimony of pastors who, like Dr. Sheldon, give to their young people the sympathetic leadership which is absolutely necessary to the largest success.

English Increase.

When Dr. Clark first visited England in 1888 he found eighteen societies. When he goes there next fall he will find more than 12,000

There are thirty new musical numbers in the "Cash Girl," the new musical comedy in which the John J. Reisler Amusement Co. is starring that clever comedienne, Miss May Ward. Five of these are entrusted to the star and the others will be divided. "The Cash Girl" will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night.

Did you ever court a country girl? Did you ever sing in a country choir? Did you ever go to a husking bee? Did you ever attend a town meeting? Quincy Adams Sawyer, a young lawyer from Boston, did, and that is what the play called "Quincy Adams Sawyer," to be elaborately produced here next Monday night at the New Plainfield theatre, is about. The popular New England novel of the same name told all about these happenings, but it is said they are depicted even more vividly and interestingly in play form. All who have been farmer boys and girls should see this beautiful New England play, for it will revive pleasant recollections. The city bred should see it to realize what they have missed.

For the lover of musical comedy for whom the overwhelming approval of Chicago, Boston and New York is satisfying endorsement, "A Knight for a Day" will be a popular visitor locally on Wednesday, October 28, when the big musical gaiety success will be at the New Plainfield theatre. One of the spectacular effects of the production is an electric curtain said to surpass for sensational effects any prior device achieved through electricity for the enhancement of stage pictures. Report says the curtain in compass covers the entire height and width of the stage, and when charged with light resembles a vast shower of falling stars.

WINGS AND FLIES.

David Belasco and Harrison Grey Fiske, representing the Independents in their fight against the so-called Theatrical Trust, obtained temporary possession of the Hackett Theatre, New York, in West Forty-second street, yesterday and added it to the list of playhouses they already control. James K. Hackett, the present lessee of the theatre bearing his name, and Mr. Fiske signed the contracts by which the Independents take over the theatre. The news of the negotiation was kept secret until the last moment. According to the present plans of Mr. Fiske, Mrs. Fiske will open there November 16 in "Salvation Nell." Mr. Fiske and Mr. Belasco, under the agreement, secure the theatre for three years, the length of time Mr. Hackett's lease has yet to run. The agreement provides for an annual engagement of Mr. Hackett, the remainder of the time being divided between Mr. Belasco's and Mr. Fiske's companies.

LEAVES BANK FOR CHURCH.

Bishop Smith Gives Up Finance to Save Souls.

Bishop Charles W. Smith, of Pittsburg, yesterday resigned his position as president of the Central National Bank of Wilkinsburg, Pa., a position which he has held for many years. He was recently appointed bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church at Portland, Ore., and leaves next week to take up his work on the coast.

President Smith, who is also editor of the Christian Advocate, has frequently been complimented by national bank examiners as having the most methodical and best regulated bank in the Pittsburg district.

GUARDSMEN DISOBEYING WILL BE SENT TO JAIL

According to an order that has been issued by Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, of the Second regiment, to the officers of the National Guard, enlisted men who fail to pay fines imposed by the court martial, or to attend the regular drills, will be proceeded against under the laws of the State and sent to jail.

The edict came as a bombshell to the men, who, Colonel Dungan claims, have been disobeying the discipline of the organization at will. He explains that the men upon whom fines were imposed generally paid no heed to the verdict of the court.

Such a course, he says, is against good discipline, and works a good deal of harm to the service. As matters now stand, the officers were often defied and discipline in the guard severely injured. While the colonel admits that possibly the drastic course proposed will make the National Guard unpopular for a while, it will in the end prove of great benefit by giving officers power to hold their commands up to a better state of discipline.

The officers are heartily in favor of the plan proposed by Colonel Dungan, and the idea will be tested immediately by proceeding against delinquents. It is claimed by the officers that a good man will always be well treated, and when anything like a reasonable excuse is offered by derelict members they will be assured of fair treatment, but when a man defies his company commander and pays no attention to the summons of a court-martial he does not deserve kind treatment, and under the plan of Colonel Dungan he will be compelled to take his medicine.

Platform of General D. F. Collins.

General D. F. Collins, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Elizabeth, announced yesterday the platform on which he hopes to win votes at the coming election. He stands for a conservative policy in making improvements, an appointive Board of Education and Police Commission and the establishment of a board of works. Although he is president of the Peter Briedt brewery, General Collins said he believed in the limitation of liquor licenses, their restriction in number to a ratio of one to every 500 inhabitants and the minimum license fee of $500.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday night.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a regular meeting tonight, and consider plans for increasing the membership and interest during the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring have returned to their home on West Seventh street, after an absence of several months from the city.

Football and General Sports

FOOTBALL.

The games this year are furnishing further proof of the great benefit the sport derived when the ten yard rule was adopted along with other radical revisions two years and a half ago. Walter Camp, who fathered the measure, laid stress on one point at the time, and that was that the ten yard rule would help the game by making possession of the ball less important. The fact that it is harder to gain the distance makes one side less apprehensive when the other side has it, and also not so anxious to hold on to it. This, in connection with the fact that the rule has expanded variety and open play materially——the latter giving opponents more chance to get the ball—has resulted in the leather changing ownership so often that even in a one sided contest there isn't the monotony of one team doing it all.

As the new game grows older this feature of it becomes more and more apparent, and observers of the contests this year have noticed more than ever that there is a more even balance of opportunities to carry the ball than there used to be. Even when the weak is opposing the strong the play is no longer all in one side's territory. The ball shuttles all over the field, and in every game no team is handicapped by scarcity of opportunity. At Harvard the attendances at the earlier games have been bigger than ever before. Boston is an exceptionally good football town, but the same conditions of attendance are true of other places this year. The conclusion is that football is becoming more attractive as a public spectacle and one reason for that is the condition herein cited.

GOLF.

In finally adopting the revised rules of golf at the business meeting on September 29, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews dropped the new clause penalizing by a stroke with distance a ball played out of bounds. The revised code, over which the St. Andrews committee, with the advice of the United States Golf Association and a dozen other important golfing organizations, has been working at for a year, is therefore practically a reform of the putting conditions, especially to give a clear line to the hole when there is casual water on the putting green. The new rules will be in force in Great Britain on January 3, and in this country the revised code will probably be adopted at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association the same month.

At the Royal and Ancient meeting the Earl of Stair presided. In the new draft it was proposed that if a player play his ball on to ground that is out of bounds he shall be penalized one stroke and he shall play his next stroke as nearly as possible at the spot from which the ball was played out of bounds. If out of bounds on the drive a player might tee a ball for his next stroke, but in every other case the ball must be dropped. As the rules are at present the penalty for playing out of bounds is loss of distance only, but if a player goes out of bounds from the tee he must drop a ball the same as through the green. The motion that the revised form of the rule be amended was made by Hall Blyth, who suggested instead, "that if a player play his ball out of bounds a ball shall be dropped at the spot from which the first ball was played, under penalty of the loss of the distance." This amendment was carried. The rule, therefore, remains unchanged except that when a player goes out of bounds from the tee he will be allowed to tee another ball instead of dropping one.

This concession, it may be noted, is not in any spirit of equity to the player, but only to save the turf tees of Great Britain from being cut up by players using an iron club after dropping a ball on the tee. The only other point brought up for discussion was a suggestion proposed at the special meeting of August 31 that the penalty for a lost ball at match play should be loss of a stroke and distance. As a result of that suggestion the revised code as presented contained the modification. It was voted, however, to adhere to the old rule, namely, that a player who loses his ball shall lose the hole unless his opponent also loses his ball, in which case the hole shall be halved.

In the afternoon the far driving Fox Hills crack putted weakly on the fifth and sixth greens and got behind a tree going to the seventh when another stroke was dropped. A three at the ninth, however, enabled him to reach the turn in 39. On the homeward journey everything looked favorable to the home man until he toppled his second shot to the thirteenth, but the ball luckily bounded over the brook and he got a five although his third shot fell short of the green.

Mrs. J. F. Brown, of East Sixth street, is suffering from an attack of acute indigestion.

XXXI.

At the bridge Mortimer was thrust into a motley crowd, eager, expectant, full of joyous anticipation of assured good luck. He was tossed into a seat by the swirling tide and as the train moved he looked at his fellow-passengers. There was a pleasant air of opulence all about him. Gold chains of fair prominence, diamonds of lustrous hue, decorated the always rotund figures. He fell to wondering why the men were all of a gross physique; why did the ladies wear dresses of such interminable variety of color; from whence came the money for this plethora of rich apparel.

True, on the train were some bearing undeniable evidences of poverty; but not many. One man of this latter unfortunate aspect sat next him. His whole appearance was suggestive of the shady side of life. He pored over a dishevelled sporting paper for half an hour, then throwing it under the seat he cast a furtive look at his neighbor, and presently said: "Dere'll be big fields today."

"That's too bad," Mortimer answered, through ignorance.

"I like it," declared the man; "it means long odds if you're next somethin' good."

Mortimer confined his remarks to a brief "Oh!" for the other man might as well have been speaking Choctaw.

"Have you doped 'em out for de Derby?"

Mortimer shook his head. Whatever it was he felt sure that he hadn't dope it.

"Well, I'll tell you somethin'—will you put down a good bet if I steer you straight?"

Mortimer was growing weary, his mind troubled by the frightful disaster that threatened Allis' family, so he answered: "My dear sir," I'm afraid you're mistaken. I never bet on races. But I thank you for your kind offer."

The unwashed face looked at him in blank amazement, then it wrinkled in a mirthful laugh of derision. "What d' 'ell you goin' to Gravesend for, den? Blamed if I don't believe you, dough—you look it. Say, is dat straight goods—did you never have a bet in your life?"

"Never did."

"Well, I'm damned! Say, I believe you've got de best of it, dough. Wish I'd never bucked ag'n' de bookies."

"Why don't you stop it now, then?"

"Say, pard, do you drink?"

"No."

"Smoke?"

"No."

A hopeless air of utter defeat came into the thin, sharp face. He tried to explain: "Racin's like any other loosed t'ing—it's like tobacco, or drink, or stealin' money out of a bank—"

Mortimer shivered.

"It's like any of 'em," continued the ragged philosopher, "a guy starts simply as a kid, an' he gets de t'row-down. He takes a bracer at himself, and swears he'll give it de go-by, but he can't—not on your life. But de ring ain't broke Ole Bill yet. I'll clean up a t'ousand today—say, I like your mug; an' I'll put you next a good t'ing, damme if I don't, an' you don't need to divvy up, neither. Dere's a chestnut runnin' in de Derby what dey call Larcen, an' I'm goin' to plank down a hun'red chicks on him."

He detected a look of incredulous unbelief in Mortimer's face. "You t'ink I ain't got no dough, eh?" He dug down into the folds of his somewhat voluminous "pants" and drew forth a fair-sized roll. "See? That wad goes to Larcen straight. He'll be out for de goods; it's a gal owns him, an' dere'll be nut'in doin'. Gal's name's Porter."

Again Mortimer started.

"What's the name of this—this horse?" he asked.

"Larcen."

"Do you mean Lauzanne?"

"Yes, dat's it. I jes' heered it, an' I t'ought it was Larcen. You've got it straight, stranger. Say, are you wise to anyt'in'?"

"Not about the horse; but I know the people—the young lady; and they'll win if they can—that's sure."

Mortimer saw the other occupants of the train moving toward the front end.

"I guess we're dere," said his companion; "perhaps I'll see you on de course. Say, I didn't catch your name."

"Mortimer."

"Well, take care of yourself, Mr. Morton. See you later."

In his ignorance of a race meet Mortimer had felt sure he would be able to find Alan Porter without trouble. The true difficulty of his quest soon dawned upon him. Wedged into the pushing, shoving, hurrying crowd, in three minutes he had completely lost himself, and even Mortimer's unpracticed mind realized speedily that it would be nothing short of a miracle if he were to find anyone in all those impatient thousands who even knew the person he was seeking. At last one young man he spoke to declared that he knew Alan Porter quite well; he was a great friend of his; he'd find him in a minute. This obliging stranger's quest led them into the long race track barroom.

Mortimer's new friend suggested that they indulge in beer while waiting for the sought one's appearance, and waxing confidential he assured his quarry that he had a lead-pipe cinch for the next race—it couldn't lose. The trainer was a bosom friend of his; a sort of hybrid brother in friendship. He himself was no tipster, he was an owner; he even went the length of flashing a bright yellow badge, as occult evidence of his standing.

"I must find my friend," he said, cutting the garrulous man short. "Excuse me, I'll go and look for him."

But the other was insistent; ferret-like, he had unearthed good meat—a rare green one—and he felt indisposed to let his prey escape. His insistence matured into insolence as Mortimer spoke somewhat sharply to him. Raised to quick fury by a vicious remark of the tout who held him in leash, he suddenly stretched out a strong hand and, seizing his insulter by the collar, gave him a quick twist that laid him on his back. Mortimer held him there, squirming, while men gathered so close that the air became stifling.

Presently a heavy hand was laid on Mortimer's shoulder and a gruff policeman's voice asked: "What's the matter here?"

"Nothing much," Mortimer replied, releasing his hold and straightening up; "this blackguard wanted me to bet on some horse, and when I refused, insulted me; that's all."

The other man had risen, his face purple from the twist at his throat. The officer looked at him.

"At it again, Mr. Bunco. I'll take care of him," he continued, turning to Mortimer. "He's a tout. Out you go," this to the other man. Then, tickled in the ribs by the end of the policeman's baton, the tout was driven from the inclosure; the spectators merged into a larger crowd, and Mortimer was left once more to pursue his fruitless search.

In despair at length he was heading for his rock of locality, the stairway of the stand, hurrying somewhat recklessly, when he ran with disturbing violence full tilt into a man who had erratically turned to his left.

"I beg pardon—" began Mortimer; then stared in blank amazement, cutting short his apology. The victim of his assault was Mr. Crane. The latter's close-lidded eyes had rounded open perceptibly.

"Mr. Mortimer!" he exclaimed. "You here? May I ask who's running the bank?"

The sudden advent of Crane threw the young man into momentary confusion.

"My mother was ill—I got leave—I had to see Alan Porter—I've come here to find him. They'll manage all right at the bank without me."

He fired his volley of explanation at his employer with the rapidity of a Maxim gun. Truth and falsehood came forth with equal volubility. Crane, feeling that at first he had spoken rather sharply, became more gracious. He had concluded that it was to see Allis the young man had come, perhaps at her instigation.

"Have you seen Alan Porter, sir?" Mortimer asked, anxiously.

"I did, but that was about an hour ago. You will probably find him"—he was going to say—"in the paddock with his sister," but for reasons he restrained; "let me see, most likely sitting up in the grand stand."

As Mortimer stood scanning the sea of faces that rose wave on wave above him, Mr. Crane said: "I hope you found your mother better. If I see Alan I'll tell him you are looking for him."

When Mortimer turned around Crane had gone. He heard the rolling thunder of hoof beats in the air. From where he stood, over the heads of many people he could see gaudy colored silk jackets coming swiftly up the broad, straight boulevard of the race course; even as he looked they passed by with a peculiar bobbing up-and-down motion. The effect was grotesque, for he could not see the horses.

A thought flashed through his mind that it might be the Derby. By chance, he observed a young man selling race catalogues, as he innocently named them. He procured one, and the seller in answer to a question told him it was the third race he had just seen, and the next would be the Brooklyn Derby.

There it was, all set forth in the programme he had just purchased. Seven horses to start, all with names unfamiliar except The Dutchman and Lauzanne. He had almost given up looking for Alan; it seemed so hopeless. At any rate he had tried his best to save the boy's honor; told deliberate lies to do it. Now it was pretty much in the hands of fate. He remembered what Alan had said about The Dutchman's certain chance of winning the coming race. He felt that if the horse won, Alan would put back the stolen thousand dollars; if not, where would the boy get money to cover up his theft?

It had seemed to Mortimer a foolish, desperate thing to risk money on anything so uncertain as a horse-race; but here was at stake the honor of a bright splendid young man—the happiness of his parents. It was terrible. Mortimer shuddered and closed his eyes when he thought of the misery, the shame, that would come to Allis and her mother when they knew, as they must, if Crane's horse were beaten, that the son was a thief.

He was roused from his despondent train of thought by speech that struck with familiar jar upon his ear.

"What d'ye t'ink of it, pard?" was the first salutation.

Mortimer stammered that he didn't know what to think of it.

"Dere ain't no flies on us to-day—I'm knockin' 'em out in great shape. Can't pick a loser, blamed if I can. I've lined up for a cash-in t'ree times, an' I'll make it four straight, sure. Lacen'll come home all alone; you see if he don't."

"I hope so," rejoined Mortimer.

"I say, Mr. Morton, put down a bet on him—he's good business."

In an instant the young man knew why this pesistent worrier of a tortured spirit had been sent to him. Fate gave him the cue; it whispered in his ear: "Put down a hundred—you have it—and win a thousand; then you can save Alan Porter—and keep this misery from the girl that is to you as your own life."

Mortimer listened eagerly; to the babbler at his side; to the whisper in his ear; to himself, that spoke within himself. Even if it were not all true, if Lauzanne were beaten, what of it? He would lose a hundred dollars but that would not ruin him.

"Will the betting men take a hundred dollars from me on this horse, Lauzanne?" he askey.

"Will dey take a hundred? Will dey take a t'ousand! Say, what you givin' me?"

"If Lauzanne won, I'd win a thousand, would I?"

"If you put it down straight; but you might play safe—split de hundred, fifty each way, win an' show; Larcen'll be one, two, t'ree, sure."

"I want to win a thousand," declared Mortimer.

"Den you've got to plump for a win; he's ten to one."

Mortimer could hardly understand himself; he was falling in with the betting idea.

He took a comparing look through the thicket of human beings that made a living forest all about, in a fast endeavor to discover Alan Porter. Not three paces away a uniquely familiar figure was threading in and out the changing maze—it was Mike Gaynor.

Mortimer broke from his friend, and with quick steps reached the trainer's side.

"I want to find Alan Porter," he said, in answer to Gaynor's surprised salutation.

"He was in the paddock a bit ago," answered Mike; "he moight be there still."

"I wanted to go in there, but they won't let me through the gate."

"No more they will," answered Mike, with untruthful readiness, for all at once it occurred to him that if Mortimer got to the paddock he might run up against Allis and recognize her.

"De gent could buy a badge and get in," volunteered Old Bill.

The lid of Mike's right eye dropped like the slide of a lantern, as he answered: "He couldn't get wan now—it's too late; just wait ye here, sir, and if the b'y's there wit' the nags, I'll sind him out."

Old Bill made no comment upon Mike's diplomatic misstatement, for he had observed the wink.

"Yes, please send him out, then, Mr. Gaynor, it's important."

"I'm in a hurry meself," said Mike; "I just come out fer a minute; see here," and he nodded his head sideways to Mortimer. The latter walked by his side for a few steps.

"Who's that guy?" asked the trainer.

"I don't know; he calls himself Old Bill.

"Well, ye best look out—he looks purty tough. What's he playin' ye fer?"

"He advised me to bet money on Lauzanne."

"The divil he did! What th' yellow moon does he know about the chestunt; did ye back him?"

"Not yet."

"Are ye goin' to?"

"I don't know. Do you think Lauzanne might come in first?"

A slight smile relaxed the habitually drawn muscles of Mike's grim visage; it was moons since he had heard anybody talk of a horse coming in first;" he was indeed a green bettor, this young man of the counting house. What was he doing there betting at all, Mike wondered. It must be because of his interest in the girl, his reason answered.

"I t'ink he'll win if he does his best for her."

"Does his best for who?"

Mike got to cover; his ungoverned tongue was always playing him tricks.

"Miss Allis is managing the horses," he explained, very deliberately, "an' there's a new b'y up on Lauzanne's back, d'ye onderstand, an' if the chestnut doesn't sulk, does his best fer the young misthress that'll be watchin' him here in the stand wit' tears in her eyes, he moight win—d'ye onderstand?"

Yes, Mortimer understood.

"Now I must go," Mike continued; "an' ye needn't come in the paddock—if the b'y is there I'll sind him out."

When Alan's seeker returned to Old Bill, he said: "Mr. Gaynor thinks your choice might come in first."

"Why was Irish steerin' you clear of de paddock?" asked the other.

"I suppose it was to save me the expense of buying a ticket for it."

The other man said nothing further, but the rememorance of Mike's wink convinced him that this was not the sole reason.

They waited for young Porter's appearance, but he did not come. "The geezer yer waitin' fer is not in dere or he'd a-showed up," said Old Bill; "an' if yer goin' to take de tip, we'd better skip to de ring an' see what's doin'."

Mortimer had once visited the stock exchange in New York. He could not help but think how like unto it was the betting ring with its horde of pushing, struggling humans, as he wormed his way in, following close on Old Bill's heels. Mortimer realized that but for his guide he never would have penetrated beyond the outer shell of the buzzing hive. He was eager to have the bet made and get out into the less congested air.

At last they reached some sort of a harbor; it was evidently an inlet for which his pilot had been sailing. A much composed man in a tweed suit, across which screamed lines of gaudy color, sat on a camp stool, with a weary, tolerant look on his browned face; in his hand was a card on which were penciled the names of the Derby runners with their commercial standing in the betting mart.

HUNTING THE PECCARY

BY

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1893, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

IN the United States the peccary is only found in the southernmost corner of Texas. In April, 1892, I made a flying visit to the ranch country of this region, starting from the town of Uvalde with a Texan friend, Mr. John Moore. My trip being very hurried, I had but a couple of days to devote to hunting.

Our first halting-place was at a ranch on the Frio; a low, wooden building, of many rooms, with open galleries between them, and verandas round about. The country was in some respects like, in others strangely unlike, the northern plains with which I was so well acquainted. It was for the most part covered with a scattered growth of tough, stunted mesquite trees, not dense enough to be called a forest, and yet sufficiently close to cut off the view. It was very dry, even as compared with the northern plains. The bed of the Frio was filled with coarse gravel, and for the most part dry as a bone on the surface, the water seeping through underneath, and only appearing in occasional deep holes. These deep holes or ponds never fail, even after a year's drouth; they were filled with fish. One lay quite near the ranch house, under a bold rocky bluff; at its edge grew giant cypress trees.

There had been many peccaries, or, as the Mexicans and cowpunchers of the border usually call them, javalinas, round this ranch a few years before the date of my visit. Until 1886, or thereabouts, these little wild hogs were not much molested, and abounded in the dense chaparral around the lower Rio Grande. In that year, however, it was suddenly discovered that their hides had a market value, being worth four bits—that is, half a dollar—apiece; and many Mexicans and not a few shiftless Texans went into the business of hunting them as a means of livelihood. They were more easily killed than deer, and, as a result, they were speedily exterminated in many localities where they had formerly been numerous, and even where they were left were to be found only in greatly diminished numbers. On this particular Frio ranch the last little band had been killed nearly a year before. There were three of them, a boar and two sows, and a couple of the cowboys stumbled on them early one morning while out with a dog. After half a mile's chase the three peccaries ran into a hollow pecan tree, and one of the cowboys, dismounting, improvised a lance by tying his knife to the end of a pole, and killed them all.

Many anecdotes were related to me of what they had done in the old days when they were plentiful on the ranch.

I spent two days hunting round this ranch, but saw no peccary sign whatever, although deer were quite plentiful.

Saw no peccary sign, although deer were plentiful.

Having satisfied myself that there were no javalinas left on the Frio ranch, and being nearly at the end of my holiday, I was about to abandon the effort to get any, when a passing cowman happened to mention the fact that some were still to be found on the Nueces River thirty miles or thereabouts to the southward. Thither I determined to go, and next morning Moore and I started in a buggy drawn by a redoubtable horse, named Jim Swinger, which we were allowed to use because he bucked so under the saddle that nobody on the ranch could ride him. We drove six or seven hours across the dry, waterless plains.

In the valley of the Nueces itself the brush grew thick. There were great groves of pecan trees, and ever green live-oaks stood in many places, long, wind-shaken tufts of gray moss hanging from their limbs. Many of the trees in the wet spots were of giant size, and the whole landscape was semi-tropical in character.

High on a bluff shoulder overlooking the course of the river was perched the ranch house, toward which we were bending our steps; and here we were received with the hearty hospitality characteristic of the ranch country everywhere. The son of the ranchman, a tall, well-built young fellow, told me at once that there were peccaries in the neighborhood, and that he had himself shot one but two or three days before, and volunteered to lend us horses and pilot us to the game on the morrow, with the help of his two dogs. The last were big black curs with, as we were assured, "considerable hound" in them. One was at the time staying at the ranch house, the other was four or five miles off with a Mexican goat-herder, and it was arranged that early in the morning we should ride down to the latter place, taking the first dog with us and procuring his companion when we reached the goat-herder's house.

We started after breakfast, riding powerful cow-ponies, well trained to gallop at full speed through the dense chaparral. The big black hound slouched at our heels. We rode down the banks of the Nueces, crossing and recrossing the stream. Here and there were long, deep pools in the bed of the river, where rushes and lilies grew and huge mailed garfish swam slowly just beneath the surface of the water. Once my two companions stopped to pull a mired cow out of a slough, hauling with ropes from their saddle horns. In places there were half-dry pools, out of the regular current of the river, the water green and fetid. The trees were very tall and large. The streamers of pale gray moss hung thickly from the branches of the live-oaks, and when many trees thus draped stood close together they bore a strangely mournful and desolate look.

We finally found the queer little hut of the Mexican goat-herder in the midst of a grove of giant pecans. On the walls were nailed the skins of different beasts, raccoons, wildcats, and the tree-civet, with its ringed tail. The Mexican's brown wife and children were in the hut, but the man himself and the goats were off in the forest, and it took us three or four hours' search before we found him. Then it was nearly noon, and we lunched in his hut, a square building of split logs, with bare earth floor, and roof of clap-boards and bark. Our lunch consisted of goat's meat and pan de mais. The Mexican, a broad-chested man with a stolid Indian face, was evidently quite a sportsman, and had two or three half-starved hounds, besides the funny hairless little house dogs, of which Mexicans seem so fond.

Having borrowed the javalina hound of which we were in search, we rode off in quest of our game, the two dogs trotting gayly ahead. The one which had been living at the ranch had evidently fared well, and was very fat; the other was little else but skin and bone, but as alert and knowing as any New York street-boy, with the same air of disreputable capacity. It was this hound which always did most in finding the javalinas and bringing them to bay, his companion's chief use being to make a noise and lend the moral support of his presence.

We rode away from the river on the dry uplands, where the timber, though thick, was small, consisting almost exclusively of the thorny mesquites. Mixed among them were prickly pears, standing as high as our heads on horseback, and Spanish bayonets, looking in the distance like small palms; and there were many other kinds of cactus, all with poisonous thorns. Two or three times the dogs got on an old trail and rushed off giving tongue, whereat we galloped madly after them, ducking and dodging through and among the clusters of spine-bearing trees and cactus, not without getting a considerable number of thorns in our hands and legs. It was very dry and hot. Where the javalinas live in droves in the river bottoms they often drink at the pools; but when some distance from water they seem to live quite comfortably on the prickly pear, slaking their thirst by eating its hard, juicy fibre.

At last, after several false alarms, and gallops which led to nothing, when it lacked but an hour of sundown we struck a band of five of the little wild hogs. They were running off through the mesquites with a peculiar hopping or bounding motion, and we all, dogs and men, tore after them instantly.

Peccaries are very fast for a few hundred yards, but speedily tire, lose their wind, and come to bay. Almost immediately one of these, a sow, as it turned out, wheeled and charged at Moore as he passed. Moore never seeing her, but keeping on after another. The sow then stopped and stood still, chattering her teeth savagely, and I jumped off my horse and dropped her dead with a shot in the spine, over the shoulders. Moore meanwhile had dashed off after his pig in one direction, and killed the little beast with a shot from the saddle when it had come to bay, turning and going straight at him. Two of the peccaries got off; the remaining one, a rather large boar, was followed by the two dogs, and as soon as I had killed the sow I leaped again on my horse and made after them, guided by the yelping and baying. In less than a quarter of a mile they were on his haunches, and he wheeled and stood under a bush, charging at them when they came near him, and once catching one, inflicting an ugly cut. All the while his teeth kept going like castanets, with a rapid champing sound. I ran close up and killed him by a shot through the backbone where it joined the neck. His tusks were fine.

The few minutes' chase on horseback was great fun, and there was a certain excitement in seeing the fierce little creatures come to bay; but the true way to kill these peccaries would be with the spear. They could often be speared on horseback, and where this was impossible, by using dogs to bring them to bay they could readily be killed on foot; though, as they are very active, absolutely fearless, and inflict a most formidable bite, it would usually be safest to have two men go at one together. Peccaries are not difficult beasts to kill, because their short wind and their pugnacity make them come to bay before hounds so quickly. Two or three good dogs can bring to a halt a herd of considerable size. They then all stand in a bunch, or else with their sterns against a bank, chattering their teeth at their antagonists. When angry and at bay, they get their legs close together, their shoulders high, and their bristles all ruffled and look the very incarnation of anger, and they fight with reckless indifference to the very last. Hunters usually treat them with a certain amount of caution; but, as a matter of fact, I know of but one case where a man was hurt by them. He had shot at and wounded one, was charged both by it and by its two companions, and started to climb a tree; but as he drew himself from the ground, one sprang at him and bit him through the calf, inflicting a very severe wound. I have known of several cases of horses being cut, however, and dogs are very commonly killed. Indeed, a dog new to the business is almost certain to get very badly scarred, and no dog that hunts steadily can escape without some injury. If it runs in right at the heads of the animals, the probabilities are that it will get killed; and, as a rule, even two good-sized hounds cannot kill a peccary, though it is no larger than either of them. However, a wary, resolute, hard-biting dog of good size speedily gets accustomed to the chase, and can kill a peccary single-handed, seizing it from behind and worrying it to death, or watching its chance and grabbing it by the back of the neck where it joins the head.

Dropped her dead with a shot in the spine.

Peccaries have delicately moulded short legs, and their feet are small, the tracks looking peculiarly dainty in consequence. Hence, they do not swim well, though they take to the water if necessary. They feed on roots, prickly pears, nuts, insects, lizards, etc. They usually keep entirely separate from the droves of half-wild swine that are so often found in the same neighborhoods; but in one case, on this very ranch where I was staying, a peccary deliberately joined a party of nine pigs and associated with them. When the owner of the pigs came up to them one day the peccary manifested great suspicion at his presence, and finally sidled close up and threatened to attack him, so that he had to shoot it.

The ranchman's son told me that he had never but once had a peccary assail him unprovoked, and even in this case it was his dog that was the object of attack, the peccary rushing out as it followed him home one evening through the chaparral. Even around this ranch the peccaries had very greatly decreased in numbers, and the survivors were learning some caution. In the old days it had been no uncommon thing for a big band to attack entirely of their own accord, and keep a hunter up a tree for hours at a time.

HALL GETS FIRE HOUSE

Second Ward Councilman Wins Long Fight for His Constituants.

BETTER PROTECTION AT LAST.

Structure to Cost $15,000 and Contract to Be Awarded on Nov. 6—End of Long Struggle.

At last the proposed new firehouse is to be erected on South avenue, in the Netherwood district of the city. Favorable action was taken at the special meeting of the Common Council, last night, when resolutions providing for the issuing of $15,000 worth of bonds for a period of ten years to date from December 1, 1908, and approving plains and specifications and calling for bids to be received on Monday night, November 2, for the purchase of the bonds and doing the work, were all adopted, but not until considerable opposition was offered by Councilman F. L. Montgomery, of the Second ward.

The meeting was held particularly for the purpose of settling this question, the call having been issued by President Tolles, which set forth in detail the objects.

First, Chairman Hibbard, of the fire and building committee, presented the report of that body, recommending the approval of plans and specifications, and that a building be erected to provide for two vehicles, one combination hose and chemical engine and a steamer. The report stated that the architect's figpres for the construction of the house is $9,500, and equipment is estimated at $4,000 for a combination wagon with hose and $5,000 for an auto combination apparatus. This report was filed.

Then Mr. Hibbard offered a resolution calling for the issue of $15,000 worth of bonds to erect and equip the fire-house on South avenue, previously purchased by the city. The issue of these bonds provide for a sinking fund and eight per cent of the prinicpal must be raised for this fund. There are to be thirty coupon bonds of $500 denomination each, bearing 4½ per cent. interest, and they are to be sold at a public sale to be held at the meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, November 2. This resolution was adopted, all the members voting in favor except Mr. Montgomery.

The Second ward member taking up the thread of his argument against the proposition, where he dropped it at the last meeting, deplored the intention to make another bond issue. He said that the bonds would mature after the equipment for the new fire-house was worn out, and he believed that it would be better to stand an increase rate than to establish the precedent of issuing such bonds. He said that there is nothing to stop the Common Council from issuing such bonds in any amount and he did not believe it to be right.

"I understand," said Mr. Montgomery, "that our present bond issue is $534,000, of which $134,500 has been issued this year. I don't like to vote against this latest issue, but I would much prefer to have the matter laid over."

Although at first opposed to the sinking fund feature of the issue, Mr. Suydam held that if the improvement cannot be obtained in any other way he would vote for it provided the bonds are to run for ten years instead of thirty. He took exception to Mr. Montgomery's statement that the equipment would be worn out before it was paid for, and cited the fact that three-quarters of the present fire apparatus is over ten years of age and is paid for. He said that the East End residents were anxious to get the improvement and the Common Council should grant the request. Mr. Gloak also spoke in favor of the improvement.

An amendment offered by Mr. Montgomery striking out the words "equipment," was withdrawn by that member after he was informed that this could not be done. It being obligatory to include equipment in the cost of the building. Mr. Montgomery then moved to refer the whole matter back to the fire committee for further consideration. This motion was lost, Mr. Montgomery alone voting in the negative. Then the original resolution was adopted, Councilmen Gloak, Hall, Hibbard, C. C. Randolph, Suydam and Taylor voting for it and President Tolles and Montgomery against.

This action was followed by the presentation of another resolution by Mr. Hibbard offering the plans, specifications, form of contract for approval. This was adopted and Monday night, November 2, was fixed as the time for receiving proposals and bids. Again Mr. Montgomery voted no, and he also decided in the negative on the form of proposals.

REPUBLICANS HOLD A BIG MASS MEETING

The Republicans in and about New Providence of Union county and neighboring parts of Morris, Essex and Somerset counties held the most important local rally of the campaign last night, under the direction of the Republican clubs of New Providence Borough and New Providence Township. The affair included a big, old-fashioned torchlight parade of the township club, headed by a band from the clubhouse, in Plainfield avenue, Berkeley Heights, down Plainfield and Springfield avenues, to the place of meeting, which was in the open air at the four corners, in the borough. All the houses on the line of march were illuminated.

Dr. Willis Fletcher Johnson presided at the meeting, and the list of speakers included Congressman Charles N. Fowler, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman the three Assembly candidates from Union county, A. W. Schwartz, Carlton B. Pierce and A. F. Kirstein; the candidates for Sheriff, Freeholder and Mayor, R. J. Kirkland, Henry S. Fullerton and F. Schwarzwalder, and Judge Horace Roberson, of Bayonne. Much enthusiasm was expressed, and, despite the alliance of a few disgruntled bolters with the Democrats, a largely increased majority for the whole Republican ticket, general and local, is confidently expected.

JUDGE D. T. HOWELL HAS COMMITTED SUICIDE

Following a bitter attack made by Deputy Sheriff Charles M. Mason on Wednesday night and his "defi" to the latter at a mass meeting held in Newark, last night, in which he told Mr. Mason to do his worst, Judge David T. Howell, of the First Criminal Court, Newark, shot himself in Branch Brook Park, in that city, this morning. He died in the Newark City Hospital.

Judge Howell was an appointee of Mayor Haussling, and Deputy Mason at a political mass meeting held in Newark, this week, bitterly attacked him and his record. Last night at a Democratic mass meeting the judge was one of the speakers. He denied the charges made against him by Mr. Mason and at the same time defied the Deputy Sheriff to do his worst.

Judge Howell's act has caused a great sensation in political circles in Newark.

Dr. and Mrs. Savoye left after the ceremony for a brief wedding trip and at its conclusion will make their home in Westfield. Both bride and groom are well known in the city and borough.

DR. H. C. KREBS' ADDRESS

North Plainfielder's Talk Before Fellow County Superintendents.

HELD AT TRENTON YESTERDAY.

Semi-Annual Conference Is Attended By Twenty-one of the Twenty-two County Superintendents.

Twenty of the twenty-one county superintendents of the State met in the State house yesterday at Trenton at the semi-annual conference of the County Superintendents' Association. President John Enright, of Monmouth, presided and addresses on various topics of educational interests were made by members and followed by a general discussion of the subjects.

H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, addressed the association on the transition from grammar schools to high schools. He said that beneficent legislation during the past few years has caused an enormous increase in the number of pupils who pass from ungraded or small graded schools to high schools. Five years ago this class of pupils was numbered by twos and threes, but now scores are making their way by train, trolley, wagon and bicycle to the higher department of the common school system.

Mr. Krebs said that this movement had brought with it several problems which needs solution. One of these is the test of fitness before pupils can be admitted to high school. He feared that in the past few years the standards had been too low, as many pupils had come to high schools unable to do the work. This, he believed, was partly due to the desire of outside teachers to graduate many pupils. To prove this condition, there should be better teachers in the country school, the pupil in the rural school being justly entitled to as good a teacher as the town or city child. Mr. Krebs said the standard of certification for teachers is much too low. The State does not even require high school graduation as a pre-requisite to entering the examination for a country teachers' certificate. All that is required is a good moral character, a minimum age of 18 years, and the ability to answer seven out of ten questions in eleven elementary subjects. Graded schools do not usually employ teachers of these minimum qualifications; hence they are turned loose on the country children to inflict incalculable damage upon their future prospects. Continuing, Mr Krebs said:

"With the increased and increasing salaries now paid teachers, with two State Normal schools filled to their capacity, with normal graduates from other States glad of the opportunity to enter New Jersey, we have reached the time when it should be announced that no person will be permitted to teach in this State after January 1, 1909, who is not a graduate of at least a two-year course in a State or city normal school. No greater boon to the suffering children in rural districts could be invoked than this, which would protect them from the sad consequences of apprenticeship and experimentation."

The system of conducting the county examinations was also discussed by Mr. Krebs, who thought it was open to serious criticism and required amendments in various particulars. He also spoke of the problems of transportation to schools, the subject of tuition fees and ther timely topics.

Principal James M. Green, of the State Normal school in Trenton spoke on the high school course for teachers in the normal school, and J. Brognard Betts, of the State educational department, explained at the afternoon session the latest amendment to the school law, adopted at last winter's session of the legislature.

Election of officers resulted in the choice of John Enright, of Freehold to succeed himself as president and the re-election of Charles Albertson of Magnolia, and Mr. Betts, as vice-president and secretary, respectfully.

Still Alarm for Chimney Blaze.

A still alarm called fire apparatus to the home of Miss Mary Thickstun, of 407 Central avenue, at 1:15 this afternoon. A blazing chimney was at the bottom of the trouble but a couple of extinguishers soon ended the disturbance. There was no damage.

Banquet to Ball Team.

A banquet will be given to the Y. M. C. A. baseball team at the association building tonight, when the handsome Spalding trophy will be presented and each member of the team will receive a gold medal.

MISS MARY VALIANT WEDS

Charming Young Woman Becomes the Bride of Donald Ashbrook McGee.

SOCIETY ATTENDS CEREMONY.

College President and Pastor in Gowns, Officiate at Ceremony at the First M. E. Church Today.

Miss Mary Ellen Valiant daughter of Mrs. John Valiant, and Donald Ashbrook McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs Henry A. McGee, both of North Plainfield, were married at the First Methodist Episcopal church, this afternoon, in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage of relatives and friends. The affair was a brilliant one, uniting two families that have long been prominent in the social life of the city and borough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and an uncle of the groom. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the church. For the first time in this church the clergymen wore gowns.

The bride was attended by Mrs David Boise, of Scranton, Pa., and Mrs. C. F. Corning, of Baltimore, the latter a sister of the bride, as matrons-of-honor; Miss Virginia Hegeman, of North Plainfield, as brides maid, and Miss Ethel Most, a cousin of the bride, as maid-of-honor. The best man was Raymond McGee, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Spencer Turner, of New York; Rex Flinn, William Moorehead, John Magee, of Pittsburg; Hugh Wilson of Chicago, and Vaughn McGee, of this city.

The bride's gown was of white satin, Empire style, and she wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried bride roses and lillies-of-the-valley. Her traveling gown was of dark blue cloth, with hat to match. The matrns-of-honor and bridesmaid wore corn color Directoire satin gowns, Empire style, with brown hats and brown plumes and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The maid of-honor's gown was a lavender satin Directoire, with lavender hat and plumes to match. They carried chrysanthemums of the same color.

Howard Case, organist of the First Baptist church, was at the organ and as the bridal party entered the church he played the Loehengrin Wedding March, assisted by a 'cellist. The ushers led the way, followed by matrons-of-honors, bridesmaid and maid-of-honor and then the bride, accompanied by her brother John Valiant, who gave her in marriage.

At the altar the party met the groom, the best man and the officiating clergymen, who entered from the front of the edifice. The ceremony was performed with a ring. Immediately afterward the bridal party left the church, preceded by the bride and groom, and a reception followed at the home of the bride's mother at Myrtle and Sycamore avenues, where a large number of relatives and friends gathered to offer their best wishes to the young couple.

During the evening music was rendered by the Neapolitan Orchestra, of New York, in costume. An elaborate supper was served following congratulations to the bride and groom, and later Mr. and Mrs. McGee left for a two weeks trip, after which they will reside on Willow avenue for the winter.

The church decorations were particularly attractive, consisting of palms, potted plants and a profusion of chrysanthemums. The same scheme was carried out at the house, with the addition of special decorations in the parlors and reception rooms.

The bride received a wealth of valuable gifts, including selverware, goldware, furniture, cut-glass, linen and several substantial checks. In the exchange of gifts among the members of the bridal party, the groom gave the bride a pearl and diamond crescent and the ushers received pearl scarf pins. The bridesmaid and maid-of-honor received ameythist and pearl pins and the matrons-of-honor were presented with topaz and pearl pins.

Both the bride and groom have been prominent in the younger society set of the borough and city and in the social functions at the Park Club. The groom is a graduate of Yale and now holds an excellent position with Colgate & Co., in the firms New York offices.

After the ceremony at the church and in connection with the reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Valiant, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. McGee, uncle and aunt to the groom, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, at their home on Rockview avenue. A majority of the guests at the wedding reception attended the anniversary event.

WON'T STOP GLAZER OPERATING FACTORY

Vice-Chancellor Walker, before whom was tried the case of Miles Reusch and other residents of Alton against Theodore Glazer, Jr., in which the complainants sought to make permanent a temporary injunction obtained from the court has given his final decision. It permits Mr. Glazer to continue his business under the modified terms of the temporary injunction, and is a triumphant for the defendant. The action against James Guttridge, who was co-defendant, has been dismissed.

The case has attracted wiespread attention and has been in litigation for several years. When the temporary injunction was obtained, Mr. Glazer was allowed to conduct his business after he had made certain changes which convinced the court that it was not a nuisance. The temporary injunction remained in force pending the trial before Vice-Chancellor Walker. Judge William Newcorn represented Mr. Glazer and Mr. Guttridge, while Codington & Swackhamer were counsel for the complainants.

COLORED MAN GETS AN ANIMATED PRESENT

A stylishly-dressed young colored woman alighted from the 8:50 train at the North Avenue station, last night, and engaged Cabman Harry Seader to drive her to an address on Crescent avenue. When the junction at East Seventh street was reached, she called for the cabby to stop and asked if he would do her a favor. She held an infant in her arms, probably about a month old, and she said it was to be taken to George Carter, who worked at the house she was going to, but that she had just remembered she had a brief call to make on a friend living near the Crescent Avenue church. Would Seader be so kind as to carry baby to Mr. Carter and return for her at the corner in five minutes? Seader would and he did.

Carter put up a holler when the animated Christmas package was handed over to him and insisted that he knew nothing about the young woman or the child. The cabman asked him to go back to the corner with him if he had any objections to offer and he did, but there was nobody in sight when they got there. A search of the vicinity failed to reveal the young woman who had the call to make, so Seader drove back to the station, leaving Carter to do what he pleased with his gift.

Carter hurried over to police headquarters with the infant and told Chief Kiely that he knew of no reason why he should be singled out as its guardian and asked that the young woman be located. From her description, the head sleuth derived a clue and within an hour Roundsman Higgins had fixed upon Mary Harris, a former local resident, as the donor. Her father, Gilbert Harris, lives on Plainfield avenue and when he was asked as to his daughter's whereabouts he said he had not heard from her in a long time. The last address she gave the family, he said, was Fort Hamilton avenue, near Thirty-seventh street, Brooklyn.

The cops were making preparation to locate Mary through this address when Carter returned to headquarters and said that he had had a talk with his wife and they had decided to adopt the infant. He assured Chief Kiely that it was purely motives of pity that induced him to take this action and by so doing he did not wish the impression to be derived that he admitted any relaionship. The chief said, "Yes, I guess so" and the affair was dropped as far as the police were concerned.

Sermon to Young Men.

The fact that two popular young men, Leslie Brokaw and Everett Sherwin, both of the First Baptist church congregation, have died within the last few weeks, gives occasion for a special sermon by their pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock. A cordiel invitation is extended to the young men who were the companions and friends of the desceased, and to the general public. No seats reserved at the evening services. Dr. Chambliss will preach at the morning service.

President Welch to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, of Ohio Weslyan University, will preach at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tomorrow morning. While in Plainfield he is the guest of relatives. He is one of the most highly esteemed men in the Methodist church and is destined to be elected a Bishop, according to the belief of his friends.

Mrs. Samuel Porter Williams, of Hartford, Conn., has been spending a few days with friends in town.

FRELINGHUYSEN'S RETORT

State Senator Sharply Replies to Col. Nelson Y. Dungan's Accusations.

IN A CONVINCING STATEMENT.

He Is In No Insurance Trust—Explains Senatorial Vote and Asks About That Drink.

When the report containing the resume of Col. Dungan's speech at the North Plainfield Democratic mass meeting as published in this paper last night, was called to the attention of State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen today, the Somerset solon said:

"Mr. Dungan first charges me with misrepresenting the borough of North Plainfield in not eliminating the voting machines upon petition. When the petition was presented to me, though signed by only a small proportion of the voters, I at once telephoned the Secretary of State about the matter and was informed that it was too late to make any change. The Secretary of State also wrote me to the same effect and I informed the bearer of the petition that I would recommend the withdrawal of the machines the following year upon the presentation of another petition signed by a majority of the voters. The following year, I supported and voted for a bill referring the matter to the people to decide for themselves, whether or not they wanted the voting machines.

In reference to Col. Dungan's criticism of the protective tariff, I am unable to understand whether he repudiates a protective tariff or not. Does my opponent desire free trade? It is sufficient answer to him to point out that the owners of the mills he refers to are, I understand, supporting Mr. Taft. Mr. Taft stands for a revision of the tariff along protective lines. This country has surpassed every other chiefly because of the protection which under Republican guidance the tariff has given all industries. I cannot believe that even Mr. Dungan would say 'let us have no more protection. Let the fruits of cheap labor of Europe and Asia enter here and compete with the fruits of American labor. He is wrong and he knows it when he says trat every mill in Bound Brook, Somerville and Raritan is closed. If we did away with the protective tariff then I am sure he would see them all closed.

"In regard to Col. Dungan's attack on me for my support of Mr. Dryden I am free to say that I did so and in doing so I believe that I represented the majority of those who expressed their desire to me. The number of petitioners to me to support Mr. Dryden far surpassed those who desired me to oppose him. Mr. Dungan suggests that my vote means a vote for the return of Senator Kean to the U. S. Senate. As far as being committed to anyone for U. S. Senator, I desire to call Mr. Dungan's attention to the fact that the people now have the right to express at the primaries their choice for U. S. Senator. I advocated and voted for the law giving the people such right and if elected I will obey the will of my constituency as expressed at such primaries.

"So far as he charges me with being the head of an insurance trust, it shows clearly with what utter recklessness he makes his statements. I do represent fire insurance companies but instead of being members of the fire insurance combination they are independent and are fighting the so-called trust. I as their representative am also fighting the so-called trust and Mr. Dungan when he charges me with supporting an insurance trust is almost as far wrong as it is possible for a man to be. It is true that I did oppose some proposed legislation during the last session but did so because I was convinced that the measures were not good and it has never been my policy and never will be to support anything I do not believe to be in the interests of those who I represent. The bills to which he refers I was convinced were introduced to care for special interests. On one of these bills the entire banking and insurance committee was opposed. As to the other a majority was opposed to it. This is why they were not reported.

"So far as my connection with insurance companies is concerned, I know of no reason why I should not earn my living in that way. Certainly I have as much right to represent fire insurance companies as Mr. Dungan has to represent the Reading Railroad. In reference to the insinuation that Mr. Case has some assurance from me about an appointment to a judgeship, I will state that I have made no promises to anyone."

AMUSEMENTS.

During the week of October 19, the patrons of Proctor's popular playhouse on Park Place, Newark, will have stronger evidence of Proctor's being the best and greatest show in town. Select your own headliner from the galaxy of stars presented. Fred Karnos Pantomime Company will preent their screaming funny sketch, "An Night in an English Music Hall;" a laugh from start to finish. La Petite Revue, vaudevilles latest novelty surprise offering with good singing and much comedy. John J. Hayes, the winner of the Marathon race, recently contested, will appear in an interesting monologue and story descriptive of the great event, illustrated by pictures in detail, showing the victor crossing the line. Miss Laura Burt and Henry Stanford will present their successful comedy sketch, "The Order of the Bath." George B. Reno and Company will be seen in their side splitting skit "An Odd Lot." Berry and Berry have a laughable mpsical melange entitled "Do You Like Music." Corbrey Brothers are neat novelty dancers. Other artists, and a new reel of motion pictures will contribute to this excellent bill.

Louise Gunning, the new prima donna star appearing under the management of the Messrs. Shubert in "Marcelle," the new operetta by Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders at the Casino, has established a record as the only recent star to rise to a position of such eminence without a single voice disputing her right. She has not only proved her own ability as singer and actress to be the bright central figure in one of the most elaborate productions ever offered on Broadway, but she brought added honor to the Shubert management by so admirably justifying all the steps taken in her behalf. Her singing of "The Red, Red Rose," the latest of he Pixley-Luders' romanic ballads, would in itself be more than sufficient to bring her into the natural realm of stardom. Among the others in the company are Elsa Ryan, Lawrence Wheat, Frank Rushworth, George Boniface, Jr., Herbert Cawthorne, Henry Norman, Robert O'Connor, Edith Girvan, Leona Anderson, Nettie Black and Marion Ford.

Plays may come and plays mo go, go, but just now it looks as though the great American play "Paid in Full" would go on all winter at Weber's Theatre, New York. Every attraction that was playing when "Paid in Fulk" had its premiere, nearly a year ago, was glad to take advantage of the close of the theatrical season to bring their engagements to an end. Wagenhals and Kemper not only continued the Eugene Walter play through the entire summer but it stands foremost among the offerings of the ne wseason and is attracting larger crowds to the cozy playhouse on lower Broadway than when its great success was much younger. "Its good to be decent." This is the moral pointed out by the play. It is pointed out in the language as familiar as the names of the principal characters—Smith, Brooks, Williams and Harris. It is not told in King's English, but in forceful United States. Its' greatest charm is its naturalness.

Klaw & Erlanger's "Little Nemo," which comes to the New Amsterdam Theatre Tuesday evening, October 20, is considered a dazzling, triumphant success. The theatre will be closed Monday evening in order to properly house and stage the big production. "Little Nemo" represents the best and most triumphant achievement in all details of its construction and productive management that the stage has ever known. The music by Victor Herbert is the best in melody and the richest in orchestration that he has ever given to musical comedy; and in book and lyrics, Harry B. Smith has undoubtedly shown his cleverest work in his story and stanzas, based on the famous cartoons of Winsor McCay. Comedy abounds in "Little Nemo" and it is refreshing, clean and wholesome fun throughout and with such a trio of comedians as Joseph Cawthorn, Billy Van and Harry Kelly, there is a riot of laughter at the succession of comic incidents. Master Gabriel, a consummate little artist, is quite ideal in the title role.

A good deal of nonsense has been written as to whether "The Devil" should be played in a comedy vein or not. George Arliss, whose "Devil" is admittedly the subtlest character study New York has seen in many a year, and one that will live when all other "Devils" are forgotten, says on the subject: "I am quite sure that the devil, to be really the monpolist of his line of business, would be the best story teller in his club, the best dancer in his set; he would play the piano like a virtuoso, win the tennis and golf championships, handle the ribbons like a thoroughbred; in short he would have all the graces and all the charms that men commend and women adore. I want the audiences at the Belasco to laugh with my devil."

When Henri Bernstein's play "Samson" is produced in London with Arthur Bourchier in the leading part, it will be the version made by William Gillette.

Miss Marie Doro will appear in "The Richest Girl" in Chicago and Philadelphia, then the play will be produced with her in New York. Its London production takes place in January.

Miss Pauline Chase and Mr. Frohman's Duke of York Theatre Company, in "Pantaloon," having met with success at the Theatre Des Arts in Paris, Mr. Frohman proposes they shall appear in Berlin before returning to London, for the reproduction in December of "Peter Pan."

Charles Frohman is now entering in an arrangement so that when "The Girls of Gottenberg" is compelled, in December, to leave the Knickerbocker Theatre, owing to the early engagement of Miss Fritzie Scheff, to have that musical piece continue its run at another theatre in New York.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

In point of class the only big football game which New York gets this year promises to rank up right with the best. It will bring Princeton and Dartmouth together at the Polo Grounds, and that field now has a seating capacity second only to the huge stands at Cambridge and New Haven. Dartmouth is one of the few football teams that has taken Princeton's measure, and the feeling with which she goes against the Tigers will be anything but that of a team that feels it has no chance. In fact she thinks they have a good chance. In 1905 Dartmouth beat Princeton 6 to 0, and in the following year was completely snowed under by the Tigers. The two didn't come together last year, so have met only once under the new game. Dartmouth was slow to take up the new features introduced by the revised code in 1906, and that was one reason why she was annihilated by the Jersey men. But now she is playing as much new football as anybody, and having a pretty likely lot of material does not regard anybody with a feeling of awe.

One play of the 1905 game still makes Dartmouth men chuckle. It was in the second half, and Jim Cooney, the crack Princeton tackle, had been brought into the game in the hope of scoring on the Hanoverians. He dropped back as if to carry the ball in a tackle play, and everybody looked for him to make a bull-like rush. Everybody except Dartmouth. The latter wasn't fooled and when one of the halfbacks instead of Cooney took the ball he was downed for a loss of ten yards.

By the time of this year's Dartmouth game the Princeton team will be giving some idea of its real strength, for the Yale game is only a week later. Yale, for one, isn't taking any particular comfort to herself simply because Princeton has been backward this year far beyond previous seasons. It looks as if the Princeton policy this year was for a slow development until every bit of available materials is tried out to discover the bests men for the various positions. Speed and cohesion will be brought out in due time.

Capt. Dillion has played but little this year, and that is one reason why more hasn't been accomplished against opponents. Just why he hasn't played more is best known to the coaches, and it may be that it is figured he will quicken things with a rush when he goes on the job regularly, and that the Tigers in consequence will come along with a powerful stride in the final stages. In the running back of punts alone Dillon's presence will have a bracing effect, especially in a kicking game. As for Princeton's punting department, at present it is mediocre. There are a dozen teams that are ahead of the Tigers in booting the oval.

GOLF.

Isaac Mackie, the popular professional of the Fox Hills Golf Club, won his first title Tuesday by leading a high class field in the third annual championship tournament of the Eastern Professional Golfers Association over his home course. The Fox Hills crack with rounds of 71 and 76 for a thirty-six hole total of 147 won decisively by a margin of three strokes. Jack Hutchinson of St. Andrews with an even 150 got second place, while Jack Hobens of Englewood; Herbert Strong, Apawamis; Tom McNamara, Wollaston, and William Dow, Fall River, were all grouped at 151.

The committee set aside $370 in prizes, divided into ten moneys. Mackie received $120 and Hutchinson $75, while Hobens, Strong, McNamara and Dow split third, fourth, fifth and sixth moneys, each receiving $33.75. The next four prizes of $10 each were won by Gilbert Nicholls, Woodland; Aleck Campbell, Brookline; Willie Maguire, Maplewood, and Dave Hunter, Essex county, who finished in the order named.

Late in the afternoon Campbell and J. A. Janin of the home club and H. H. Barker of Garden City, and Chadwick Sawyer, the Midland amateur, played off their tie of the day before for second place in the four ball competition. It was agreed to have nine holes decide the deadlock, and Campbell and Janin won easily with a best ball of 35 as against 38 for the other pair.

To return to the championship proper, Mackie secured an early advantage on his first round. Starting with a 5 at the first hole the native of Earl's Ferry reeled off the next eight holes in one under fours, so that the turn was reached in 36. Coming home, Mackie had three threes, and his total of 71 placed him two strokes ahead of the nearest opponent, Willie Dow.

Instead of taking advantage of this good fortune Mackie flubbed his approach to the fourteenth after a wild drive and also over played the green on his third, so that the hole cost him a six. That was Mackie's last mistake and finishing in par figures, he got a 76.

It is now an assured fact that the field in the coming women's national championship tournament, to be held over the Chevy Chase Club links, will be made up largely of Eastern golfers. The West will not be represented by more than half a dozen players, as the date is too late for many of the younger and best performers. With regard to the Women's Western Golf Association deciding not to send a team to compete with the Eastern body immediately prior to the championship a member of the former body writes as follows:

"The Western women feel that as they have twice put in the field a team made up of anybody they could get, it would be better o wait until such time as it will be possible to muster golfers that will be representtative before trying again. They also consider their playing twice when it was clearly evident they had no chance to win was enough to show they were sports. If the competition could be played before echool opens, thus enabling our foremost golfers to take part, there is little doubt that the West would always have a team."

A new amateur record has been made at the Country Club of Lakewood, which will give the amateurs something to "shoot" at when they gather at the course in the pines for the annual fall open tournament late in November. Herbert M. Foster, of the home club, as well as of the Philadelphia Country Club, recently went out in 39 and home in 34 for a 73. Wylie Carhart held the former amateur record of 74, while the professional mark is a 72, by Willie Norton.

A team match between the Columbia University and the Forest Hill Field Club over the latter's course on Saurday resulted in a 6 to 3 victory for Forest Hill. The championship title of the Forest Hill Field Club changed hands on Saturday, but continues to remain in the Allsopp family. In other words, E. E. Allsopp defeated Harry Allsopp, the former champion, by 7 up and 6 to play in the thirty-six-hole final round.

Memories of bygone days were recalled when the amateurs gathered in the annual individual invitation tournament on the links of the Morris County Golf Club Thursday. Among the sixty odd starters, including present and past champions, Robert C. Watson of Westbrook, who frequently figured as a tournament winner six or seven years ago, led the field in the eighteen hole qualifying round, with a capital 76. This was eight strokes better than Jerome D. Travers, the national titleholder, could get. In fact the Montclair expert only did manage to squeeze in after a tie.

When the last cards had been returned Travers, James A. Tyng, A. D. Swords and R. H. Williams, Jr., all of the home club, were found to be tied at 84 for the last two places in the first division. At that time the champion was far out on the course engaged in a friendly match with C. B. Macdonald and H. J. Whigham. An automobile was pressed into service and Travers was brought back for the playoff, which was decided in the twilight.

All got fours at the first hole save Swords, who took five and fell by the wayside. To the second hole Tyng got a three and Travers a four, while Williams, after pulling his tee shot to the depths of the punchbowl, could not do better than a five. Three men were also tied for the last two places in the second sixteen at ninety, and in the playoff Edward Shiffen of the home club lost. G. T. Gillespie, another Morris county man lost in the playoff at the bottom of the third division.

Travers found it impossible to do himself justice for two reasons. He developed a tendency to pull his drives, and to make matters worse the Montclair man took three puts on about half the greens.

On the other hand Robert Watson rarely played better golf, driving a long ball and approaching beautifully. His short game, with one or two exceptions, left little to be desired, although at the eleventh the Westbrook man needed four puts. Even at that he came home in thirty-seven.

WHY ALL DEMOCRATS SHOULD VOTE FOR WM. H. TAFT.

Having declared on the floor of the House that William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic party's nominee for the Presidency, is a heretic from the political faith of Thomas Jefferson and his illustrous successors, Eugene W. Leake, a congressman and one of the most prominent Democrats of New Jersey, has rendered a most valuable public service by furnishing the best reasons yet enunciated why Mr. Taft and not Mr. Bryan should be elected to the Presidency.

We feel that every man who places his country before party will agree with the logic of Mr. Leake's argument, the salient points of which we are happy to be able to reproduce:

"An individual member of a party reserves at all times the right to vote against a nominee of his party whenever in his judgment his duty demands it." "Bryan is a right living, clean man, but he is a political faker, and it is an insult to th e American people for him to expect that a profitable purgatory spent on the Chautauqua circuit before Y. M. C. A.'s and church societies with his Prince of Peace will atone for his insincerity. No man of his stamp has ever been chosen for the Presidency. If such a calamity should occur it will be due not to the fact that the American citizen is less patriotic, but that he is politically stale and indifferent, not to the fact that Bryan represents the ideal of America, but because the people have been fools.

"It is amusing to hear Bryan speak of Roosevelt stealing his ideas. Why from the standpoint of the Populist and the Socialist Bryan is a political kleptomaniac. The result of his imitation of Roosevelt's career reminds me of the story of Aesop's ass, who after watching his friend, the dog, sportively clapped his fore feet on his master's shoulders; but a cudgel instead of a caress greeted his indiscretion.

"Shall the people be fooled into preferring Bryan to Taft? Bryan, a vacillating, uncertain quantity; Taft, a determined man of action. Bryan without any record; Taft one of the nation builders, with a record of successful accomplishment unsurpassed by any contemporary. Bryan without any experience in administrative affairs; Taft better qualified than the candidate of any party within many years; Bryan, who has been devoting his energies and talent to discovering and enlarging the discontent in the land and using it to his immediate commercial advantage on the lecture platform and in the newspaper; "Taft, who has been serving his country at a grossly inadequate salary in some of the most important affairs which have demanded our attention since the civil war. Bryan, a wealthy man; Taft, a poor man. Bryan, a political fanatic; Taft, a statesman. Bryan, without judgmen; Taft, with it. Bryan, who dispels confidence; Taft, who commands it.

"Taft is qualified for the Presidency, and Bryan is not."

"HEAVEN A CITY."

14th of a Series on Heaven by REV. DR CHARLES E. HERRING

In the last book of the Bible, the book of Revelation, Heaven is pictured to us as a paradise and also as a city. It is said of those that win the victory over sin in this world that they shall "eat of the tree of life which is in the midst of the paradise of God." Paradise! What is the meaning of that? Paradise was the order of things in this world before sin entered into it. It is pictured to us in the first chapter of Genesis as a garden, the garden of Eden.

In the last book of the Bible, the garden of Eden is but a picture of the final paradise of God. There must be something, therefore, in the heavenly world that is like this earthly paradise; for this figure is used by the author of the Book of Revelation to describe it. If Heaven is a garden, it must be a place where nature is more beautiful than it is now; if it is a paradise, I am at liberty to imagine some possible glories of a paradise; and to think of the heavenly world as realizing these imaginations of mine. Heaven is nature perfected. There are some things in nature that are perfectly unsatisfactory to us today. There is the evidence of cruelty and death in nature, but Heaven is the garden of God, where all is love and life. Here is a man who loves nature! Heaven in his imagination is nature in all its perfection. To his vision there comes the thought of a heavenly garden, forest and landscape, with all the coloring of field and sky. Perhaps everything in his imagination is not perfectly correct, but this we are sure of, that God will not disappoint that imagination, for the reality will far exceed any of the dreams the man may have. Think of all the possible glories of a paradise. Heaven a paradise! What a wealth of suggestion in that word! Do you imagine that God would give us such a figure, if he meant finally to disappoint us?

But Heaven is not only a paradise; it is a city. Heaven, a city! Now think of all that a city means. Your life is spent partly in the city and partly in the country. The ideal of a business man would be that Heaven to perfectly satisfy him, must be both. Heaven as a paradise means that in that world all the beauties of nature in some way will find a place there; but I fear that the beauties of nature would not perfectly satisfy us if there were no human relations. What makes a place beautiful is not the climate, nor the atmosphere, nor the glories of nature; but the people who are in it. You might be satisfied with the natural beauties of this city, but if the people were indifferent to you, I fear you would want to leave it. So the heavenly world is described under the figure of a city, as well as a paradise, because in that world your satisfaction will come through association with congenial people as in this world. The story is told of Phillips Brooks, that when he was conversing with a friend in one of the tall buildings of his city, his friend spoke of the beauties of nature. At that moment the great soul of Phillips Brooks was not thinking of the glories of nature, for he said, "Oh, no! not nature, but this beautiful view." What was that view? Just the sight of the roofs and chimney tops in that section. "Give me this," he said, "for these chimney tops even, stand for life, for humanity, and that is what attracts me, and makes life worth living." He loved to quote that verse of Browning's:

"How good is man's life, the mere living! how fit to employ
All the heart and the soul and the senses forever in joy."

To his mind, then, Heaven was a city.

Because Heaven is a city, it will be composed of all classes of men needful to each other's life. We never could imagine a city where every soul would be possessed of exactly the same capacity. It takes an infinite variety of people to make a city. It is said that "probably among the hundred million suns and thousand million planets within the range of human vision, there are no repetitions, but each sun and each planet has its individual marks." It is likewise true of human relations. Each of us possesses unique marks of individuality, and we are dependant on a multitude of other people, possessing unique talents which we need.

Because Heaven is a city, there cannot be a loss of our personal identity there. There will be no such thing in that world, as the merging of our individual life in God, or into the great ocean of being and life. Death is not the breaking of the bubble of individual existence. Why? That could not be true if Heaven is a city. Individual existence is implied in that figure, for a city is a place where there is an infinite variety of people who have relations with each other.

We are told that in Heaven we shall be embodied creatures. Yes, and we shall possess material bodies. Perhaps, as has been suggested, "we may express our personality, our individuality in bodies unlike those we have now, but strangely identified with them, strangely the same." Whatever the precise character of the body that God will give us, we shall preserve our personal identity. "I shall be I, and you will be you," and all this is most evident because Heaven is a city.

Because Heaven is a city, each man with his talent has his particular value. You know many things, but with all your variety of knowledge, you are not perfectly sufficient in yourself. Here is a man who has knowledge of one particular thing, it may seem a very small thing, but there are times in your practical life when that small talent becomes a most important talent, and you cannot get along without him. In the heavenly city that capacity will not only be of value, but men will more perfectly recognize its value. It is true as another has said "that our identity will be preserved in Heaven, not only for ourselves, but for those who depend upon us."

Heaven will be a perfect city. Into that world will enter nothing that defileth ,nor worketh abomination, nor maketh a lie. There will be no sin lurking in some obscure corner that will be winked at. In that city because of its perfect harmony we shall find that every body is our friend and will be interested in us. Our cities are evil in this, that the dominant thought is, not how much I can give to others, but how much I can get from them. Think of a world where we shall have unselfish relations with everybody. In that unselfish relation, and in our endeavor to be helpful to them, we shall find help ourselves. The whole atmosphere of the place will be charged with loving helpfulness, while in this world it is every man for himself.

We do know, in measure, that where our heart goes out in unselfish interest in others, we are blessed ourselves. The blessing that you give others, reacts upon your own life.

Heaven, then, is the place, not simply of redeemed individuals, but of redeemed humanity. The plan of God is not the salvation of men, but the salvation of man. In that world "we are not a barren sum of separate ndividualities, but a vast subtly organized complexity." Heaven is the gathering of all into one harmonious life, and each soul will have his contribution, in making up that great and glorious city.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

William Meyers, an employee of William Lee, was painfully injured Wednesday night at Westfield, by a horse he had been driving stamping on his foot. No bones were broken but Mr. Meyer will be obliged to use crutches for several weeks.

DAINTY BITS.

For the woman who delights in dainty neckwear there is a veritable revel in store. There is a style to suit everyone, from the strictly tailored little affairs to those fluffy, furbelowy creations which look good enough to eat. Maline bows are coming back again. Not the big, flaring affairs, but long trim bow knots tied around the middle with velvet or gold cord—or whatever happens to be becoming to the one who wears the bow. Then there are bead bows. Have you seen them? They are made of beads, pink, blue or variegated, strung on slender wires and made into bows. They may be looped as many times as is desired. They are pinned at the throat with any odd pin a person may chance to have.

There are windows and windows filled with the most fascinating lingerie. It is a noticeable feature of these dainty white garments that but comparatively little lace is used. Embroidery is the rage. On some of the articles the hand work is most exquisite. Night dresses and chemises, many of them, are embroidered in colors, pale blue or pale pink or the most delicate shade of lavender being preferred. Some of the prettiest are embroidered in cream.

Miss Bauer at Hartridge School.

Miss Hartridge announces to day a change in her music department. It will be for this season under the direction of Miss Winifred Bauer who will give lessons on both the piano and the violin. Miss Bauer is a sister of Harold Bauer and is one of Damrosch's corps of instructors at at the Musical Art Institute of New York. She teaches Kneisel's youngest daughter and he recommends her as a very fine violin and piano teacher and also as an excellent musician in every way. Miss Bauer accompanied Kneisel at a concert last winter and she has given in English a number of recitals. Besides her lessons at the Hartridge School, Miss Bauer has an ensemble class in Plainfield.

At Rescue Mission.

At the Plainfield Rescue Mission, W. C. T. U. room, tonight at eight o'clock, Dr. Ulmer of Providence, R. I., will give a temperance lecture. Sunday evening at 8 o'clock W. W. Cary, they converted engineer of Newark, will speak. Good singing will be a feature. All are welcome.

S. C. Ryder, of Brooklyn, for many residents of Plainfield, has been visiting his son, Edward Ryder, of Central avenue, and other Plainfield relatives.

Miss Clara Wersing Surprised.

Miss Clara Wersing, who has been at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, for the past month, was given a surprise party last night at her home on Watchung avenue. There were piano selections by the Misses Emma Wersing, iKtty Laible, and Fussie Armand. Games and dancing were the features. The dance music was arranged by Max Schotts. The grand march was followed by a supper, which was served at midnight.

Anniversary Service.

An anniversary service will be held at Warren chapel, tomorrow, marking the completion of the first year in the new chapel. In the morning, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, the pastor, will preach an appropriate sermon. There will be special music and decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, who are stopping in New York for a time, are registered at the Hotel Wolcott, Thirty-first street and Fifth avenue.

but this was adopted.

Mr. Montgomery wanted to know where the plans for the new house were, and it was learned that Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh had them, having used them in drafting the various resolutions and forms of proposals. Mr. Montgomery thought the plans should be at the meeting, despite the fact that he was assured that there was no chance of a substitution of other plans.

By this time the discussion was growing tiresome, and Councilman Charles C. Randolph arose and declared that the members were quibbling over very small and unimportant details. "We are monkeying like a lot of boys," added Mr. Randolph, "and I suggest that we get down to business."

Just when everybody thought that the whole matter was concluded, a question arose as to the time necessary to advertise for the sale of bonds and for the reception of bids for the work. The ordinance provides that the advertisement shall appear full fourteen days, and to do this it was necessary to have it start today. After impressing upon the acting city clerk, George B. Wean the importance of this, the Councilmen felt as though the matter had been properly and carefully put through.

President Tolles in voting against the improvement, explained that he favored the proposition to lay the matter over until next year. He thought little could be accomplished this winter and the delay would not make much difference.

POLITICAL NOTES.

A Taft and Sherman Club was organized at Flemington Thursday night with more than 300 members. Arthur Foran was chosen president.

May Ward in "The Cash Girl," at New Plainfield Theatre, this afternoon and night.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss May Ward in "The Cash Girl" is the attraction for this afternoon and tonight at the New Plainfield theatre.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" in play form will be a welcome attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, and the popularity of the famous New England novel of the same name assures crowded attendances. It is a play of New England home life, full of all the feelings and sentiments that are natural to such life. The young man from whom the book and the play have their titles is a wealthy young Boston lawyer who goes into the country for his health. He finds a beautiful woman, a blind girl, who wins his love, and their courtship and devotion is very beautiful. The play is full of unique and interesting characters. The scenic equipment is a most elaborate one, all built specially for this production, which competent critics have predicted will easily rival the success of any New England play ever presented.

"The Black Crook," the world's famous musical spectacle is booked to appear at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday, October 22, and is hailed as an old friend by theatregoers. That it is still popular is shown by its continued success and this season it is having one of the most extensive revivals since 1866. Just how old "The Black Crook" is few people dare to say and this season it will appear in an entirely new dress under the general supervision of Fraser and Donazetta. It will be an entirely different revival than has ever before been attempted. Much of the story has been done away with and in its place appear European and English novelties which are of the highest calibre. This change in the play is pleasing. Enough of the theme is left to show and interest those who saw the first edition. The chorus which is made up of pretty girls all handsomely costumed and full of dash and grace captivate the audiences. The songs are new and catchy. It is full of wonderful scenic effects and things move around and disappear as if by magic. The scenery is massive and beautiful. "The Black Crook" of today is built and produced to please both old and young and is a very interesting study for the little ones.

The New Plainfield Theatre Friday evening, October 23, offers a new version of the famous "Salome Dance." La Manolita and her ballet of fourteen girls will appear in the "Dance of Salome" during the performances of the musical comedy, "Too Many Wives." La Manolita is described as a clever dancer, with a pleasing face and a most graceful figure. Her litheness of body and quickness of limb and foot, are the attributes of the pretty stage pictures she presents in her rendition of the dance which is all artistic without a single objectionable feature. Both press and public have united in pronouncing it a finished performance, without a peer among the many dancers who have attempted its presentation.

THE KITCHEN SCRAPBOOK.

Water kept in bottles on the ice, instead of breaking the ice into the water, reduces ice bills.

Growing parsley, sage and other herbs in a kitchen window garden gives better seasoning at less money.

Raise some ocre in your garden. Dried it keeps indefinitely and is the best flavor soup and bouillons can have.

Cheap cuts of meat can be served palatably in stews and croquettes.

Cheese in an excellent substitute for meat, and there in infinite variety in the ways of preparing it.

Serving but two vegetables at dinner is as fashionable as economical.

Buying olive oil by the gallon is one case of economy.

HANDICAPPED.

This Is the Case With Many Plainfield People.

Too many Plainfield citizens are handicapped with a back ache. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Plainfield evidence?

Mrs. Margaret Reville, 732 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For a long time I was troubled with a weak and lame back and was unable to find anything that would give me relief. My back pained me so badly at times that I dreaded to stoop. When I caught cold or overexerted myself, my suffering was doubled. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Randolph's Pharmacy, helped me at once and I continued taking them until cured. I have had no need of a kidney remedy in the past two years, but value Doan's Kidney Pills today as highly as ever."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

A forest fire burned for fifteen hours over a tract of woodland east of Millville Wednesday night and yesterday. It was subdued by backfiring.

The old Rettinger Hotel property at Passaic and Williams streets, Passaic, was sold yesterday to Senator John Hinchliffe. The price paid was $22,000.

Charged with bigamy, Randall Petersosn, of Delmont, was arrested by Officer Breeden, and Mayor Smith, of Millville, held him under $300 bail for a further hearing.

While Edmund P. Shimp, of Lower Creek, was confined to his bed seven of his neighbors husked his eight acres of corn, piled the stalks and hauled the corn to his crib.

While William Aharon, of Paulsboro was driving out to his farm Wednesday night his wagon collided with a cart; he was thrown out and rendered unconscious. He is in a serious condition.

Constable Martin, of Glassboro, served a summons on John P. Day, of Woodbury, yesterday to appear before Justice Paulin, of Glassboro, on October 23. Day is charged with watering milk.

On a charge of felling Charles Bird, colored, with such force as to split his head open, Frank Sands, also colored, was held in $300 bail yesterday by Recorder Stackhouse, of Camden.

The jury in the suit of John Quinn against the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, tried at May's Landing, returned a verdict of $3,000 damages in favor of the plaintiff, late yesterday afternoon.

The Lakeview Presbyterian church, Getty and Knickerbocker avenues, Paterson, was filled to the doors last evening, the occasion being the installation services of the new pastor, Rev. Charles F. N. Voegelin.

A check for $10 bearing the forged signature of T. H. Landon, of the Bordentown Military Institute, was passed upon William Burns, of that city, by a man who had purchased fishing tackle to the amount of $1.60 and got good money in change Wednesday.

At the meeting of the Camden Board of Trade last night the secretary was instructed to send notices to every member urging upon them the importance of getting out a large vote at the general election on the question of the city providing a municipal wharf.

Benjamin Harsfall, West and Beckett street, Camden, was nearly suffocated to death yesterday at the Camden Chemical plant, Eleventh and Linden streets, where he was employed. He inhaled stafling fumes of hydro-sulphite gas and was quickly rendered unconscious.

In the absence of Bishop Scarborough, Rev. John Harbenbrook Townsend, of Atlantic City, will officiate at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Episcopal church of the Redeemer at Longport tomorrow. The new edifice will be a handsome structure of the mission type.

An old-fashioned spelling bee was held by the Elmer Grange Wednesday night, and the way the young folks dropped out of line while the older ones, who had not attended school for a long time, held their places, shows that spelling might be a good thing for the rising generation. Mrs. Anna S. Wentz won the prize.

His parents being unable to control him, Henry Jakablak, sixteen years old, of 308 Atlantic avenue, Camden, was committed in default of $300 bail yesterday by Justice of the Peace Barr, on a charge of being incorrigible. Returning home, intoxicated, on Tuesday, he abused his mother, and started to beat her. His arrest followed.

DIED AS HE ENTERED ROOM.

George T. Carter, Who Lived All Summer in Tent at Westfield, Succumbs to Tuberculosis.

George T. Carter, of Westfield, died suddenly Thursday night as he was entering his room at the home of Archibald Stites. He had engaged the room in the afternoon and was about to occupy it for the first time. Death was due to tuberculosis, from which he had suffered for a number of years. He came to Westfield for his health early last summer and lived in a tent on South avenue. He supported himself by selling automobile supplies.

Through the generosity of friends Carter was to have gone to Denver, Col., for the winter, but he was too feeble to make the long journey. For a week he underwent treatment at the Orange Memorial Hospital, but left that institution and returned to Westfield. The funeral services were held from a local undertaker's establishment yesterday. The interment was at Irvington.

Finds $200 Pearl in Oyster.

Leo Spaulding, a clerk in Drew's fish store, Bloomfield, while opening oysters yesterday, found a pearl as large as a pea. He took it to a jeweller, who told him the jewel when polished would be worth $200. The young man returned to his employer and offered him the pearl. The latter handed it back to Spaulding. Mr. Drew said he believed in rewarding honesty.

Old Bill craned his neck over the shoulder of the sitting man, scanned the book, and, turning to Mortimer, said: "Larcen's nine to one now; dey're cuttin' him—wish I'd took tens; let's go down de line."

They pushed out into the sea again, and were buffeted of the human waves; from time to time Old Bill anchored for a few seconds in the tiny harbor which surrounded each bookmaker; but it was as though they were all in league—the same odds on every list.

"It's same as a 'sociation book," he grunted; "de cut holds in every blasted one of 'em. Here's Jakey Faust," he added, suddenly; "let's try him."

"What price's Larcen?" he asked of the fat bookmaker.

"What race is he in?" questioned the pencilier.

"Dis race; what you givin' me!"

"Don't know the horse."

Mortimer interposed. "The gentleman means Lauzanne," he explained.

Faust glared in the speaker's face. "Why th' 'ell don't he talk English then; I'm no Chinaman, or a mind reader, to guess what he wants. Lauzanne is nine to one; how much d'ye want?"

"Lay me ten?" asked Old Bill of the bookmaker.

"To how much?"

"A hun'red; an' me frien' wants a hun'red on, too."

"I'll do it," declared Faust, impatiently. "Ten hundred to one, Lauzanne!" he called over his shoulder to his clerk, taking the bettor's money; "an' the number is—?"

"Twenty-five, t'ree-four-six!" answered Old Bill. "Pass him yer dust," he continued, turning to his companion.

The latter handed his money to Faust.

"Lauzanne!" advised Old Bill.

"A thousand-to-hundred — Lauzanne, win; an' the number is—" he stretched out his hand, and, turning over Mortimer's dangling badge, read, aloud: "Twenty-five, three-five-seven."

XXXII.

Allis, ready dressed in the Porter colors, had been driven to the course half an hour before the time set for the Derby. Her face was as satisfactorily disguised with dust as though she had ridden three races.

Mike assiduously attended to every detail; even the weighing, thanks to his officious care, was a matter of not more than one minute. The girl's weight was one hundred and ten pounds. The saddle brought it up to one hundred and thirteen. She would have to ride at least two pounds overweight, for the horse's impost was one hundred and eleven. Lauzanne was being led in a circle by a boy, so Allis shielded herself from the general gaze in his empty stall.

At last there was the summons to saddle, and Lauzanne was brought into the stall by Dixon. Then the door was shrouded by an ever-changing semi-circle of curious observers. Allis gave a little start and turned her head away as Crane, pushing through the others, stood just inside the stall and spoke to Dixon.

"Is Miss Porter here?" Crane asked, quite in the tone of a casually interested friend.

"She may be in the stand," Dixon answered, without turning his head, and to the girl's relief, without further comment, Crane quietly moved away.

Dixon had never taken so much care over the preparation of a horse, and at last everything was as perfect as it could possibly be made. Lauzanne's behavior gladdened the girl's heart; he was as supremely indifferent to the saddling, to the staring of the people, as though he were in his own stable at home. Not a muscle of his huge flank trembled. Once, as the bridle rein was loosened for an instant, he half turned in the stall, curved his neck and stretched his golden nozzle toward the small figure in blue silk, as though he fain would make sure by scent that one of his natural enemies, a man jockey, had not been thrust upon him. Allis understood this questioning movement and, reaching out her hand, rubbed the gray velvet of his nose.

"They understand each other," said Dixon to Mike, in an undertone.

Dixon stepped back to the corner where Allis was and said: "I guess I can't give you no orders. He's a bit sluggish at the post, an' a few false breaks won't hurt him none. Just don't be afraid, that's all. A mile an' a half's a long journey, an' you'll have plenty of time to take their measure. He's sure to get away last, but that won't matter; there'll be plenty of openin's to get through after you've gone a mile. Just keep your eye on The Dutchman—he's a stayer from 'way back; an' Westley may kid you that he's beat comin' up the stretch, for he's slick as they make them, an' then come with a rattle at the finish an' nose you out on the post. Don't never let up once you're into the stretch; if you're ten lengths ahead finish as though they was all lapped on your quarter. There's a horse in the race I don't understand; he can no more go a mile an' a half than I could; it's the Indian, an' why they're puttin' up the startin' price beats me, unless"—and he lowered his voice to a whisper—"there's a job to carry Lauzanne, or White Moth, or somethin' off their feet. Just watch the Indian, an' don't let him shut you in on the rail if you can help it. They've put up Redpath, an' that beats me, too, for I think he's straight. But the Indian hasn't a ghost of a chance to win. You'd better take a whip."

"I don't want either whip or spurs," answered the girl. "Lauzanne will do better without them."

"I know that, but take a whip—something else in the race might need it; an' if you have to use it, use it good an' strong. If Langdon lodges an objection I can make him quit."

Over at The Dutchman's stall Langdon was confiding to Jockey Westley: "He'll win on a tight rein. He's the greatest Hanover in the land. There's a dozen races bottled up in that carcass"—and he slapped the big bay lovingly on the rump—"but if you're put to it, Bill, you can call on him fer the full dozen to-day. There's nothin' to it but yourself and White Moth."

Carelessly he stepped to the back of the stall, touching Westley as he passed. Kicking the loose dirt with his toes, and bending his head to bury his voice, Langdon continued in a subdued tone: "The Indian'll cut out the pace so fast that it'll choke off Lauzanne. The chestnut's a plugger an' ain't no good when it comes to gallopin'. The pace'll kill him—it'll break his heart; the fast goin'll lay out White Moth, too, for she'll go to the front an' die away after a mile an' a quarter. Just nurse the bay, an' let the others fight the Indian. But don't loaf an' let Lauzanne get near you, for he can keep up a puddlin' gait all day. There ain't nothin' else in the race I'm afraid of."

"I'll put up a good ride on The Dutchman, an' I think we'll ketch the judges' eye," replied Westley.

"The boss says you're to have two thousand for winnin', Westley, so don't make no mistake. I wasn't goin' to tell you this afore you went out, fer fear it'd make you too eager; but you've a good head and might as well know what you're to have. There's the bugle; get up."

Eager hands stripped the blanket that had been thrown over The Dutchman; Westley was lifted into the saddle, and the gallant bay was led out by Langdon.

In front strode White Moth; one by one the others, and last, seventh, Allis' fatal number, lagged Lauzanne.

As the horses passed to the course Crane, who had followed The Dutchman to the gate, raised his eyes from scanning Lauzanne to the rider on his back. The face riveted his attention; something in the line of the cheek recalled a face he had constantly in view.

"For an instant I thought that was Alan Porter on Lauzanne," he said to Langdon, who was at his elbow.

As Allis passed the judges' stand in the parade she cast a quick, furtive look toward the people on the lawn. She seemed pilloried on an eminence; would anyone detect her at the last moment? Hanging over the rail in the very front she saw a pale face that struck a chill of fear to her heart—it was Mortimer's. She had not even thought of his being there. She had eluded the close scrutiny of all the others; but there, within ten yards, were eyes almost certain to penetrate her disguise. The girl turned her face away; she knew Mortimer well enough to think that if he did recognize her he would make no sign.

As they jogged toward the starting post Allis allowed Lauzanne to lag; she wished to avoid Redpath. But the Indian was a horse of uncertain temperament, and presently, with a foolish side rush, he cannoned fair into Lauzanne. In the melee Redpath looked full into Allis' eyes. His face went white in an instant.

"You!" he cried, pulling hard at his horse's mouth; "it's you, miss—" He stopped suddenly. "God! I'm glad I know this," he jerked between set teeth as he fought the Indian, who was nearly pulling him out of the saddle.

"It's because he'll gallop for you, isn't it? You didn't think I was a wrong one—it wasn't because you couldn't trust me you took the mount away, was it?"

The Indian, quieted by the sleepy chestnut, was going steadier.

"No; it's because Lauzanne won't give his running for anyone but me," the girl answered.

The boy remained silent, thinking over why he was on the Indian; the new light of his discovery had revealed it. His feelings had been played upon by the owner of the Indian, at Langdon's instigation.

He had been told that the Porters had not given him the mount on Lauzanne because they distrusted him. He had been put on the horse to make running for The Dutchman.

Presently the boy spoke with sharp decision, in quick broken sentences, for they were nearing the starter. "I'm in to make the running; this crock's got no license to win. Don't you bother about him—he'll come back to the others fast enough when he's done. When you want an opening to get through just come bang into me—I'll be next the rail; yell 'Lauzanne,' an' I'll pull out. I'll give them blasted crooks something to stare at. Don't gallop your mount's head off chasing this sprinter; he'll be beat when we swing into the stretch. Don't go wide at the turn; you can have my place; I'll make it wide for something else, though."

They were at the post.

XXXIII.

Crane's words had started a train of thought in Langdon's mind. All at once he remembered that the face of Lauzanne's rider had a dream-like familiarity. His owner's suggestion that the boy was like Alan Porter echoed in his ears. He had wondered where Dixon had got this new boy, why he was putting him up on Lauzanne instead of Redpath. Could it be that it really was Alan? The whole family were natural-born jockeys, father and son, even the girl, Allis.

While Langdon labored over the problem of Mayne's identity he watched the horses at the post through his glasses. The Dutchman was behaving well, his trifle of eagerness to break away was even better than Lauzanne's indolent indifference. The other five were acting as three-year-olds are wont to act—with erratic indecision; one minute violent desire, and the next obstinate reluctance characterizing their interminable twistings, backings and plungings. It was not for long. Langdon's perplexity was cut short by the cry: "They're off!" the jingle of a bell and the scurrying of many feet, as eager men rushed for higher points of observation in the stand.

As the seven horses came thundering by, pulling double in eager ignorance of the long journey that lay before them, Langdon saw with evil satisfaction that the Indian was well out in the lead.

The Dutchman was sixth, and behind, with a short awkward strength in his gallop loafed Lauzanne.

"That skate win!" Langdon sneered; "he gallops like a fat pig. He can't live the pace—he can't live the pace," he repeated.

His observations were not strictly truthful; Allis' horse trailed farther and farther behind. Out in front galloped with unseeming haste the Indian, a brown blotch of swift-gliding color. Two lengths from his glinting heels raced four horses in a bunch—two bays, a gray and a black; so close together that they formed a small mosaic of mottled hue against the drab-gray background of the course stables beyond. Then The Dutchman, with his powerful stride, full of easy motion.

Up in the stand Old Bill was expressing in florid race-track speech to Mortimer his deductions.

"Dat's a good kid on Larcen. See what he's doin'; he's trailin' 'em. Dat's where our horse gits it; he's a stretch runner, he is. Dey'll have bellows to mend when he tackles 'em."

To Mortimer it appeared very much as though the other horses were too fast for Lauzanne. "Isn't he losing?" he asked of his exuberant friend.

"Losin' nut'in'! De kid ain't moved on him yet. De others is gallopin' der heads off; dey're chasin' de crazy skate in front. Dere's only two jocks in de race worth a damn—Bill Westley an' de kid on our horse. He knows he's got to beat Dutchy, an' he's lyin' handy by. When you see Dutchy move up Larcen'll come away, or I'm a goat."

Mike Gaynor had taken his place on the little platform at the top of the steps leading to the stand. He was watching the race with intense interest. Would Lauzanne do his best for the girl—or would he sulk? He saw the terrific pace that the Indian had set. Would it discourage their horse? His judgment told him that this fast pace could not last, and that Lauzanne could gallop as he was going from end to end of the mile and a half; even faster if he so wished. Would his rider have the patient steadiness of nerve to wait for this fulfillment of the inevitable? Mike set his teeth, and his nails were driven hard into his rough palms as he strained in sympathy with the girl's quietude.

How long the Indian held on in his mad lead! Perhaps even he might upset all clever calculation and last long enough to win. Already the gray, White Moth, had drawn out from the bunch and was second; the other three were dropping back in straggling order to The Dutchman, who was still running as he had been, strong. That was at the mile. At the mile and an eighth White Moth was at the Indian's heels; The Dutchman had moved up into third place, two lengths away; and Lauzanne had become merged in the three that were already beaten. At the mile and a quarter a half thrill of hope came to Mike, for Lauzanne was clear of the ruck, and surely gaining on the leaders. And still his rider was lying low on the withers, just a blue blur on the dark gold of the chestnut.

"Bot' t'umbs! but they're a pair," muttered the Irishman; "be me soul, I t'ink they'll win."

At the bottom turn into the stretch Mike could see that White Moth and The Dutchman had closed up on the Indian, so that they swung around the corner as one horse.

"Gad, she's shut off!" he muttered. It was a living wall, and through little chinks in its quivering face he could see specks of blue close up where raced Lauzanne.

"Poor gurl!" he gasped, "they got her in a pocket. Damn them b'ys. Why did she hug the rail—she's fair t'rowed away the last chance."

Halfway up the steps stood Langdon and his coarse, evil face took on a look of unholy joy as Lauzanne was blotted into oblivion by the horses in front.

"Pocketed, by God! Clever Mr. Dixon to put up a kid like that ag'in Westley an' the others," he sneered.

Then a deafening roar went up from the stand. Somebody thrust a pair of broad shoulders in front of Mike's face; he leaned out far past the intruder, and saw the Indian sway drunkenly in his stride away from the rail, carrying White Moth and The Dutchman out; and into the opening he had left, glued to the rail, crept the chestnut form of Lauzanne.

A wild yell of Irish joy escaped Mike; then he waited. Now it would be a race; but Lauzanne was trying, trying all by himself, for the rider was as still as death. Already the clamor of many voices was splitting the air; all over the stand it was: "The favorite wins! The Dutchman wins!" Even yet there was no beckoning call for Lauzanne; but Mike knew. He had said to Allis before she went out: "If ye ever get level wit' 'em in the straight ye can win."

And now Lauzanne's yellow head was even with the others; and soon it was in front. And then there were only two battling—Lauzanne and The Dutchman; and on the bay Westley was riding with whip and spur.

"In a walk—in a walk, I tell you!" fairly screamed Old Bill, clutching at Mortimer's arm; "didn't I tell you? We're a t'ousand to de good. Look at him, look at him!" He had climbed halfway up Mortimer's strong back in his excitement. "Look at de kid! Never moved—in a walk, in a walk! Larcen all the way for a million!"

It was past all doubt. Lauzanne, a length in front of The Dutchman, was opposite the stand; in two seconds they had flashed by the judges' box, and Lauzanne had won.

The wave of humanity that swept down the steps carried Mike in its front wash. He took his stand close to the judge's box; there he would be handy for whatever might be needed. He saw Langdon with a face dark and lowering, full of an evil discontent, standing there, too. Back the seven runners cantered. Lauzanne's rider saluted the judge with whip and, slipping from the horse, stripped him of the saddle with deft fingers and passed quickly into the scales. The weight was right. One after another the boys weighed.

Watching, Mike saw Langdon pass up to the stewards. There was a short consultation, the hush of something wrong, and a murmur of an objection.

"What's the matter?" a voice questioned in Mike's ear. It was Alan Porter that had spoken.

Mike pushed his way to the small gate, even through it, that led up to the stewards' stand. As he did so Langdon came back down the steps. One of the stewards, following him with quick eyes, saw Mike and beckoned with a finger.

"There's an objection to the rider of Lauzanne," said the official; "Trainer Langdon says Alan Porter rode the horse under a permit belonging to a boy named Mayne."

"He's mistook, sir," answered Mike, respectfully; "there's Alan Porter standin' down there in the crowd. I'll send him up, sir, an' ye can ask him yerself."

Gaynor passed hurriedly down the steps, seized Porter by the arm and whispered in his ear: "Tell the judge yer name—that a b'y named Mayne rode Lauzanne. Quick, now."

Then he stepped up to Langdon. The latter had seen Alan Porter go up the steps, and realized he had made a mistake. Mike drew him inside the little inclosure that surrounded the stand.

"There's Alan Porter wit' the stewards," Gaynor whispered close to the man's face; "an' ye'll withdraw the objection at once. If ye don't ye'll have to settle wit' the stewards fer trvin' to bribe the b'y Mayne to pull Lauzanne. And Shandy has owned up that he was to get five hundred dollars for dosin' Lucretia. Ye'll withdraw now, or get ruled off fer life; besides, plisin' a horse is jail business; an' I'll take me oath before God I can prove this, too. Now go an' withdraw quick. Ye're a damn blackguard."

A crowd of silent men had gathered about the box in a breathless wait. Fortunes depended upon the brief consultation that was being held between the stewards.

As Alan Porter came down Langdon went up the steps with nervous haste. "I've made a mistake, gentlemen," he said to the stewards. "With your permission I'll withdraw the objection."

"Yes, it's better that way," returned one of the stewards. "The best horse won, and that's what racing's for."

ELIZABETH OPENS WAR ON EXPRESS COMPANIES.

Board of Trade Charges Corporations with Fixing Exhorbitant Rates and Collusion with Railroads.

Contending that the United States and Adams Express companies charge exhorbitant rates in Elizabeth city and by collusion with the Pennsylvania and Jersey Central railroads have a monopoly on all the business between Elizabeth and New York, the Elizabeth Board of Trade opened a campaign to remedy alleged existing evils at a meeting last night. The entire matter is now before the State Board of Railroad Commissioners and a hearing will be given by them at the Union county court house Friday, October 23.

The public was invited to attend last night's meeting of the Board of Trade. Prominent members of the Board, including City Attorney James C. Connolly, H. H. Isham, Edward H. Hersh and C. H. K. Halsey, spoke. The Board brought its charges against the express companies about a year ago, when a special committee was appointed to investigate. A report, in which alleged discrimination is charged was prepared and sent to the State Railroad Commissioners.

A NEW SALAD.

For a formal meal where a touch of bright color is liked a salad that is as good as it is artistic looking can be made of red peppers and cabbage.

Cut the pepper lengthwise, remove every seed and fill with finely chopped cabbage which has been allowed to stand for half an hour in a highly seasoned French dressing.

More of the dressing can then be poured over the pepper which is stood on a lettuce leaf, or a spoonful of mayonnaise can be put on top of each half.

Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, delivered a lecture Thursday night in the M. E. church.

Superintendent H. C. Kreps, of the Borough Public Schools, will speak in the Reformed church, Rocky Hill, tomorrow night on the subject, "The Duties of Parents to Children."

HIGHEST AWARDS FOR PLAINFIELD SCHOOLS AT ALL RECENT NATIONAL EXPOSITIONS

Gold Medal Awarded at St. Louis Exposition.

The Board of Education has just received another beautiful testimonial of the high standard of the city schools in the form of a medal awarded for the school work exhibited at the Jamestown Exposition. The board was notified at the close of the exposition that an award had been given for the Plainfield exhibit, but the medal has only just been received. The award is a silver medal and is the highest award given any public school, the gold medals being given to the exhibits of an entire State.

The medal is a beautiful piece of work, made by Tiffany. It will be framed with the diploma and hung in the corridor of the High School, with those received from previous expositions. The school is forming a notable collection of rewards and as they are displayed, they make a splendid testimonial of the high rank of our schools and the excellent work they are doing.

The Plainfield work has received an award of the highest rank at each exposition where it has been exhibited, the first one dating as far back as New Orleans in 1885. At Chicago, the school work was awarded a medal "for systematic teaching in all grades, fitting students in Greek and Latin to enter college and also preparing them to enter business at the earliest possible age."

At St. Louis, the Plainfield exhibit received two gold medals, one for the elementary schools and another for the high school, there being only two other high schools in New Jersey, beside the Plainfield High School, that received a gold medal.

Principal Travell said today:

"In preparing material for these expositions, the plan has been followed of making the work show as clearly and faithfully as possible the actual work of the schools. Specially selected papers, prepared by a few gifted pupils, criticised by teachers, and then rewritten by the pupils, are misleading rather than illuminating in revealing the character and the result of class room instruction. Such methods of exhibition are employed by many schools, but generally in the Plainfield schools, and in every case in the High School, where the work of a class was presented, papers from every member of the class were included, and these papers were written without criticism or correction by the teachers.

"The award of these various medals therefore expresses the most favorable judgment of educational experts upon the real instruction and work of our Plainfield schools."

Silver Medal Awarded at Jamestown.

GOVERNOR VISITS ESSEX COUNTY FAIR.

It was a great day at the Essex County Fair in Olympic Park, just outside of Newark, Thursday, chiefly on account of the presence of Governor Fort and several members of his staff. There were present all Republican and Democratic candidates for office in Newark and Essex county, including Senator Colby, William Fellowes Morgan, William Harrigan and many of the Assembly nominees; Mayor Jacob Haussling, Judge Thomas S. Henry and Frank J. Bock, the three Mayoralty candidates, and a score or more of city, county and State officials; the Mayors and other officials of every city and town in Essex county. Representative R. Wayne Parker, William H. Wiley, Edward Egnichtel, president of the Newark Fire Board; Dr. H. C. H. Herold, John Howe, Leslie R. Fort and George Forman were also in attendance.

There was no speechmaking after the arrival of the Governor and the official party, who made the trip from Newark in a dozen automobiles. The afternoon was spent in sightseeing and in political chat, every candidate declaring that he could see not the slightest thing to indicate anything but his election.

It was estimated that there were twenty thousand visitors at the fair during the day.

Plainfielders Attend Celebration

About twenty Plainfielders were among the guests at the fifteenth wedding anniversary celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Saums, at their home, 20 Cliff street, Somerville, last night. The affair was a delightful one and the evening was spent in a social manner, during which there were piano selections by Miss Ida Saums, daughter of the celebrating couple. There were about forty guests in all and the couple was the recipient of a large number of gifts. During the social hour, supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Saums have many friends in this city, where they are well known and where they frequently visit.

David R. Weaver, manager and bookkeeper for Woolston & Buckle, is confined to his home on Manning avenue, with an affection of the leg which prevents him from being at business.

Travelers to Meet.

The members sof Plainfield Council, United Commercial Travelers, will hold a regular meeting tonight, when several new members will be received.

PENNSYLVANIA'S VIEWING SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT.

A party of twenty leading business men of Jenkintown, Pa., headed by the mayor and city engineer, came to Plainfield at noon today for the purpose of inspecting the local sewage disposal beds. They were met at the depot by Mayor Charles J. Fisk and Engineer Andrew J. Gavett, who escorted the visitors to the Kensington for lunch. They left by special trolley at 1:30 to view the workings of the plant, the authorities of Jenkintown having the establishment of a similar system under consideration.

The party included George Hamel, Jr., W. N. Goodwin, Hugh O'Neill, A. H. Baker, A. J. Horan, J. B. Loughlin, Jr., J. W. Ruddeck and C. E. Schwartz. Before starting on the return journey, Mayor Fisk has planned to take them on a trip about the city.

COULTER TO SPEAK ON BIG BROTHERS' MOVEMENT.

Ernest K. Coulter of New York, founder of the "Big Brothers' Movement," will be the speaker at the men's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Coulter has a message that every man in Plainfield who is interested in the solution of pressing social problems should hear. No movement of the times furnishes a better illustration of applied Christianity than the great one set on foot by him on behalf of city boys who need the protection and friendly counsel that men standing in the relation of "big brothers" to them can provide.

Mr. Coulter's topic will be "A Day in the Children's Court." The musical program for the meeting will be furnished by Masters Alfred and Ray Manley.

Will Preach Morning and Evening.

Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, who will preach at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow morning, will also occupy the pulpit at the First M. E. church, tomorrow night, preaching for Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea.

EASILY WON BY THE BUICK

The BUICK No. 10 won the Nassau Sweepstakes at the Motor Parkway, for cars selling at $1,000 or under, in 2 hours, 6 minutes, 52 seconds, outstripping the following cars—Mitchell, Gryoscope, Cameron, Cadillac and Reo.

The little Buick's average of 45 miles an hour for the four laps of the Vanderbilt Cup Course is better than the average of 60 per cent. of all cars competing in all classes of Saturday's Sweepstakes.

The consistent, steady running of the speedy little Buick was a pronounced feature of Saturday's race. Its time for the different laps was:

First Lap	30:55	Second Lap	36:15*
Third Lap	30:13	Fourth Lap	30:29

*Stopped five minutes at Grand Stand to change tires

PASTORS CONDEMN SUNDAY GOLF PLAN

Strong Protests Sounded from Leading Pulpits Against Country Club's Proposed Innovation.

DESECRATION OF THE SABBATH.

Appropos the movement on the part of certain members of the Plainfield Country Club to secure an amendment to the constitution permitting the opening of the clubhouse and golf grounds on Sunday after 1 o'clock, several pastors of the city churches took occasion yesterday to speak strongly against the proposition. There is a feeling among members of the club, however, that the amendment will pass at the meeting to be held tomorrow night as a result of a change in sentiment on the part of a number of who have heretofore opposed the Sunday opening.

Dr. Zelie's Views.

The Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent avenue church, spoke in part as follows:

"Many of us would be glad if there were enough for us to go on record once and for all about this proposed action, but it is not enough. I wish to say then that although each time the matter is up it seems to be a new matter, it is really the same that it has been before.

"Each time that it has been reopened it has been widely reported that it was inevitable that the club should now be opened on Sunday—and each time it has turned out that it was not inevitable, but avoidable. The report that it is inevitable is worth just what it was before. We shall not know what is inevitable until each member has voted on this matter according to his own convictions.

"The question is presented to us this year in a somewhat different shape. Since the appeal is signed by a number who have before steadily opposed this action. I give full credit to the motive of those who have signed it and for the fact that the appeal is not based on their desire to use the club on that day for themselves. But having said that much I say that I think the action is as undesirable as before.

"Another club has been organized with other usages and with Sunday privileges. This club has been formed without opposition or attack or interference from any, but to change the usage of the Country Club to conform even partly to the new club is a mistake. It will mean that instead of no Sunday clubs as heretofore, we now have two.

"This action, then, it seems to me, really asks more of the club than has been asked at either of the other times when the question has been submitted.

"Those who use this club are those who already have most of the leisure and privilege. No clamor is being raised by the great number of workers in our city whose liberty is far less and whose need of diversion is far greater. The whole difficult subject of Sunday sports has not been thrust upon the community by them, and the restraint shown by this club in the years past in foregoing the use of it on Sunday has had its effect in favor of the better use and observance of this day throughout the city. The repeated settling of this problem as it has been settled has probably relieved us of other problems more difficult and serious.

"It is time that more energy and more enthuiasm were devoted to the magnifying of this day for its highest uses and its spiritual purpose. Men are more jaded and tired for want of worship and spiritual life and faithfulness to their highest obligations than they are for all their toil. As with so many other institutions which have been strained to the utmost it may expect a backwave of new regard and support for the Lord's Day. It is a misfortune for us to throw away what has been secured through long and successful effort."

Rev. Dr. Chambliss' Remarks.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, prefaced his sermon yesterday morning with a few remarks, "On a subject," he said, "which must be of interest to all who love the Lord's Day wish to see it preserved in something like the sacredness which is its rightful claim.

"The question of opening the

DINE Y.M.C.A. CHAMPIONS

Pennant, Trophy and Gold Medals for Winning Team of State League.

CONGRATULATORY SPEECHES.

President Gavett Compliments the Nine—George L. Listman Acts as Toastmaster.

An appropriate and delightful terminaion to a successful season on the diamond, when the State Association League pennant was won; also the handsome Spalding trophy, was the dinner given to the Y. M. C. A. baseball team at the association building, Saturday night. The affair arranged by the physical department was replete with pleasantries, including a number of short speeches and the presentation of gold medals to each member of the team.

One fact was especially emphasized and that was that the association appreciates the achievements of its baseball team and it is the wish of all that the aggregation may be kept intact another season. Physical director George L. Listman, who was toastmaster for the evening caused no little interest among the players, when he announced that it is still the fond hope that the association may in the near future have an ideal athletic field, enclosed, with a fine cinder running track, baseball diamond, clubhouse and dressing rooms with shower baths, etc., where the boys may have every opportunity to develop their athletic tendencies.

All the members of the team were present excepting "Dave" Pond and "Jimmie" Scott, both of whom were detained. After a fine course dinner prepared and served by members of the Women's Auxiliary, was thoroughly enjoyed, the rest of the evening was devoted to speech-making. Those who served the dinner were Mrs. H. E. Parker, Mrs. Charles Van Winkle and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, and the appreciation of the guests was expressed in the speeches which followed.

As president of the association, Joseph W. Gavett was first called upon and in a few words expressed his pleasure and appreciation for the fine record made by the team this year. He said that it was a noteworthy fact that the boys had played good clean ball and their sacrifice in giving up time for practice and the games was not to be overlooked. He hoped that the same team would represent the association next year.

George M. C. Smith, as chairman of the entertainment committee, read several letters from officers of the association extending their best wishes, and entertained the company with good stories. Ralph Schoonmaker, captain of the team this year made a few remarks by the way of criticizing the weak points as he saw them. He referred to the poor base running, one great fault and he said that when it is realized that the team made an average of eight runs to a game and 9½ hits, as against five runs and eight hits for the opposing teams, it can plainly be seen that there was a lack of good base running. There was an average of seven stolen bases per game and the batting average for the team of twelve men was .285. Mr. Schoonmaker spoke of the excellent treatment accorded the team by the association and outside teams not forgetting to thank Mr. Listman and Mr. Parker for their help.

Mr. Listman said that there were two things he wanted to accomplish this year—win the pennant and defeat Clinton Avenue with "Jimmie" Scott in the box. The last named thing he had failed to do. He then on behalf of the baseball committee of the State Y. M. C. A., of which he was chairman, presented to the team the Spalding trophy, a handsome silver loving cup, suitably inscribed. It occupied a prominent place in the centre of the table and was filled with various colored chrysanthemums. Secretary H. E. Parker accepted the trophy in the name of the team taking ocasion to make a short address in which he thanked the players for their fine work. He believed that the trophy represented more than victory, it was a symbol of faithfulness. He commended the fact that the team was an amateur one and that no professional spirit had been in evidence. He too expressed the hope that another year would find the same team playing for the association.

Brief remarks were then made by the members of the team, the representatives of The Daily Press and Courier-News, Umpire Gus. Feiring, after which Dr. Norman H. Probasco presented each player with a gold medal. The medals bear the Y. M. C. A. emblem on the face and the name of the player with a suitable inscription on the back. They are Great Ovations Mark G. O. P. Presidential Nominee's Tour of the State.

UNION COUNTY GREETS HIM.

He Speaks to Great Crowd at Elizabeth After Having Talked in Newark—Goes on to Trenton.

William H. Taft, the Republican candidate for President, was given a great ovation upon his arrival at Elizabeth this morning. He was greeted by thousands of Republicans from the county seat and all parts of the county, and when he arrived at the Lyceum Theatre, where he spoke, an audience that packed the theatre from pit to dome was there to extend a welcome such as has seldom been witnessed in Elizabeth.

The Presidential candidate talked for about an half-hour, discussing briefly and to the point the labor question and its relation to injunctions. He outlined some of the cases which have been held up against him, and that he was not there to make any apologies for his record in this respect.

Mr. Taft declared that there are now two great influences at work in this country—capital and labor, and both should be kept safely within the bounds of the law. He advocated the appointment of judges who would adminster law and justice without fear or favor and thus only would all parties concerned be treated right.

Long before the arrival of Mr. Taft in Elizabeth at 11 o'clock, Lyceum Theatre was crowded with people anxious to hear the Presidential candidate. County Chairman Frank H. Smith called the meeting to order, and at once proposed the name of Governor J. Franklin Fort as the permanent chairman. The suggestion quickly adopted, the Governor made a brief speech in which he spoke of Bryan and his methods in this campaign.

Col. William Henry Farless, of Virginia, presented a number of reasons why Taft and Sherman should receive the united support of the party and every good citizen.

Before speaking at Elizabeth, Mr. Taft addressed a large gathering in Newark. This afternoon he speaks at Rahway and Trenton.

DEATH ENDS ILLNESS LASTING FOURTEEN YEARS.

Miss Isabelle VanWinkle, daughter of the late Jeremiah VanWinkle, died this morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. George B. Cratsley, of Elmwood place. She was thirty-nine years old and had been ill for the past fourteen years with a pulmonary complaint. Her affliction was borne with unusual fortitude and complete resignation.

Miss VanWinkle had lived in Plainfield all her life. She was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church and before her illness began was active in its work. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Charles, Jeremiah, Frank, Nelson and Daniel VanWinkle, Mrs George B. Cratsley and Mrs. Ellis H Emery, all of Plainfield. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

J. L. Terry and family, of Lafayette place, have returned from a visit in Jersey City and New York.

JURYMAN'S ACTION BASIS FOR NEW TRIAL

Charging that the jury in the case of Christoopher S. Meyers against the Public Service Corporation, recently tried in the district court, and which returned a verdict of no cause of action, was guilty of certain irregularities after retiring to consider the evidence, Robert Newton Crane and W. S. Angleman, of counsel for the complainant, now seek a new trial.

It is alleged that after the jury retired one of their number left the room to make inquiries concerning the relationship of Albert G. Meyers, son of Henry Meyer, of Scotch Plains, who was one of the witnesses for the company. When this was established, it is further alleged that the jury threw out all of the other testimony and considered that given by Meyer. The matter is to be ventilater Thursday morning at the weekly session of the district court.

ADMINISTRATOR LOSES IN BOAT ACCIDENT SUIT

A jury in the Union county court, Friday, returned a verdict of no cause for action in the suit brought by Counselor William G. DeMeza as administrator of Laura Peterson and William H. Gray, colored, against the Boynton heirs, of Boynton Beach. The Peterson girl and Gray, both of whom lived in this city, were drowned in a boating accident off the pleasure resort and J. A. Kiernan, who tried the suit for Mrs. De Meza, alleged negligence on the part of the beach proprietors in not providing a proper craft.

It was stated by Mr. Kiernan that on August 2, 1908, on which day there was a special attraction for colored people, two young women and two young men hired a row boat to go rowing on the sound. Seeing that there was some water in the boat they asked if it was safe and were assured that it was. The young people went out on the sound and were about half way across when the boat suddenly began to fill and in a few minutes went down. Three of the young people were drowned. One of the young women, a Miss Stevenson, was saved by a launch which was near the scene of the accident, but it was impossible to save any of the others.

Miss Stevenson was the only witness produced by the plaintiff while the defense put fifteen people on the stand who swore that the accident was due to the young men rocking the boat.

Petit Jurymen.

The following Plainfielders were drawn for the October panel for petit jury at the Union county court today: J. P. Houston, F. J. Harris, Charles A. King, George W. Cole, T. H. Radford, Charles Yaeger, Robert Murray, C. W. Opdyke, Ben LaVere and Charles P. Shrieve.

SEVENTY DELEGATES MEET.

Cornelius Ford Introduces Resolution, Which Is Passed Unanimously—18 Unions Represented.

Assembled in quarterly convention at Company K armory, yesterday afternoon, seventy-five delegates, representing eighteen local unions of the New Jersey State Printers' League went on record as endorsing the action of the American Federation of Labor in upholding the national Democratic candidates because of the party's attitude toward organized labor. A resolution to this effect introduced by Cornelius Ford, of Hoboken, was adopted with great enthusiasm and voices the sentiment of the unions in all parts of the State. The resolution is as follows:

"Whereas, The American Federation of Labor, to which the International Typographical Union is affiliated, has through its executive council inaugurated a campaign against a political party and its various nominees for president, vice-president and members of Congress; and

"Whereas, This campaign has been inaugurated to achieve success in the matter of stopping the abuse of the indiscriminate issuance of injunctions in labor disputes and the relieving of labor organizations, by legislation, from the recent decisions of the United State Supreme Court declaring labor organizations trusts, illegal combinations in restraint of trade and trusts; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the New Jersey State Printers' League of the International Typographical Union in regular session assembled at Plainfield, N. J., on Sunday, October 18, 1898, endorse the action of President Samuel Gompers and the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor in their policy of electing our friends and defeating our enemies."

The convention was called to order by Vice-President Niles and the reports from delegates showed that harmonious relations exist between employers and employees throughout the district. Cornelius Ford, representing Hoboken Typographical Union, No. 323, was elected president of the League to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Frank L. Kresage, of Trenton. A special committee, consisting of one member from each union, was appointed to take up the matrix question. At the close of the business session, the delegates were entertained at supper by the Plainfield printers. It was served by Timbo.

Among the visitors at the convention were James Tole and Secretary Maxwell, of "Big 6" union, and a delegation from New York headed by John Tolan and organizers John E. McLaughlin and Henry Klein; President Garabrandt, of Newark Allied Printing Trades Council; George T. Bartels, president of the Orange Trades Council; President Smallwood, of Newark Typographical Union, No. 103, and several others.

BISHOP AND PRIESTS OFFICIATE AT DEDICATION OF $300,000 CATHOLIC INSTITUTION OF LEARNING

Rt. Rev. Dr. J. A. McFaul and Clergy of Trenton Diocese Conduct Elaborate Ceremony in Presence of a Great Crowd.

PRELATE PLEADS FOR STATE AID FOR CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

College of Mt. St. Mary.

The new convent and college of Mount Saint Mary, erected by the Diocese of Trenton on the crest of the Watchung mountains two miles from Plainfield at a cost of $300,000, was formally dedicated yesterday afternoon. A simple ceremony conducted by the Right Reverend James A. McFaul, D. D. LL. D., Bishop of Trenton, marked the event but exercises taking place concurrently attracted a gathering of 10,000 people to the campus before the building. Fully 2,000 men paraded from North Plainfield to the college preceding the commencement of the program and their reception formed the only part of the proceedings witnessed by the generad public.

The dedication proper was arranged for 3:30 but it was after 4 o'clock before Bishop McFaul and his party of assisting clergy filed into the convent chapel for the ceremony. He was accompanied by Rev. Father William H. Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, who had general charge of the exercises, and the following dignitaries in the diocese: Monsignors Fox, of Trenton; Brady, of South Amboy; Connelly, of Phillipsburg; O'Connell, of Perth Amboy, and O'Grady, of New Brunswick, and the Very Reverened Dean Mulligan, of Camden. The pastors of all the parishes within a radius of thirty miles, the Sisters of Mercy of the diocese, the students at the school and invited guests, including Plainfield and North Plainfield officials, were in attendance.

The bishop first conducted prayers before the altar and then proceeded through the various rooms of the building, consecrating each one. Returning to the chapel, he delivered a discourse on the significance of the occasion and concluded by conferring the Blessed Sacrament on the College of Mount Saint Mary. This was the extent of the dedication but while it was taking place, the gathering on the campus was being addressed by Dr. Norris, of Spring Lake, chancellor of the diocese.

In his remarks at the chapel Bishop McFaul expressed himself as being highly pleased with the erection of the college and declared it to be a great step forward in the diocese, not only in education but in religion as well. The day marked the fourteenth anniversary of his appointment as bishop, he said, and in view of this fact it seemed that a brief history of Catholicism in America and the growth of the Diocese of Trenton would not be amiss

The speaker stated that the first representative of the Catholic church to be appointed to this country was Bishop John Carroll, who was sent over in 1789. He was an intimate friend of George Washington and cousin to Charles Carroll, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence. Previous to this time, the Vicar Apostolic delegate was Bishop Chalner. With the exception of a Spanish parish in Florida, all the Catholics in the country were included in the diocese of Baltimore, numbering seventeen priests and 20,000 people. In 1808, the number had so greatly increased that the territory was divided and the dioceses of Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Bardstown, now Louisville, were formed. The west half of New Jersey was included in Philadelphia and the east in New York but in 1853 they were put together in the diocese of Newark. Rev. James Roosevelt Bailey, of New York, a relative of President Roosevelt, was the first bishop. He was afterward elevated to the archbishopric of Baltimore but returned to Newark to die. In 1881, there were so many members of the faith in the State that it was divided into two dioceses, those of Newark and Trenton.

The Trenton diocese, the bishop said, embraced 6,000 square miles of territory in what are known as the fourteen southern counties. Rev. Father O'Farrell was the first bishop and when he assumed charge there were sixty priests and 60,000 people. Since then there has been an increase at the rate of 125 per cent. and there are now 175 priests and 135,000 people. From a numerical standpoint, the growth in proportion has been twenty per cent. greater than in either the diocese of New York or Newark. Bishop O'Farrell was succeeded by the present incumbent.

"The schools of this diocese," the bishop continued, "are now educating 11,000 children at a cost of $300,000, this amount being saved the State. In view of this fact, it seems to me that we ought to have a pro rata share of the taxes; that is, some portion of the large sum that we contribute toward the education of other children. Payment for religious education is a curse, as the records of France, Italy and the Philippines will show, but I advocate the examination of our pupils in the ordinary high school branches and where it is shown that they meet all requirements it seems no more than proper that we should receive a share of the State funds for carrying on the work.

"The cry has always gone forth that we combine the church and school and I maintain that they should not be divorced. You can't make a Christian without teaching him Christianity and we claim that a man must always live in a Christian atmosphere. That atmosphere is created in the home, the church and the school. Where the State has control of the church it is a disgrace but with the parish taking care of both the church and the scool the proper result is attained."

In conclusion, the bishop thanked all the members of St. Joseph's parish who had contributed to the building of the college, mentioning especially David T. Kenney, who donated the site, and expressed the hope that it will prove to be one of the most highly gifted institutions of learning for young women in the State.

Following the exercises in the chapel, Bishop McFaul and the assisting clergymen adjourned to the college campus, where the paraders and other laymen were being addressed by Dr. Norris. A temporary altar had been erected beneath the trees and it was used later for the benediction of the sacrament. In this ceremony, Mgr. Brady acted as deacon; Dean Mulligan, sub-deacon; Dr. Griffin, master of ceremonies, and Rev. Father Powers, assistant master of ceremonies.

In addressing the gathering, Dr. Norris took occasion to congratulate the various societies of the nearby parishes for the great interest displayed in the dedication and expressed his belief that it boded success for the college and its work. He then launched into a discourse on the value of education, in which he pointed out that a young woman fully equipped with religious and secular learning was certain to make her way in the world. He challenged the statement frequently made that the Catholic institutions are inferior to non-sectarian schools or lacking in curriculum and declared them to be equal to any in the country. Education, he said, is the greatest industry in the world and the Catholic church is doing all in its power to further the tuition of the young in practical knowledge but at the same time is not neglecting their moral welfare.

The exercises closed with an informal reception to Bishop McFaul in the convent chapel. Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, who has contributed liberally to the building fund, was an interested spectator throughout, as was also Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield and Francis L. Montgomery and Frank DeWitt Randolph, of the Plainfield Common Council.

The Township Committee and the Public Service Corporation are having another argument. Sometime ago the corporation raised the price in the street lamps several dollars a year on each light, the committee had to accept the corporation terms and pay the increase. THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly allow a workingman to say a few words from a workingman's standpoint in regard to the issues of the present plitical campaign, as effecting the interests of those of us who earn their bread by the "sweat of their brow."

Mr. Bryan says that the hope of the workingman lies solely in the success of the Democratic party at the coming election. Now there are those who think otherwise and I confess I am one of them. The good book contains this question; "Can a leopard change his spots, or the Ethiopian his skin?" and for many years I thought the proper answer was "no." But when I consider Mr. Bryan's career, I—well, I beg leave to revise my opinion or to "lay it on the table," for it cannot be denied that as a political contortionist Mr. Bryan is the greatest success of the ages.

He is solemnly silent bout "Militarism," "Imperialism," "sixteen to one issues," and several other exploded isms at the present time, but is going to wage a relentless war on "the robber tariff" that is robbing us of many of the necessaries of life and taxing us beyond all reason for what we do use." Now, somehow or other many of us workingmen have had an idea for a long time past that the United States has been supplying several other nations with the necessaries of life, and as an English American I am free to say that what my adopted country cannot supply me with, I can go without. I am not sitting up nights crying for "tariff ridden foreign products," and any man who does should be willing to pay for it and keep quiet about it. Of course, in the onslaught on the tariff the ancient, hoary-headed "percentage trick" will be taken out of cold storage again and made to do duty for the twentieth time to prove that we are being robbed of house and home, and of everything worth living for without knowing it.

Only this very day I read a letter in a New York paper from a Bryanite from North Carolina, saying that he should vote for Bryan because he (Bryan) was going to smash the robber tariff; and then he delivers the following: "The poor man must pay 60 per cent tariff, and 41 cents a pound for his coat, trousers, shirt and hat and twenty-five percent on his shoes (all American make of course). No wleaving out his soles—that would be about 100 per cent "tax," just consider how we are "robbed." Isn't it amazing? Why sir, the turth come in ones mind. can't help it—that if this unbearable burden of a hundred per cent tariff on our clothes was only removed, we'd get them for nothing. It is as clear as mud, even to the wayfaring man—though a Democrat. In every presidential campaign since 1860 the Democrats have considered it their bounden duty to advocate the abolition of the tariff in the interest of the workingmen (of Europe). They have "thrashed it over and over again—forked it up, tossed it up, and threw it up and then gave it up.

The Republican party has had practical possession of the government from 1860 to the present time except from '92 t 96, when Mr. Bryan, then a member of Congress, had a chance to do something for the workingman, but what did he do? He advocated and voted for the Wilson-Gorman fizzle, and we workingmen know the result and will remember is as long as we live. Of course, the "taxes" were reduced. Our gold reserve, ditto, seventy millions out of a possible 100 gone. Two years more of that kind of legislation and we would have been on a silver basis. Now sir, if Mr. Bryan can show that by any vote of act of his he has ever benefitted the honest workingmen of the United States, I will vote for him. He tells us that "free trade means cheap goods," but in the first place cheap foreign goods dumped upon American shores means no American money to buy them. What is the use in offering a man a brick house for a hundred dollars if he hasn't money enough to buy a door plate? But does free trade mean cheap foreign goods? I answer most emphatically no. For example English prints and sheetings were never sold in American stores up to 1860 for less than twelve and one half cents a yard, and all ther foreign goods in the same proportion. American cotton, under the "good old Democratic days," was carried to England in British ships and made into manufactured goods and reshipped to America, to stock up American stores, and I am old enough to know what I am talking about; the prices of cotton goods never came down until the Republican party placed a duty on the foreign articles, and it wasn't long before you could buy American cotton goods, made of American material, by American labor, in American mills at one-third of what was formerly paid for British goods. French nail manufacturers "soaked" us to the tune of ten cents a pound when there was no tariff on them, but a "robber tariff" was put on them with the result that today there isn't a French nail imported into our country, while the American-French nails came down in price one-fourth of the genuine French article. Not a bit of French calf skin is now imported here, but it is exported from here to other countries even to France. As to shoes there isn't a pair of shoes brought here from any other country except on the feet of travellers; indeed, in the matter of fott wear, America beats the world in price and quality. Therefore, I claim that in fighting for free trade is simply fanning the wind.

Need anything be said about "the old landmarks" of National, commercial and personal honesty and morality as they existed a half a century ago. Well I happened to know a little about that myself. When a boy twelve years of age, I was working in a Pennsylvania coal mineunder the administration of President Pierce, and through the administration of President Buchanan, of precious (?) memory. We had a system of the wildest kind of wildcat currency; you had money and you didn't have it. You got paid today and if the bank "busted" tomorrow you were over the fence and out; and no redress whatever. A bank officer in jail was a thing unheard of in those days. As for our national credit, in the '50s, we had none. We had a national debt of 100 millions, and an attempt of James Buchanan's administration in '59 to raise twenty millions of dollars, was a dismal failure and U. S. six per cent bonds went begging at 86 cents on the dollar. But then we had no "robber tariff" to torment us and make us miserable. Well, our wildcat money remained with us until it was taxed to death by the Republican party.

The workingmen of those days had hard lines, and so did their wives. A new calico dress, 9 yards at 12½ cents a yard was something to be proud of, and a woman who secured a new rag-carpet for her front parlor would be the talk of the neighborhood. And now I must speak of another phase of the times, the good old times.

To be a Democrat up to about 1862 was either to be a slave holder or one who "in season and out of season," advocated slavery; and ministers of the Gospel right here in the northern States have been chased from their pulpits for speaking against human slavery. My father was often soundly abused for uttering abolition sentiments. I have seen old fathers and mothers in Israel take down the Bible to prove that human slavery was a divine institution. But what a change has taken place. Where is there a man who would dare to get up before a public audience today and advocate human slavery? You couldn't find him outside of a lunatic asylum. Indeed "the world does move." I would like to speak of the workingmen in their relation to the present business depression, but through their union organizations they have taken the matter in their own hands, and those who have work command the highest wages for less work than they ever had in their lives. They speak for themselves, indeed they are doing very well, thank you, and I firmly believe that a very large majority of them will upon thoughtful consideration vote for Taft and Sherman and the whole ticket at the coming election.

Plainfield, N. J., October 19, 1908.

Welcome, Mount St. Mary's College! May that grand institution of learning ere long become one of the first seats of education in New Jersey!

Robert L. Hall deserves the thanks of his Second ward constituents for his successful efforts in the cause of better fire protection in that section of the city.

From many local pulpits yesterday was raised a decided protest against the proposition that Sunday golf be introduced at the Plainfield Country Club. The significance of the remonstrances are unmistakeable and those who uttered them fully expressed the views of Christian people of this community. Sunday golf is not half as defensible as Sunday baseball and the introduction of the one would be followed by the other. The membership of the Country Club is made up of men who have ample opportunity and means to enjoy their favorite game six days in the week without desecrating the Lord's day. As we have done in times past when this subject has been broached, we reflect the sentiment of the people of Plainfield and particularly of the ministerial guardians of public morals, in urging that all who respect the sacredness of the Sabbath use their voice and vote in defeating this proposition.

FIRST PASTOR CHOSEN FOR LOCAL SYNAGOGUE

At the regular monthly meeting of the congregation of the Children of Israel, held in the Hebrew temple yesterday afternoon, Rev. Morris Rotman was called to act as the presiding and permanent minister of the congregation. This is the first time in the history of the Jewish faith since the formation of the first congregation in 1890 in the city of Plainfield, that a permanent minister has been selected, the services heretofore having been conducted by ministers engaged for the special services of the various festivals and holidays, with the aid and assistance of some local itinerant minister.

Rev. M. Rotman is a minister of marked ability and his brother-in-law, Rev. P. E. Turman, is the minister of the largest Hebrew congregation in Trenton.

A special meeting of the communicants of the congregation has been called for 8 o'clock this evening, for the installation of the new minister in due and proper form.

Local Police Handled Crowd.

The large crowd at the dedication of Mount Saint Mary's college, yesterday, was ably handled by a detail of Plainfield police in charge of Roundsman Higgins. The officers volunteered their services and proved of great assistance to the committee of arrangements. The men at the exercises were Patrolmen Tobias Nolan, Frank Sweeney, Arthur McGinley, William Messler, Cornelius McCarthy, Thomas Flatley and Dennis O'Keefe.

CONDEMN SUNDAY GOLF

country club for golf on Sunday," said Dr. Chambliss, "is again brought up and will be decided at a meeting of the club tomorrow night. The call for the meeting is signed by some gentlemen who voted against the Sunday opening when the matter was up before, and there is great confidence of success this time on the part of those who wish for the change.

"It may be remembered that the pastors on behalf of most of the Christian people of the city made the strongest plea they could against this movement when it was attempted two years ago, and now as then they feel that they must not be silent. They do not profess any peculiar goodness—do not look upon the excellent men whom they oppose as sinners above all men than dwell on the earth. But they do believe that those who favor this Sunday opening have not duly considered all that is involved for the moral welfare of this community.

"Already we have drifted far out of the safe channel. Are we to go on until the Christian Sabbath is utterly lost? Is it worth nothing to keep this day, one in seven, for peaceful rest and spiritual upbuilding? The Watchung Hunt Club has been formed. Already it has a hundred and eighty members, we are told. It is open on Sunday, and it enjoys a club license granted by the Middlesex County Court, permitting the serving of liquors. Some members are threatening to withdraw and join the hunt club if they cannot have the Sunday privileges which they want in their own club.

"For this reason it is urged the country club must make the change demanded. We can only hope and pray that the change will not be made; that our friends who favor it—many of them among the best people—will choose rather the blessedness of self-denial for the sake of the community's moral welfare—for the sake of the Lord Jesus, whom they do not want to forget and dishonor."

Rev. Mr. McCrea's Words.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, spoke as follows:

"In reference to the published call for a meeting of the members of the Plainfield Country Club to vote on a proposed change in the constitution, which change, if made, will open the golf links on Sunday, I desire to say I regret exceedingly that this matter has been brought forward again so soon after having been twice voted down. The country club won great honors for the good name of our city when it refused to open its golf links on Sunday and the moral influence of its action was widely felt. Plainfield was quoted by both the religious and secular press as having taken an exemplary stand and many were the expressions of approval by good people all through the Metropolitan district.

"We sincerely trust that no backward step will now be taken by which our fair fame will be tarnished and good name compromised. If those who urging Sunday golf really desire to advance the best interests of the city they will withdraw their call. Should they be unwilling to do this let us hope the vote against them will be so overwhelming as to settle the question forever."

Rev. Dr. Herring's Address.

"In briefly discussing the question, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, expressed the belief that the passing of the proposed amendment would simply be an entering wedge for other forms of Sabbath desecration. Personally he did not believe that there would be any great harm in a man playing a quiet game of golf on Sunday, no more than in taking a walk, if that was all, but the wide influence and the possibility of other forms of sport being played on Sunday, he opposed vigorously, as well as anything that would tend to the desecration of the Sabbath.

Thomas Brantingham Hurt.

After winning one race with Bay Prince at the matinee meeting held at the Red Lion track, New Brunswick, Saturday, Thomas Brantingham met with an accident ni another event. While driving a New Brunswick horse the shafts of the sulky broke and he was thrown backward on the track. The horse, breaking away from the sulky, started to run, but was caught before going very far. Mr. Brantingham escaped with a few bruises and cuts. The race will be finished tomorrow.

Rev. Mr. Schock at Trinity.

Rev. James T. Schock, of Prospect avenue, the borough, occupied the pulpit in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning and evening, and delivered excellent sermons at both services. In the morning Mr. Schock's text was taken from St. Luke's gospel, the eleventh chapter and the thirteenth verse. His analysis of the text was interesting and instructive. At the evening service Mr. Schock preached about the man with two talents, taking his text from Matt. 25-17.

DEDICATE ST. MARY COLLEGE

The parade preceding the exercises formed on Watchung avenue, extending from Front street to St. Joseph's church, on Manning avenue. When Bishop McFaul arrived from Trenton, he at once entered Richard McCullough's automobile and viewed the marchers, the men forming in two lines on either side of the street. They afterward assembled four abreast and with Father Miller, Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, and Father Dietrich, of Bound Brook, at their head, they proceeded to the convent. The Plainfield Italian Society, accompanied by a brass band from Newark, had first position in line, and the following organizations marched in the order named: Holy Name societies, of Dunellen, Stony Hill, Bound Brook and Raritan; Division No. 4, A. O. H., of Plainfield, accompanied by Independent Fife and Drum Corps; the St. Mary's T. A. B. society, Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus; St. Mary's Holy Name society and St. Joseph's Holy Name society.

The parade was in charge of Robert McCormack as grand marshal, and the following members of St. Joseph's parish acted as aides: William McCullough, John McCullough James Daley, Thomas Meaney, Cormack McDonough, Patrick McDonough and Edward Duchesne.

MEMBERS OF THE PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB WHO DESIRE TO

can do so by attending the meeting on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Hartridge School, and voting against the amendments offered

The last time this question came up before the club, a full discussion was prevented by the advocates of the amendment moving the previous question. This same proposal has already twice been voted down.

The club should not be dependent upon Sunday patronage for its existence. Since the organization of the Watchung Hunt Club (which is now open for Sunday recreation), there is even less reason than formerly for opening our own club for that purpose. 10 19 2

MAY HAVE TO ENLARGE SCHOOL BUILDING SOON

The Board of Education held a special meeting Saturday night for the purpose of considering the question of more seating room for the pupils. The enrollment this year is the largest in the history of the school. Every room is taxed to its capacity according to the State law, and several of the rooms are in excess of the number of pupils allowed by the law, which compels Boards of Education to furnish a certain number of cubic feet of air for each pupil. The State Superintendent called the local board's attention to the infraction of the law and the board will be obliged to take immediate action. At this time the board is not in position to build an addition to the school building so are talking of the advisability of renting some suitable place in town for the present to overcome the trouble for the time being. Several places are being considered but none of them are really suitable for school quarters even temporarily.

The problem has placed the board where it will be obliged to ask the taxpayers for additional room to the present building. This will mean new teachers, but the taxpayers should not object to this it is argued, for the reason that the best advertisement for a town is good schools.

At the communion service in Marconnier chapel, yesterday morning, two persons were received into membership—Samuel W. Johnson, a young man, member of the Sunday-school, on confession, and Mrs. Fred Mellick, by letter.

Elder F. E. Smith and Deacon M. F. Gano, of Trinity Reformed church, assisted Rev. J. T. Lansdale at the communion service in Marconnier chapel, yesterday morning.

"THE CITY BEAUTIFUL" PLEASES PENNSYLVANIANS

The delegation of officials and citizens who came to this city from Jenkintown, Pa., Saturday, for the purpose of inspecting the local sewage disposal plant, returned home greatly pleased with their visit. They were made the guests of Mayor Fisk, City Engineer Gavett and Councilmen Tolles and Gloak during the afternoon and were given every attention in deriving the information they sought.

The trip to the disposal beds was made in a special trolley car donated for the occasion by the Public Service Corporation. Jenkintown is about to build a sewer system and the journey to Plainfield was made for the purpose of getting points on disposal. Engineer Gavett explained the workings of the local plant and gave the officials facts and figures on operation that greatly assisted them in their quest. After looking over the Rock avenue beds and septic tanks, the delegation was taken to the Randolph road pumping station and from there on a sight-seeing trip over the Netherwood trolley line. The men were greatly enthused over the "City Beautiful" and were unstinted in their praises. They returned home at 4:30.

The party included the following: Mayor W. L. Clayton, Councilmen George Hamel, Jr., Anthony Horan, Frank S. Gentry, Charles E. Schwartz H. D. Clayton and J. S. Tyson; Board of Health members A. H. THE POWER OF LABOR

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB PLANS TWO FUNCTIONS

As a fitting finish to the meet of the Watchung Hunt on Saturday night, October 24, a hunt supper will be served at the clubhouse at seven o'clock. From present indications the affair will be attended by a large number of members and their families. Tea will be served during the afternoon and the supper menu prepared by the house committee, is one that will appeal strongly to the hungry huntsmen and the members.

The hunt supper is the first of a large number of functions which have been arranged by the new entertainment committee for the fall and winter season, and will be followed by a "bridge luncheon" for the women and their guests on Wednesday, October 28. Luncheon will be at 1 o'clock, and the committee will provide the necessary bridge equipment for as many tables as may be required. Parties of various numbers may arrange to be seated together by notifying the steward early. The men's grill room will be thrown open to the women for this occasion, and their comfort and convenience will be further considered by furnishing on notice to the steward, the club carriages to meet those coming by the Fourth street trolley to West Eighth street and Monroe avenue.

The entertainment committee comprises W. L. Righter, Benjamin Wood and J. Hartley Mellick.

AIDS TO BEAUTY OF THE HAIR.

In visible nets solve the problem of mussed hair for many. Naturally they must match perfectly. And then they must not be too tightly adjusted. It is this tightness that has influenced many against them, and convinced others that a net and a graceful coiffure cannot exist on the same head.

While these nets will not perform wonders, they will preserve waves much longer than these evidences of the iron would otherwise last .These waves, by the way, may be made to last longer by applying preparations that hold the hair in curl; quince seed or gum arabic are the two preferred stickly ingredients. Of either of tehse only a small quantiy should be used at a time, because as the liquids dry they take on a powdery appearance that is very noticeable.

A harmless and effectual bandoline os mide from three ounces of gum arabic dissolved in half a pint of warm rosewater. This will take several hours. Afterward it is strained and a drop of a solution of aniline red is added to give a tint.

To use it, put on the hair before waving with irons or on curlers.

Persons who prefer a quince preparation should use this formula, consisting of a tablespoonful of the seeds put into a pint of soft water and gently simmered until it is reduced to three gills. After straining and cooling, two tablespoonfuls of cologne and two of alcohol should be added.

This is applied in the same way as bandoline.

Many women would find that if they gave their hair sufficient moisture it would wave or show a tendency to curl. This is not the case, however, with tresses that are naturally oily, whose heaviness can only be taken from straightness by the application of heat or other drying means. But for hair of light, fluffy texture teh water treatment has great possibilities. Some times merely dampening it with water will be sufficient. This is done while dressing the hair. The hair near the head is then lightly gone over with a wet brush, and effort should be made to lay it in waves.

Better than water and very efficacious for holding loose ends in place, are glycerine and water in the proportion of a teaspoonful of the forer to half a pint of the latter. This makes a dressing that is not greasy, but "holds" better than clear water.—Philadelphia Record.

Scene in "Quincy Adams Sawyer," at New Plainfield Theatre, tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The village gossips wondered who he was, what he was, what he came for, and how long he intended to stay. They were anxious to find out all this about a young lawyer from Boston named Quincy Adams Sawyer who had come to live at a small Massachusetts village for a year or so. A very successful book, which has its famous title from this young man's name, was written around Mr. Sawyer's doings in the country and around the village gossips who "wondered" all these things about him, and now the book in play form is to be elaborately produced at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. A strong company of well known players appear in the production. It has proven "the best New England play ever written" during the successful run at the Academy of Music in New York city.

That the uncanny has strong attractions for the theatre-going public is evidenced in the continued popularity of "The Black Crook," the famous spectacle which is this year being revived under the management of Fraser and Donazetta and which is to be seen at the New Plainfield next Thursday night. It is filled to repletion with demons, evil spirits, incantations, a villainous necromancer, mysterious effects and sundry weird animals but on the other hand it also has its good fairies, a charming heroine, a brave young lover, and above all its dazzling costumed singing and dancing chorus. With these to commend it, there is little wonder that "The Black Crook" has withstood the test of time as no other similar American production has done and to have been again presented forty years after its first production. It is promised that the present management have done all in their power to make their "Black Crook" the equal of its predecessors and with this end in view have provided new scenery, new costumes and new music, in fact, have so modernized the spectacle that it will be scarcely recognizable. In addition to an adequate dramatic cast there is a large chorus of stunning girls, and as an added feature several high class European features have been provided.

It is a rare musical show nowadays that has no Salome dance, but few can outdo that incorporated in the musical comedy "Too Many Wives," to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday evening. With excellent scenic effects, La Manolita gives a fascinating performance of the dance. There is nothing repulsive in the actions of this little dancer; in fact, they are distinctly agreeable. The work of her ballet of fourteen girls gives evidence of careful training.

XXXIV.

After his first burst of aboriginal glee Old Bill's joy over the victory of Lauzanne took on a milder form of expression.

"Let's line up fer a cash-in," he exclaimed to Mortimer, making a break down the steps to the lawn. On the ground he stopped, his mind working at fever beat.

"Let's wait till de kid's passed de scales; dere's no hurry. Dere won't be many drawin' money over Larcen; he's an outsider."

They were still waiting when the rumor of an objection floated like an impalpable shadow of evil through the inclosure.

"What does it mean?" asked Mortimer; "what's wrong?"

"De push's tryin' to steal de race; de favorite's beat, an' it's win, tie or wrangle wit' 'em. If they take de race away from Larcen we don't get de goods, see? Our t'ou's up de spout. Dere he goes, dere he goes; look at de knocker," as Langdon came down from the stewards.

Mortimer's heart sank. It wasn't the money alone that teetered in the balance, but the honor of Allis Porter's brother.

He gave a sharp cry of astonishment, for going up the steps in front of them was the boy himself, Alan. Presently he came down again, his face looking drawn and perplexed. In his ignorance of everything pertaining to racing Mortimer feared for an instant the theft of the thousand dollars had been discovered, and the present inquiry had something to do with that.

As the boy came through the little gate Mortimer accosted him. "Hello, Alan," he exclaimed, very gently, "what's the trouble?"

"Just a silly mistake," answered Porter, a weak laugh following his words; "Langdon has claimed that I rode Lauzanne."

"Is dat it?" interposed Old Bill; "an' did you tell dem dey was wrong—de stiffs! Dere's Cutt'roat Langdon up again; here he comes back, looking as t'ough he'd been fired fer splint—de crook! Hello! it's all right. Hoo-ray! Lauzanne gits de race!" For already the cry of "All right!" was ringing through the betting ring. "Come on, pard," called Old Bill, eagerly, to Mortimer; "let's go on an' rake down de dough."

"In a minute," the other answered; and turning to Alan Proter, took him by the arm. "I suppose you lost over The Dutchman," he said.

"Yes, I'm broke," answered the boy.

"Well, I've won."

"You betting!" exclaimed Alan, in astonishment.

"Yes—strange, isn't it? But I'm going to put that money of your father's back."

The boy said nothing, and Mortimer fancied that his face flushed guiltily.

"Yes, I can put it back now that Lauzanne's won," continued Mortimer; "but don't say a word to a soul about it, I don't want anybody to know I was betting."

"But what money?" began Alan.

"I've won a thousand dollars on Lauzanne—"

"Come on, pard," said Old Bill, impatiently interrupting them. "Let's get our rake off, an' den you kin buck to yer chum after."

Mortimer yielded to the tattered one's command, for without his guidance he never would be able to find the man that held the money.

"I'll be back in a little while," he said to young Porter; "don't go away."

There was delay over the cashing in; when Mortimer returned to the lawn with eleven hundred dollars in his pocket Alan Porter had gone. He had dreaded that perhaps the boy might do something desperate, fearing discovery of the theft; he had thought even of taking Alan back to Brookfield with him; however, he had told him that the money would be replaced, the boy would understand that nothing could happen him and would go back, Mortimer felt sure. He spent a short time searching for Alan, but his former fruitless quest had shown him the hopelessness of trying to find a person in that immense throng.

All at once it occurred to him that some reward was due the instigator of his success. The thousand he must keep intact. He had a few loose dollars in his pocket beyond his original hundred, quite sufficient to take him back to Brookfield. Taking the hundred from his pocket and turning to Old Bill, who was still with him, he said: "I'm going home; I've had enough horse racing for one day; you've done me a great kindness—will you take this hundred—I need the thousand badly, so can't spare more than this."

"Not on yer life, pard. I give you de tip first, but you got de office straight from Irish, an' we're quits, see? I wasn't playin' you fer a sucker, an' yer straight goods."

"But—"

"Dere ain't no buts in dis game—it's a straight deal, an' we've split even. If you'd been a crook, well, God knows how we'd a-panned out. But you ain't no geezer of dat sort—yer square, an' Old Bill wishes you good luck till de robins nest again. Yer goin', eh? Say, pard, I'd a-been wearin' diamon's if I could quit when I was 'head of de game. Yer dead onto it. There's my hand, Mr. Morton."

"Mortimer—George Mortimer."

"Well, shake, George. Where do you hang out?"

"Brookfield."

"My address is New York. Dat's as close a fit as I knows at present. If de run o' luck keeps up p'raps I'll write you from de Waldorf. Good-by, ol' man."

With a light heart Mortimer hastened from Gravesend, not waiting for the other races, and took his way to Brookfield. A genuine admiration of buffeted Old Bill filled his mind.

XXXV.

That night Allis wired the joyful tidings to her father, and that she would be home in the morning.

Dr. Rathbone's prophecy as to the proper medication for John Porter stood a chance of being fulfilled in one day. Allis' telegram proved that the doctor had understood the pathology of Porter's treatment, for he became as a cripple who had touched the garment of a magic healer.

It was thus that Allis found him when she reached Ringwood. Oh, but she was glad; and small wonder. The girl found tears of thankfulness glistening in her eyes as she listened to the praise that was wholly hers, though given in part to the jockey. They had not even heard his name—it had not mattered before; and now when her father asked for it, she answered that Mike called him Al something. Her father, generous in his salvation, was most solicitous as to a fitting present; a thousand dollars, or perhaps two, or even more, if Dixon advised so. What had he promised the lad? But there were so many things to talk over and settle, and laugh about, and congratulate each other upon. Good fortune was a generous dame. They were all like children in their happiness.

In the midst of it all Dr. Rathbone came in, and of course, man-like and doctor-like, with pretended pomposity, said: "I told you so. What did I say? Now Mrs. Porter, no more scolding over the ways of horses—a good horse is a delight, and a good daughter a joy forever."

Dear old Dr. Rathbone, wise in his generation and big of heart!

XXXVI.

At the bank down in the village at nine o'clock Mortimer, feeling the virtue of early effort, with the money of redemption in his pocket, entered into the resumption of his duties.

To Mortimer's slight astonishment, presently the cashier, Mr. Lane, came out from his office, and speaking somewhat carelessly, said: "Mr. Mortimer, you have that Porter note and money in charge. It is due to-day, isn't it?"

Looking up, Mortimer saw Lane's eye fixed upon his face with piercing intensity. He flushed out of sheer nervousness.

"Yes, sir," he stammered, "it is. I'll attend to it at once."

"Ah!" there was a peculiar drawl in the cashier's voice as he spoke; "ah, I had a communication from Mr. Porter yesterday, asking if the note had been paid."

Mortimer felt his knees shake—something was choking him.

"I couldn't understand it," went on the cashier. "I thought Porter knew the money was here to meet the note, but my attention being called to the matter, I looked up the papers. I found one thousand dollars missing!" He was looking steadily at Mortimer. There was accusation, denunciation, abhorrence in the cashier's gaze.

Mortimer did not speak. He was trying to think. His brain worked in erratic futility; not a sane, relevant word rose to his lips. In an indistinct way he felt the dishonor that was Alan Porter's being given to him.

The cashier waited for Mortimer to say something; then he spoke again with reproach in his voice.

"I at once sent a messenger to ask you to return from your home to clear up this matter; he discovered that you had not been there; that your mother was not ill. May I ask where you were yesterday?"

"I was at Gravesend, sir—at the races," answered Mortimer, defiantly.

This speech broke the lethargy that was over him; his mind cleared—he commenced to think sanely.

"Can you tell me," proceeded Lane, "where the balance of Mr. Porter's three thousand dollars is?"

"It's in the box."

"That's a—it is not."

"It's in the box," repeated Mortimer, firmly.

"We can soon settle that point," declared the cashier, going hurriedly into the vault and reappearing instantly with the box in his hand.

He opened it and stared at the package of bills that rose up when freed from the pressure of the lid. With nervous fingers he counted the contents.

"The three thousand dollars is here, but these bills have been put in the box this morning; they were not there last night. It is not the money that was taken away, either. That was one bill, a thousand-dollar note; and here are"—he counted them again—"six one hundreds and eight fifties, besides the original two of one thousand. You put those notes back, Mr. Mortimer," he said, tapping the desk with two fingers of the right hand.

"I did."

"And you took the money yesterday or the day before?"

"I did not."

"Ah!" Lane repeated in a drier, more severe tone than he had used before. "Ah, if you did not steal the money, who did? And if you did not take it, why did you put it back?"

"I can't answer these questions," answered the man he was grilling. "The money to pay Mr. Porter's note is here; and I fancy that is all the bank needs to concern itself about. It was intrusted to me, and now I am prepared to turn it over."

"Quite true; ah, yes, quite true; but it might have been vastly different. That is the point that most concerns the bank. Whoever took the money"—and he bowed, "must have needed a thousand dollars for—well, some speculative purposes, perhaps. Good fortune has enabled some one to make good, and the money has been replaced."

The cashier straightened up, threw his head back and actually smiled. As the other did not speak, Lane added: "I will wire for Mr. Crane to come at once.

Mortimer bowed his head in acquiescence.

"You might remain at your desk," the cashier said; "if there is any mistake we'll discover it, no doubt."

Alan Porter was late—he had not come yet. Mortimer waited in suffering suspense for his appearance. What would come of it all? Now that the money was replaced, if the boy admitted his guilt to Crane, probably no further action would be taken, but he would be dishonored in the sight of his employer. Mortimer had sought to avert this; had not denounced Alan in the first instance; by good fortune had been able to replace the money; even now had refused to divulge the name of the thief. He was well aware of the mass of circumstantial evidence, the outcome of his own hurried actions, that pointed to himself as the guilty one. Better this than that he should denounce the boy. Dishonor to the lad might kill his father; for Mortimer was well aware of the doctor's edict. And Allis, the girl he loved as his life, would hang her head in shame for evermore. He was anxious to see Alan before the cashier did; he did not want the boy to deny taking the money at first, as he might do if he were unaware of the circumstances.

Just before twelve Alan Porter came hurriedly in. Mortimer stepped up to him almost at once, speaking with low, earnest rapidity.

"I put the money back, but its loss had been discovered yesterday. I have been accused of taking it, but have denied it, accusing no one. I want you to say that you borrowed it, thinking it no great harm, as it was your father's money."

Alan would have interrupted him, but Mortimer said: "Wait till I finish;" and then continued: "There will be nothing done to you, I feel sure, if you will take this stand, because of your father's connection with Crane. It will save me from dishonor—"

"Mr. Porter."

It was the cashier's voice of Damascus steel cutting in on Mortimer's low, pleading tones.

Alan turned his head, and Mr. Lane, beckoning, said: "Will you step into my office for a minute?"

The cashier's one minute drew its weary length into thirty; and when Alan Porter came out again, Mortimer saw the boy sought to avoid him. Had he denied taking the money? The full horror of Mortimer's hopeless position flashed upon him like a lurid light of a destroying forest fire. He could read in every line of the boy's face an accusation of himself.

Mentally his argument, his analysis of the proper course to pursue was tortuous, not definable, or to be explained in concise phraseology; but the one thought that rose paramount over all others was, that he must take his iniquitous punishment like a man. He had fought so strongly to shield the brother of the girl he loved that the cause in al its degradation had accrued to him.

At one o'clock the president, Crane, arrived from New York, and in him was bitterness, because of his yesterday's defeat. Lauzanne, the despised, had kept from his hand a small fortune, when his fingers seemed tightening on the coin, too. That was one happening. John Porter had gained over twenty thousand dollars. This made him quite independent of Crane's financial bolstering. The banker's diplomacy of love had been weakened. That was the other happening.

Crane was closeted with the cashier not more than ten minutes when Mortimer was asked to join the two men.

The cashier's hand had been strengthened by Crane's evidence. Mortimer had told the same falsehood about his mother being ill to him at the race course. From Alan the cashier had learned that Mortimer had been betting heavily; he had admitted to the boy that he had won enough to replace the thousand dollars he had stolen. Mortimer's words had been contorted into that reading in their journey through two personalities. He had even begged young Porter not to speak of his betting transactions. He had denied taking the money—that was but natural; he had been forced to admit replacing it—that was conclusive. Indeed it seemed a waste of time to investigate further; it was utterly impossible to doubt his guilt.

"Let us question him," said Crane, and in his heart was not sorrow, nor hate, nor compassion, nor anything but just joy. Greater than the influence of money in his love ambition would be this degradation, this reducing to a felon a man he felt stood between him and Allis Porter.

The probing of the already condemned man elicited nothing beyond a repeated denial of theft. With the precision of Ma'selle Guillotine, Cashier Lane lopped off everything that could possibly stand in Mortimer's defense, grafting into the cleaved places individual facts which confirmed his guilt. Mortimer contended nothing, threw suspicion upon no one. Was it Alan Porter? Was it Cass—but that was impossible. Was it the cashier himself? Still more impossible. Mortimer answered nothing. He had not taken the money. Yes, he had replaced it—because he was responsible for its custody.

"Can't you see," cried Crane, impatiently, "that this simple denial of yours is of no value as against so much that points to your—" he hesitated—"your implication?"

XXXVII.

While Mortimer was still in the cashier's improvised inquisition room, Allis Porter came into the bank to arrange the payment of her father's note.

The sunshine seemed to come with her into the counting house that was all gloom. Her brother's face, gloomy behind the iron screen, tickled her fancy. "You're like a caged bear, Alan," she cried. "I should hate to be shut up a day like this—no wonder you're cross, brother."

"I'm busy," he answered, curtly. "I'll see you after bank hours, Sis. I want to see you."

"I've come to pay father's note, busy-man-of-importance," she flung back.

"It's paid, Allis."

"Paid! I thought—"

"What I'll come out;" and opening a door in the rail, he passed around to the girl.

"Father's note is paid," he resumed, "but there's fierce trouble over it. Crane left the money, three thousand dollars, with Mortimer, and he stole"—the boy's voice lowered to a hoarse whisper—"a thousand of it to bet at Gravesend."

"That's not true, Alan; God knows it's not true. Mortimer wouldn't steal."

"Yes, he did," persisted the brother, "and he begged of me to take the blame. He said it would ruin him, but that Crane wouldn't do anything to me. He's a vile, sneaking thief, Allis!"

"Hush, Alan; don't say that. It's all some dreadful mistake. The money will be found somewhere."

"It has been found; Mortimer put it back. Why should he replace the money if he had not stolen it?"

"Where is Mr. Mortimer, Alan?"

The boy pointed with his thumb to the door of the cashier's office. "Crane's in there, too. I hope Mortimer owns up. He can't do anything else."

CLINTON AVENUE WINS THE FINAL CONTEST

The Clinton Avenues closed the baseball season at Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, when they met the team at that place, and as expected defeated Manager Newhouse's aggregation by the decisive score of 9 to 5. The Bound Brook fans went wild with joy when its team had the Plainfield boys 4 to 0 at the end of the third inning and they had visions of giving their opponents a good drubbing. They failed, however, to count on the stick work of the Plainfielders, and how they did connect with Phil. Smith's assortment of curves and twists, touching him up for thirteen hits, including two two-base hits and a three-bagger.

The feature of the game was the batting of Emery at third. He just simply couldn't help it. He got a two-bagger, a three-bagger and a single, and they were all long hard drives. O'Loughlin also got three hits, Seery two and the rest of the players with the exception of Boezley got a single a piece. The infield work of Jack Martin was remarkable and in his five assists he gave an exhibition as to how that position should be played.

The Clinton Avenues showed up weak in only one respect—poor base running. Ten of their number were left on bases. This was excusable in view of the way they were hitting the ball. Randolph held his opponents safe. They only tallied one run after the third inning, and he fanned twelve batsmen in his usual good style. There was no doubt but that Bound Brook found herself in another class, and unable to cope with the fast team from Plainfield. The score:

can do so by attending the meeting on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Hartridge School and voting against the amendments offered.

The last time this question came up before the club, a full discussion was prevented by the advocates of the amendment moving the previous question. This same proposal has already twice been voted down.

The club should not be dependent upon Sunday patronage for its existence. Since the organization of the Watchung Hunt Club (which is now open for Sunday recreation), there is even less reason than formerly for opening our own club for that purpose. 10 19 2

NOTED ENGINEER DEAD

F.A.C.Perrine, Formerly Professor at Standford University, Passes Away.

A GRADUATE OF PRINCETON.

Distinguished In His Profession—Aged Forty-six—Wife and Children Survive.

Dr. Frederic A. C. Perrine, one of the best known consulting engineers in the country and an authority on electrical matters, died early this morning at his home on West Seventh street. He had been ailing for several months with Bright's disease but the end was not expected.

Dr. Perrine was born in Monmouth county, near Freehold, in 1862 and had lived in or about New Jersey all his life. He graduated from Princeton as a Bachelor of Science and afterward had the degree of Doctor of Science conferred upon him. Soon after leaving college, he became attached to the Roebling company's engineering staff and was identified with many mechanical problems solved by the big concern in structural work. He left the company to become a professor of electrical engineering in Leland Stanford University, California, and the students he taught are now in every part of the United States. Retiring from the college, he assumed the presidency of the Stanley Electrical Manufacturing Company at Pittsfield, Mass., and for four years he has been a consulting engineer in New York, chiefly electrical.

Dr. Perrine had a recognized position in the electrical world, both as a scientist and an engineer. He was ans active member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and published a number of papers before it that attracted widespread attention. He was also the author of a book on electrical conductors that is considered an authority. In his business life and with his associates, he was a man of firm convictions but always congenial and of a disposition that always attracted people to him. He will be greatly mourned by everyone who knew him and though he had lived in Plainfield but four years, his friends here were very numerous.

Surviving Dr. Perrine are his wife, two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Anne Perrine, and one son, John Perrine. The funeral will be held at his late residence Thursday.

REV. ALEX. M'KELVEY DIES AT SON'S HOME

Rev. Alexander McKelvey, father of Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Boonton where he lived with his son, Alexander B. McKelvey. The Plainfielder was summoned Sunday afternoon and was at his father's bedside when the end came. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Rex. Alexander McKelvey was born in the north of Ireland in 1828 and came to this country when a young man. He was graduated from Rutgers College and the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, and his first charge was at Irvington. During the Civil War he was at Paterson. For some years afterward he was pastor of the Kent Street church in Greenpoint, where he built the present church edifice. He then came to Westfield and soon became a Presbyterian and pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Jersey City.

For the last fourteen years Mr. McKelvey had been pastor of the Boonton Reformed church and last July celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a minister of the gospel. He frequently came to Plainfield and participated in the exercises at the corner-stone laying of the new Warren chapel and its dedication. His wife died five years ago. He leaves three sons, J. William McKelvey, of Jersey City; Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, of the borough, and Alexander B. McKelvey.

DUNELLEN OFFICIALS RAID CRAP SHOOTERS

Constable Blaine, of Dunellen, accompanied by Mayor S. S. Swackhamer and Marshals Bumback and Schliney made a raid on the crap shooters on the outskirts of Dunellen, Sunday afternoon, and gathered in George Lee, colored. He was later discharged. Of late the people living on the outskirts of Dunellen have been greatly annoyed by gangs of colored men in the woods shooting crap.

It was decided to make a raid on the players and on Sunday afternoon the officers swept down upon them. The game was on when the officers arrived and the players ran away without gathering up the money. The officers got $2.30, the dice and the table which the players had. Lee told the officers the names of the other men who were engaged in the game. It is likely that warrants will be issued for their arrest.

TRIAL OF MINISTER IN CRIMINAL COURT

Rev. George A. Francis, formerly pastor of the Baptist church at Westfield, is the defendant in the criminal branch of the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth today, in an action brought against him by John Long and Jack and Wilhelm Capitelli, who charge he obtained money under false pretences. Mr. Francis is represented by W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, of this city, and John K. English, of Elizabeth, while Prosecueor C. Addison Swift represents the State.

The complainants charge that Mr. Francis persuaded them to sign papers giving him the power of attorney and that he sold property belonging to them under these conditions. They also claim that they did not understand the significance of the papers they were signing and hence the action to recover damages. The trial is being held before Judge Atwater and jury and will probably be on all day.

G.O.P. CLUB SMOKER FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

Under the auspices of the Plainfield Republican Club, of which former President of the Common Council Leslie M. Daniel is the head, a big rally and smoker will be held at the Republican City headquarters in the Coward building tomorrow night. All voters, irrespective of party, are invited to attend, and they are promised a good time.

E. T. Lovatt, of New York, who enjoys a reputation as a witty stump speaker, will make a brief address and there will be informal remarks by such well known leaders as E. R. Ackerman, of this city, candidate for re-election to the State Senate; Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, candidate for sheriff; Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, and Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth, candidates for the Assembly.

NON-SUIT FOR DUNHAM; SUED P.S.C. FOR $5,000

Because in his opinion the complainant had failed to show negligence on the part of the defendant company, Judge Vail in the Circuit Court at Elizabeth, this morning, non-suited Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, this city, who brought an action against the Public Service Corporation for $5,000 damages alleged to have been received about a year ago, while riding on one of the main line cars. The case was begun late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Dunham was represented by G. W. V. Moy, of this city, while Alvah A. Clark was counsel for the company.

Mr. Dunham, in company with several friends, was returning home on Sunday night about a year ago and in some way he fell off a main line eastbound trolley car near the corner of West Front street and Clinton avenue, receiving injuries which confined him to the house for several months. In the suit which followed it was contended that the company was negligent, but the court today held that he had failed to show negligence on the part of the P. S. C. It was the claim of the company that Mr. Dunham alighted from the car while it was in motion.

Mrs. P. A. Vroom, of Stone street, is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. M. Lane, at Montague, Sussex county.

CONVENTION OF BAPTISTS

Fifty-Seventh Annual Session of East New Jersey Sunday School Association.

MANY HELPFUL SPEECHES.

Committees Are Appointed and Election of Officers Takes Place This Afternoon.

The fifty-seventh annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association concened this morning in the First Baptist church, with over 200 delegates from the thirty-one churches in the association in attendance. As many more delegates are expected to be present this afternoon and evening.

In the absence of the president, George H. Batchelor, of the First Baptist church, Rev. S. C. Preston, pastor of the North Baptist church, Jersey City, presided, and Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, as secretary occupied his place. Rev. C. F. Stanley who recently resigned his pastorate of the Fifth Baptist church, Newark, to undertake evangelistic work, is in charge of the music.

The morning session opened with a prayer and praise service conducted by Rev. G. H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, and this was followed with hearty words of welcome by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the entertaining church, in which he expressed his great pleasure in the fact that so many representatives of the association were present and he assured all that they would receive every courtesy. Rev. Frank Fletcher responded, and thanked the members of the church for their kindness in receiving the association.

The first address of the morning was by Rev. W. E. Foote, pastor of the Baptist church, Freehold, who spoke on "Some Recognizable Processes in Successful Teaching." While admitting that it is a practical impossibility for a person to explain his secret of success, there being indescribable something that is responsible for it, there are also definite principles to be followed that will bring success.

Among the principle points emphasized by the speaker were definite intellectual and spiritual preparation. He said that it is most important that a teacher in the study of the lesson get at the central truth for presentation to the class. He also called attention to the fact that far different methods are necessary in teaching children that come from Christian homes and those who come from places where no such training is known. He believed that one of the secrets of success in a teacher is to be found in the thorough preparation of the lesson whereby he becomes master of the truths to be taught then and only then can the close attention of the children be obained.

The appointment of committees to report at the afternoon session was made at this time by Mr. Preston as follows:

Nomination—James E. Church, Plainfield; Mrs. William Dunham, New Market; auditing—Rev. C. J. Greenwood, Westfield; J. M. B. Pyatt, New Market; resolutions—Rev. G. H. Gardner, New Market; Miss Laura J. Runyon, Plainfield; Mrs. C. R. Abel, Perth Amboy; Mrs. J. W. Powlison, Plainfield.

The morning session was concluded with an address by Rev. William H. Bawden, pastor of the Baptist church, Perth Amboy. His topic was "The Man and the Book." This was a masterly talk and treated in an interesting manner of the relations that should exist between man and the Bible, pointing out the great truths to be found in the Word of God and how they can be of incalcuable value to the reader and how important it is that a Christian should be a close student of the Word to make progress in right living.

After this address, an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock for dinner. The noonday meal was served in the lecture room by the women of the church under the direction of Mrs. Harold Serrell.

The afternoon service opened with a praise service, after which Rev. J. Madison Hare, of New York, made an address on "Remaking the Future," and Rev. W. T. Dorward, of Stelton, spoke on "Sunday School Difficulties and How to Meet Them," followed by another address on "Weak Links and How to Mend Them," by Rev. W. F. Rowley, of Newark. Then will follow the presentation of reports and election of officers.

The principal feature of the evening session will be the address by Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods on "The Closet and the Battlefield."

Edwin Langley, of Essex street, left yesterday for a trip through the New England States.

C. B. TYLER TO WED MISS WHITTLESEY

Announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Susan Tilden Whittlesey, daughter of the late United States Senator William T. Whittlesey, and C. Boardman Tyler, of this city, at a dinner given at the home of Miss Whittlesey's mother on Wendel street, Pittsfield, Mass., Saturday night.

Miss Whittlesey is the granddaughter of President-elect Samuel J. Tilden. No date has been fixed for the wedding. Mr. Tyler is well-known here in social circles. He is a son of the late Colonel and Mrs. Mason W. Tyler and a brother of former Councilman William S. Tyler.

REV. DR. A. H. LEWIS REPORTED SERIOUSLY ILL

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, former editor of The Sabbath Recorder, has been seriously ill at his Watch Hill home, and until the present some anxiety has been felt concerning his condition. He was planning to return to Plainfield with his invalid wife last September, but had to take to his bed immediately upon his return from the Seventh-Day Baptist general conference at Boulder, Col., necessitating a stay at Watch Hill.

A troublesome tooth is chiefly responsible for the illness of Dr. Lewis. At Denver he was obliged to secure the aid of a dentist to remove an ulcerated molar, and it appears that the poison caused septicemia from which he has suffered severely for more than a month. His physicians hope that the worst is over, but it will be a long time before Dr. Lewis will be able to return to Plainfield. Plans are being made now to have Mrs. Lewis removed to her home in this city.

Dr. Lewis had experienced some trouble with the ulcerated tooth before going to Denver and it was the opinion that he was not in a condition to attend the conference. However, feeling that his presence there was a necessity he went against his best judgment and made the trip.

CHIEF EXCISE PROBER, COLD WATER FIGHTER

With tiny streams of water pouring into every room from the cold air valves of the steam heaters, the Smalley building on North avenue, in which the city offices are located, had a narrow escape from being washed away last night. Fortunately for the owner of the structure and all the tenants, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, chief excise prober, and Health Officer Leon Thurlow chanced to be at their desks later than usual and discovered the flood in time to prevent heavy damage.

The trouble was caused by some one about the place turning the water into the steam boilers and neglecting to shut it off. The flow continued on unabated and after the boiler became filled up, the aqua pura was forced into the pipes and began spurting out of the air valves. The basement was like a small brook and streams were chasing all over the upper floors when Mayor Fisk and Mr. Thurlow "got wise" to what was going on. They sent "still alarms" to David Kenney, the owner of the building, and as many tenants as they could scare out of bed, bringing half a dozen or more on the run. The trouble was quickly discovered and stopped and the heroes of the occasion were amply rewarded—with praise. Thus the building was saved from being washed down into Green brook.

Current Events and Our Constitution.

Current events of the present and past season were given with much enthusiasm by a number of the club members at the meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club, held yesterday afternoon in the Hartridge School Auditorium.

The year's program has for its subject, "Our Country, a Country of Progress" and the paper of the day, "Birth and Growth of our Constitution," presented by Mrs. Allen Cowperthwait, was replete with historical data woven together with pleasing skill. The discussion that followed was animated and interesting.

Salome or the Dance of the Seventh Veil is the attraction at the Bijou this week. Don't miss it.

BRYAN HERE ON FRIDAY

Democratic Presidential Nominee Following on Taft's Heels to Tour Jersey.

FIFTEEN SPEECHES IN STATE.

Former U. S. Senator James Smith to Entertain Nebraskan—A Whirlwind Trip.

Close on the heels of his Republican opponent for the Presidency, William Jennings Bryan is going to make a tour of New Jersey. The Bryan special train, bearing the Democratic State Committee and the nominee, will leave Philadelphia at 8 o'clock Friday morning, crossing the Delaware and entering this State a half hour later. The whirlwind tour that has been planned will terminate at Newark, according to present plans, late in the evening.

State Committee Chairman James R. Nugent late yesterday worked out the Bryan schedule and announced it last night. He said: "If possible we will have Mr. Bryan for Jersey City and Paterson Saturday afternoon. Should that be out of the question, he will go from Newark Friday evening after a mass meeting in Krueger Auditorium, and will speak in Jersey City at 9 or 9:30 o'clock.

"It is planned to reach Trenton over the Pennsylvania at about 8:30. A speech will be made from the observation platform there. We will go north over the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania from Trenton and make our first stop at Lambertville in Hunterdon county at 9 o'clock. Frenchtown will be reached at 9:30; Milford, 10, and Phillipsburg in Warren county at 10:45. An hour will be spent in Phillipsburg.

"The start will be made from Phillipsburg at 11:15 over the tracks of the Central Railroad. Hampton Junction will be reached at 12:15 and the first afternoon speech will be made there. A stop at Whitehouse at 12:30 will be followed by a few minutes' stay at Somerville, the big town of Somerset county. We will reach Somerville at 1, Bound Brook at 1:30 and Plainfield, the first Union county stop at 2 o'clock.

"After a speech at Elizabethport at 2:30 the train will switch to the Long Branch Railroad and the trip made to Perth Amboy. Mr. Bryan will talk at Perth Amboy at 2:45, and then he will go back over the Pennsylvania Road to Rahway, where the nominee will speak at 3:15.

"From Rahway we will go to New Brunswick, where an hour will be spent. Newark will be reached at 6 in the evening."

Mr. Bryan will be entertained at the home of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., according to present plans. He will speak at 8 o'clock in Krueger Auditorium. Former Judge Gottfried Krueger will preside.

The materials for the new organ for the Church of the Holy Cross have arrived from Chicago and a full force of men has been put to work for the purpose of rushing the job through as quickly as possible. It is hoped that the organ will be ready for use within three weeks. It is the make of the W. W. Kimball Organ Company, of Chicago, and is considered one of the best.

Kneisel Quartet Coming.

Announcement is made by Joseph McIntyre of his first chamber music concert to be given at the Hartridge Auditorium on Thursday night, November 12, and another announcement of unusual interest is that the famous Kneisel Quartet will appear at the same place on Wednesday night, December 16. This will undoubtedly be the musical event of the season and lovers of music are assured of a program of rare excellence.

DESIRE TO HEAR TAFT LANDS A MAN IN JAIL

William Ford, a well known Plainfielder who has been in all kinds of trouble in the past few years, was arrested in the crowd that surged about Candidate Taft at the Market street railroad station at Newark yesterday. He was recognized by Sergeants Kuhn and Quinn, who remembered that he was wanted in Paterson for a bad check transaction a year ago. He was locked up at Police head quarters and the Paterson police were notified.

Ford was originally a newspaper man but has dipped into numerous other enterprises. He explained presence in Newark, yesterday, by stating that he wanted to hear the expressed views of the Republican candidate for the presidency. He formerly lived on East Fourth street but in recent years has been working in New York, New Brunswick and Philadelphia.

FIRST G. O. P. VOTERS HEAR LAWYER'S TALK

Frederick A. Pope, a Somerville lawyer, made an address at the rally held by the First Presidential Republican Voters Club at Saengerbund hall last night. He had a large audience which was enthused by his masterly argument advocating the election of William H. Taft to the Presidency and the triumph of the Republican party in State and county as well.

Mr. Pope attacked the vacillating polices of Mr. Bryan and declared that prosperity could only come through Republican success at the polls.

Alexander Milne presided and Harold Hegeman, president of the club, also occupied a seat on the platform. Another rally will be held before the election.

WOLVERTON SENTENCE PUT OVER ONCE AGAIN

This morning was the date set for the pronouncing of sentence on Arthur Wolverton, superintendent of the Industrial Home, who was found guilty of assaulting Samuel S. Vermeule, an aged inmate, but when the case was called in the city court, the defendant was not present. Judge Runyon announced that he wanted the superintendent in attendance before he made any disposition and postponed action for one week in order to have the police learn the cause of his absence. It was said after the proceedings that Wolverton had been duly informed that he should have been in court today and that he was seen about the city offices at 9 o'clock.

The Common Council took up the Wolverton case after Judge Runyon had conducted an open trial and found him guilty, and received evidence behind closed doors. At its conclusion, he was declared blameless and the police magistrate was asked to suspend sentence. The judge, however, has given no intimation as to what his intentions are but appearances indicate that he does not look upon the matter in the light that the councilmen do.

G. P. MELLICK EXPLAINS

Former President of Country Club Tells Why He Favors the Amendment.

NO ATTACK ON THE SABBATH.

"We Believe That a Half Day Opening Is Not Only Reasonable but Right."

Editor, The Daily Press:

"The unsigned advertisement appearing in your paper this evening urging members of the Plainfield Country Club "To Preserve Our Sunday," was misleading and not in accordance with the facts. The question of Sunday opening last "Came up before the club" at the annual meeting in February of this year, it was perfectly understood at the time, that the constitution could no be amended at that meeting because no notice of any proposed change had been given; some of the members desired to have the question discussed merely for the purpose of obtaining the views of those present as to the advisability to another vote on the question at a subsequent meeting. This was perfectly proper. What happened? There was intense opposition on the part of those who are opposed to any form of Sunday opening. They absolutely prevented any discussion of a question about which many members honestly differ and have a right to express their views. It must be appreciated, therefore, that this advertisement was quite misleading and I sincerely hope that it will be understood that those in favor of permitting the club to be open on Sunday afternoons have always been willing at the previous meetings and certainly will approve of every opportunity being given at the meeting of the club to be held Tuesday evening, for a full discussion of this question.

"While we who have asked that this meeting be held fully appreciate that many members are and always have been opposed to our views, we trust that we may also be given the credit of acting only from conscientious motives, in urging the opening of the club on Sunday afternoons. Where honest men and good citizens differ in this way, is it not possible that there may be some middle ground on which we can unite, to the real benefit of an organization in which we all have had so much pride? I would not urge any member to vote against his principles; but if there is any member willing to admit that there may be something to be said "on the other side of the question," I earnestly ask him to consider whether a permanent settlement of this vexing question may not be really desirable. We, who have signed the call, have had no desire to "continue an agitation of the Sunday question as has been suggested; we simply believe most firmly that agitation of it is bound to be repeated from time to time so long as a majority of the members of the club are unable to obtain any concession whatever from the minority. We believe a half day opening to be not only reasonable, but right; and we believe that it will effect a permanent settlement at our club and will satisfy those who are dissatisfied with the present restrictions. To those who fear that this change will lead in time to a bar at the club, it is sufficient to state that the sale of liquor is prevented by the statue under which the club is organized, and the privilege could never be obtained even by unanimous vote of all the members of the club.

"Those of us who have been closely identified with the club's management, have always been ambitious for its reputation and success and we fear that those who are opposed to this proposed change are assuming a responsibility, not only as to the future of the club but also to the future Sunday observance in Plainfield, the scope of which they can not fully appreciate. Opposition to this reasonable amendment is calculated to do more to speedily bring about a real lack of Sunday observance in the future, than to accept it as an honest effort to preserve such observance. To fight in these days against innocent recreation and diversion on Sunday afternoons, will in time drive our growing young men away from the very influence, which we desire for them.

"GEORGE P. MELLICK.

WESTFIELD.

The fire department was called out at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon to fight a fire in the woods at Embree Crescent. Some one had set fire to a heap of brush and the flames spread so rapidly that a number of houses were threatened. Residents "on the mountain" are in constant dread of fire at this time, and are exercising every precaution.

The Cranford Gas Company laid their new high pressure main under the railroad tracks at Central avenue Sunday. All trains had to slow down going over the trench. A line of pipes is being laid from Rahway to this place.

Some Republicans held a rally last night at the Eastern Amusement Company Hall. Congressman Fowler was the principal speaker. The county nominees were also present.

Professor Walter S. Perry, of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, has been engaged by the Board of Education to give four lectures this winter at the Washington school.

PLAINFIELD AND FANWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Jaan, who have been spending their honeymoon at Niagara Falls, returned home last night. The groom's sisters gave the couple a well advertised welcome on their return home. The front porch of their new home was decorated during the day with a varied assortment of old shoes and boots of all sizes, the castoffs being arranged in festoons across the porch. Over the front door a sign advertised the fact to the public that this was the home of the newlyweds.

The weeds and underbrush in the field along Meadow Brook, near Forest road, was set on fire by some one Sunday afternoon. The dry weather made everything a tinder box and at one time the neighbors thought it would be necessary to call out the department, as buildings were in danger of catching from the sparks. After a two hours fight the blaze was put out, but it would not be healthy for the ones who started it to show themselves on Westfield avenue for a time.

The fire hydrant which was placed on the green near the flag pole, when city water was installed, has been removed across the street on Park avenue, near the elm tree. The removal was by order of the Township Committee, who intend to have the green cleared of the poles and sign post so as to throw the space into an open roadway, as the corner is a dangerous one for automobiles.

The long drawn out battle between the residents of Alton and Theodore Glazer, over the latter's fat rendering factory is ended. Glazer will still continue in the business at the same old stand, the highest courts deciding in his favor.

The local G. O. P. was represented at the Taft mass meeting at Elizabeth yesterday, by County Physician Dr. F. W. Westcott and George H. Johnston, members of the county committee.

A number of the workers in the Baptist Sunday school are attending the Sunday school convention being held today in the Park Avenue Baptist church, Plainfield.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The new Church of the Redeemer, Longport, the corner-stone of which was laid Saturday, and which is of the Episcopal faith, will be the first sanctuary in Longport.

Falling half-way downstairs at his home, Third and Clinton streets, Camden, yesterday, Harry Menchert, forty-one years old, sustained a lacerated scalp. The injury was attended at Cooper Hospital.

When a trolley car struck a grocery wagon at Collingswood, early yesterday morning, J. A. Grovers, the driver, had his collar bone broken and was cared for at Cooper Hospital, Camden. The wagon was badly damaged.

A rowboat containing two Philadelphians was run down by a naphtha launch on the Delaware River, below the Gloucester ferry, yesterday, and the two men had a narrow escape from drowning. One of the men was picked up by the launch and the other was rescued by John Haskins.

Recorder James Hayes, of Atlantic City, who was thrown from an automobile Friday night, while returning from a political meeting in Port Republic, is not seriously hurt, report his friends. He was picked up unconscious from the roadway and taken to the home of his father-in-law, City Clerk Edward Donnelly.

Samuel Levine, sixteen years old, was sentenced to serve one year in jail, and Isidore Ismar, aged twelve, was committed for a six months' term, after being arraigned before Recorder Carroll, in Paterson, yesterday. The two were caught in the act of picking pockets among shoppers on Main street on Saturday afternoon.

Fire, supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, yesterday afternoon damaged one of the buildings at the White Lead Works in Camden, known as the white lead house, entailing a loss of about $10,000, covered by insurance. The fire attracted hundreds of men, women and children to the immediate locality, many of whom received a ducking.

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Dobbins Memorial M. E. church, Delanco, will be celebrated in services continuing all the rest of this week. The celebration began Saturday night, with a massmeeting in the church, in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. Rollin Smith. All-day services were held yesterday, in charge of Rev. M. T. Guigg, of Milford, Del., a former pastor.

Morality meetings were held in the Levoy Theatre, Millville, yesterday afternoon and in the First M. E. church last evening. The speakers were former Governor E. C. Stokes, Rev. S. H. Hann, secretary of the Law and Order League, and Rev. Dr. James William Marshall. The afternoon meeting was for men only. Both services were largely attended by all denominations.

PRINCETON STUDENTS "RAISE CAIN" AT A CIRCUS.

It isn't often that a circus ventures to perform in Princeton. In fact, until last October, no circus had visited the college town for seven years. A circus dropped into the town Saturday night. When evening came, almost every student in Princeton tramped out of the borough limits to the city of tents. The place was soon crowded and only the reserve seat space was left.

Heedless of such discrimination in the seating, the students flocked into the reserve seats and thereafter practically ran the circus to suit themselves. The management took it good-naturedly for it was a veritable double attraction.

The acts themselves were well received but under no circumstances were the clowns allowed to be heard. Every time a motley individual attempted to say something, there was an uproar that could be heard a mile away. Even the band was not allowed to play in peace and the students sang in accompaniment, regardless of the real melody. The acrobats received better treatment. One of them essayed to climb the tent pole and as he drew himself upward hand over hand, a loud grunt from the crowd accompanied each movement until the grunt almost raised the tent roof.

All went well until a barker announced: "After the big show we'll have the big concert," whereup the students demanded that the "big show" be brought forth. They would not listen to the cries of "tickets, ten cents,'" and the circus management very wisely omitted the concert, and the students paraded away.

The choir of Hope chapel will present a cantata, "The Seasons," at the chapel on Friday night, October 30, and will be assisted by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston and Joseph C. Martin.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., October 20, 1908.

THE FORUM.

W. H. Not W. D. Murray.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I find that some people think I signed the call for the meeting to morrow night of the Country Club. May I take this way of calling attention to the fact that it was another Murray, our good doctor, and not I.

I was approached, indirectly, with the assurance that signing the call did not mean voting to open the club on Sunday, but I did not care to go even that far. I am still most decidedly of the opinion that to open the club on Sunday would be detrimental to the best interests of our city and of ourselves as individuals. I feel very sure that if those parents who commit their little children to my care on Sunday, could only realize how fruitless must be much of the instruction I can give while their parents are using the Lord's Day for purposes other than the highest, either in playing golf or automobiling, or in any other way, they would gladly help to save this day for its best purposes.

WM. D. MURRAY.

October 20, 1908.

As to Mr. Bryan.

Editor The Daily Press:

The Hon. Wm. J. Bryan is a great rhetorician. He is an absolute master of invention and a paragon of style. If words, adjectives and adverbs entitle a man to the Presidency he should get there with both feet.

In mathematics he is swift and accurate. A lightening calculator that dazzles like a blinding flash out of the dark sky. With a jerk and a dash he rounds up that science that treats of the measuring of quantities and the ascertainment of their properties and relations. No calm, slow, judicial political economy for Mr. Bryan! His mind is fast. It rolls and thunders. President William Jupiter Bryan, why not?

In a quick answer to a man who wanted to advertise in the "Commoner" he catchingly wrote:

"For the conduct of my paper, I drew the line at 50 per cent and do not accept an advertisement of a corporation controlling more than 50 per cent of the product in which it deals." Bryan wants the ad of everybody who doesn't control more than 50 per cent. Chip in and advertise at once. Why should not Mr. Bryan laught and grow fat? There are over 1,500,000 firms and corporations doing business in the United States. What a field for Mr. Bryan's 50 per cent advertising genius! How many control 50 per cent of their product? Mr. Bryan knows. He knows everything. He has the figures down and at the end of his fingers. He knows what everybody is doing and if elected President will tell you who shall or who shall not continue in business.

Great is the Presidency, or rather great is Mr. Bryan's conception of that office. Facts to the rear! Words and any old figures to the front!

Mr. Editor, I thank you for the courtesy and consideration received at your hands.

Very truly yours,
JOSHUA JENKS JUDSON.

VETERANS WILL MEET AT NEW BRUNSWICK TODAY.

The annual reunion of the Twenty-Eighth Regiment will be held in Grand Army Hall in New Brunswick today, beginning at 11 o'clock. William B. Davis, the president, will preside.

The coming of the regimental society is a high testimonial to the members of the Women's Relief Corps. Last year they had charge of the dinner and they gave the men a meal that was warmly praised. This year, when the corps, co operating with Boggs Janeway Post, again invited the association to meet here, the invitation was readily accepted.

Epworthians in Convention.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Elizabeth District Epworth League is being held in Trinity M. E. church, Rahway, today. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will be held. The local chapters of the league are represented by a number of delegates. The program is made up chiefly of reports and addresses by prominent ministers and workers in the League. Dr. Harvey Graeme Furbay, general secretary of the Industrial Christian Alliance, of New York, will make the address tonight.

Merchants to Hold Smoker.

The smoker which was planned for last night by the Plainfield Merchants' Association, will be held tomorrow night, following the regular meeting of the association. An excellent program has been prepared.

GARAGE EMPLOYES HOLD A "NICK-NAME" DINNER

As a means of promoting good fellowship among themsives, the employes of the F. L. C. Martin Automobile Company have arranged a series of social dinners for the winter season, the first of which took place last night at Peter Fellows' place "The Pines," just south of Metuchen. The head of the concern together with William Mazzocco and J. F. Carey, were made guests of honor and there were twenty of the men in attendance beside. The trip to "The Pines" was made in four large cars.

The dinner was an elaborate affair, and was followed by a "smoker" and session of speech making, J. F. Carey acquitting himself creditably as toastmaster. Each of the guests was furnished a corn cob pipe to which was attached an auto shipping tag, bearing the recipient's nick-name or the one most frequently used at the Martin shop. Some were improvised for the occasion and the humor was sometimes better appreciated by the crowd than by the unfortunate who had to stand for what was given. The affair was arranged by a committee comprised of Arthur Hulick and R. Douglas Martin.

S.S. ATHLETIC LEAGUE HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

The first fall business meeting of the Sunday-school Athletic League was held at the Y. M. C. A. last night, with Joseph W. Gavett, president of the association in the chair. Delegates representing Trinity Reformed, Congregational, First Baptist, Seventh-Day Baptist churches and Warren chapel, and reports of the various committees were read and approved.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Charles W. W. McCutchen; vice-president, Joseph W. Gavett; secretary, G. L. Listman; treasurer, Fred E. Smith; board of governors, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Jas. R. Joy, A. D. Beers, F. O. Dunning and George C. M. Smith.

A committee comprising John H. Doane, George M. Clark and F. E. Smith was appointed to obtain a meeting place for the various schools. The following standing committees were appointed for the year:

Gymnastics—F. G. Davis, F. S. Thompson and F. O. Dunning. Basketball—Charles B. Marsh, Frank Rimmer, Gideon Fountain, E. M. Clark and G. L. Listman. Baseball—Herbert E. Parker, William P. Banks and John H. Doane. Track and field—G. L. Listman, F. S. Thompson and A. C. Newman. Finance—C. W. McCutchen, F. E. Smith. Records—F. S. Thompson, G. L. Listman. Wrestling—F. S. Thompson, E. F. Hoagland, W. Lester Glenney. Aquatics—Dr. N. H. Probasco, Charles Steiner and C. B. Batchelor. Registration—F. E. Smith, J. W. Gavett, G. L. Listman. Tennis—F. O. Dunning, A. D. Beers and Rev. C. L. Goodrich. Gymnasium—Charles B. Batchelor, Charles Line and C. S. Hoagland.

FIRST PRESBYTERIANS' TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

The twentieth anniversary of the First Presbyterian church will be appropriately observed on Sunday with special services under the direction of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring. The corner-stone of the church was laid on Wednesday, September 12, 1888, and among the ministers at that time who took part in the services were the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes and Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, now of Bloomfield; Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, of Lowell, Mass.; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congressional church; Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, now of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York.

Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, at that time pastor, was in charge of the exercises and Dr. Herring has received word from him that he will be present Sunday morning and make an address, as will also Rev. Louis Bond, of this city, who was the first pastor. There will also be a special musical program under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist. Dr. Herring will deliver an historical address.

Awful Strong Rum, This.

Andrew Sockel, of Dunellen, arrested yesterday by Patrolman Saffron for helpless intoxication, had sentence suspended when arraigned in the city court today. He declared with absolute positiveness that one drink of ten cent whiskey had caused his downfall. He told the cops he bought it in a West End saloon and they will have a sample of the brand analyzed to see what composes the mixture.

Did You Hear the Victor

at our free concert Saturday night? You think you can tell the difference between hearing the artists sing or play and hearing them on the Victor. But can you? Every day at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, the grand-opera stars sing, accompanied by the hotel orchestra of sixteen pieces. The diners listen with rapt attention, craning their necks to get a glimpse of the singer. But it is a Victor. Don't you think you'd like a Victor in your own home. A small payment down and a dollar a week will secure one. We also have a full line of Records on sale.

IF YOU DON'T KNOW IT

We want to tell you now that we probably fit more little feet than you have any idea of. There is a reason and it is this: For years we have paid particular attention to this department of our business, relying upon the satisfaction given to the children to command the trade of their fathers and mothers and their big brothers and sisters.

For that reason we believe in plenty of room for growing feet. Look at the wide toe. We have sacrificed a big portion of the usual profits made in ordinary children's departments and handled only those makes of children's shoes which are comfortable and good wearing. If you are a shrewd and careful shopper you'll come here for shoes.

MEMBERS OF THE PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB WHO DESIRE TO

can do so by attending the meeting on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Hartridge School, and voting against the amendments offered. The last time this question came up before the club, a full discussion was prevented by the advocates of the amendment moving the previous question. This same proposal has already twice been voted down. The club should not be dependent upon Sunday patronage for its existence. Since the organization of the Watchung Hunt Club (which is now open for Sunday recreation), there is even less reason than formerly for opening our own club for that purpose. 10 19 2

DON'T DRINK COFFEE.

If Coffee Doesn't Agree With You Don't Drink It Doctors Say.

If it does agree with you drink all you want. Any doctor will tell you that what's one man's meat is another man's poison.

Some people won't drink beer; they say it don't agree with them. Some people say it makes them billious.

But to every reader of The Daily Press we desire to state that pure beer never made any one billious. Rienzi beer, brewed by the famous Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, is a pure beer, and any person that cannot drink the ordinary beer can drink Rienzi simply because it is brewed of pure barley malt and hops, both of which are brimful of tonic properties, and is properly aged.

Rienzi beer builds you up; it quiets the nerves, sharpens the appetite, turns that blue feeling into cheerfulness and puts vitality into your whole system.

And we say to coffee drinkers also if coffee don't agree with you, if it makes you nervous, quit it, and drink Rienzi beer.

There is no secret about Rienzi, just hops and barley malt, fully aged and brewed as good beer should be brewed.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he will promptly deliver an order to your home at any time. His address is 68 Somerset street. His 'phone number is 229. Call him up.

LOCAL ARTIST'S WORK OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Jonas Lie, the well-known artist, has returned to his studio in the Babcock building, where on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., the public is invited to see his work. The room is tastily decorated and the walls hung with large and small sketches and paintings. As one looks around a person is convinced of the versatility of this artist. There are to be found green summer days rivers winding between banks of snow, rich autumn scenes, flying leaves, peasant interiors and snow-capped peaks, autumnal fogs and morning mists, storms and the last rays of the setting sun creeping along fields and gilding the tree trunks, depicted with equal ease and facility.

"The Last Gleam," just back from a number of out of town exhibitions occupies the centre of the west wall, alongside which hangs the large new canvas, "The Storm Passes On," from the Watchung hills this summer. This together with "The Witches Pool," exhibited at the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburg, last winter, now occupying the centre of the east wall, will shortly be sent to the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington

Two pictures, "After the Snowfall," and "Gray Winter Day," have been sent to the Chicago Art Institute, and the "Herd of the Woods," which has been on exhibition since it was painted, in New York, Buffalo and now in St. Louis, has been invited to the Indianapolis Art Institute and will from there go to the Pennsylvania Academy exhibition this winter. The rooms are well worth a visit and it is hoped that those who may be interested will take advantage of the opportunity to see so many fine paintings.

POLITICAL NOTES.

A meeting of the Plainfield Republican Club will be held at the Coward building, 109 Park avenue, tomorrow night at 8 p. m. The candidates for State senator and members of assembly will be present and make short addresses and all are urged to attend and meet them personally. Arrangements will also be made at that time to attend the meeting under the auspices of the Union County League of Republican Clubs, to be held at Elizabeth Thursday night, October 22. It is desired that the club go in a body from the station to the hall. The club will leave Plainfield on the 7:09 train.

General Luke E. Wright, Secretary of War, was the principal speaker last night at a Republican meeting in Terrace Garden, New York.

Norman E. Mack, Democratic national chairman, returned to New York with the story of the canvass he had caused to be made among voters in selected industrial centres of New York, Ohio and Indiana. He said the result was an indication of 25 to 40 per cent. decrease from the Republican vote of 1904. Upon this and other investigations he based his prophecy of a landslide for Bryan on November 3.

John W. Kern, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, started on a tour of New York State, preliminary to one through Ohio. Mr. Bryan spent the day stumping Illinois.

Herman Ridder, treasurer of the National Democratic Committee, received a check for $1,500 from Richard Croker. The money was sent on a cable request from Mr. Croker in Dublin.

Dr. Isaac N. Barber, the Democrtic Congressional nominee in the Fifht district, paid a visit to Plainfield yesterday. He lives in Phillipsburg.

A good time is promised by the Plainfield Republican Club at its smoker at the Coward building tomorrow night. All voters, irrespective of party, are invited to shake hands with the G. O. P. county and city nominees and to enjoy the cigars and entertainment. E. T. Lovatt, of New York, will make a short address.

Match Head Causes Fire.

The borough fire department was called out on an alarm from box 148 at 9 o'clock last night for a slight blaze at the home of William C. Dunham, on Craig place, near Duer street. It was caused by a match head flying into a lace curtain as a member of the family was about to light the gas. The flames had been practically extinguished when the apparatus arrived and the damage will not exceed $25.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Conference.

Eight members of the boys' intermediate department of the Y. M. C. A. will attend the New Jersey conference to be held at Lakewood on October 25. The boys will be under the leadership of F. C. B. Batchelor, boys' secretary, Arthur Manley Bergen Naylor, Charles Vail, Ray Boice, James Manning, Lee Manning, Howard Bay.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Everywhere that the great musical spectacle, "The Black Crook," has appeared it has been greeted by crowded houses with standing room at a premium and it goes to prove that the old legends are much more favored by the theatre-going public than the light frivolous nonsense which has a run for a few nights only. If you ask anyone hold old "The Black Crook" is it would be almost impossible for them to tell and those who saw it forty years ago would scarcely recognize the dazzling version as now presented by Fraser and Donazetta with its large singing and dancing chorus of stunning girls, its up-to-date Zamiel and Stalacta, the glittering light effects, the elaborate scenery and the foreign novelties. All these are prominent in the present production and they lend a never ending variety to the numerous scenes that go to make up the play. There is comedy in abundance and the players are clever, the songs tuneful and catchy. "The Black Crook" is a clean, healthy moral entertainment and is enjoyed by everyone. Bring the children—it is merry, musical, laughing and they will enjoy it. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night.

La Manolita and her ballet of fourteen girls will present an entirely new version of the "Dance of Salome" at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night in conjunction with the musical comedy, "Too Many Wives." The "Ballet of the Veils" as an introduction adds to the artistic effect, while Manolita's dancing is most expressive. She follows the theme of the dancing in movement and facial expression to a most commendable degree. The producing managers, Messrs Mittenthal Brothers, have furnished elaborate stage settings, gorgeous costumes, and exquisite electrical effects.

Nixon and Zimmeran's latest successful attraction, "A Night in Venice," with Little Mose, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, and will be good news to the musical theatregoers of the city. This charming work is one of the compositions of A. Baldwin Sloane, well known as one of the best composers of light opera in this country. He has to his credit such musical works as "The Ginger Bread Man," "Coming Thro' the Rye," "The Mocking Bird," and "Jack and the Bean Stalk," and many others equally as tuneful. It is presented as all of Nixon Zimmeran's productions are with elaborate scenery antl costumes, and the best known operatic artists in this country, including Franklin Farnum, late of the "Savage Madame Butterfly Company;" Charlotte Lesley, formerly of the "Knight For a Day," and Frank Daniels companies. Miss Lesley sings the prima donne role in this production and is credited with having a beautiful voice. Clara Thropp, lately starring in George Edwards' production and of "Bell of New York," and a "Girl from Paris" in England. Albert Davis, one of the leading supports of Edna May, in this country. Cassius Freeborn, late of the Frohman forces; George F. Moore, of the Prince of Pilsen Company, and the great American toe dancer, La Meta, and many others of equal standing in the theatrical world.

One of the unctuous comic hits in characterization in "A Knight for a Day," and report says the gaiety boasts many, is a small town expressman. The teamster's biggest revenue is gleaned toting trunks and hampers for the girls of a seminary at an inland college town. Circumscribed in his experience, he has himself appraised as a pretty smart citizen, able to cope with about every kind of craft likely to be met in a world where the other fellow is usually looking for what you have, or at least a part of it. A visitor from outside comes along one day without any herald of brass bands, and the trimming he gives the smart alec trunk runner chastens him. "A Knight for a Day" will be at the New Plainfield theatre on Wednesday night, October 28.

FIGURES OF PRINCETON, 1912.

Increase Over Last Year in Membership, While Scholarship Also Shows Higher Average.

Professor J. P. Hoskins, secretary of the entrance committee of the faculty of Princeton University, has just made official announcement of the figures of the present freshman class. There are 360 members of the class of 1912. One hundred and forty-eight are taking the A. B. course; 148, the Litt. B., or B. S. course, the studies in both courses being the same during freshman year, and sixty-four, the civil engineering course. There is an increase of sixteen over last year in the A. B. department and forty-seven in the Litt. B., or B. S., departments, while there is a decrease of twenty-seven in the civil engineering course. There is a total gain of thirty-six over last year. Thirty men were admitted, but have not registered, electing to spend another year in preparation.

It is a noteworthy fact that of the three departments, twenty-nine men who chose the A. B. course, thirty-five who chose the Litt. B., or B. S. course, and eleven who entered the civil engineering were prepared for Princeton in the public high schools throughout the country. This is about eighteen per cent. of the class. The highest previous percentage was seventen per cent.

Judging from the number of conditions incurred by the entering men, the scholarship of the present freshman class is the best in years. Eighty-seven, or fifty-eight per cent. of the A. B. men, were admitted without a condition; also forty-eight, or thirty-two and one-half per cent. of the Litt. B., or B. S., sudents, and twenty-two of the civil engineering, or thirty-four per cent. of that department. This makes a total of 157 men who have entered unconditioned or forty-four and one-half per cent. of the new class. The best percentage reached heretofore was in 1906, when forty-two and one-half per cent. of the class of 1910 entered without conditions. A large number of the men have only one condition, so that the number of unconditioned or with one condition is 239, or sixty-six per cent. of the class.

Miss Florence Wohlfert, who has been sojourning at the seashore for a time, has returned home.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Allis remembered that she had seen Mortimer on the race course.

"Mr. Mortimer doesn't bet," she said.

"Yes, he does; he did yesterday, anyway; and when he saw that I knew about it, he begged me to say nothing—practically admitted that he had taken the money, and was going to put it back."

"Why should he tell you that, Alan?"

"I don't know, unless he feared it might be found out while he was away. At any rate, he took it right enough, Allis, and you ought to cut him."

"I shan't do that. He's innocent, I know he is—I don't care what they say. If he replaced the money, it was to shield the man who took it."

While she was still speaking, the accused man came from the cashier's office, holding his head erect; yet in his face was a look of troubled gravity.

When Mortimer saw Allis his face flushed, then went pale in an instant. He felt that she knew; he had seen her talking earnestly to her brother. Probably she, too, would think him a thief. He was helpless, quite helpless; he was limited to simple denial, unless he accused her brother; even had he been so disposed, there was nothing to back up a denunciation of the boy.

As he resumed his place at his desk close to the brother and sister, Alan looked defiantly at him. He could see in the boy's eyes malignant detestation, a glimmer of triumph. The lad was like a strippling Judas; his attitude filled Mortimer with loathing. He stole a look into the girl's face. Would she, too, say with her eyes: "Behold, here is Barabbas!"

A thrill of ecstatic comfort warmed his being. In Allis' eyes was the first touch of kindness he had known in this hour of trial; faith, and sorrow, and cheer, and love were all there, striving for mastery; no furtive weakening, no uncertain questioning, no remonstrance of reproval—nothing but just unlimited faith and love. By that one look of unalterable love, in the hour of darkness the girl stood by him, and he would also stand firm. She would believe in him, and his sacrifice would be as nothing. He would tell no one on earth but his mother the full truth; she must know. Then with the faith of the two women he loved, still his, he could brave the judgment of all others.

Mortimer heard the brother say: "I think you had better not," then the girl's voice, clear and decisive, answering: "I will; I must."

In anger Alan left his sister's side, and she, stepping up to the wicket, said: "Will you please come out for a minute, Mr. Mortimer? I want to speak with you."

He passed around to her side.

"Let us go out into the sunshine," Allis said. "Can you—will it make any difference?"

"I don't think it matters much," he answered, despondently.

He took it for granted that she knew everything; but he was possessed of no shame, no diffidence, no reserve; he was innocent, and her eyes had assured him that she knew it. Outside the village street was deserted.

"What is this dreadful thing all about?" and she laid her hand on his arm in a gesture of amity, of association. Her touch thrilled him; she had never gone that length in friendly demonstration before. The small, strong hand lifted him to a pedestal—her eyes deified him.

"A thousand dollars was stolen from the bank, and I am accused of taking it."

"You didn't, did you? I know you didn't, but I want to hear you say so."

He looked full into the girl's eye, and answered with deliberate earnestness. "I did not steal the money."

"Some one took it?"

"Yes."

"And you know who it was?"

"I do not."

"But you suspect some one?"

He did not answer.

"Did you put the money back?"

He nodded his head.

"To protect somebody's good name?"

"Because it had been in my charge. I can't talk about it," he broke in, vehemently; "all I can say is, that I am innocent. If you believe that I don't care what they do. They'll be able to prove by circumstanial evidence that I took it," he added, bitterly, "and nothing I can say will make any difference. My mother won't believe me guilty, and, thank God, you don't; and I am not; God knows I am not. It's not half so hard as I thought it would be; I feared perhaps that you—I thought that you might believe me a thief, and that would have been too much."

"You cared for my poor opinion?" she asked. The quiver in her voice caused him to look into her face; he saw the gray eyes shrouded in tears.

"Yes, I care," he answered; "and it seemed all so dark before you brought the sunlight in with you; now I'm glad that they've accused me; somebody else might have suffered and had no one to believe in him. But I must go back."

Allis laid a detaining hand on his arm. "If anything happens, if you are going away—you will see me before you leave, won't you?"

"Will you care to see me if I stand branded as a thief?" The word came very hard.

"Promise me to come to Ringwood before going away," she answered.

"Yes, I will; and I thank you. No matter how dark the shadow may make my life your kindness will be a hope light."

Crane stepped out on the sidewalk. He stared in astonishment at Mortimer and Allis, his brow wrinkled in anger. Only for an instant; the forehead smoothed back into its normal placidity and his voice, well in hand, said, in even tones: "Good afternoon, Miss Porter. Are you going back to Ringwood?" and he nodded toward Allis' buggy.

"Yes, I am. I'm going now. Good day, Mr. Mortimer," and she held out her hand.

Mortimer hesitated, and then, flushing, took the gloved fingers in his own. Without speaking, he turned and passed into the bank.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them, of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and paroles, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the Inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI, of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

Football and General Sports

GOLF.

All eyes among the golfers this week will be turned toward Washington, the attraction being the women's national championship tournament, which began yesterday over the links of the Chevy Chase Club. A few belated entries have increased the list to an even forty, but as the class is there the coming tournament will probably come up to the high standard maintained for the last few years.

On paper it looks as if the East would be reasonably certain to retain possession of the title, as the West is poorly represented. Most prominent of the entrants from that locality is Miss Grace Semple, of St. Louis, who was runner-up in the recent championship tournament of the Women's Western Golf Association.

On the other hand, the cream of the Boston district, including Miss Margaret Curtis, the champion; Miss Fanny C. Osgood, the Eastern title holder; Miss Harriet Curtis, Miss M. B. Adams, Miss M. W. Phelps, Miss M. B. Adams, Miss M. W. Phelps, Miss Elizabeth Porter and Miss Anita Phipps, of Springfield, have all entered. The Philadelphia district will depend on Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Miss Ethel Maule and Miss Frances C. Griscom.

From the locality Miss Georgianna Bishop, for the last two years winner of the metropolitan title, is the most prominent aspirant. Miss Bishop won the national title in 1904. Mrs. T. H. Polhemus, of the Richmond County Country Club, is also going to try again.

FOOTBALL.

Yale has a rather easy game in view on Saturday, as the team will line up against Washington and Jefferson, but Pennsylvania, Princeton and Harvard will have something more than mere practice games on their hands, and will do well to run up respectable scores. The Tigers must face the strong, heavy Syracuse eleven, which held Yale to a score of 5 to 0, and which kept the Indians from crossing the goal line. It is not a foregone conclusion that Princeton will win, and it is safe to say that the coaches will spare no effort this week to bring the team along faster than it has been going. Harvard caught a Tartar in Annapolis last year, and won by a score of only 6 to 0 in a game that to all intents and purposes was a tie so far as the merits of the two teams went. The midshipmen are further advanced this season than they were a year ago, and with largely a veteran team should show up the weak points in the Harvard eleven, as they have not been shown this year.

The N. P. H. S. will play the Bernardsville High School football team at the latter place, tomorrow. The borough boys will go to Bernardsville by stage.

The Holy Cross Club football eleven will play a return game with the Bound Brook High School team at the latter place Saturday afternoon and the boys are looking for another victory.

Gus Rogers was one of the best known low comedians on the American stage. For ten years the team has starred in musical comedies produced by Klaw & Erlanger. The brothers made a lot of money and carefully invested their earnings in real estate, principally in Manhattan theatre property.

CHURCH 200 YEARS OLD.

The Church of St. Andrews on Staten Island was founded in 1708, and today and tomorrow it celebrates its bi-centenary. Rev. John Talbot was the missionary sent to take charge of that district in 1704 and it was from his successful labors that the church sprung up.

Contributions for the land and the construction of the building were given by a few citizens of New York, but a few years later the title to the land which also included that now covered by New York Richmond Hill, was seriously questioned and in 1713 Queen Anne came to the rescue and gave the parish a Royal Charter. It is said that St. Andrews has always been among the most prominent Episcopal churches on the island, and from this three others have been founded. It is also a fact that this parish was the only one of about a dozen that maintained uninterrupted services during the Revolutionary times.

On Wednesday the service will include the unveiling of two memorial tablets, one of which is to the memory of Queen Anne, on account of her faithful service in securing a permanent title to the property, and the other to the first minister and the few generous men who furnished the means for founding the parish. Queen Anne died in 1714. Her reign has been called the Augustan period of English literature.

HORNER HIGH MAN IN FULL HEAD PIN TOURNEY.

Opening games in the Full Head Pin Tourney at Campbell's alleys were rolled last night when ten representatives from the Plainfield cyclers strived for the medals offered to the successful competitors.

The scores, as a rule, were low, and that they will be surpassed before the competition ends goes without saying.

Jack Horner, with 68, was high man, and Bird with 58 was next. The scores follow:

Horner	68
Bird	58
Dunham	54
P. Haberle	53
Todd	50
S. Haberle	45

can do so by attending the meeting on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Hartridge School and voting against the amendments offered. The last time this question came up before the club, a full discussion was prevented by the advocates of the amendment moving the previous question. This same proposal has already twice been voted down. The club should not be dependent upon Sunday patronage for its existence. Since the organization of the Watchung Hunt Club (which is now open for Sunday recreation), there is even less reason than formerly for opening our own club for that purpose. *10 19 2

COUNTRY CLUB WILL GOLF ON SUNDAYS

By a Bare Two Thirds Majority, an Amendment to Its Constitution is Passed.

MR. MARSH'S STRONG PLEA.

Corporation Counsel Argues in Vain Against Innovation—Lively Interest in Agitation.

After two unsuccessful attempts covering a period of two years, the Plainfield Country Club, at a special meeting held at the Hartridge auditorium, last night, decided by a two-thirds vote to amend the constitution and thereby open the clubhouse and grounds Sunday afternoon after 1 o'clock. The amendment was carried by a margin of four votes, a total of 168 out of 246 being cast in favor, two-thirds of which number would be 164. When the result was announced there was prolonged applause and the members who favor Sunday opening expressed great pleasure over their success.

The fact that the proposed amendment and intended action had been given a great amount of publicity on the part of the pulpit and press had a tendency to bring out a large number of members, including many women, who displayed great interest in the proposition.

The amendment of the constitution simply carries with it the right to open the clubhouse and grounds on Sunday after 1 o'clock, and it is still within the power of the trustees to decide upon what privileges shall be enjoyed at the club in the way of serving meals, etc. It is not the general opinion that a wide and indiscriminate enjoyment of club privileges will be permitted, the tendency being to conduct the place in a quiet and orderly manner which will meet with the approbation of the most particular member.

Contrary to the general expectation there were only two speeches, one opposing the amendment by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, and the other in favor by former Senator Charles A. Reed, who is an enthusiastic golfer. As president of the club, Leighton Calkins presided, and immediately after the meeting was called to order, W. B. Tyler made a motion which was adopted, that when the final vote was taken it be in answer to the roll call. The proposed amendment was then read, after which Corporation Councel Marsh spoke vigorously against the plan to open the clubhouse on Sunday.

"I do not say that it is morally wrong to play golf, ride or walk on Sunday," continued Mr. Marsh, "but there are many men and more women who differ from this view, and they say that Holy Writ makes is immoral to do these things and they are entitled to respect. When the country club was organized there were many men and women who joined with the understanding that there would be no Sunday playing They have continued to support the club and pay their dues under the original agreement.

"Is it fair to these members to say, 'we will pass this amendment,' at the sacrifice of those who oppose it and compell them to compromise with their conscience? The proposition is to play on private grounds of those who object. This is against the State law to play golf on Sunday, a misdemeanor and the guilty ones are liable to indictment. I challenge anyone to dispute this and will stake my reputation upon the statement It is a violation of the penal code, although some have claimed that it is obsolete.

"The Supreme Court does not say that the law is obsolete. Those who favor Sunday opening say that the opponents are not backed by public sentiment, that it would be impossible to obtain a conviction for such violation of the law. I recall the recent incidents at Atlantic City, where it was said that a majority of the residents favored an open Sunday. What did Governor Fort say? He declared that the law must be obeyed. You can take his opinion or that of Justice Beasley.

"This statement that you cannot get a judge or jury to convict is a species of lynch law, a defiance of the statutes. Then from the point of civic pride it would be unwise to adopt such an amendment. The city of Plainfield has had the reputation

LOCAL OPTION RECRUITS

East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association Adopts Resolutions.

FAVOR OLD TIME HYMNS.

S. C. Preston Chosen President; C. R. Vincent Vice-President; Rev. Frank Fletcher, Sec'y-Treasurer.

Resolutions favoring local option were adopted at the fifty-seventh annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday-school convention held in the First Baptist church yesterday. This action was taken following the presentation of the resolutions offered by that committee, of which Rev. G. H. Gardner, of New Market, was the chairman, and there was not a dissenting vote. After expressing the thanks of the convention for the hospitality extended by the entertaining church, the resolutions are as follows:

"Resolved, That we urge the importance of each school cultivating use of the grand old hymns of the church rather than the meaningless 'jingles' so often used.

"Resolved, That wherever possible teacher training classes be organized.

"Resolved, That emphasis be placed upon the importance of the study of the Bible and urge that the Bible itself shall be used more extensively than lesson helps during the session of the schools.

"Resolved, That in view of the deadly results of the saloon we emphasize the absolute necessity of temperance lessons, especially among the younger members and would recommend that all voting members of our Sunday-schools support only such candidates for the General Assembly of the State who will support local option."

During the afternoon session, Rev. J. Madison Hare, of Jersey City, made an earnest address on "Remaking the Future." He said that the Bible school is dealing with the future, not the present. If the future is to be different than the present, if society is to be different in the future than now, if the political atmosphere is to be clarified, if the commercial problems are to be solved rightly, the only solution is in the Bible school. The speaker emphasized the importance of the Bible school in relation to the home and argued that it is a great factor in the church of the Living God.

Mr. Hare declared that in his opinion the church is to remake the future out of the boys and girls of today and not out of the adults. He said that he could see no hope whatever for the church of the future in the adult life, but believed that the solution was to be found in childhood. The men and women of tomorrow he believed would be the boys and girls from the tenements, street corners and other places. He urged that more time and attention be given to the teaching and training of the children in all departments of the Sunday-school.

The address which was to have been delivered by Rev. W. T. Dorward, was read by Rev. A. E. Finn, because of the inability of the former to be present. The topic was "Sunday-school Difficulties and How to Meet Them." The paper treated with numerous difficulties that come up in the life of a teacher and the children as well and presented many excellent suggestions which would be found of great help in Sunday-school work.

Another interesting address of the afternoon was on "Weak Links and How to Mend Them," by Rev. W. F. Rowley, of the North Baptist church, Newark. At the outset he said that one would think that his topic and that of Mr. Dorward were twins, but he added that he did not propose to present or mend too many weak chains in the brief time allotted him.

In discussing his topic, Mr. Rowley presented four weak links, which he said have a great bearing on the success to be attained by teachers. The first was discouraged Sunday-school teachers; the second, lack of affinity; the third, lack of sufficient denominational literature, and fourth, the lack of opportunity. Under each heading Mr. Rowley offered suggestions as to how these conditions can be improved, or the weak chain made strong, concluding with the thought that what is needed is that all the church should be in the Sunday-schoool and all the Sunday-school in the church.

These addresses were followed by a general discussion on the part of the delegates, including Rev. W. A. Thyrrell, Rev. A. E. Finn, Rev. Dr. Clark and Rev. G. H. Gardner. After a brief talk by James E. Church who presented the features of the Adult Sunday-school Class movement of which he is the head in this State, the reports of the committees were received and officers elected.

MISS AGNES E. BAILEY BRIDE OF HARRY G. DE MEZA

At a quiet ceremony taking place this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Agnes Ellen Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey, of Jackson avenue, was made the wife of Harry G. DeMeza, of West Second street. Rev. Father William H. Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, was the officiating clergyman and only immediate relatives of the two families were present.

Miss Bailey was attended by Miss Ethelwyn Wardell, of Elizabeth, and wore an Empire gown of white point d'esprit over white silk. The bridesmaids gown was an Empire of blue silk. The best man was Harold Rogers Thompson, of Elizabeth, an intimate friend of the groom. Miss Bailey was given away by her father.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. DeMeza will leave this evening for Atlantic City to remain two weeks. They will reside in the borough on returning. The groom is the son of Mrs. Charlotte DeMeza, of West Second street, and is one of the city's best known young men. His bride is a member of the choir of Grace M. E. church. The young couple was remembered by relatives and friends with numerous handsome gifts.

B'GOSH, IT'S GREAT "THAT GREAT WHITE WAY"

Hand in hand and with "rubber-neck" inclinations of their heads, James Golding, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Nestor W. Rappleye, of the borough, strolled up Broadway today. The two old cronies had not seen "the great white way" in many a day. In fact Golding had not been there in twenty-eight years and no records show when Rappleye last saw it except that when he did horse cars were in general use.

Rappleye, it is alleged, first thought that he was at "Luny Park" and insisted in walking in the middle of the street for fear those forty-two story buildings dash blast 'em, might tumble into his ribs. Golding on the other hand could not be induced to get into that hole in the ground which "shute the shutes" with human forms through the city.

Over the telephone, General Bingham denied that he had heard that Golding and Rappleye "were in our midst," but he promised to show 'em a good time if they would pay a visit to Mulberry street.

WOULD-BE SUICIDE MAY NOT RECOVER

Joseph Soukup, the Austrian of Dunellen, who tried to commit suicide at his home several days ago, is not improving at the hospital as well as his friends might expect. As a result of his act, the man has not been able to see out of either eye since the day he shot himself in the head, the wound having effected the optic nerves. The fact that his condition remains about the same as when he was admitted to the hospital, is taken as an indication that his chances for recovery are not so good

Soukup attempted to take his life following a long illness and discouragement over the fact that he was unable to obtain employment. He purchased a revolver at Farmer's hardware store, Dunellen, and going to his home placed a bullet in his head, which has not yet been extracted.

DUNHAM'S COUNSEL WANTS A NEW TRIAL

G. W. V. Moy, of counsel for Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, who was non-suited in the Circuit Court, yesterday by Judge Vail, in his action against the Public Service Corporation for $10,000 damages, has been granted a rule to show cause before the Supreme Court at the next term why the verdict in the cause should not be set aside and a new trial granted.

In the first instance, when in the Supreme Court the Public Service Corporation demurred to the declaration of complainant's counsel, the decision was against the corporation. Yesterday Judge Vail granted the company a non-suit on the grounds that the complainant had not shown negligence on the part of the company.

REV. MR. PARSONS QUITS

Pastor of Christian Church Tenders Resignation Because of Meagre Salary.

MEMBERSHIP IS VERY SMALL.

Popular Young Pastor Forced to Leave Because Congregation Has No Means to Support Him.

Rev. Phil. A. Parsons has resigned the pastorate of the Christian church on Grove street, and the little flock is now without a minister to lead it. Mr. Parsons went to his home in the West the latter part of the summer and when he returned recently informed the members of the church that he would no longer be able to minister to their spiritual wants. One reason given for this was that the church was unable to pay a sufficient salary to properly keep him and he is now engaged for the present with work in New York and acting as a supply for various churches.

The Christian church on more than one occasion has lost its pastor through inability to pay a sufficient salary. The church extension board of the denomination allows the congregation $300 a year toward its expenses, expecting it to raise the balance. The best it can do in this respect is about $200, which is little enough for a pastor. The membership is limited and does not seem to grow to an extent. The denominational board holds a mortgage on the church property whereby the members are prevented from losing it as long as they pay the interest on the mortgage.

At present the members are holding prayer-meetings, the leaders being chosen from among their numbers.

FIRST M. E. WOMEN ENJOY FALL SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of the First M. E. church, a fall social and reunion was held in Vincent chapel last night. The affair was largely attended by members of the church and congregation and the informal program proved a pleasure to all. The feature was the vocal selections by the Plainfield High School quartet, Messrs. Doane, Gideon Fountain, Titsworth and Prior. They were generous in their response to encore and the gathering never seemed to tire of the fine music.

During the social part of the evening's program, the women of the society, whose names begin with the letters "A to H," served refreshments. Mrs. L. M. French, as president of the society, was in charge and planned the entertainment.

He's Going Back to Ireland.

William Gill, who recently came to this city from the County Sligo, Ireland, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged with helpless intoxication at Front and Liberty streets, last night. He acknowledged his guilt but told Judge Runyon if he was released he would continue on with preparations he had been making to return to the Emerald Isle for good. The magistrate took him at his word and suspended sentence. Gill works for a Plainfielder who has a farm on lower Greenbrook road.

LETTER CARRIER'S TRIAL

Daniel J. McNamara, of Local Post Office, Faces Jury in Federal Court.

ACCUSED OF TAKING LETTER.

Postmaster and Assistant Postmaster as Witnesses—Judge Lanning Presides.

Charged with stealing from and delaying the mails in violation of sections 2469, 3891 and 5469 of the United States statutes, Letter-carrier Daniel J. McNamara, of the local postoffice, is on trial under indictment, today before Judge Lanning and a jury in the United States District Court, at Trenton. The government is represented by Assistant United States Attorney Bacon, while John P. Owens, of this city, is counsel for the defendant.

In the complaint Mr. McNamara is charged that on September 10, 1908, he was detected by a postal inspector destroying a letter in the basement at the postoffice. The letter in question it is alleged was written on that date by Miss Erna Arnold, of Liberty street. It contained several snapshot photos and visiting cards upon the back of which was written "With my compliments." The letter, which was addressed to Herbert A. Stine, of North Plainfield, was handed to Letter-carrier John McCormick, it is alleged, and that it was placed on the stamping table at the postoffice.

It was next seen, it is said, in a waste-paper bin in the cellar of the office and was recognized as the one brought in by Carrier McCormick. According to the complaint of the inspector he saw Carrier McNamara destroy the letter.

Among the witnesses called this morning were Miss Erna Arnold, who sent the letter, and Carrier John McCormick to whom she handed the letter on September 10. Other persons in court are Postmaster E. H. Bird and Assistant Postmaster James Martin. The hearing will probably consume the entire day and it may be late tonight when a verdict is returned.

Carrier McNamara was arrested soon after being detected of destroying the letter in question and he was later indicted by the Federal jury, to whom it was referred. He has denied his guilt.

HOPE CHAPEL SOCIETIES CONDUCT A UNION SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the various societies of Hope chapel, a "Union" social was given in the Sunday school rooms, last night. It was attended by 200 members and friends and proved one of the most delightful affairs of the present season.

The program was in charge of G. H. Condict, superintendent of the Sunday-school, who made an opening address, and comprised the following numbers: Piano duet, the Misses May and Louise Ardern; vocal duet, "The Anchor," the Misses Edna and Eunice Eckert; "Bear Stories, by Ira W. Travell; piano duet, the Misses May and Louise Ardern; duet, "O, Wert Thou in the Cawld,' the Misses Edna and Eunice Eckert; vocal selection, Mrs. L. R. Howard. The bear stories told by Mr. Travell were of personal experiences while spending a vacation in Newfoundland the past summer and were very amusing. Light refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program and the attendants enjoyed a social hour.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised the following: Mrs. F. A. Weber, Miss Elsie Slorah, Frank M. Rimmer, James Penney, Hugh Bartley Sweeny and Howard Firstbrook.

Supplementary Hearing Adjourned.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company, through its counsel, Isaac P. Runyon, recently obtained an order from Chief Justice William S. Gummere, to examine J. C. Cooper before John H. VanWinkle, Supreme Court Commissioner, at 10 o'clock this morning, but it was adjourned by request of Alvah A. Clark, of Clark & Case, who represent the defendant. The examination is to be in supplementary proceedings, and will be conducted Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

This is Absolutely True.

A seventeen year old youth today asked at The Daily Press office how a certain member of the Country Club voted on the Sunday golf proposition. When told that he cast a ballot in favor of the innovation, the youth remarked: "He's my Sunday-school teacher; guess I'll go on gathering chestnuts on Sunday."

TUNNEL CONNECTION FOR JERSEY CENTRAL

McAdoo's Company to Extend Its Line from Penna. Station in Jersey City to Communipaw.

WILL BENEFIT PLAINFIELD.

Our Army of Commuters Will Soon Be Able to Get to New York in Better Time.

The Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company will build a tunnel extension from the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Jersey City to connect with the New Jersey Central Railroad at its Communipaw station in Jersey City.

"We have already filed maps for this extension by tunnel," said W. G. McAdoo, president of the Hudson company, yesterday, "but we will not begin this work until the main line from Hoboken to the Hudson Terminal Buildings is finished.

"It will not be necessary to build more tunnels under the Hudson to take in the Jersey Central connection. When a short extension from the main line in Jersey City is built tunnel trains can be run direct from Communipaw to the station at Newark and Railroad avenue. Jersey City, and thence to the Hudson Terminal Buildings in New York. Now, although the Jersey Central station is within half a mile of the heart of Jersey City, the Central's passengers can reach Jersey City only by crossing the Hudson River twice. To make this trip takes at least thirty minutes. When the tunnel extension is built not more than three minutes will be required.

"But the extension will have a wider, more glorious effect on New York," added Mr. McAdoo with enthusiasm. "When it is complete all the steam railroads terminating in Jersey City will have tunnel connections. The Jersey Central, the Pennsylvania, the Erie and the Lackawanna each has its terminal station there. But the Lehigh Valley, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Reading, the Southern Railroad, Seaboard Air Line, Atlantic Coast Line and West Shore all use these stations and terminate along the Jersey water front. So, you see, the tunnel facilities will connect New York with a very large part of the railroad mileage of the country.

"Work on the Cortlandt street tunnel is proceeding at the rate of ten feet per day," Mr. McAdoo concluded. "Fulton street the progress is less rapid, because the bottom of the tunnel is in rock. There is a gap of less than 1,000 feet to close up to have two new tunnels entirely completed under the Hudson River from the Pennsylvania Railroad station to the Hudson terminal buildings. This part of the work should be finished by Feb. 15, 1909. It will be possible to walk through these tunnels then. Trains will be running within ninety days thereafter. The line to Hoboken will be completed at the same time. That part of the line is also finished with the exception of a gap of about 1,000 feet, and this is being rapidly built."

Hard Luck Earns Release.

Robert McIntyre, of Jersey City, and George Wieman, of Elizabeth, were arrested at Park avenue and Second street by Patrolman Kelley, last night, for drunkenness. Both are iron workers who have been out of employment for many weeks and their hard luck stories induced Judge Runyon to suspend sentence. Wieman declared after he was released that his arrest had been a lesson to him and that he would never drink a drop of liquor again so long as he lived.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Interest in the Harvard-Navy football game at Annapolis on Saturday is growing apace, and it may result in one of the best contests of the season. The Crimson eleven, under the coaching of Haughton, has come along fast, and at the present time gives promise of being one of the best ever developed at Cambridge. Dr. McCurdy, head coach of the Springfield Training School team, which was beaten by a score of 44 to 0 on Saturday, is qualified to express an opinion, and he said after the game:

"The Harvard football team is generally better, faster, more aggressive and stronger this year than whenwe met it at this time last season. It is hard to compare Harvard with Princeton because we played the Tigers so early in the season, but I do not think the Harvard team helps its runner along as well as do the Princeton players. Harvard is much better at this time than ever before; in fact, the team is better in every way than any Harvard eleven I have ever seen."

Judging from what one of the Navy coaches had to say the midshipmen do not fear Harvard and are counting on a victory. Fullback and one end are about the only positions on the Navy team which are uncertain at present. Richardson may possibly be replaced by Dalton at full and King may play one of the end positions. Dalton has been playing remarkably well and punting on an average of fifty-five yards. He is not so experienced a man as Richardson, but his punting ability and his rapid improvement in both offensive and defensive work may land him the position.

The Navy is experiencing some trouble with her ends. Reifsnider and Robertson have developed into fairly good men, but King seems to be the only second string end of 'varsity calibre. Bischoff, Donelson and Nicholas played part of the time during the Lehigh game, but did not make a startling impression.

It turns out that Midshipman Douglas and Midshipman Dague have been ordered to temporary duty at the Academy until after the West Point game, and they will spend much of their time on the gridiron. This step is indicative of the interest taken by the Navy Department in athletics at Annapolis. These Navy stars of last year will be valuable assistants to the regular coaching staff.

Captain Northcroft is steadily improving in accuracy in place kicking. His performance in the Lehigh game will tend to keep Harvard constantly on the anxious seat whenever the Navy has possession of the ball within forty yards of the Crimson goal. Lange and Jones are counted upon in catching and running back punts, and a general air of confidence prevails in the brigade.

Plainfield, N. J., October 21, 1908.

A REGRETTABLE PRECEDENT.

Unmindful of the protests voiced by the clergy, the local press and others deeply interested in the welfare of the community, the Plainfield Country Club last with disregard for the time-honored American Sabbath, and without heeding the stern mandate of the law of New Jersey, inaugurated a policy which in time may change the whole character of this town, rob it of its precious reputation of being the model municipality in the State and hold it up to censure and ridicule.

Sunday golf and tennis indulged in by the rich and mighty means Sunday baseball and football by those in humbler walks of life. It means that the man who has to depend on six consecutive days of toil each week for his living will now have his recreation on the Sabbath day, just the same as the man of means and opportunity, who can wel afford a week day for his pleasure will now have his golf. The little boy who would see a baseball game on Sunday afternoon rather than attend Sunday school will now point to the influential citizen who plays golf on that day as his example. I is most regrettable.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie will give a talk in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church tonight on his vacation experiences in England.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold its first fall meeting Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Vincent chapel, with Miss May Randolph, superintendent in charge, assisted by Miss Mattie Humble.

Gave a Euchre Party.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, of West Front street, entertained a number of their friends last night at a progressive euchre party. The evening was a most enjoyable one and at the conclusion of play it was announced that Mrs. H. Basteen, of Philadelphia and Benjamin LaVere were the winners of the first prize; Miss Helen Beard and Clarence Rittenhouse the second prizes, while the booby prizes were won by Mrs. B. Snyder and William B. Sharp. Those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. J P. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Sharp, Miss Helen Beard, Miss Edith Parker, Mrs. H. Basteen, of Philadelphia; Miss Bessie Slater, of Glen Gardner; Mrs. C. Lewis, Miss Carrie Dawes and Mrs. Helen Homan. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

LOCAL OPTION PEOPLE NAME THEIR FAVORITES

The New Jersey Local Option League has sent out the result of the examination it has made of the candidates for the Senate and Assembly on the Republican and Democratic tickets, and at the same time has asked voters to support those candidates who approve of a change in the excise laws along local option lines.

The State league has indorsed only those candidates who have made written pledges promising to vote for a local option bill. A complete local option ticket is not given, therefore, in many counties where the opinions of candidates on the local option question have not been expressed.

Out of a total of thirty-three recommendations made twelve of the candidates indorsed are Democrats. While not publicly recommending many of the candidates because of their failure to make a definite pledge, the league is said to back several Republicans, who are "probably favorable."

These names have not yet been announced. By Election Day the State league will make known the probable ones, so that a full ticket of local option candidates will be in the field.

In recommending voters as to the choice of candidates for the Assembly, the State Local Option League indorses the following candidates by counties:

Atlantic—No recommendations, as both candidates are against the local option bill.

Bergen—Frank W. Burr, Democrat.

Burlington—James B. Fish, Democrat; Dr. C. H. Wilkinson, Democrat.

Camden—Joseph Potter, Republican; Harry B. Tatem, Republican; William E. Decker, Democrat.

Cape May—Evans C. Slaughter, Democrat.

Cumberland—B. Frank Buck, Republican; Isaac Nichols, Republican; Frederick Myers, Democrat; Ralph Sheppard, Democrat.

Essex—Austen Colgate, Republican; Philip C. Walsh, Jr., Republican; Henry C. Hines, Republican; William P. Martin, Republican.

Gloucester—Walter Heritage, Republican.

Hudson—Arthur Dear, Republican; James E. Wooley, Republican, Clarence Meeks, Republican.

Hunterdon—Archibald G. Smith, Republican.

Mercer—No recommendations.

Middlesex—S. C. Van Cleef, Democrat; Howard Butcher, Democrat; William C. Aiken, Prohibitionist.

Monmouth—Munroe V. Poole, Republican; David E. Tantum, Democrat.

Morris—Allen J. Looker, Jr., Democrat.

Ocean—B. H. Crosby, Republican.

Passaic—L. Blauvelt, Republican; Edwin T. Moore, Republican.

Salem—Samuel Ridgeway, Independence party.

Somerset—William Smalley, Republican.

Sussex—(No recommendations.)

Union—Carlton B. Pierce, Republican; Wilbur F. Brower, Democrat; A. W. Schwartz Republican.

Warren—(No recommendations.)

In regard to the vote for Senators in the State, State Superintendent J. Frank Burke of the Local Option League, had the following to say:

"Of the counties which will elect Senators to the State Legislature this year—Camden, Essex, Gloucester, Monmouth, Somerset, Salem, Union and Warren—we have made selections of candidates whom we believe deserve our support in all, but, Monmouth and Warren counties."

The candidates indorsed are the following:

Camden—William J. Bradley, Republican.

Gloucester—Prohibition candidate indorsed.

Essex—Everett Colbby, Republican.

Somerset—Nelson Y. Dungan, Democrat.

Salem—William Plummer, Jr., Republican.

Union—Both Ernest R. Ackerman, Republican and Frederick C. Hyer, Democrat, are for the local option bill (no recommendations made).

The officers chosen for the year are as follows:

President, S. C. Preston, of Jersey City; vice-president, C. R. Vincent, of Scotch Plains; secretary-treasurer, Rev. Fraik Fletcher, of this city. The report of the treasurer showed the asspciaiton to be in good condition, and the membership steadily growing. It was decided by a vote to continue the committee having under consideration the consolidation of this association with the East New Jersey Baptist association and a report will be presented at the next meeting. Addjournment was then taken for supper.

The principal feature of the evening session was the address by Rev. E. A. Woods, of Somerville, who spoke on "The Closet and the Battlefield." The chief thought in his admirable talk was the fact that every Christian is commissioned to go forth and preach and teach the Gospel of Christ in both the home and foreign mission fields, and that strength for service can only be obtained through prayer in the "secret closet." Dr. Woods remarks were exceedingly helpful and inspiring and was an urgent call to duty on the part of every Christian worker, including the Sunday-school teacher.

At the evening session it was decided to accept the invitation to meet next year with the Lyons Farms Baptist church.

Young Folks on Straw Ride.

A party of twenty local young people enjoyed a straw ride to Springfield last night. Supper was enjoyed at the destination before the return trip was commenced. The affair was arranged by Lawrence O'Neill, Theodore Pruden, Adelbert Edell and Raymond Strayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morcom, of Plainfield avenue, have returned home after a month's visit with relatives in England.

FORT LAUDED BY SYNOD

Presbyterians Plan for a State-Wide Crusade for Local Option.

SOME ENCOURAGING REPORTS.

Committees Are Appointed—Big Increase in Foreign Mission Fund—Much Work Done.

New Jersey has never before so well observed the Sabbath day as since the induction of Governor Fort and his crusade against Sunday saloons and other forms of Sabbath breaking, according to the report formulated yesterday by the Sabbath observance committee of the Presbyterian synod of New Jersey for presentation to the body today.

The report declares that the work of the Governor has virtually ended Sunday rum selling throughout the State, and his moral support may be asked for a movement now being considered toward placing the ban upon automobiling and golf on the Lord's Day. Success of the crusade against Sunday golfing at Collingswood was quoted as an example of the means to be taken for law observance.

Partisans of the local option movement are planning to secure the support of the eight Presbyteries of the State for the intended state-wide crusade for home government in counties, and the matter will probably cause a lively debate when the special report is presented.

Communications were received yesterday, from the Anti-Saloon League asking for support of the churchmen and women in the attempt to wipe out the saloon altogether, and this phase of the liquor question will also come up later in the session.

May Object to Politics.

Members of the synod are expected to object to the semi-political methods being used by both the local option and anti-saloon leaders.

Permission was given at the morning session, which formally opened the synod, for withdrawal of Newark churches from the home mission work of the State for the purpose of allowing the big churches of that city to use the money raised in their district for home purposes. The Rev. Dr. Inglis and other speakers from Newark drew attention to the fact that Newark Presbyterians raise more money than they are assessed for the great work of teaching their foreign populace, and contend that other cities that are not so deeply interested secure a large share of those contributions, which should be used directly within the Newark district.

Dr. Inglis declared that Jersey City, Camden, Passaic and Paterson are receiving much more money than is raised in their own churches, and advocated some plan by which cities where goodly collections are secured be allowed to have the benefit of the liberality shown by their church folk toward missionary work.

Members of the synod refused to support a measure asking for an appeal to the State Board of Education for a part of a day of each week to be devoted to religious instruction for the children. The measure contemplated releasing of the pupils on one afternoon of each week to allow them to attend special services in their own churches, but members opposed, urging that there is likelihood that the holiday would not be put to the use intended by many of the pupils.

Mission Funds Mounting.

Funds raised for foreign mission work have increased nearly $20,000 per year during the past five years, according to financial reports, but home mission funds show very little increase, owing to lack of interest in local church work.

The presbytery districts may be changed before next year by a special committee that has been ordered to take up the matter following adjournment of the presbytery. The meeting will close today.

President Roosevelt is an active supporter of the spreading of the gospel by means of distribution of Bibles in foreign lands, according to the Rev. John Fox, of New York, who preached to the President at Oyster Bay during the summer. Dr. Fox, secretary of the National Bible Society, reported that England has circulated 200,000,000 Bibles during the past 100 years, and that America has sent out 82,000,000 Bibles in the same time.

Fights Open Sunday.

Asserting his knowledge that 200,000 German-Americans have formed an alliance in his State to make an attempt at killing laws for Sunday ban on liquor, the Rev. T. T. Mutchler, secretary of the Pennsylvania Sabbath Observance Association, pleaded with the members of the Presbyterian synod last night for assistance in fighting any attempt for an open Sunday. He added that the alliance is being promoted throughout the country, and that already 1,500,000 advocates of open Sunday have been enrolled.

He declared that the open defiance of the Sunday laws along the New Jersey coast cities is spreading disaffection throughout the country through visitors who carry home the idea that they should be able to secure Sunday booze, and spoke of Atlantic City and other resorts as the real battle ground for Sunday reform.

The synod went on record as willing to assist Governor Fort in continuance of his efforts to force closed Sundays, and condemned any attempt to get through laws which might allow even the continental partly open Sunday. "Christian people cannot part in any movement that will countenance Sabbath breaking in any form," said the resolution, in part.

The moderator announced the following committees yesterday:

Bills and Overtures—Dr. William Holloway, Dr. Robert S. Inglis, Dr. Eben B. Cobb, Rev. Walter B. Greenway, Elders John Reed, William L. Strong, Henry B. Moore.

Judicial Business—Rev. Percy B. Shelly, Rev. Samuel H. Thompson, Dr. James W. Rogan, Dr. James McLeod, Elders Stephen H. Berry, Jere M. Cobb, R. Bruce Vail.

Minutes of General Assembly—Rev. William S. Stuchell, Rev. Chas. H. Whitaker, Elder Edward L. Cook.

Nafrative for 1909—Rev. Joseph L. Ewing, Dr. Henry T. Beatty, Elder Henry A. Cozzens.

Finance—Rev. George K. Newell, Rev. Paul Martin, Elders John C. Allen, Edward M. Fithian.

Synodical Home Missions Account—Rev. Nelson B. Chester, Elder Leander N. Lovell.

Revision of Permanent Committees—Rev. Samuel Parry, Elder Charles G. Rockwood.

New Jersey Synod Leads.

The Synod of New Jersey, through its churches, gave last year more per capita for the work of foreign missions than any other synod, the amount per member being 79.5 cents. New York was second, with 77 cents and Pennsylvania third, with 51.6 cents.

New Jersey for all causes of benevolence ranks third in gifts, the Presbyterian churches having given $62,835.45 last year to outside work.

Taking benevolences by presbyteries throughout the country it was stated that the Presbytery of Morris and Orange, with $1.42 per member, was second in its amount of gifts, the Presbytery of New York standing first, with $2.21 per member.

In connection with synodical home missions, the treasurer of that committee, W. P. Stevenson, of Roselle, made a financial report. The total receipts for the year amounted to $25,928.22. Of this the distribution to presbyteries was: Presbytery of Elizabeth, $2,200; Presbytery of Jersey City, $3,032; Presbytery of Jersey City, Italian work, $1,343.63; Presbytery of Monmouth, $3,165.33; Presbytery of Morris and Orange, $1,655; Presbytery of Newark, $3,065.22; Prebytery of New Brunswick, $1,881.88; Presbytery of Newton, $1,243.72; Presbytery of West Jersey, $4,390.37; for administration expenses, $360.15; total, $22,337.30. The gifts of Newark churches to synodical missions were as follows: Bloomfield, First, $300; Bloomfield, Westminster, $135; Caldwell, First, $50; Montclair, First, $100; Montclair, Grace, $8; Montclair, Trinity, $70; Montclair, Upper, $25; Montclair, Italian, $5, Newark, First church, $400; Newark, Second, $230; Newark, Third, $300; Newark, Sixth, $35; Newark, Elizabeth Avenue, $25.

DUNELLEN REPUBLICANS HOLD ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY

The Dunellen Republican Club held a rousing rally in the headquarters in the Ratti building, last night, during which the G. O. P. doctrines were enthusiastically applauded. The meeting room was filled to its capacity.

Frederick A. Pope, of Somerville, the well known Somerset county lawyer, was the principal speaker and gave an interesting talk on the national issues. He compared the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties and pointed out for the benefit of his auditors in a concise way just why it would be to their advantage to have "Bill" Taft succeed Roosevelt. His remarks were frequently interrupted by applause and he occupied the platform the greater part of the evening.

At a business meeting following the speaking, the club made arrangements to swing a Taft and Sherman banner within the next few days. It will be put up near the corner of North and Washington avenues and the occasion will give the party followers a chance to display some old-fashioned enthusiasm.

Last night's meeting was in charge of Wilson S. Frederick, president of the Dunellen club.

A Heavy Production.

Owing to the heaviness of the production of "The Right to Live," booked for the New Plainfield theatre Saturday, there will be no matinee performance. The play is one of the strongest dramas of the present season and is spoken of in the highest terms. The author is Jules Eckert Goodman, a graduate of Harvard and a dramatist of recognized ability. Miss Grayce Scott will interpret the leading role and she will be supported by a specially selected company.

Dr. Louis T. Reed, of this city, is spending the month at the home of his mother, Mrs. Annie E. Reed, in Somerville.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

For clever lines, pretty girls, tuneful songs, rich, dazzling scenery the fourth edition of "The Black Crook," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, is unsurpassed almost unequally by any musical comedy of today. The piece reflects all the buoyant comedy and dashing imagination of the old favorites as regards lines and situations. The most striking feature of "The Black Crook" is the artistic and lavish care that has been expended on every detail of its scenery and costuming; so superbly mounted a show is seldom produced under any theatrical management and in selecting the cast Messrs. Fraser and Donazetta have been equally discriminating. If there were no major roles in this musical comedy you still would find enough to satisfy you in the crowd of chorus girls that vitalize every scene. They are all good singers and dancers and their work is filled with youth and enthusiasm.

The New Plainfield theatre, Friday night offers a new version of the famous "Salome Dance." La Manolita and her ballet of fourteen girls will appear in the "Dance of Salome" during the performances of the musical comedy "Too Many Wives." La Manolita is described as a clever dancer, with a pleasing face and a most graceful figure. Her litheness of body and quickness of limb and foot, are the attributes of the pretty stage pictures she presents in her rendition of the dance which is all artistic without a single objectionable feature. Both press and public have united in pronouncing it a finished performance, without a peer among the many dancers who have attempted its presentation.

When playwrights reach the prominence of Augustus Thomas, Clyde Fitch and a very few others, one of their most insisted upon perogatives is the selection of the cast to appear in their brain products. While Mr. Jules Eckert Goodman, author of "The Right to Live," which is to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday night, did not have a provision covering a selection of the players in his contract, it is certain that he could not cavil at the selections made by the play's management. As the roles for the most part, so it is said, are most original and unusual so has what appears to be an unusual cast, been selected.

Grayce Scott into whose keeping has been given the principal feminine role is possessed of a physical attractiveness and charm that are but the complement of her unmistakable artistic ability, while Albert Bruning has by a succession of characterizations covering many years established himself as one of the foremost actors on the American stage. He was last season the "Mortensgaard" of Mrs. Fiske's production of "Rosmerholm," in which his success was everywhere recognized and commented upon. The cast also includes that well known artist, Miss Eleanor Moretti, who in the role of Cissie Yvonne, has one of the most original and daring contributions that the stage has known in many years. Others in the company are Lulu Klein, Vivian Townsend, Morgan Wallace, last season leading man with Lillian Russell, Ralph Morgan, an exceptionally talented young Columbia graduate, Brigham Royce, Charles Laite, and Master John Tansy.

Laughter and music are the two things which seem to make the average man and woman forget their troubles, the weather included. "Little Mose" or "A Night in Venice," which is booked at the New Plainfield next Monday night, provides these care-chasers in such abundance that there is not a moment in which to remember the state of atmosphere or the market. "Little Mose" is an entertainment pure and simple. Novelty follows on music and specialty follows on comedy and, interspersed is bright dialogue, which makes the most sombre burst into gayest laughter. The entertainment is provided by a lively company of fun makers aided and abetted by as attractive a chorus as has ever graced any stage. The pace set by the whole company is a fast and furious one, and never for an instant does it slacken from first to last.

RARITAN.

Preparations are being made by the young people of Raritan to go in the parade in Somerville on Hallowe'en night, and hopes run high when prizes are discussed. It is expected that several will be brought back to Raritan.

A Democratic meeting was held last evening in St. Bernard's Hall by a club which has been organized in Raritan which holds its meetings in the Ehni building.

Mrs. Frank Gheen, of New York, sister of William F. Greene, is in the Somerset Hospital. Mr. Gheen and son are staying in Raritan.

Sunday was observed as "autumn day" in the Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. S. D. Harris, occupied the pulpit at both services.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wachter, of Elizabeth, spent last week with the latter's mother, Mrs. William Sheehan, on Doughty street.

Miss Jennie Hickey returned yesterday from Bayonne, where she spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Frank Smith.

"May I go with you?" asked Crane; "I want to see your father."

"Yes, I shall be glad to drive you over."

XXXVIII.

When they had passed the edge of the village the banker said: "I doubt if you would have shaken hands with Mr. Mortimer if you knew."

"I do know of this terrible thing," she answered. "I shook hands with him because I believe him innocent."

"You know more than we do?" It was not a sneer; if so, too delicately veiled for detection.

"Mr. Mortimer could not steal—it is impossible."

"Have you sufficient grounds for your faith—do you happen to know who took the money, for it was stolen?"

The girl did not answer. Her stand had simply been one of implicit faith in the man she had conjured into a hero of all that was good and noble. She had not asked herself who the guilty man was; her faith told her it was morally impossible for Mortimer to become a thief.

Her companion waited for an answer with his usual well-bred patience.

Mortimer, being innocent, replaced the stolen money, Allis' mind tabulated—she tickled this thought off on the horse with her whip—it was to shield some one. Her heart told her, his eyes had told her, that he would have taken upon himself this great risk but for one person, her brother. Why did Mortimer go to Gravesend? It must have been to see Alan—the boy was there. If he had discovered that the money was missing, and thought Alan had taken it, he would do this; if he had suspected some other person he would have made the matter known to the cashier. He did not replace the money at once, because he hadn't it. Her brother had told her that Mortimer had won a lot of money over the horse. Surely that was the money, his winnings, with which he had replaced the thousand dollars.

She saw it all. Truly her position was one of extreme hopelessness. Two men she loved stood before her mentally, one accused of others as a thief, and one—her own brother—charged by her reason with the crime.

Under the continued silence Crane grew restless; the girl, almost oblivious of his presence, gave no sign of a desire to pursue the discussion.

"Of course I am anxious to clear the young man if he is innocent," hazarded the banker, to draw her gently back into the influence that he felt must be of profit to himself.

Allis answered, his observation—he distinctly felt the vibration of pain in her voice—with a startling depth of analytical discernment:

"While I believe in Mortimer's innocence, and will always believe in it, I am afraid that he has drawn such a web of circumstantial evidence about him, trying to shield some one else, that—that—it is too terrible!" she broke off, passionately—"he is innocent. For God's sake, Mr. Crane"—she took the reins in her whip hand, and put her left on his arm, pleadingly—"for God's sake, for his mother's sake, save him. You can do it. The money has been paid back."

"It isn't that, Miss Allis"—his voice was cuttingly even—"in a bank one must not have a dishonest person. If Mortimer can clear himself by fastening the crime upon the perpetrator—"

"He will never do that; he cannot if he would."

"What can I do, then, Miss Allis? But why shouldn't he?"

"Can't you see—don't you understand the man? He commenced by shielding some one, and he will carry it through to the bitter end."

"I am afraid there was no one to shield but himself—everything points to this conclusion. It's unpleasant to even hint at such a contingency, but if Mortimer is innocent, then your brother must be the guilty one."

He expected the girl to denounce indignantly such a possibility; he was surprised that she remained silent. Her non-refutation of this deduction told him as conclusively as though she had uttered the accusation that she thought Alan had taken the money and Mortimer was shielding him.

Against all evidence she was holding this man honest, believing her brother the thief.

Surely a love like that was worth winning. Her very faith in Mortimer, through which she sought to save him by inspiring Crane, determined the latter to crush utterly the man who stood between him and this great love.

"If you bring this home to Mr. Mortimer you will punish him, arrest him?"

"That would be the usual course."

He could feel the strong fingers press his arm as though she would hod him to her wishes.

"You will not do this," she said; "for my sake you will not."

"You ask this of me, and it is for your sake?"

"Yes, if there is no other way; if Mr. Mortimer, innocent, must take upon himself this crime, then for my sake you will not punish him."

The gray eyes were violet-black in their intensity.

"If I promise—" He had been going to ask for reward, but she broke in, saying: "You will keep your word, and I will bless you."

"Nothing more—is that all?"

The magnetism of the intense eyes broke down his reserve; he slipped back twenty years in a second. Love touched him with a fire-wand, and his soul ignited. Cold, passionless Philip Crane spoke in a tongue unfamiliar as it was to him, that carried conviction that he was earnest, that he was possessed of a humanizing love. She listened patiently while he pleaded his cause with much mastery. It was beyond her understanding, that, though Mortimer through all time had spoken not at all of love to her—at least not in the passionate words that came from this man's lips—yet she now heard as though it were his voice and not Crane's. Love was a glorious thing—with Mortimer.

Crane's intensity availed nothing. When he asked why she held faith to a man who must be known for all time as a thief, her soul answered: "It is nothing—because he is innocent."

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?

Does it ache especially after exertion?

Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms indicate weak kidneys;

There is danger in delay.

Weak kidneys fast get weaker.

Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly.

They strengthen weak kidneys.

Read this Plainfield testimony.

Mrs. Oliver Voorhees, 21 Stone street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Mr. Voorhees publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills in 1905 and I am now glad to confirm all he said at that time. He suffered from attacks of backache for years and the trouble would not yield to any treatment. His whole body was often very lame and sore and he had quite a bit of trouble from the irregular action of the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills, which he procured at Randolph's Pharmacy, helped him from the first and in a short time drove all symptoms of kidney complaint from his system. Since then he has never ceased praising this remedy."

will take part in the evening service. One of their number will sing a solo.

Delegates from Springfield and Summit may make connection with the Rahway Valley Railroad, and return by special at 1:30 p. m.

Luncheon will be served to delegates by the women of Westfield churches. The First Presbyterian church is easily accessible, and a large attendance is expected.

The Rev. William B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, is the efficient recording secretary of the county association, while the Rev. Dr. H. H. Sleeper, another Elizabeth clergyman, holds the office of first vice-president. The roster of officers follows:

President, the Rev. J. M. Stifler, Roselle; first vice-president, the Rev. H. H. Sleeper, Ph. D., Elizabeth; second vice-president, the Rev. Ora J. Shoop, Plainfield; third- vice-president, the Rev. Almer W. Karnell, Union; secretary and treasurer, Richard P. Greaves, Westfield; recording secretary, the Rev. W. B. Hamilton, Elizabeth; home department superintendent, Mrs. Almer W. Karnell.

COUNTY ENDEAVORERS TO RALLY AT CRANFORD.

On Friday evening, October 30, a rally of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, of which Wallace E. Kendall, of this city, is president, will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Cranford. It had been intended to hold the meeting on Thursday evening next, but Union County Sunday School Association having changed its annual meeting from the fifteenth to the twenty-second, the Endeavorers decided to postpone their meeting until Friday evening of the subsequent week. The rally will be in the form of an echo of the recent convention of the State C. E. Union at Atlantic City. Arthur N. Pierson, the retiring treasurer of the State union, will make the principal address, and others who attended the convention will speak briefly concerning their impressions of the gathering. Among these will be Charles F. Windham, secretary of the Plainfield C. E. Union.

The Cranford Presbyterian church is easily accessible from nearly all parts of the county, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. Miss Anna Berglund, secretary of the county union, is sending out invitations to the societies. It is suggested that where possible the young people go by special trolley. It has been some time since the county organization has held a public meeting, and it is urged that each society send as large a delegation as possible.

For the Shirtwaist.

A new jabot is formed of batiste tabs with crocheted edging, each tab trimmed with three batiste-covered buttons. A fine knife-plaited ruffle of valenciennes falls under the tabs, and at the right are double ruffles of knife-plaited batiste edged with valenciennes and an insertion of valenciennes. Valenciennes bow.

The Season's Broadcloths.

The broadcloths are more beautiful than ever before and will be much used for one-piece dresses. Among the new broadcloths brought out in soft weave for winter wear is one of black and dull gray stripe. It is an odd combination for broadcloth, and will probably be very popular.

—The Bucks County Club, of Elizabeth, the members of which were born in Bucks county, Pa., were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bushnell at Rahway Friday night.

Rally of All Societies.

All the various societies connected with Hope chapel joined in a reunion and rally at the chapel last night. There was a musical and literary program, followed by refreshments.

WILL GOLF ON SUNDAYS

of being one of the best governed cities in the State. Our public schools took first prize at the Jamestown Exposition and ten years before the Bishops' law was passed, Plainfield had adopted the very best features of it. Plainfield has been considered high toned, and high principled. When this amendment was defeated before the action of the members was commended.

"In the first place I say that it is not fair to force the opponents to the amendment into a dilemma, and in the second place the Sunday opening and playing would be a violation of the law, while in the third place the best law demands that the people sink their self-interests in support of good government."

Mr. Marsh's remarks were roundly applauded by a goodly number of those present, but it was plainly evident that a majority did not agree with him.

The appearance of Charles A. Reed was the occasion for an outburst of applause and much enthusiasm. He said that he could not agree with Mr. Marsh when he said that it would be unfair to amend the constitution of the club, on the grounds that originally Sunday opening Sunday opening or playing was prohibited.

"I understand," said Mr. Reed, "that this prohibitive measure was not incorporated in the constitution until a year or two after the club was formed, but granted that it was there originally, I maintain that two-thirds of the members have a fight to change the constitution. Why be unfair to the two-thirds and fair to one-third? I suppose that if the Ten Commandments had been incorporated in the constitution and we wanted to change them now we would be guilty of arson, murder or something else.

"As to the legal effect. That argument is unsound. Nearly every golf course in the State is open on Sunday and members of the court and their children often play the game on Sunday. We are told in one place in the Bible that Judas went out and hanged himself, and in another place we read, 'Go thou and do likewise,' but no one would think of doing so. As to the question of civic pride, I have failed to see where the town has been built up because Sunday golf was not played. This is a question for the club members to decide themselves and not one of an indictment because they want the privilege of playing golf on Sunday."

Directly after Mr. Reed concluded his remarks, which were greeted with great applause, the question was called, and President Calkins announced that as the roll of members was called "yes" would mean a vote in favor of the amendment and "no" a vote against it. As the names of the members were called by Secretary J. E. Murray, Julius E. Erickson and W. D. Murray, who were appointed tellers, counted the vote. During the voting there was occasional merriment. When D. H. Rowland's name was called he first said "yes," but quickly changed it to "no" the incident being accompanied by general laughter. When Mrs. George A. Strong's name was called she made no response, but afterward she made her presence known and expressed a desire to vote "no." Henry L. Hall arose and objected to the vote being counted, declaring that rightfully it should not be counted. This opposition was greeted with a storm of protest.

There was a report in circulation that the members of the Watchung Hunt Club would attend the meeting and support the amendment to a man, but there was a noticeable absence of any such influence.

Concert a Great Success.

The twenty-ninth concert of the Y. M. C. A., and the first one of this season, attracted a capacity audience to the association building last night, and the exceptional program rendered by the orchestra under the direction of Martin A. Korff, was greatly enjoyed. Three numbers rendered in part one were loaned for the occasion by the Plainfield Public Library, and were the selection of Dr Leonard Waldo. The various classical numbers were given in an excellent manner, and the solo parts received hearty applause, especially Miss Josephine Martin. The success atending the first concert speaks well for those to follow during the winter.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church held its first fall rally and social in Vincent chapel, last night. There was an informal program of music and refreshments were served.

G. O. P. CLUB SMOKER BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

All voters, irrespective of party, are invited to attend the smoker to be held by the Plainfield Republican Club at the Republican headquarters in the Coward building tonight. County Chairman Frank H. Smith, City Chairman Winfield S. Angleman and Club President Leslie M. Daniel will be on hand to welcome the voters, as will al the county candidates, including State Senator E. R. Ackerman, Captain Robert Kirkland and Assembly Nominees Pierce, Schwartz and Kirstein.

E. T. Lovatt, a particularly witty speaker, will be the only speaker, but there will be lots doing. Cigars in abundance have been laid in by the entertainment committee and there will be a general good time all around.

FIVE LARGE BOTTLES TAKEN FROM SEWER PIPE.

The connecting pipe between a house on West Second street and the sanitary sewer has given the residents considerable trouble of late and yesterday it became stopped up entirely. Plumbers were sent around by D. W. Littell and it was found necessary to dig up the connection. When the turn near the main pipes was reached, the workmen took five large-sized bottles out of the joint. How they came to get in the sewer is a mystery no one has been able to explain.

In many cities, the use of the sanitary sewer is covered by strict regulations and clogging it up with bottles or any other obstruction results in the punishment of the offenders. Plainfield has had many instances of improper use of the pipes and it is probable that the authorities will take steps to pass an ordinance to put an end to the practice.

Coroner Hebermann Fined.

Joseph Hebermann, whoo conducts a dairy on Somerset street, was fined $2 in the borough police court, last night, for throwing a broken milk bottle in the gutter near his store. Recorder Dolliver also severely lectured him for the offense. The borough police have received numerous complaints about the practise and measures are being taken to stop it. Hebermann, who is coroner in Warren township, said he thought he had a right to throw the bottle in the street.

Cook Hearing Postponed.

Hearing in the case of Harold Cook, the young man charged by Miss Jessie Smith with a serious offense, was indefinitely postponed when called before Judge Runyon in the city court this afternoon. It was stated by the police that the complainant would be unable to appear for at least ten days. Cook was not produced by his lawyer and is still confined in the county jail in default of $2,000 bail.

Petty Thieves Breaking Into Barns.

Both the city and borough police have received complaints from Front and Somerset street merchants that petty thieves have been breaking into barns and stealing whips, robes and harness. Among those who have suffered in this way recently are J. P. Homan, W. W. Warnock and A. B. Stites. Cops on both sides of the brook have been put on the watch.

Case Adjourned Until Tomorrow.

Only three witnesses for the prosecution were examined in the action of John Young and Jack and Wilhelm Capitella against Rev. George A. Francis, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, which was started yesterday in the county court. An adjournment was taken until tomorrow, when other witnesses will be called.

A Birthday Surprise.

Nathan R. Lees, of Manning avenue, was tendered a surprise party by forty friends; last night, in honor of his birthday anniversary. Naylor's orchestra provided music for the occasion and games and supper were other features. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Edward Townley and Mrs. E. Victor Lorton.

All the Republican clubs in Union county will take part in the demonstration. The clubs will arrive by railroad and stages before 8 o'clock and will be met and welcomed by the reception committee of twelve at Elizabeth. Every club in the city is invited to take part in the parade which will start from the arch at 8:15. Major William B. Martin has accepted the appointment of grand marshal. A Rahway uniformed club will head the parade.

A band of twelve pieces has been engaged. The lower part of the theatre will be reserved for the members of clubs, but the galleries will be open at 7:30. Hetfield, Jr., will have charge of the stage, on which will sit the vice-presidents of the clubs, members of the county and city committees and other distinguished Republicans.

The expenses of the meeting will be paid by the several clubs and by the sale of the eight boxes, several of which have been already sold. The boxes will be the best places for ladies to enjoy the meeting. The lower boxes are on sale ot $25 each and the upper boxes at $10 each. Whoever wants a box reserved should apply to the committee in charge of the boxes, William Gellatly, of Cranford; Sidney M. Judge Raymond, of Essex county, will speak, also Congressman Fowler and other candidates. A distinguished Republican has been asked to preside and he will be introduced by the chairman of the league.

"FARMER ORATOR" ARRAIGNS COUNTY JAIL MANAGEMENT.

In a speech at a Democratic mass meeting in Turn hall, Elizabeth, last night, James E. Martine, of this city, Democratic candidate for sheriff, severely criticised the present management of the Union county jail. He asserted that the prisoners are not sufficiently fed and that the sameness in the fare day after day has caused some of the inmates to contract scurvy. The "farmer orator" declared that Sheriff Lawrence is paid thirty five cents a day for the feeding of each prisoner but that what he provides costs less than twenty cents.

"They tell me" said Mr. Martine, "that the inmates never get any green food and if that is so I can assure Sheriff Lawrence he can have all the cabbage he wants at Cedar Brook, and if that isn't enough I'll top it off with the finest water cress in the State."

At the end of his speech, the Plainfielder asserted that if he was elected to the office of sheriff he would accept no stipend made at the expense of the prisoners entrusted to his care.

Pedeflous Case Goes Over.

The Somerset county court adjourned this morning until November 9, all cases going over until that time. Hearing in the case of Henry Pedeflous, indicted for the sale of liquor on Sundays, was scheduled for this morning, but was not reached. Mr. Pedeflous is being represented by John A. Frech, of Somerville.

Breese Case Still On.

The case of Mrs. Ella Breese, of this city, against the Public Service Corporation for $5,000 damages, which was started in the Union county court yesterday, is still on today and will probably not be finished until late this afternoon.

TRINITY CALLS A PASTOR

Reformed Flock Unanimously Asks Rev. Mr. Brooks to Be Its Minister.

THE CONSISTORY RECOMMENDS

Rev. John Brook, of Asbury Park, to Succeed Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, Pastor-Emeritus.

Unanimity and enthusiasm marked the meeting at Trinity Reformed church, last night, when the Consistory announced that it was prepared to extend a call to Rev. John Y. Brook, of the Grand Avenue Reformed church, Asbury Park, to become its pastor to succeed Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, and asked the members of the church to ratify its action. There was a very large attendance of members and a feature was the delightful Christian feeling and harmony that prevailed. Not one dissenting voice was heard or expressed against the action of the Consistory and all seemed to feel that they were being guided by a Divine hand in making a decision.

The question of calling a pastor was taken up following the regular prayer-meeting, and the election of elders and deacons. Elder George L. Van Emburgh conducted the prayer-meeting and his remarks were especially helpful and appropriate. Afterward Horace J. Martin, Sr., was chosen chairman of the congregational meeting and Deacon Edgar F. Sheppard was made secretary.

George L. Van Emburg, Robert Clark, Jr., and H. E. Gayle were re-elected elders, and William F. Oliver, A. K. Willett and William Kriney were re-elected deacons, the secretary casting the ballot.

Then at the request of Mr. Martin, F. E. Smith, speaking for the Consistory, made a clear and concise statement regarding the work of securing a successor to Dr. Schenck.

"I scarcely know what to say to you at this time," began Mr. Smith. "Soon after Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck resigned, the Consistory took up the work of securing a successor. The task was a large one as there was a long list to consider, the names of twenty-nine ministers being regularly presented. All were not candidates, but they were ministers whom one and another recommended and all received more or less consideration.

"We are greatly indebted to Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, our acting-pastor, for his help and aid, not that he influenced the Consistory in its work, but he gave valuable assistance. We leaned heavily upon him. Two candidates were presented early, but the Consistory did not feel that it was directed to either one. Then committees were sent out to hear different ministers and the Consistory formed opinions based on their reports. Still, further light and guidance were desired.

"Finally, the supply committee was directed by the Consistory to request two different ministers to preach for us with a view to becoming the choice of the Consistory. Both divines accepted the invitation, and both men were well liked. Then the Consistory felt slightly embarrassed. Carefully and prayerfully the members of the Consistory considered the two men. As to the ability of the men I don't like to speak, as I do not think I can do them justice. We like them both. What we wanted was divine help and guidance to arrive at a preference.

"A special meeting was then held and the matter was considered very carefully and thoroughly. After all the members had engaged in prayer, without further debate, each one recorded his choice and it was for Rev John Y. Brook. He was the unanimous choice, his name appearing on each ballot. If there had been any doubt before that moment, it was entirely removed.

"As to the selection of a pastor that rests with the Consistory, after getting the preferences of the people. The members of this church have always been consulted and should be now. We have called thi congregational meeting to ask you t consider the fact that we have decided to extend a call to Rev. John Y. Brook and ask you to ratify the same."

Throughout Mr. Smith's talk there was profound interest, and at the conclusion, Mr. Martin explained a the suggestion of Mr. Smith that he would like to hear expressions of opinion as to the action of the Consistory. He added that the Consistory does not want to take one step without the support of the church There was such a unanimity of feeling as to the action of the Consistory that no one cared to speak and B. Frank Coriell made a motion which was adopted, that the action of Consistory be approved. The vote was

MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION ENTERTAINS AT A SMOKER

The Plainfield Merchants Association began its fall activity in social affairs last night, by conducting a smoker and general good time in Exempt Firemen's hall in the Coward building. One hundred and twenty-five members and friends were in attendance.

President A. E. Force was in charge during the evening and under his direction a program was rendered while the merchants and their guests revelled in the delights of choice perfectos. The Plainfield High School quartet rendered several selections in a pleasing manner and Tony Lusardi gave an exhibition of fancy step-dancing, introducing his new specialty, the "horizontal slant." Counsellor W. S. Angleman contributed a brief address. Beside the cigars that were passed with a lavish hand, there was an abundance of light refreshments.

Previous to the social session, the merchants held a business meeting at which the following were elected to membership in the association: A. S. Herr, H. V. Lough, the Watchung Stone Company, Frank Mika and Charles A. Mead. During the coming season, the organization will conduct several affairs of a social nature in order to bring members into closer relations.

The committee in charge of last night's affair was composed of M. C. Van Arsdale and J. Hervey Doane.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS HAVE ENJOYABLE TIME

An autumnal social and sale of candy was held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The whole affair was suggestive of the autumnal season, the decorations presenting an excellent representation of the cornfields. During the evening there was a fine entertainment conscisting chiefly of tableaux and instrumental selections.

The program was opened with a violin and piano selection by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, after which these tableaux were given:

Reading and tableaux, "Autumn," Mrs. J. E. Kimball and Mrs. William C. Hubbard; "In the Cornfield," Miss Stephena Shaw; "Corn Song," Harold Spicer; "The Gleaners," Miss Margaret Mortensen, Miss Eva Rogers, Miss Isabelle Randolph; "Ruth and Boaz," Roland Davis, Charles Neagle and Miss Margaret Martensen; "Tired Gleaners," Miss Stepehena Shaw and Miss Mary Hunting; "A Heavy Load," John Cottrell, Jr., Thatcher Cottrell and Celia Cottrell; "The Favored Swain," Miss Eva Rogers and Roy Titsworth; "An Opportunity," Miss Eva Rogers and Roland Davis; reading and tableaux ballad, "The Huskers," Mrs. J. E. Kimball and group; violin and piano selection, Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard. The closing number just before refreshments were served and which was quite appropriate was a poem, "The Pumpkin," by Whittier, read by Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Gardner. A unique feature was the offering which was received in jack o' lanterns passed about by the children.

During the social hour when refreshments were served, there was a sale of candy in charge of Miss Frances Mosher and Miss Evalois St. John. The committee in charge of the whole affair comprised Miss Ethel Titsworth, chairman; Roy Titsworth, Miss Anna Stillman, Miss Helen Rogers, Miss Margaret Mortensen, while Miss Eva Rogers was in charge of the refreshments.

PASTOR'S FUNERAL HELD AS HE HAD PLANNED IT.

The funeral of Rev. Dr. Alexander McKelvey, father of Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, who died Monday afternoon, took place at noon yesterday at Boonton. Services were held in the Reformed church, of which he had been pastor for fourteen years. Conscious to the last, he talked of his going and told his sons how he wished the funeral conducted. He asked that the men who were members of the consistory when he was made their pastor act as bearers.

The service was in charge of Rev. George L. Richmond, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Boonton, assisted by Rev. Nathaniel Brooks, pastor of the local eMthodist Episcopal church. Several clergymen from the Classis of Passaic attended. During the ceremony all of the business places in town closed their doors. The bearers were Benjamin F. Willits, William Meadowcroft, Harry M. Ball, William S. Manson, George Dixon and Calvert C. DuBois.

STOLE CANDIDATE'S COAT

New York Man Lifted A. F. Kirstein's "Benny" From Auto in the Street.

ADMITTED THEFT IN COURT.

Gave Intoxication as an Excuse but Actions at Time of Arrest Spoil His Plea.

Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, who is a candidate for reelection and who spoke at the smoker of the Plainfield Republican Club, last night, appeared in the city police court this morning as complainant against Charles L. Phillips, of New York, charging him with the theft of a fur lined overcoat valued at $40. The defendant admitted the charge and was held in $200 bail for a hearing on Saturday.

The arrest of Phillips was brought about at 12:30 this morning at the Hotel Kensington an hour after he had taken the coat. The garment was left in an automobile in front of the New Plainfield theatre while Assemblyman Kirstein and other candidates, who had been at the smoker, called at the Elks' club rooms to participate in a social session. The machine was left unguarded and Phillips had a clear field in committing the theft as practically no one was in the vicinity at the time. He had looked over the auto while it was in front of the Republican headquarters and was talking to the chauffeur when the candidates came down stairs to adjourn to the Elks. There was an empty seat in the car and he was given an invitation to ride around with the party. He accepted and though claiming to be an Elk, declined to attend the social.

When the theft was discovered and the police were notified, one of the officers said he remembered seeing a man enter the Kensington with a coat much like that described. Patrolmen McDonald and Payne went to the hotel office and were told that Phillips was the man who had come in a short time previous with a fur-lined garment. The officers went to his room but repeated knocks failed to bring a response One of the policemen reached a transom by standing on a chair and seeing Phillips inside, called to him to let them in but he declined. Entrance was then effected by going outside to the fire escape and climbing through a window. Mr. Kirstein identified a coat found on the bed as the one taken from the automobile and Phillips was locked up.

In his statement to Judge Runyon, this morning, the prisoner claimed to have been drinking when he committed the theft and that he was not aware of what he was doing. The arresting officers and the complainant testified that he had been drinking but his actions offset any leniency that might have been shown on this account. He contradicted himself repeatedly and failed to offer an explanation as to why he had barred out the officers after they had demanded admittance to his room.

Phillips is about thirty years old and came to Plainfield from New York in an automobile with a friend last evening. The latter is chauffeur for a local family and brought Phillips along for company. He was not with the prisoner for a couple of hours previous to the theft. Phillips' father is a civil service examiner in New York and has a school at 13 Astor place.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED IN THE MEYERS CASE.

Following the argument of counsel for the plaintiff, Judge William Newcorn in the District Court, this morning, granted a new trial in the case of Christopher S. Meyers against the Public Service Corporation, on the grounds that there was an infraction of the law at the first trial because certain jurors sought outside information after retiring to find a verdict.

In the opinion of Judge Newcorn this action might have had some bearing on the verdict. Robert Newton Crane, assisted by Winfield S. Angleman, represents the plaintiff and Clarence Case, of Somerville, the defendant company. At the first trial the jury returned a verdict of no cause of action.

CARRIER FOUND GUILTY

Jury in McNamara Case Reaches Verdict After Ten Minutes' Deliberation.

SENTENCE DAY NOT FIXED.

Judge Lanning Declares in Charge That Government Did Not Have to Prove Theft of Arnold Letter.

Returning after only ten minutes deliberation, the jury in the Federal Court at Trenton in the trial of Daniel McNamara, of this city, charged with removing letters from and delaying the mails, brought in a verdict of guilty this morning. The men retired at 11:20 and filed back at 11:30, informing the court that they had reached a decision. When the verdict was given, Judge Lanning announced that he would defer sentence until a later date and that in the meantime he would release the defendant in the bail originally fixed.

Court reassembled at 10 o'clock this morning and after preliminaries had been dispensed with, Judge Lanning delivered his charge. He informed the jurymen that it had been clearly established that the letter mailed by Miss Erna Arnold, of Plainfield, to Herbert Stine, of North Plainfield, had been stolen from the mails and destroyed and that other letters had ben taken. Under the circumstances, he said, it was not necessary for the Government to prove that McNamara had taken the Arnold letter but that the jurymen should take the evidence purely on its merits. While the inspectors' evidence was based on the Arnold letter, he said that fully 200 other letters had been taken from the Plainfield office and that their charge was made only after very careful deliberation.

Yesterday afternoon's session of teh trial was taken up with the examination of Postmaster Bird, Assistant Postmaster Martin, John Conklin, Postoffice Inspectors Nichols and Enteman, and the Government then closed its case.

John P. Owens, for the defense, opened his case by stating that McNamara was not guilty and that they would prove that he was not in the basement at the time the letter was supposed to be taken. His first witness was Miss Erna Arnold, who testified to the fact that she mailed two letters on September 10 and that one was delivered. The next witness was Clarence V. Rittenhouse, a substitute in the postoffice, who testified that he was on duty that day at 11 until 12:30 and that he did not see McNamara. John R. McCormack, letter carrier, was called to prove that he got two letters from Miss Arnold. Letter Carrier Oliver R. Pearson was called and testified that he saw McNamara at 10:20 that day and helped him fix his bicycle. Special Delivery Carrier Aaron E. Higgins testified that he helped McNamara fix the bicycle from 12:45 until 1:20, so that during this time he could not have been in the basement as alleged by the inspectors. Mail Carrier Andrew A. Wherrow also testified that he saw McNamara fixing his wheel at 1:20, so that he was not in the basement. All of this was to show that the government was wrong when it charged him with being in the basement at a few minutes past one as alleged.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the Plainfield district court, and Andrew H. McNally testified that they were in the basement a few days ago with Mr. Owens and McNamara and that they took the same position the inspector said he had taken and they had McNamara put on his hat and go in the basement, and that they then found it so dark that they could not see his number on his hat, which disproved the evidence of the inspector.

The defense then called Patrick Casey, who testified that he had known McNamara since childhood and that his reputation for honesty "was the best." The defense then called John F. Casey, Jr., for the purpose of having him prove that John Conklin, an employe of the postoffice, had offered to make a bet that McNamara "would be sent over the road," but Judge Lanning refused to permit this evidence. The defense then closed, and the Government recalled Postmaster Bird who swore that the basement under the postoffice was light enough to see any person going there, and with this the case was closed. Mr. Owens spent thirty minutes in summing up his case and Assistant United States District Attorney Bacon, for the Government, summed up and made a strong plea to the jury to convict McNamara. The summing up was not completed until after 4 o'clock and Judge Lanning adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning when he began his charge to the jury.

In the absence of the president of the club, Leslie M. Daniel, R. Henry Depew was the presiding officer and introduced the various candidates. Among them were Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein and Carlton B. Pierce, A. F. Schwartz, Assembly aspirant; Captain Robert Kirkland, the shrievalty nominee, and Frank L. Holt, Duncan W. Taylor and Frank DeW. Randolph, candidates for the city council. All were brought before the voters in turn and the county nominees spoke briefly.

The principal addres of the evening was made by Assemblyman Joseph Lillagore, of Monmouth, who expostulated at some length on Republican principles and contrasted the party platform and record with that of the Democrats. He is a speaker with an exceptionally ready flow of red-hot political ammunition and it roused his auditors to enthusiastic applause every few minutes. His review of Bryanism and the discarded doctrines of free silver and government ownership made a big hit.

E. T. Lovatt, of New York, who made good with the voters in North Plainfield at the mass meeting a couple of weeks ago, was to have been in attendance last night but it was found late yesterday that he could not come. James Monett, a state campaign speaker, was sent in his place and covered considerable Republican territory in his argument as to why Taft should be elected. State Senator Ackerman received an ovation when he rose to speak and in his remarks said a lot of nice things about the assembly candidates. Messrs. Pierce and Kirstein, who have served a term, he asserted to have been of great help to himself in securing the passage of his Civil Service bill.

Messrs. Pierce and Kirstein are fairly well known to the Plainfield voters in a personal way and their remarks heightened the good impression made by them previous. Mr. Kirstein gave an extended address that was well received and A. F. Schwartz, the new aspirant for an Assembly seat, was heartily welcomed after his introduction. Many of the speakers, principally Mr. Schwartz, paid glowing tributes to County Chairman Smith.

Following the addresses, the voters and candidates mingled about the floor in a handshaking bee for a half-hour or more. The attendance was very gratifying to the club committee and it is possible that other smokers will be held before election.

MULE'S KICK ASSESSED AT TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS

The "famous mule case" in which John Brennan, by his next friend, Thomas Brennan, sought to recover damages from Ferdinand Brown, for injuries alleged to have been received through a kick on the part of "Jack," was finally disposed of in the District court, this morning, when Judge Newcorn gave the plaintiff 25 as damages. The case was to have been tried this morning, but the defendant failed to make any defense.

The only contested case this morning was that of the Haussling Soda Apparatus Manfacturing Company, of Newark, against Frank Linke, in which the plaintiff sought to recover two soda water tanks on replivin proceedings. The company was represented by Manager Rockwell, while Frank Linke pleaded his own case and lost, the court finding title in the goods in the claimant.

The soda-water tanks in question were formerly at Miller's confectionery store on East Front street, and they were taken possession of Mr. Linke, it being understood that he intended to buy them. Later it was discovered that Mr. Miller could not produce a receipt for them. The complainant company then made efforts to recover its property, but Mr. Linke refused to give it up until charges for storage, telephone, etc., were paid. The company declined to do this and demanded the tanks. Judge Newcorn ecided the case in favor of the company and it will now recover the tanks.

DEMOCRATS SEE ISSUE IN SUNDAY GOLF PLAY

Believing that inasmuch as the Plainfield Country Club has decided in favor of Sunday golf, lovers of baseball should be allowed to enjoy that sport on the same day, a petition was put in circulation yesterday by Frank J. Shattle, the purpose of which is to request Mayor Charles J. Fisk to allow Sunday baseball. The petition which already has a number of signers, reads as follows.

"To the Honorable Mayor of the City of Plainfield: We the undersigned citizens of this city seeing that you are in favor of Sunday golf playing, ask you for a permit allowing us the privilege of Sunday baseball playing, as we see no more harm in that than in golf."

In case of a refusal of the permit to play Sunday baseball, it is the intention of the Democrats to make an issue of it in the Mayoralty campaign in support of their candidate, Walter L. Manning. Several citizens in speaking of the incident today said that they could see no more harm in playing baseball on Sunday than in the game of golf on that day and if one is permitted the other should be. It is a known fact that there are a number of Plainfielders who have wanted Sunday baseball for a long time and they welcome an opportunity to have the game played here on that day. They argue that is is permitted at Elizabeth, Newark and even in New Brunswick and why not in Plainfield.

One of the leading lawyers of the city today declared that Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh was right when he stated that Sunday golf is a violation of the State laws and those who indulge in the sport on that day are liable to indictment.

PEOPLE'S LOBBY ATTACK ON ACKERMAN RESENTED

President Depew Himself Deplores Aspersion on Senator's Political Record.

CLASSIFICATION UNWARRANTED

Without Regard to Faction, Local Republicans Stand by Ackerman as a Man of Independent Spirit.

Regulars and New Idea men alike here today are equally vehement in their denunciation of the People's Lobby report classifying State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman as opposed to the people. The report in question contains but two classifications, one "for the people," and the other "for the bosses and the corporations." The Union county solon has been placed among the latter group.

When R. Henry Depew, a well known New Idea leader and president of the People's Lobby, had his attention called to the aspersion on Mr. Ackerman, he disclaimed responsibility and expressed regret over the matter, which he said in effect was unwarranted.

"At the meeting in Newark," said President Depew to a representative of this paper, "I distinctly took up Mr. Ackerman and made an argument for him. I called attention to the fact that he had championed civil service, had voted against Mr. Dry-also a member of the People's Lobby, to my mind had made a good record. When I left that meeting, it was with the understanding that there should be three classifications and I am much surprised to learn that there are but two. I wanted Mr. Ackerman at least to be placed in the middle class if the others could not agree to place him in the best class. I have just written Herman Walker and Dr. Rader concerning this matter, expressing my surprise and disappointment. Senator Ackerman is a regular, but I think he has shown an independent spirit and is working for the people's interests."

George W. Moy, chairman of the New Idea Central committee who is also a member of the ePople's Lobby, talked much in the manner that Mr. Depew had. He called attention to the fact that the Union County New Idea organization, which he said is working for good government, had been the first to endorse Mr. Ackerman for renomination and election. "I am awfully sorry that such a move should have been made by the People's Lobby especially at this time. It is something I deeply deprecate especially as to people who don't know the man it may give them an entirely wrong impression of him."

Herman B. Walker, of the Lobby's committee on this work, explained over the 'phone today in answer to a query, that the organization in taking this stand does not impute any motives. He added that while Mr. Ackerman had done much good work in the Legislature, that on occasions he had lined up with those known to be working against the people's interests. Mr. Ackerman's views and votes on the several desirable features of the railroads and public utilities acts as well as on the election measure, he added, were not what should have been expected of him. Mr. Walker admitted that the committee had made but two classifications and had found it necessary, in its opinion after a careful investigation of the Union county man's record, to place Mr. Ackerman in the undesirable class.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, who, like Ackerman, has made a splendid record in the Legislature, is also classed by the People's Lobby as being favorable to the corporations and the bosses.

Frelinghuysen with Ackerman were mainly responsible for the excelent civil service law that graces the statute books. The Somerset man is also the father of the ideal auto law, that has done much to curb the "speed maniac." He is also responsible for the pure food law that has attracted wide and favorable public attention.

Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Union, and Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Somerset, are classed by the Lobby as friends of the people.

BASEBALL.

While the Giants did not have an opportunity of "getting in" on the world's series money, the team made out exceptionally well on its barnstorming trip, and it is reported that each player has fattened his bank account nearly $800 since the season ended. The profits of the benefit in the Academy of Music on Sunday night reached $3,000, and now it is reported that John T. Brush has divided the receipts of the extra New York-Chicago game which decided the National League championship. This amount is figured all the way from $7,000 to $14,000.

The National Commission, at Cincinnati yesterday took preliminary steps to punish a number of league men for playing on Jimmy Callahan's Logan Square independent team in Chicago after the close of the championship seasons. According to the rules, the players are subject to a fine of $200. Those placed on the list follow: Tannehill, Freeman, Delehanty, McBride, Shipke, Kahoe, Keeley and Johnson of the Washington club; Hughes, of the Boston Americans; Hart, of the Chicago White Sox.

The powers in the American League are reported to be after the scalp of Joe Cantillon, of the Washington club, and it is expected that at the annual meeting of the league Ban Johnson will inaugurate a fight to oust him from the organization. The basis for the trouble is an interview given out to a newspaper by one of the Washington players, which stated that the Senators did not try very hard to beat Detroit on the team's last Western trip. Cantillon, it has been asserted, confirmed the interview as being correct.

That honeymoon trip to Japan that Ty Cobb announced at the time of his wedding is no myth, though it necessarily will be somewhat belated. Word has been received from Mike Fisher, the San Francisco manager, who is to pilot the team with which Cobb will tour the Orient, that plans are completed, and that the schedule is practically filled. It is more of a California team than an all-star nine, though it has some major leaguers listed. Frank Chance, Orvie Overall and Bill Burns, the Washington twirler, all Californians, are on the team.

John McGraw and the New York players, at a conference Tuesday, decided to call off the proposed series of games with the Detroit Tigers, which were carded to be played at the Polo grounds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. After this week the Giants will scatter to their homes. Fred Tenney left New York today with a part of the team, on a barnstorming trip through New England. McGraw announced yesterday that the Giants would train at Marlin Springs, Tex., next spring.

Driving in his $5,000 touring car Hans Wagner champion batsmen of the country for several seasons past went to the Allegheny County Courthouse, in Pennsylvania, yesterday, and signed papers taking over three big lots of land in his own town of Carnegie.

The final standing of the local baseball teams for the season is as follows:

FOOTBALL.

Eddie Cooy has been selected to captain Yale until Bobby Burch recovers from his injuries.

Bill McAvoy, the former Lafayette star, is helping out Penn State in the coaching line.

Clarence Pope, the former Newark Academy star, was tried successfully at fullback at Cornell yesterday.

Misfortunes are cropping out fast for Pennsy. Instead of the injured list becoming smaller it is getting bigger. It developed yesterday that Hollenback's injury is worse than at first suspected. Bunny Ragan is also in bad shape and may be out of the games for several weeks.

Donelson, who was the leading candidate for one of the ends at Annapolis, is now out of the race for the position because of a broken jaw.

Harvard and Annapolis has begun preparatory work for their big game Saturday, which will be contested on the Annapolis gridiron. The Crimson players are none the worse for wear and tear in the Springfield game.

West Point in in need of money, and, according to reports, if cash donations are not forthcoming the army eleven may be compelled to abandon its schedule. The team is supported entirely by private subscriptions. No tickets of admission are sold, and out of courtesy the athletic management accommodates something like 10,000 at each game.

Tony Haines rejoined the Yale squad yesterday and was put at end rush, his position last year.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church will hold its annual meeting tonight.

Plainfield, N. J., October 22, 1908.

The People's Lobby, and not Senators Ackerman and Frelinghuysen, becomes the victim of that organization's "boycott" on the men who so splendidly represent their constituents in Union and Somerset, respectively. This organization, by classifying them as friends of the corporations and of the bosses, have not discredited either in the eyes of their constituents but, on the other hand, has greatly damaged its own reputation for fairness.

Several speakers at the Republican Club smoker last night paid a most deserving tribute to Frank H. Smith as a county chairman. It was most noticeable that the applause for Smith and Ackerman far exceeded that given the mention of names far more widely known in Republican circles.

Last Sunday, many prominent clergymen denounced the proposed open Sunday plan at the Plainfield Country Club. How many of these will express their views next Sunday?

Don't forget to register on Tuesday afternoon. If you fail to do so, you cannot vote for William H. Taft, whose election means prosperity to all regardless of political affiliations.

We have been asked why a Democrat should not waste his ballot on William Jennings Bryan. Our answer is that William Jennings Bryan is not a Democrat.

Rev. John Y. Brook, who has been called by Trinity Reformed church, should make a most acceptable pastor to that Christian band.

"The most unkindness cut of all" is that given the radical Mr. Hears' to the former radical and now conservative Mr. Bryan.

If Mr. Bryan was not a Democrat in 1896 and 1900, what makes him a Democrat now?

Suspended Man Quickly Returned.

Robert McIntyre, of Jersey City, who was in police court yesterday on a drunk charge and got oc on suspended sentence, was arrested again yesterday afternoon for vagrancy. He was picked up by Patrolman Dobson in company with Edward McInerney, of Newark, as the two left the yard of a Netherwood residence. The men denied the charge when arraigned in court today and they were remanded until tomorrow morning to allow the arresting officer to procure witnesses.

REFORMED CLASSIS MEETS AT IRVINGTON

The seventy-fifth annual session of the Reformed Classis of Newark was held at the First Reformed church of Irvington yesterday morning, and the Rev. A. Seventy-five delegates were present when the session opened. Horace J. Martin represented Trinity Reformed church of this city.

A discussion of the recommendations made at the last session of the general synod regarding three constitutional amendments was the first business taken up. Another question on the advisability of appointing a secretary of a religious commission and raising $4,000 to meet the expense of his work was laid on the table

THE FORUM.

REV. MR. PARSONS' REASONS.

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 21, 1908.
Editor The Daily Press:

I regret very much to note the appearance in the Press this evening of an article in regard to my resignation from the pastorate of the Christian church. While several of the things stated were true, a little investigation on your part would have prevented the appearance of several statements that are not true. I would like to correct a false impression which must be made by this article. In the first place, my resignation occurred the latter part of May to take effect the 20th of June, when my contract with the American Christian Missionary Society expired, and, if I remember correctly, was reported in your columns at that time. You also stated at that time, which was correct, that the reason for my resignation was not the meagreness of salary but the fact that my school duties would be so heavy that I would not be able to do the pastoral work required by this place. While the salary I received during my pastorate was meagre enough, it is true, it was sufficient to enable me to carry on my university work which was all I asked of them and never did a consecrated little band give more liberally in proportion to its means than this church has done. If you will kindly give this communication a conspicuous place in your issue of tomorrow you will greatly oblige.

Yours fraternally,
PHIL. A. PARSONS.

An Early Morning Jag.

Mrs. Annie Hallowell, of Spooner avenue, was brought to police headquarters at 9:30 this morning, noisy and care-free because of a geenrous jag. She was arrested on Grant avenue by Patrolman Saffron after she had had a rumpus with an Italian barber on South Second street. She was put in a cell yelling like a maniac because a bottle of whiskey was taken from her.

DON'T DRINK COFFEE.

If Coffee Doesn't Agree With You Don't Drink It Doctors Say.

If it does agree with you drink all you want. Any doctor will tell you that what's one man's meat is another man's poison.

Some people won't drink beer; they say it don't agree with them. Some people say it makes them billious.

But to every reader of The Daily Press we desire to state that pure beer never made any one billious. Rienzi beer, brewed by the famous Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, is a pure beer, and any person that cannot drink the ordinary beer can drink Rienzi simply because it is brewed of pure barley malt and hops, both of which are brimful of tonic properties, and is properly aged.

Rienzi beer builds you up; it quiets the nerves, sharpens the appetite, turns that blue feeling into cheerfulness and puts vitality into your whole system.

And we say to coffee drinkers also if coffee don't agree with you, if it makes you nervous, quit it, and drink Rienzi beer.

There is no secret about Rienzi, just hops and barley malt, fully aged and brewed as good beer should be brewed.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he will promptly deliver an order to your home at any time. His address is 68 Somerset street. His 'phone number is 229. Call him up.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD FAVORS LOCAL OPTION

Straight local option with no "riders" that might allow legal sale of liquor on Sunday in seashore resorts was demanded by the ministers and laymen of the Presbyterian State Synod at their concluding meetings at Atlantic City yesterday. Rum sellers and brewers of the State were condemned for pernicious activity in the politics of the districts and cities as well as their efforts to sway legislators in favor of liquor legislation, and special Sundays were set aside for the preaching of the local option doctrine in the churches of the sect.

Earnest churchmen refused to use the word "appeal" in their statement, and the delegates applauded the substitution of "demand" that State legislators harken to wishes of the church folk of the State in liquor regulation. Governor Fort was given a rising vote of thanks for his work against the Sunday saloons, and the synod added public thanks to the sixteen men who stood out for local option at Trenton last winter.

The only dissension over the recommendations made by the special committee on temperance, presented by the Rev. William V. Louderbaugh, of Salem, came over the insertion of a statement that seashore cities are "cesspools of crime" and "saturnalias of vice." Delegates, led by the Rev. James McCloud, a Cape May preacher, opposed the flaying of the seashore cities, and declared that Governor Fort had denied ever having used the expressions accredited to him. This section was stricken out before the resolutions were passed.

Synod members favored the law advocated by Governor Fort last winter for the removal of city officials who fail to enforce the gambling and Sunday laws. This resolution came after the scathing denunciation of the liquor interests, who are endeavoring to secure legislation favorable to their cause. "We view with righteous indignation the bold and lawless defiance of liquor dealers in prosecuting their business on the Lord's Day, and their proposal to obtain legislation which would encourage means to disgrace and violate God's sacred wishes and law," said the resolution.

The synod went on record for a federal law to prevent shipment of liquor into prohibition States. Church people of the country were reported to be deeply angered at the action of Speaker Cannon, who allowed the bill for this purpose to be buried in committee last winter, and another attempt will be made to secure passage of a similar bill this year. Failure of the attempt will result in a country-wide crusade of every religious sect for amendment to the federal constitution that will prohibit the importation of any alcoholic beverage into temperance territory, according to a report included in the resolutions.

The temperance committee reported that James R. Sayre, late of Newark, bequeathed $55,000 for use in a State temperance crusade, and that the money will be used for the boosting of local option.

Members of the Sabbath observance committee asked the synod to join with them in condemnation of Sunday visits and pleasure trips that interfere with churchgoing. The report showed that 60,000 aliens have brought into the State a demand for a continental Sunday, with sale of liquor, and a fund will be raised to carry on missionary work among the newcomers.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

SUNDAY GOLF IN PLAINFIELD.

Sunday golf has been a burning issue in Plainfield. The Plainfield Golf Club, representing the "best society" of the city, didn't play golf. The club constitution forbade it and the constitution was in entire agreement with the State statute, which forbids all such recreation on a Sunday as immoral. But a large part of the membership of the club wanted Sunday golf, and "let the statute go hang." They pointed to the other golf clubs in North Jersey, all of which played golf on Sunday the same as other days, and as it was the habit of Plainfield golf players to resort to the grounds of other clubs for Sunday play, they asked if it was any wickeder to play golf at home than to play golf abroad. The local clergy joined in the dispute, and of course, on the side of anti-Sunday golf. Then the local papers chimed in, too, and on the same side. But the Sunday golf men and women were not to be daunted by these opponents. They proposed an amendment to the club constitution to permit Sunday golf. The vote on the amendment was taken at a club meeting last night, and the Sunday golf men prevailed.—Newark Morning Star.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel will install its officers at a meeting to be held tomorrow night.

The Ladies' Aid and Young People's Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church will hold a fair in the Sunday-school room of the church on Grove street, November 10, 11 and 12.

Mrs. Lucretia Croom is president of the Women's Missionary Union of the Middlesex Central Baptist Association of New Jersey, which will meet at the First Baptist church, of Kenilworth, Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock.

A bazaar and entertainment will be held in the basement of St. Joseph's church tonight and tomorrow night. A feature will be a progressive euchre and handsome prizes will be given. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

Joe Morris in the Musical Comedy "Too Many Wives," at New Plainfield Theatre, Friday night.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Seldom if ever in the past forty years has there been a production either musical, dramatic or spectacular, that has continued to interest the average theatre-goer as much as the famous "Black Crook," which is announced to appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The comedy vein which runs through the play, is pleasing and entertaining not only to the staid old timers, but to the little folks who enjoy immensely the songs, dances, acrobatic acts and comical antics of Greppo, the low comedian.

Hertzog in "The Black Crook," at New Plainfield Theatre, tonight.

La Manolita and her ballet of fourteen girls will present an entirely new version of the "Dance of Salome" at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, in conjunction with the musical comedy "Too Many Wives." The "Ballet of the Veils," as an introduction, adds to the artistic effect, while Manolita's dancing is most expressive. She follows the theme of the dancing in movement and facial expression to a most commendable degree. The producing managers, Messrs. Mittenthal Brothers, have furnished elaborate stage settings, gorgeous costumes, and exquisite electrical effects.

The attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday evening will be a new play, which those who are familiar with it, prophesy will prove to be one of the very strong plays, brought forth for a number of seasons. Those who have read the play and become conversant with its merit in rehearsal speak of it in high terms. Its title is "The Right to Live," and it is safe to go on the principle that everybody has a right to live if they have not committed some offense against the law, which prescribes their removal. Some may term "The Right to Live" a problem play, but if a problem play it is said not to be upon the lines of what is commonly supposed to be a problem play. The author is Jules Eckert Goodman, who has the distinction of being the author of three plays, all of which are to be placed before the public within the current four weeks. Mr. Goodman is a graduate of Harvard and declined a professorship of literature in that institution of learning and was later editor of "Current Literature." "The Right to Live," as is stated, not only promises to be a play of unusual dramatic power, but it contains many pronounced surprises that denote originality in authorship. Mr. Goodman is recognized as a brilliant writer and a profound student. Those interested in the forth-coming production of "The Right to Live" give assurance that it will be an offering worthy of public attention and will be presented by competent players.

"Little Mose," or "A Night in Venice," the new Nixon-Nirdlinger-Brown-Sloane somewhat different, musical, fun play, after the usual blast of trumpets, has arrived upon the scene, and has proven the real surprise of the year, both dramatically, musically and artistically. It will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. The fact that its book and lyrics were by novices made critics somewhat skeptical as to its value but both Mr. Nirdlinger and Mr. Brown have covered themselves with glory in a good book, interesting throughout, concise, bright, clean and wholesome, while Baldy Sloane has again demonstrated that he is the "American Strauso," for his melodies are all catchy, melodious and Sloanesque, which in itself is their best stock in trade, and already the boys everywhere are whistling the dainty waltz theme, "Maid of My Dreams," "I Want Some One To Love Me," "Bambina," "The Italian Lullaby," "My Roly Poly Oly Duetscher Maid," "Good-bye Mr. Rag Time," "Ma Dusky Dago Boy," "If," "'Tis Love That Makes the World Go 'Round," and several others that are not whistled only because they are a trifle more complicated, and harder to catch, but all beautiful, with swinging measure.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order Red Men, adopted several pale faces last night.

In connection with the elaborate entertainment to be given by Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, Tuesday night, October 27, there will be a hypnotist. This is to be an open meeting to which the members can invite their friends. It is also proposed to exemplify a portion of the opening and closing degree work.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 25, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions. Fidelia Fiske and missions in Persia.—Acts x, 1-11.

The history of Persia from a religious standpoint is a most interesting one. It was so situated that in the early centuries of Christianity its territory was the ground of many religious controversies and conflicts, both Christian and Mohammedan. It is also interesting because of the intimate relations that existed in Old Testament times between Persia and the people of God. The Jewish prophets predicted the destruction of all the surrounding nations, and their prophecies have come true. But Persia was never denounced, and it stands today as one of the nations of the world. It was through Cyrus, king of Persia, that the chosen people were allowed to return to Jerusalem. The early religion was that of Zoroastrianism—the worship of fire—and it, like Judaism, taught the existence of our God. This was another tie that bound the two nations together. This unique relationship between Judah and Persia existed with no other nation and adds new interest to religion in Persia.

It cannot be said that Christianity has ever had a strong hold upon Persian life. Christianity was early pressed upon the Persians, but the old faith of Zoroaster as the state religion predominated. Persian kings often favored Christianity, but the people held fast to the old faith. It was a hard field, and progress was slow. And then in the fifth century there were bitter controversies within the Christian church, which finally led to a separation between the eastern Christians and those of the west. This final separation was the Nestorian controversy concerning the nature of Christ. The Persian emperor championed the cause of Nestorius, probably because it pleased him to see his subjects break the bonds that existed ecclesiastically between them and Rome. The Nestorians made great progress throughout Persia. The next religious movement was the complete subjugation of the Persians by the Mohammedans, who from that day to this have ruled in Persia. Despite the conquest of the Moslems, Christian missions have still been carried on and are today.

Miss Fidelia Fiske takes high rank among those who have engaged in school work. She was born in Shelburne, Mass., May 1, 1816. She died in the same place at the home of her brother July 26, 1864. In 1831 Miss Fiske was a pupil and then teacher at Mount Holyoke seminary with Miss Mary Lyon, partaking largely of her spirit. In 1843 she went to Persia to a Nestorian mission. Here she labored for fourteen years and then was compelled by ill health to return to the United States, where she still kept up her interest and activity in the mission school at Oroomiah, Persia, where she had labored. Her work was farreaching. The school had up to this time been but a day school, but she desired it to become a boarding school and accomplished her desire, and it became a fine seminary. There was a great revival in Persia in 1846, and it started from the Oroomiah school. Women thronged the seminary seeking religious instruction and were not turned away. She had the Christ spirit, and, no matter how tired from her ordinary work, she found time for inquirers. Day and night she labored and then had to leave because of illness. She had won the love of many, not only for herself, but for her Saviour. As she was about to leave Oroomiah the women and girls who went to say farewell asked, "Can we not have one more prayer meeting before you go?" and "May it not be in that Bethel?"—her room. It was held, and one petition in a prayer showed how they loved her. It was as follows: "May our teacher's dust never mingle with that of father or mother, but may she come back to us to mingle her dust with her pupils' dust, hear the trumpet with them and with them go up to meet the Lord and be forever with Him." What a tribute to her devotion and what an expression of gratitude for it! May the fourteen years of service of Fidelia Fiske inspire us to do more for the advancement of Christ's kingdom, for which she was willing to sacrifice so much!

In Lands Afar.

In Devon county, England, from which hundreds of young men emigrate annually to Canada and the United States, there are 2,560 male Endeavorers out of a total membership of 6,966.

Rev. Oscar Michelsen reports a new Christian Endeavor society started on the island of Tongoa of the New Hebrides group, the islands made famous by the labors of Dr. John G. Paton. The society has sixty members.

The Christian Endeavor union of Katpadi, India, has a missionary band whose object is to spend at least a week every year preaching the gospel to the heathen. This past year nine Endeavorers who constitute this band visited twenty-six villages preaching the gospel, with God's blessing upon them.

On the top of the great pyramid in Egypt the monogram C. E. is engraved. The fact is suggestive.

New Blood.

Every Christian Endeavor society will find its best by constantly introducing new blood, developing the present members and turning them out a finished product.—Rev. George D. Stewart, D. D., President of Auburn Theological Seminary.

Thoroughbreds

The banker made no threat, but Allis shuddered. She knew. The narrow-lidded eyes had closed perceptibly when their owner talked of the alternative. He, Crane, loved her—she felt that was true. He was rich; for her father, for her brother, for herself, even for Mortimer, he would use his wealth. He pleaded his cause like a strong man, and when he spoke of failure because of her preference for Mortimer, an acridity crept into his voice that meant relentless prosecution.

"I am sorry, Mr. Crane," she began, conventionally enough, "I am sorry; I couldn't marry a man without loving him. What you have just told me must win regard for you, because I know that you feel strongly, and I think any woman should take an offer of honest love as the greatest of all compliments."

"But I don't even ask for your love now," he interrupted.

"Ah, but you should. You shouldn't marry a woman unless she loves you."

"Is it because you care for Mortimer?" he asked.

"I think it is. I suppose if I am to help him I must be quite honest with you. You have said that you care for me, Mr. Crane, and I believe you; you have been generous to my father, also. Now won't you promise me something, just for the sake of this regard? I suppose it is impossible to prove Mr. Mortimer's innocence—but it is in your power to lessen the evil. Won't you take my word that he is innocent and stop everything?"

"What can I do?"

"Just nothing. I know Mr. Mortimer has determined to accept the disgrace, and he will go away. You can make his load as light as possible, for my sake."

The small hand on his arm was drawing him to acquiescence. He did not answer at once, but sat moodily diagnosing his position. If he hushed the matter up Mortimer would go away under a cloud, and his removal from the presence of Allis might effect a change in her regard. He would accelerate this wished-for elision of love by procuring absolutely indisputable proof of Mortimer's dishonesty. He saw his opening to that end; he could do it under the guise of clearing the innocent one of the suspected two. "What you ask," he said, "is very little; I would do a thousand times more for you. There is nothing you could ask of me that would give me more pleasure than anything else in my barren life. But I could not bear to see you wedded to Mortimer; he is not worthy—you are too good for him. I don't say this because he is more fortunate, but I love you and want to see you happy."

"You are kind to me," she said, simply; "I wish I could repay you."

"Perhaps some day I may get a reward out of all proportion to the small service."

She looked fair into his eyes, and on her lips hovered a wistful smile.

"You will be repaid some day," she answered, "for I feel that Mr. Mortimer's name will be cleared, and you will be glad that you acted generously."

The horse had jogged slowly. Allis had purposely allowed the old bay to take his time. But now Ringwood was in sight, and there was still the matter of the money that had been paid on her father's note to speak of. She asked Crane where it had come from.

"You won it over Diablo in the Brooklyn Handicap," he answered, bluntly.

"You won it," she corrected him; "I refused to accept it."

"I remember that eccentricity," he replied. "And having the money thrown back on my hands, as it was not mine, caused me considerable inconvenience. I deposited three thousand of it against the note to save both your father and myself needless worry. There are still some hundreds due you, and I wish you would please tell me what I am to do with it."

"I'd rather pay you back the three thousand now."

"I can't accept it."

"Well, I wash my hands of the whole affair. When father gets stronger he must settle it."

They had turned into the drive to Ringwood house.

"We are home now," she added, "and I want to say again that I'll never forget your kind promise. I know you will not repent of your goodness."

Crane's statement to Allis that he was going out to Ringwood to see her father was only an excuse. He soon took his departure, a stable-boy driving him back to the village. There he had a talk with the cashier. Mortimer was to be asked to resign his position, as soon as his place in the bank could be filled. No further prosecution was to be taken against him unless Crane decided upon such a course. "In the meantime you can investigate cautiously," he said, "and keep quite to yourself any new evidence that may turn up. So far as Mr. Mortimer is concerned, the matter is quite closed."

XXXIX.

Crane returned to New York, his mind working smoothly to the hum of the busy wheels beneath his coach.

He reasoned that Mortimer had taken the thousand-dollar note thinking to win three or one thousand at least over his horse, the Dutchman, and then replace the abstracted money. Crane was aware that Alan Porter had told Mortimer of The Dutchman's almost certain prospect of winning; in fact, the boy had suggested that Mortimer had taken it for this purpose. Mortimer would not have changed the note; would have taken it straight to the race course. He must have lost it to some bookmaker over The Dutchman. Crane knew the number of the stolen note. The three one-thousand-dollar bills were new, running in consecutive numbers, B 67,482,-83-84; he had noticed that quite by chance at the time; it was the middle one, B 67,483, that was missing. So he had a possible means of identifying the man who had taken the money. Mentally he followed Mortimer during the day at Gravesend. From Alan he knew of his winnings over Lauzanne.

Crane reasoned that Mortimer, having risked the thousand on his horse, had been told that Lauzanne might win. This had perhaps frightened him, and being unfamiliar with the folly of such a course had backed two horses in the same race—had put a hundred on Lauzanne at ten to one to cover his risk on The Dutchman, feeling this made him more secure. He would either win a considerable stake or have sufficient in hand to cover up his defalcation. The first thing to do was to find the note if possible. Faust would be the man for this commission.

Immediately upon his arrival in New York Crane telephoned for Faust, asking him to bring his betting sheet for the second last day of the Brooklyn meet. When Faust arrived at Crane's quarters the latter said: "I want to trace a thousand-dollar note, No. B 67,483. I think it was bet on the Brooklyn Derby, probably on my horse."

Faust consulted his betting sheet. "I didn't have no thousand in one bet on that race," he said.

"What are those figures," asked the other, pointing to two consecutive numbers of one thousand each.

"That was the other way about," answered the bookmaker; "that was pay. A thousand to one hundred twice over Lauzanne. I think it must have been stable money, for one of the guys was like a big kid; he didn't know 'nough to pick a winner in a thousand years."

The coincidence of this amount with the win attributed to Mortimer appealed to Crane's fancy. "You remember the man who made this bet, then?" he asked.

"Yes, sure thing. There was two of 'em, as you see. I remember him because it took some explainin' to get the bet through his noddle. He was a soft mark for a bunco steerer. It must a-been first-time luck with him, for he cashed."

"Can you describe him?"

The Cherub drew an ornate verbal picture, cognate enough to convince Crane it was Mortimer who had made one of the bets.

"Now find this thousand-dollar note for me," he said; "take trouble over it; get help if necessary; go to every bookmaker that was in line that day. If you find the note, exchange other money for it and bring it to me."

"There may be a chance," commented Faust, scratching his fat poll meditatively; "the fellows like to keep these big bills; they're easier in the pocket than a whole bundle of flimsies. The next day was get-away day, an' they wouldn't be payin' out much. I'll make a play fer it."

The next afternoon Faust reported at Crane's rooms with the rescued note in his possession.

"I give a dozen of 'em a turn," he said, "before I run again Jimmie Farrell."

"Does he know who bet it?"

"Some stranger; he'd know him if he saw him, he says."

The scent was indeed getting hot. Why not take Farrell down to Brookfield to identify Mortimer.

"I'm much obliged to you," he said to Faust. "I won't trouble you further; I'll see Farrell myself."

That evening the banker saw Farrell. "There was a little crooked work over that thousand Faust got from you," he said, "an' if you could find time to go with me for an hour's run into the country, I think you could identify the guilty party."

In the morning the two journeyed to Brookfield.

"I won't go to the bank with you," Crane said; "I wish you would go in alone. Just see if the man you got this note from is behind the rail. I'll wait at the hotel."

In fifteen minutes he was rejoined by Farrell.

"Well?" he asked.

"He's there, right enough."

"A short, dark little chap?" questioned Crane, hesitatingly, putting Alan Porter forward as a feeler.

"No. A tall fellow with a mustache."

"You are sure?"

"Dead sure, unless he's got a double, or a twin brother."

Crane felt that at last he had got indisputable proof; evidence that would satisfy even Allis Porter.

"We can go back now," he said to Farrell; "we may as well walk leisurely to the station; we can get a train"—he pulled out his watch—"in twenty minutes."

Crane had made up his mind not to show himself at the bank that day.

As they walked slowly toward the station Crane met abruptly the girl who was just then so much in his thoughts. Her sudden appearance quite startled him. She had gone in to do some shopping, she explained, after Crane's greeting.

Farrell continued on, and a sudden determination to tell the girl what he had unearthed took quick possession of Crane.

He began by assuring her that he had prosecuted the inquiry simply through a desire to establish the innocence of either Mortimer or her brother, or, if possible, both.

He related how he had traced the stolen note, how he had discovered it, how he had brought the bookmaker down, and how, without guidance from him, Farrell had gone into the bank and identified Mortimer as the man who had bet the money.

"It clears Alan," he said, seeking furtively for a look into the drooping face.

The bright sun struck a sparkle of light from something that shot downward and splashed in the dust. The girl was crying.

"I'm sorry," he offered as atonement. "Perhaps I shouldn't have told you; it's too brutal."

The head drooped still lower.

"I shouldn't have spoken had it not been for your brother's sake. I didn't mean to. It was chance drew you across my path just now. Though it is cruel, it is better that you should know. No man has a right to deceive you, you are too good."

"Don't," she pleaded; "I can't bear it just now. Please don't talk of love, don't talk of anything. Can't you see—can't you understand?"

"Yes, I know—you are suffering, but it is unjust; you are not fair to yourself. If this man would steal money, what difference would your love make to him? You must consider yourself—you must give him up; you can't link your young, beautiful life to a man who is only saved from the penitentiary because of your influence."

"Don't talk that way, Mr. Crane; please don't. I know you think that what you say is right, but what difference does it all make to me? You know what love is like, you say it has come to you now. My heart tells me that Mortimer is guiltless. The time has been so short that he has had no chance to clear himself. If I didn't believe in him I wouldn't love him; but I still love him, and so I believe in him. I can't help it—I don't want to help it; I simply go on having faith in him, and my love doesn't falter."

N. J. STATE GUARDS ASS'N. IS FORMED

The New Jersey National Guard Association, composed of officers of the National Guard, was formally organized at a meeting held in the First Regiment Armory at Newark last night. The first step of the body was to adopt a resolution, which will be addressed to Governor Fort, as commander-in-chief of the National Guard, stating that it is the sense of the association that the National Guard should be placed on such a footing that it will be ready for service at any time.

The following officers were elected: President, Lieutenant-Colonel Henry H. Brinkerhoff, Fourth Regiment, of Jersey City; first vice-president, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas D. Langdon, of the Third Regiment, Bordentown; second vice-president, Captain William H. Camfield, of Company B, First Regiment, Newark; secretary, Captain Henry G. Stevens, of Montclair, aide-de-camp on the division staff; treasurer, William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, major of the Second Regiment; members of the executive committee, Lieutenant-Colonel William Libbey, of Princeton, inspector of rifle practise, and Albert A. Van Walraven, of Clifton, lieutenant-colonel of the Fifth Regiment.

It was decided to hold meetings annually, to appoint a legislative committee and to act in the interest of the National Guard wherever possible without insubordination to higher bodies of the National Guard. Another meeting of the association will be held within a couple of months.

While testing powder at the Du Pont Powder Works at Gibbstown, yesterday, Ernest Smith, twenty years old, of Paulsboro, sustained a puncture wound of the thigh and was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Governor Stuart, of Pennsylvania, yesterday issued a requisition upon Governor Fort for the extradition of Philip Hyde, wanted in that State on the charge of wife desertion. Hyde is now under arrest in Atlantic City.

Recently Game Warden Loder was informed that several men made a practise of deer hunting near Newtonville. For several days Loder with an assistant watched and was rewarded by catching Ervin F. McConnell as he was about to fire at a fine buck. McConnell was promptly arrested and was fined $100 and costs.

An "enterprising burglar" spent three hours or more Monday night cutting his way into a Fall street butcher shop, Trenton, where he afterward forced open the cash register and found three pennies for all his exertions. He was evidently vexed by the results gained, for with a cleaver he demolished part of tre interior of the place.

The next six months will find Robert Murray, of Mt. Holly, an inmate of the Burlington County Jail instead of the county almshouse. Murray was found guilty of an offense at the latter institution, following the recent visit of the State Commission on Crime and Dependency, and Judge Horner yesterday gave him the half-year in jail where he will not have such an easy life.

Driven out by flames yesterday the family of Morris Greenberg, 1716 Broadway, Camden, overlooked a two year old baby in a crib, in a second floor bedroom. When the structure was in flames the parents begged some one to save their child. Police man Shute wrapped a wet blanket around him and ran through the flames to the second floor and then ran out with the baby, which was so nearly smothered that it was some time before it was revived.

Percy, the seventeen-year-old son of Percy Dobbs, a farmer near Woodbury, was attacked by a couple of negroes as he was entering the house Monday night. One struck the lad a severe blow, when the other called out: "This ain't Ed." Dobbs discharged a colored farmhand a few days ago, and it is supposed that the latter had secured help, with the intention of beating the farmer. As soon as the mistake was discovered the men ran away. Young Dobbs laid unconscious in the yard for some time.

Matrimony seemed good to Arthur, the seventeen-year-old son of Charles Cheeseman, a Beverly iceman and expressman, but his pay was small as the driver of his father's ice wagon. An investigation showed that the lad had appropriated about $10 of the ice money for a diamond engagement ring for his adored one. His father caused the boy's arrest, with instructions to send him to the Reform School. When he saw the boy going tearfully away, however, Chesseman melted and took the erring one to his home. The wedding is indefinitely postponed.

FISK EXPLAINS HIS VOTE

Mayor Makes Plain That He Has Not Advocated Sunday Golf.

GOVERNORS MEET TONIGHT.

President Calkins Makes Announcement—The Property Partly in Union County.

When Mayor Charles J. Fisk was requested today by a Daily Press representative to explain his vote at the Plainfield Country Club meeting the other night, he declared that he was glad of an opportunity to do so as he had been placed in false light in this matter.

"The action at the meeting," said Mr. Fisk, "was merely to make a change in the constitution. It had a perfectly useless and unusual provision against allowing the club house to be open on Sundays. Such a condition is not made by other leading clubs and the consensus of opinion among our members that it would be advisable to abolish that condition. The vote was not on the question whether golf, tennis or anything else should be played on Sunday. That matter, as a result of the vote, is entirely for the board of governors in their wisdom to decide what privileges should be extended to members. Should they find that golf and the like on Sundays is a violation of the Sunday law, it is not probable that they would allow it. We did not vote for it but as I say voted for the club to be open and that is all. There has been much unnecessary discussion and I have been singled out as a champion of Sunday golf, a game I never played. In the Press on Monday, Mr. Mellick, in explaining the matter to the public before the meeting was held, said very correctly:

"'The amendment of the constitution simply carries with it the right to open the clubhouse and grounds on Sunday after 1 o'clock, and it is still within the power of the trustees to decide upon what privileges shall be enjoyed at the club in the way of serving meals, etc. It is not the general opinion that a wide and indiscriminate enjoyment of club privileges will be permitted, the tendency being to conduct the place in a quiet and orderly manner which will meet with the approbation of the most particular member.

"Now as to this talk about a petition to be sent me to allow Sunday baseball. In the first place I have no more power to allow Sunday baseball than I have to allow Sunday golf. That is for the Legislature of New Jersey to pass upon. Were Sunday baseball to be played here, however, I could, should and would have it stopped on the ground that as mayor I am bound to see that the laws are observed. Sunday baseball would annoy people and would have to be stopped. It would be stopped. Now as for golf, it should be remembered that the Country Club links are in Middlesex county and there I have nothing to do in the matter. That is up to the prosecutor and other civil authorities of that county. Personally, I do not believe anyone would find fault if a game of ball were to be played, without any disturbance, away back in the woods, but as I say that is not a matter for me to decide. My purpose in making this statement is that I have been singled out from all the members and held up as a champion of Sunday golf. Nothing could be further from the truth. I have not voted for it at the Country Club or elsewhere."

It was learned today that as a matter of fact part of the eighteen hole course is actually in Union county, notwithstandng the commonly accepted idea among the members that their club grounds are entirely in Middlesex county. Holes 3, 4 and 5 are situated in Fanwood township and therefore Prosecutor Swift as well as prosecutor Berdine has authority to act on Sunday if they consider that the law is being violated.

President Leighton Calkins issued this statement today:

The president of the Plainfield Country Club has called a meeting of the trustees for Friday evening of this week, for the purpose of considering several matters of club management which come up now for the first time. Under the constitution, the trustees have the power to impose such restrictions as they may deem advisable, on the right of junior associate members (which includes boys under sixteen), to use the grounds of the club. At present they cannot use the grounds on Saturday afternoons, or on legal holidays; and the trustees will probably prohibit them from playing golf and tennis on Sundays. The employment of young boys as caddies will also in all probability be prohibited; and measures will be taken to pre-

BOLD, BAD HIGHWAYMEN THWARTED IN A HOLD-UP

Plainfielders who either of necessity or habit use the Fanwood cut road for driving at night are hereby warned to be on the look-out for a couple of bold, bad, ferocious highwaymen who are infesting that vicinity. William H. Durling, of South Bound Brook, had an experience with them and if it hadn't been that he demonstrated he was a man of deeds, not words, he might have been minus all his mazuma.

Durling came into town about 9 o'clock last night and told Patrolman Anderson that he had been held up. There were two of them, he said, and he seen 'em a comin' and knew they meant business by the way they winked their eyelashes.

"Gosh," said Anderson, "I should think yu'd been scared to death."

"Well it was pretty ticklish," admitted Durling, "but down in Bound Brook they kill cripples at birth and drive cowards out of the State so I just held my ground. Yessiree, I just yelled out 'Hey, you fellers, get away from that horse's head or dodgast it I'll slam this whip into both of yuh so hard it'll make your head swim.'"

"And what did they do then?" asked Cop Anderson.

"Blamed if they didn't take to their heels and hike it across lots as if the very Old Nick was after them. They knew I meant what I said and by cracky I'da showed 'em if they had moved a step further."

When the bluecoat reported the affair to police headquarters, Chief Kiely gave instructions to all his men to keep an extra sharp lookout for such a dangerous pair.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN'S CLUB PLANS ITS ANNUAL BANQUET.

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian church, met last night and decided two important events for the coming winter. One is that the club will hold a banquet in the chapel of the church Thursday night November 12, in connection with which there will be two or three prominent speeches. These banquets heretofore have been most successful and the one in November will be anticipated with much pleasure.

The other important event is that early in December Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, the well known Baptist clergyman of New York, will deliver one of his popular lectures. Dr. MacArthur is known throughout the country as one of the most able divines in the Baptist denomination and his presence here will undoubtedly be the occasion for a large audience.

Mrs. Mary A. Henck.

Mrs. Mary A. Henck, widow of John B. Henck, died last night at the home of her son, E. W. Henck, of Dunellen avenue. She was in her eighty-ninth year and had been ailing for about a week. Mrs. Henck was a native of Salem, Salem county, but had lived nearly all her life in Philadelphia, coming from there to this city four years ago. Beside the son in this city, she leaves one other son and a daughter living in Santa Barbara, Cal. The funeral will be held at her late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

In the City Court.

Robert McIntyre and Edward McInerney, the two men arrested Wednesday afternoon for begging and who denied the charge when arraigned in court yesterday, were sent to jail for thirty days this morning. Patrolman Dobson, who brought the men to headquarters, produced two witnesses who testified that the defendants had stopped at their homes and asked for food and money. They persistently denied being guilty even after the witnesses had positively identified them.

Wife Wouldn't Live Here.

Marcus A. Alba, Jr., a young man who has been working in an East Second street lunch wagon, was arrested by a Newark detective, last night, on a warrant alleging desertion. It was preferred by his wife who claims that he has failed to provide for her. Alba stated that he had offered her a home in Plainfield but that she refused to leave Newark. He was taken to the Essex county seat to be arraigned in the First Precinct court today.

Ball Team to Hold Banquet.

The Clinton Avenue Baseball Club is planning to hold its annual banquet on Friday night, November 6. Ernest Dorflinger, is manager of the team and chairman of the committee of arrangements, and it has not yet been decided just where the affair will be held.

Wanted in Maryland.

John Daves has been arrested at Elizabeth on information furnished by Maryland authorities, who accuse him of felonious assault and robbery, committed on a resident of Pocomoke, a hamlet in Worcester county. He will be extradited.

BRYAN IN JERSEY TODAY

The Commoner, with the Farmer-Orator, Making Whirlwind Tour of State.

THEY PASS PLAINFIELD BY.

Thirteen Speeches in as Many Places the Program—Tonight at Newark and Jersey City.

Since shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, inquiries came fast and thick over the telephone to The Daily Press seeking information about Bryan's expected visit to Plainfield. It was remarkable that most of those who sought information on this subject were Republicans, the majority of whom explained that their desire to see the Commoner was purely a matter of curiosity. Many women were among the inquirers.

Telephone message from this office to Democratic headquarters in Newark and other places only showed that Plainfield was not on the whirlwind tour map. The schedule for the day provided that the Nebraskan would speak at Somerville at 4:10 p. m. and that ten minutes later he will start for Elizabeth.

"Farmer-orator" James E. Martine, the closest personal and political friend of the Democratic nominee in the East, is with him on the tour of Jersey, which started at Trenton shortly after 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Martine with the Commoner will be the guests of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., at Newark tonight before the big mass meeting to be held in that city.

At noon today The Daily Press sent this dispatch to Mr. Martine, who with the candidate should be at Phillipsburg shortly after 2 o'clock:

"Besieged by persons anxious to hear Bryan. Do you stop here?"

At the time of going to press no reply had been received.

Leaving Philadelphia at 10 o'clock Mr. Bryan's special whirled to Trenton, where he made a speech an hour later. Other cities visited en route to Newark include Lambertville, Frenchtown, Milford, Phillipsburg, Hampton Junction, Whitehouse, Somerville and Bound Brook. Late this afternoon both Bryan and Martine will speak at Elizabethport and Perth Amboy. A meeting will be held at New Brunswick prior to the one at Newark tonight.

Mr. Bryan's last speech tonight will be made at Jersey City after 9 o'clock. Mayor Wittpen, of that city, who in company with Robert Davis, is in the party today, will introduce the Commoner to the people of Hudson county.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Union County Sunday-school Association held its twenty-eighth annual convention in the First Presbyterian church of Westfield yesterday. The morning session began with an address of welcome by Rev. Dr. W. J. Stears, of Westfield. Following the opening exercises was the yearly report from the secretary, Rev. W. B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, and other reports.

The principal address of the morning was given by Rev. Dr. Henry C. Cronin, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Jersey City, on the theme, "Does it Pay?"

At the afternoon session there was an address by General Secretary Rev. E. Morris Fergusson.

Other addresses in the course of the afternoon were given by Mrs. J. W. Barnes, formerly international representative for elementary work, on the subject "The Old and the New;" also by Miss Nettie J. Beeching, of Plainfield, on "The Sunday-school in the Home."

At the evening session an address was given by Rev. Dr. A. H. McKinley, of Newark.

Arraigned on Old Charge.

On an old charge preferred September 26, Atthol Roth a contractor who erected a building on Watchung avenue, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, for leaving an excavation in front of the structure unprotected by lights at night. He disclaimed responsibility for the negligence as he had sub-contracted the sidewalk work and Judge Runyon instructed him to appear a week from today with the other man. The excavation was over a foot deep and a man was severely hurt by falling into it.

Endeavorers to Hold a Rally.

The Union County Christian Endeavor Union will hold a rally meeting in the Presbyterian church, Cranford, on Friday night, October 30, at 8 o'clock. Arthur M. Pierson will deliver the address of the evening. The members of the Plainfield Union and all persons interested in Endeavor work are cordially invited.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Owing to the fact that so much time was taken in the transaction of business, the members of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, who met oin the parish house of Grace church, yesterday, decided to postpone Rev. L. R. Howard's talk until next meeting. A partial report was received from Rev. Mr. Thyrrell, who is taking the religious census. It showed that the work is about two-thirds completed.

The plan is that when the census is finished slips bearing all the names of those found by the census taker will be turned over to the pastor of the church for whom preference is shown. In the case of non-churchgoers their names will be given to the pastor of the church nearest their home. The expense for this work is to be borne by all of the city and borough churches. Rev. A. C. Nickerson, of All Soul's church, and Rev. Edwin Shaw, the new pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, were elected to membership.

BOROUGH WITHOUT SALOONS.

Chairman Fisk of Excise Commission Hears About North Arlington.

"There are no saloons or hotels in North Arlington, and we have not had a case of drungenness in four years," was the report Marshal Frederick Reipe, of the borough of North Arlington, sent to Charles J. Fisk, chairman of the State Excise Commission, yesterday.

Marshal Reipe received a few weeks ago, as did all similar officials in the State, a card requesting him to fill in the number of cases of intoxication that had been recorded in the borough since 1904.

"We had no cases, so I did not bother with the matter," said the marshal yesterday; "but on Wednesday I received another card, telling me that I had better attend to it, so yesterday I answered."

Reopening Wilson Avenue.

The transformation of Wilson avenue in "Bull frog city" from a tree studded, weed grown tract, a mile long, is taking place under the direction of Councilman B. R. Waldron, who has a gang of men on the job. Trees fifteen feet high have been permitted to grow in this public thoroughfare. In fact there has been no work done on the road in thirty-five years and teams and pedestrians have had to follow a winding path. When the grading is finished it is planned to put on a covering of crushed stone and the street which runs entirely through the city will be reclaimed to traffic.

Will Witness Cup Race.

The Vanderbilt cup race on Long Island tomorrow will be witnessed by a large number of Plainfielders. A delegation of twelve automobiles will leave for the course at 9 o'clock tonight for the purpose of getting parking spaces before the start. The machines will be in charge of the following, each having a party: H. A. Todd, Alson M. Abbott, Robert Meeker, E. J. Phillips, Amos Andrews F. O. Ball, Samuel Bingaman, W. S. Maltby, G. H. Condict, R. O. Cumback, Charles H. Dutcher, Alexander Milne, George J. Tobin, A. L. C. Marsh and Dr. F. J. Hughes.

Bazaar at St. Joseph's Church.

The Society of the Children of Mary of St. Joseph's church, the borough, are conducting a successful bazaar in the basement of the church. It was opened Wednesday evening and will continue until tonight at which time the affair will be concluded with a euchre party. Several booths are erected and attractively decorated and filled with pretty fancy articles. A number of young women of the parish including the Misses Agnes Fitzgerald, Justina Smith, Katherine Egany, Margaret Burke, and Katherine McMahon, are in charge of the booths.

Gashes Her Own Temple.

In a fit of anger an Italian woman living at 16 Regent street, struck herself in the head this morning with a glass tumbler, puncturing the temple and causing the blood to gush forth in a strong stream. When Dr. P. J. Zeglio arrived she was very weak from loss of blood and was removed to the hospital, where it is said she will recover.

Will Chase the Hounds.

The Watchung Hunt Club will meet at the Baltusrol Golf Club, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for a chase after the hounds. It is expected that a large number will join in the weekly hunt.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Showers tonight and Saturday. Maximum, 63; minimum, 39.

UNION'S IDEAL SENATOR

Plainfield's Message to Union G.O.P. Clubs Delivered by New Idea Leader.

MR. MOY PRAISES ACKERMAN.

Thomas L. Raymond Also Gives a Good Political Talk at Big Rally in Elizabeth.

Former Judge Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark, last night addressed the Union County League of Republican Clubs at the New Lyceum Theatre, Elizabeth. His speech was concerned chiefly with national issues, with a few words on the direct primaries. Geo. W. V. Moy, representing the Plainfield Republican club, made a fine address in which he paid a great tribute to State Senator Ackerman. He said in part:

"I come to you with a greeting from Plainfield, the prosperous city, celebrated for its fine streets, beautiful residences, lovely women, Republican majorities and for one of the best State Senators that has ever occupied a place in our Legislature. For him we all have the most profound respect and admiration, we recognize his ability, and honesty of purpose and we know he stands for the principle of doing what is best and right for all of the people, all of the time, regardless of what the effect may be upon him personally. It is needless for me to name Senator Ernest R. Ackerman.

"We of Plainfield, also admire and respect the man who, as Justice of the Supreme Court of this State, put the gamblers of Monmouth County out of business, and who at this time is with so much force and dignity filling the chair of Chief Executive of this State, John Franklin Fort, long may he live.

"We are not alone in our attitude toward these men, nor are we alone in our admiration and respect for another because we know that the great body of American people have demonstrated from time to time their intense affection and loyalty for Theodore Roosevelt, to my mind the greatest President of the greatest nation on the face of God's green earth.

"And for those who have gone before, our people have love and veneration, the really great men of our country Lincoln, Blaine, McKinley, Garfield, and why is this? The answer—they all stood for something and accomplished their purpose, they were all men of action, and their names bring forth applause, and so the man of the present hour is a man of action, successful in every work he has undertaken big and brave and true, safe and sane in every respect, and one who in the future will receive as great, or greater applause than those I have mentioned. There is but one presidential candidate and but one issue in this campaign and that is, William H. Taft."

Mr. Raymond said in part:

"There was a hot battle waged in Essex county this fall. We called each other all kinds of names, but the fight was soon over and we Republicans are now standing shoulder to shoulder, and heaven only knows what we will do for Taft and Sherman and the rest of the ticket, but we will give them a large majority. I believe that if we don't get together after factional fights and squabbles the direct primary law would prove a failure, for it would encourage a lack of harmony. If the direct primary law gives strength to party government I am in favor of it. In these days people are too apt to overlook the system of party government and to get away from the old traditional party system by scratching the ticket.

"Under the direct primary law every man has a chance to support the candidates directly, and every man is bound to support the ticket. The present campaign will decide whether it is a good law to remain on the statute books."

Mr. Raymond dwelt on Taft's record and his fitness, and praised the Union County League of Republican Clubs for the splendid attendance, saying that Essex was slow in this direction. He added laughingly: "They were pretty slow when they didn't nominate me."

Local candidates made addresses, as did the heads of all the clubs in the league.

The people's lobby report, classifying the members of last winter's Legislature, caused amusement at Trenton yesterday. Legislators who are familiar with State House men and affairs said that all that was known of the people's lobby at Trenton was the appearance of three or four young men, who made long speeches at committee hearings and then berated the legislative correspondents because they did not send

ERRING WOMAN RELEASED FOR HER FAMILY'S SAKE

When Mrs. Mamie Hollowell, of Spooner avenue, who was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Saffron, was arraigned in the city court, this morning Nicholas Roggo, a South Second street grocer, and his young daughter, appeared as complainants against her. The Roggos told Judge Runyon that Mrs. Hollowell had a habit of coming around to their place every time she got skated and calling them all manner of bad names. She was exceptionally abusive, yesterday, and followed up her remarks by throwing dirt through the door of the Roggo store.

"Did you do that?" asked Judge Runyon.

"Yes, I did," said Mrs. Hollowell, "but not until after Roggo spit in my face and I told him no Ginny could do that to an American. I said I wouldn't stand for it and that my husband would come around and clean him up."

"My father didn't spit in her face," chimed in Miss Roggo, "but when she said she was an American I said she might be but she was a mighty poor specimen."

"I guess you are right as to that," was Judge Runyon's comment. "I was here yesterday when Mrs. Hollowell was brought in and she was in a beastly state of intoxication. It's the fourth time she's been here in two years and that's no record for any American to be proud of."

Chief Kiely interposed to say that Mrs. Hollowell has a hard-working, respectable husband and two nice children and for this reason the magistrate exercised leniency. He suspended sentence on the woman, not for her own sake but the family's, he told her, and added that if she was brought before him again for drunkenness or bothering the Roggos she would get a long term in jail.

OFFICIAL CALL ISSUED BY TRINITY'S CONSISTORY.

Rev. Henry Merle Mellen, pastor of Christ's Reformed church at Newark, and clerk of the Classis of Newark, met with the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last night and acted as moderator of the meeting for issuing the call to Rev. John Y. Brook to become the pastor of Trinity Reformed church. Every member of the Consistory was present and signed the call, which Mr. Brook will receive today.

The next step toward making Mr. Brook Trinity's pastor will be the special meeting of the Classis on Saturday, November 7, at which meeting the call of Trinity Reformed church to Mr. Brook will come before them for official action.

Gave Song Recital.

Miss Annola F. Wright, of New York, ssprano soloist; and Mrs. Jonothan Rawson, of Plainfield, contralto, assisted by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, viloinist, gave a song recital in the Congregational church last night. Miss Mabel Maxson and Miss Nichols were the accompanists. The affair was the first fall social reunion of the congregation and was attended by a large gathering of members and friends. The various numbers on the program were liberally applauded.

Pocketbook Returned Minus Cash.

One of the members of the First Baptist church who lost her pocketbook containing about $50 on Tuesday last, had the book returned to her Wednesday morning, minus the cash. A young woman returned the property, claiming that there was no money in the book when she picked it up on the lawn near the church. It contained visiting cards of the owner, who still has hopes that the cash may be returned to her.

Failed to Procure Bail.

Charles L. Phillips, the New York man charged by Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein, of Rahway, with the theft of an overcoat in this city, Wednesday night, failed to secure bail yesterday and is still locked up at police headquarters. He will be given a hearing tomorrow morning. His father, Lee Phillips, has retained Counsellor Charles A. Reed to defend him.

Dr. Herring Officiated.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated at the pretty wedding on Wednesday of Miss Lillian Brien, daughter of Henry Brien, to Edward Leclerc Voght, of Morristown. The ceremony was performed at noon at the home of the bride's father, 823 West End avenue, New York, and was followed by a large reception.

PEDEFLOUS FINED $400

Entered Plea of Non Vult to Indictment for Selling Liquor on Sunday.

JUDGE SCHENCK ON THE BENCH.

Told the Defendant That Merits of the Case Warranted the Imposition of a Substantial Sentence.

Henry Pedeflous, proprietor of the well-known hotel on the Warrenville road famous for its mushroom dinners, appeared before Judge Schenck in the Somerset county court at Somerville, this morning, and pleaded non-vult to an indictment charging him with an infraction of the Bishops' law in selling liquor on Sunday. His plea was accepted by Judge Schenck and a fine of $400 was imposed.

Lawyer John A. Frech, of Somerville, who represented the defendant, announced that the money would be paid immediately.

In passing sentence in the matter, Judge Schenck spoke very briefly. He declared the merits of the case warranted the imposition of a substantial penalty, but the fact that the defendant had saved the county the expense of a trial would be taken into consideration. It had been reported to the authorities on numerous occasions, he said, that the law had been openly violated and that it was done with the full knowledge of the proprietor that he was amendable. Lawyer Frech made an earnest plea in his client's behalf before the fine was imposed.

The hotel conducted by Pedeflous is located on the road between Watchung and Warrenville and is frequented by New York, Newark and other of town people as much as from Plainfield. For several years past it has been popular with automobile parties for Sunday runs and it was a matter of comment that liquor could always be procured. The proprietor's indictment was brought about by State detectives who visited the hotel and procured the necessary evidence. The proceedings were kept secret until the warrant was served.

Store Burglars Get 2-Year Sentence.

Frank Osborn and Harry Day, who gave Newark and New York as their homes, waived indictment and pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon at Flemington, to robbing the general store of Linden T. West, of Annandale, on Monday night. They were captured near White House. Judge John J. Connet sentenced them to serve two years in the State prison at hard labor.

Mr. Klemm is proprietor of Rock Spring Dairy Farm.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The Borough High School football team will play the Somerville H. S. team tomorrow.

The more important contests of this year's gridiron season are ushered in with a rush tomorrow three big games being down for decision. Pennsylvania takes the field against its old rivals, the Indians; Princeton meets Syracuse, and Harvard lines up against the hustling Middies. That these games will resolve into bitterly fought encounters is evident when one considers the capabilities of the teams involved and their records of the season. It is expected that the long-deferred open game will be exhibited in at least one of these matches, namely the Carlisle-Pennsylvania game. The crafty redskins usually reserve their game with the Quakers as an occasion upon which to present many new trick plays, and although the Red and Blue is expected to play a line-breaking game, Coach Metzgar has not kept his men behind closed gates for the purpose of perfecting a line-smashing attack alone.

The Tigers and Syracuse have both advocated old-fashioned football so far this season, and if this style of play is adhered to in tomorrow's game a typical line-bucking struggle should result. However, the road toward the Yale game in the Tigers' campaign has now been reached and rapid development of the Nassau combination is anticipated by football experts. Little is known of the proficiency in the new game of Harvard or the Navy when pitted against elevens of their own strength, and tomorrow's contest should decide that vital question to the satisfaction of the supporters of both institutions.

To attempt to prophesy the outcome of the Quaker-Carlisle game would be mere guesswork, so evenly do the two teams appear to be matched. Glen Warner is sending out his usual hard-luck stories from the Indian camp, but it is safe to assume that all of the dusky stars will be waiting for the whistle tomorrow afternoon. The Red and Blue is getting out a little tale of woe on its own account to the effect that Keinath will be unable to play. This story also wants to be taken with the proverbial grain of salt, as both elevens will muster their full playing strength for what bids fair to be one of the most trying struggles of the year.

Miss Katie Bodine, a pupil nurse at Muhlenberg Hospital, has returned from New York, where she has been taking a three months' course in one of the hospitals.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schaffus, of Fairview avenue, gave a whist party to a number of their friends Tuesday night, prior to the departure of Miss Margaret Barker for her home in Kentucky. Miss Barker has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Schaffus for several months.

Does Your Furnace Leak Gas?

Cases of asphyxiation are not uncommon, but even the faintest odor of gas in the house is disagreeable. It's due to the faulty construction of the old style of furnace, and any Boynton dealer will tell you why the can never leak gas under any circumstances, and will give you a cleaner, hotter fire than any round fire pot and do it with less coal and trouble, and no dust in the house. Now is the best time to see him.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Taft's speeches, the G. O. P. platform, and other interesting Republican literature may be had at The Daily Press office on application.

A Democratic rally will be held on Tuesday night at Debele's Hall. The principal address will be delivered by Warren Dickson, corporation counsel of Jersey City. G. W. C. Wakefield, of New York, and Ray E. Mayham, of Union county. All of the Somerset county candidates are expected to be present and speak.

J. Frank Burke, of Newark, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, will address a meeting of the local optionists in Debele's Hall on Monday night. The gathering is being arranged for by Sidney Smith, of the Somerset county organization, whose headquarters are at Somerville.

Pictures of W. H. Taft in colors and other fine portraits of the G. O. P. candidate are to be had free at The Daily Press office.

A Republican rally and mass meeting has been planned for Saturday night at the Opera House at Cranford under the auspices of the Taft and Sherman Republican Club. Prominent speakers will address the meeting but as yet the list has not been completed. It is known, however, that Charles N. Fowler, Carlton B. Pierce, Ernest R. Ackerman and the other county candidates will be present. Good music will be provided by the Wheeler & Heiden band.

The Taft and Sherman Club, of Cranford, has secured as headquarters in Cranford the store at the North avenue and Union avenue corner of the Opera House formerly occupied by Pike, the hardware man, and the rooms will be open each night from now on. There will be plenty of good literature to be had there, and everyone is invited to drop in and talk it over with his neighbors.

An address to the colored voters of Plainfield and other G. O. P. literature of interest to colored voters is free at The Daily Press office.

As a result of the interpretation placed on the law governing voting machines by Samuel D. Dickinson, Secretary of State, 211 voting machines will remain idle this year and only 136 will be used. The Secretary of State has decided that he has no right to relocate machines taken out of districts which have voted against their use. Elections to determine whether machines should be used have been held in 215 districts, and in only four districts did the voters decide to retain them.

Twenty-five years a wanderer from his old home in Germany, Herman Gobel, whose aged parents wrote recently to Chief of Police George C. Tenney asking for information regarding his whereabouts, returned to Elizabeth and learned that he was being sought. Gobel called at police headquarters today and was given a copy of the letter from his father and mother. He will probably return home immediately.

Gobel told an interesting tale of his adventures, saying that he had deserted from the German army in 1882, coming to this country. He saw service in Cuba and the Philippines and stood within a few feet of General Lawton when the general fell. He returned to the United States and again reenlisted. He had of late years followed the trade of tinker.

Complaints Against Water Company.

Frank Bergen, of the Plainfield-Union Water Company, Wednesday night met the committee appointed by Mayor Alpers, of Westfield, to investigate charges made against the methods of the water company. A list of charges had been prepared and were read off to Mr. Bergen by Mayor Alpers, who was chairman. It was charged that the company refused to put meters in when requested to by consumers; that they were slow in furnishing water to flush the sewer extensions; that they dug up the streets without first getting a permit from the council. Mr. Bergen offered to remedy all the difficulties.

DON'T DRINK COFFEE.

If Coffee Doesn't Agree With You Don't Drink It Doctors Say.

If it does agree with you drink all you want. Any doctor will tell you that what's one man's meat is another man's poison.

Some people won't drink beer; they say it don't agree with them. Some people say it makes them billious.

But to every reader of The Daily Press we desire to state that pure beer never made any one billious. Rienzi beer, brewed by the famous Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, is a pure beer, and any person that cannot drink the ordinary beer can drink Rienzi simply because it is brewed of pure barley malt and hops, both of which are brimful of tonic properties, and is properly aged.

Rienzi beer builds you up; it quiets the nerves, sharpens the appetite, turns that blue feeling into cheerfulness and puts vitality into your whole system.

And we say to coffee drinkers also if coffee don't agree with you, if it makes you nervous, quit it, and drink Rienzi beer.

There is no secret about Rienzi, just hops and barley malt, fully aged and brewed as good beer should be brewed.

Henry Haurand is the agent for Rienzi in Plainfield and he will promptly deliver an order to your home at any time. His address is 68 Somerset street. His 'phone number is 229. Call him up.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Many residents in this vicinity have been annoyed considerably of late through much loss by small fires, which have been started by tramps and boys for mischief. Nearly every resident owning property has suffered from this cause and one farmer on Maple avenue was called out last night for the third time within two weeks to protect his property from a blaze near his home.

The crop of Keefer pears has been exceptionally large here this fall. One grower has shipped over three hundred bushels from a small orchard to Plainfield dealers.

The Good Government Club will meet tonight, when it is expected that several matters of importance will be considered.

Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt, of Grant avenue, Plainfield, who has many relatives here, is recovering from her recent illness.

Harry Clawson and a party of hunters have returned from a hunting trip in Hunterdon county.

Miss Dorothy Johnson has returned from a visit with friends in South Orange.

verbatim reports to their papers.

Under the classification of "For the Bosses and Corporations" is found the name of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, whose services as a lawmaker have not been surpassed by any member of the Legislature. Senator Ackerman fathered the Civil Service law now in force in the State and he expended much energy and time in getting this most progressive piece of legislation placed on the statute books. In the list of "For the People" is found the names of Senators Fielder, Silzer and Gebhardt, with Senators Ackerman and Frelinghuysen, composing the committee which drafted the measure.

Among the Assemblymen under the same head are the names of Mark Sullivan, Edward Kenny, William E. Ramsay, Schuyler Van Cleef and Joseph H. Firth, Democrats who voted against Civil Service, and who, with their Democratic colleagues, entered into a deal with a few Republicans controlled by the bosses to vote for an early adjournment on condition that these Republicans would help kill the Civil Service bill.

NOTES OF INTEREST CONCERNING Y. W. C. A.

The members of the "Tuesday evening gymnasium class" met at the Y. W. C. A., this week for a picnic supper. The girls made coffee out-of-doors before an open fire and it had the distinctive flavor that coffee made before an open fire always has. During the supper hour, plans for conducting a gymnasium Bible class in connection with the class work were formulated. The class, under the leadership of Miss Harriet Mattison, will meet twenty minutes before the gymnasium class and will study the Gospel of Matthew.

At the gymnasium supper, Miss Mary Ferrell, of Philadelphia, the new instructor in cooking, and Miss Ethel Capron, the teacher in millinery, were guests of the class.

The educational classes at the association have opened with much enthusiasm. The class in cookery studied beverages for their first lesson. The food value, the different ways of preparing and serving the various beverages were discussed and demonstrated and the class enjoyed a tea party at the conclusion of the lesson. Miss Ferrell presents her lesson in a graceful manner and her fund of information, along the chosen lines, seems inexhaustible.

A committee for Hallowe'en with Miss Helen Brown as chairman, met last night to plan for a celebration at the association rooms. The party will be held on Thursday night, October 29. Early that evening from 8 to 8:30, Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, will lecture to the members of the association on "The Skin and its Care," this being the first of a series of lectures on "The Care of the Body" to be given at different times during the winter by the physicians of Plainfield. After the lecture the house and gymnasium will be turned over to the Hallowe'en fun-makers.

On Monday, November 2, the glee club will reorganize for another year's work. William Holmes, under whom the club did such splendid work last year, will again be the instructor. A chorus of about thirty five is expected. Membership in the glee club is one of the association privileges. The glee club is the last of the regular association classes to organize, all the rest beginning this week. There is still room for a few more members if they register promptly.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

It is a rare musical show nowadays that has no Salome dance, but few can outdo that incorporated in the musical comedy "Too Many Wives," to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. With excellent scenic effects, La Manolita gives a fasciniating performance of the dance. There is nothing repulsive in the actions of this little dancer; in fact, they are distinctly agreeable. The work of her ballet of fourteen girls gives evidence of careful training.

When the new play, "The Right to Live," is placed before the clientele of the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, it is believed that there will be shown one of the most interesting and one of the best constructed plays that have been seen on the local stage for a long time. It is cast on new lines with original ideas, yet ideas that are not unreal nor exaggerated. As a writer, the author, Mr. Goodman, is a close observer of existing conditions and has built his play upon natural lines; yet at the same time, portraying circumstances that come to the lives of many and may happen to any community. Therefore, it is to be said that the author has not builded his play upon mere mental imagination, but has taken for his background conditions of everyday life.

Many of the theatrical managers of the present day producing musical attractions seem to forget the principal one in the production, viz: The composer of the music. This is not so with those well known caterers to the theatrical goers of this country, Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman, who will present at the Plainfield theatre next Monday night their latest and most successful musical comedy, "Little Mose" or "A Night in Venice." The above named firm is proud to be able to announce that the music of this tuneful opera is by A. Baldwin Sloane, one of the leading composers of light opera of this country. Mr. Sloane has many of the most popular works including "Coming Thro' the Rye," which is well known here, and "Jack and the Beanstalk" to his credit, the latter having had long runs both in New York and London. Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman are the only managers to contend that the patrons of musical plays want to know the names of the composer of the music they are listening to. In many instances, managers imagine that their names will draw more people into the theatre than that of the composer. This is a great mistake and one that this well-known firm has always steered clear of. "Little Mose" is a beautiful romantic opera presented by a remarkably strong company, elaborately costumed, and staged as only Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman present their operas.

Albert Bruning, in "The Right to Live," at New Plainfield Theatre, Tomorrow Night.

"A Knight for a Day," one of the biggest musical comedy successes of recent seasons, is the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre, Wednesday, October 28. The cast of seventy, including Comedian John Slavin and Miss May Vokes, remains the same as the one that presented it at Wallack's theatre for practically an entire season. The production in late May opened in Boston, where it has been playing to the same steadily crowded audiences that have marked its career from its beginning two years ago in Chicago, where at the Whitney theatre, it consummated a run of 607 nights. Uproarious fun in irresistible comic situations and rare charm in its girly ensembles and its stage pictures, are accredited elements making for its sensational success. A score, too, said to be among the most musical of recent years, is another noticeable feature. Comedian Slavin's role is that of a little waiter who essays to pass himself off as a present day knight. Miss Vokes appears in one of her characteristic slavery roles, the part, however, according to broad concession surpassing the laugh qualities of each of her other "servant lady" types. Girly ensembles include the Sweet Girl Graduates, the Merry Madcaps, the See-Saw Flirts, the Corsican Belles, the Stage Door Coquettes, the Candle Light Girls, and the Grand Opera Coryphees.

Scene From "Little Mose," at New Plainfield Theatre Monday Night.

Grayce Scott, in "The Right to Live" at New Plainfield Theatre Tomorrow Night.

TYPHOID

HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.

How to Avoid Infection.

Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisible, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

The Junior Society of the First Baptist church will hold its first fall meeting in the lecture room this afternoon at 4 o'clock to plan for the winter's work.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet on Tuesday afternoon, October 27. This is the meeting postponed from this week Tuesday.

Miss Elmira C. Runyon will lead the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tonight. The topic will be "Native Converts and the Churches."

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will attend the Union County Christian Endeavor Convention to be held at Cranford, Friday night, October 31, and will adjourn its meeting that night for the purpose.

The Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A., Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Charles Conover will lead the devotional services, and Miss Lulu Fisher, of Bound Brook, will teach the lesson. The topic will be "A Little Word from Asbury Park," and Miss Nettie Beeching will speak concerning it. All Sunday-school workers will be welcome.

WEARING CURL PAPERS AND LOSING HUSBANDS.

Many a divorce court tragedy found its incipiency in an innocent curl-paper. If you must wave your hair on curlers or kids, do it after your husband has left the house for the day and not at night.

Just imagine what a fright you look with your hair, the crowning beauty of a woman, done in two tight little braids at the back and six or seven hornlike projections in the front.

And don't leave your false hair in full sight on the bureau.

Can you conceive how like a wild animal or a scarecrow you must look to him when he views you in the morning light?

Can you blame him for thinking the smart-looking women he sees more fascinating than his wife?

Remember, he has not seen them in curl-papers.

To arrange the hair for the night, divide it and tie the front part loosely on top with a big bow of ribbon, then braid the back in two braids, and tie the ends with ribbon. This is so much neater and more attractive than to do it up on curlers or leave it done up as it has been all day.

A man once said that any woman who wore her hair in kids or curlers in the presence of her husband deserved to lose his love.

Some women do not think it possible for them to do their house work unless attired in an unsightly wrapper. Ususally an ugly creation, bought ready-made, of brown, blue and white-striped calico, seems to be the favorite garment.

The chief advantage is that they do not show the dirt. The dirt is there, however.

Wives who go into kitchen and pantry should provide themselves with shirtwaist suits of clean-looking material in light shades, which when soiled, would show it, and be sent to the tub.

For summer have them made with short sleeves and a Dutch neck, and at least three inches from the floor.

These are no more difficult to get into than a wrapper, and consider how much more attractive one looks to husband and children!

KEEP THIS FARMERS.

Farmers and seedsmen give more or less time and work to improving the quality of various seeds and plants, but the subburbanite rarely takes interest in any special product in order to better its quality or quality.

Some years ago I took up the study of sweet corn, as it grew in the garden. The earliest and finest ears were selected, marked and wrapped, so that they might not be molested by birds or other trespassers.

The improvement was made by choosing the earliest ears, then using only those grains that grew on the middle of the cob, rejecting each end, then selecting only the largest, best shaped grains.—Exchange.

BASEBALL.

President McCaffery, of the Toronto baseball club, yesterday announced the sale of Jimmy Cockman, third baseman of the Maple Leafs last season, to the Lincoln, Neb., club of the Western League. McCaffery purchased Cockman from the Newark club last spring for $700.

In a fast game of baseball at Middletown, N. Y., Tuesday, the New York Giants, composed mostly of substitute players, were defeated by the Middletown Athletic Club by a score of 5 to 1. McGinnity and Wiltse pitched and Snodgrass caught for the Giants. Knapp and Riley were the batteries for the athletic club.

The Chicago National League Base ball Club defeated the Detroit American League team, 7 to 1 Tuesday. Before the game a silver service was given to Pitcher Mordecai Brown, of Chicago, by the citizens of Terre Haute, his home city. Tyrus Cobb, of Detroit, carried off the batting honors, with four singles with four times up.

"Silent John" Hummell, of the Brooklyn Nationals, who has little to say in a ball game, carried out the same idea along matrimonial lines, and to all but his intimate friends and relatives in Bloomsburg, his home town, it was a surprise to learn that he was wed. The ceremony was performed Tuesday at the home of the bride, Miss Julia Sullivan, at Holyoke, Mass., where they first met four years ago, while Hummell was playing with Holyoke.

Eddie Willetts, one of the colt pitchers for the Detroit Tigers, eloped to Windsor last Saturday with Miss Emma Jeneraux, of Hull, Quebec, and was married to her at the home of Rev. Thomas Manning. Willetts' wedding just leaked out, as he went to Chicago with the Detroit team Saturday night and Sunday took part in the exhibition game between the Tigers and Cubs. Mrs. Willetts' parents object to her marrying a baseball player and they went to Detroit to prevent her marriage, causing Willetts and the girl to elope.

According to all reports, Charley Comiskey has pinched two genuine stars for next season, and just the kind of men he needs. Sutor, the left-handed pitcher, taken from the Coast League, is heralded as the man to succeed Nick Altrock, and Zeider is the best of young coast infielders. Sutor has won twenty-seven games out of forty-one, and this with a losing team. Zeider is a classy shortstop and the fastest base-runner in the Pacific League. The Sox can use a good infielder. Atz was willing and handy, but did not bat up to the .200 mark; Tannehill is thinking of giving up the game and Davis is growing old. A new man of speed and batting power would help materially.

SKELLY ESTABLISHES NEW HEAD PIN RECORD.

Rolling in the head pin tourney at Campbell's alleys, last night, Louis Skelly, bowling with the Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men, made a new record for the tourney when he put up a score of 93. A foul in the fifth frame, when he made nine pins prevented him from surpassing the 100 mark.

With the exception of Willett's 74, the other scores were low and it proved that hitting the head pin is not as easy as one would imagine.

Some interesting scores are looked for tonight, when a squad of unattached bowlers will roll.

Last night's scores follow:

L. Skelly	93
F. Willett	74
H. Radin	48
H. Montross	38
Keiderling	35
S. Montross	24
Rhodier	22
Newton	19
J. Montross	16
Griffin	8

Holy Cross Has Stiff Schedule.

The ambitious football eleven connected with the Holy Cross Club will play a return game with the Bound Brook High School, at Bound Brook, tomorrow afternoon. Recently, the church boys defeated Bound Brook by a score of 18 to 0 and hope to score a victory tomorrow. A week from tomorrow the church team will play Rutgers Prep on the Cricket Field, at 3 o'clock and this game will be watched with more than usual interest, but Rutgers recently defeated P. H. S. 5 to 0. On Election Day Holy Cross will play East Orange and on Thanksgiving Day will meet Westfield High School at the latter place at 10 o'clock in the morning. Other games include one with New Brunswick High School.

MARRIED AND SINGLE MEN TO PLAY AT CRESCENT OVAL.

The final appearance of the Clinton Avenues on the diamond this season will be at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon, when a game will be played between the married and single men. No admission fee will be charged and the public is invited to attend. One of the provisions under which the contest is to be played is that the single men are not to use Clifford Randolph in the box. Eddie Conshay will officiate for them, while Squier will pitch for the married men. The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp and the lineup will be as follows:

Married men—Stransberger, c; Squier, p; Barnes, 1b; B. Martin, 2b; D. Scott, ss; Jimmie Montross, 3b; J. Scott, cf; VanArsdale rf. Single men—L. Dixon, c; Eddie Conshay, p; Schott, 1b; Jack Martin, 2b; Giles, ss; Emery, 3b; Moffett, lf; O'Loughlin, cf; Randolph, rf.

SUGGESTIONS FOR AN AUTUMN WEDDING.

An effective and cheap house decoration for the bride who will be married early in the fall is golden rod and purple aster. Do not mix the purple and yellow indiscriminately, but have masses of solid color flanked on either side with the contrasting one.

Both the golden rod and aster can be found along the highways for the gathering, or often can be purchased in the markets. Sometimes arraignments can be made with the milkman to bring in quantities of the flowers the day before the wedding.

Dip them well in a tub of clear water to remove the dust of the road or spray them thoroughly.

If you cannot find the wild aster the cultivated can be used, though it is not so artistic with the golden rod.

To accentuate the two colors in the table decorations, have yellow shades on the candles; ice the small cakes with violet and orange icing, and fill the bon bon dishes with candied violets and glace oranges.

If you prefer white as a floral decoration for the table, use masses of the white aster and flank it on either side with low plats of purple and white grapes with a few apricots mixed through them.

CARE OF THE HAIR.

In coming back from the summer vacation economize in something else, but look after your hair. Now is a good time to go to the hairdresser for course of treatments. Never are they more needed, and at no time of the year does it do more good.

Dust, sun and salt water are foes to glossy, well kept locks. Hair usually falls badly in the autumn, and if not attended to disease may follow.

If you cannot afford the treatments at least look after your own hair and do it conscientiously and systematically.

Massage, brushing and occasional rubbing will be found to do wonders.

Accountants Induct Officers.

The annual meeting of the American Association of Public Accountants closed yesterday at Atlantic City, with the induction of the newly elected officers and a dinner. These are the new officers: President, J. E. Sterret, Philadelphia; secretary, J. Cullen Roberts, New York city; treasurer, H. T. Westermann, St. Louis; trustees, Franklin Allen and Robert H. Montgomery, Philadelphia; Elijah W. Sells, New York and H. S. Chase, Boston.

Griggs to Speak for Taft in N. J.

The Republicans of Montclair are endeavoring to whoop up things toward the close of the campaign. They will hold another big rally next Thursday night, at which the principal speaker will be John W. Griggs, former Governor of New Jersey and ex-United States Attorney General. Mayor Henry V. Crawford and Starr J. Murphy will speak on local issues. An effort is being made to have Vice-President Fairbanks speak at the meeting.

The Taft and Sherman Campaign Club, of Wood Rridge, will have a mass meeting at Fritsch's Hotel there on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The speakers will be Edmund W. Wakelee, Donald McLean, Charles Burrows, Surrogate E. L. D. Hester, Joseph H. Scharff and William H. Mayer.

The topic for the prayer-meeting at the Seventh-Day Baptist church this evening is the "Parables of the Hidden Treasure and the Pearl of Great Price." The theme for the discourse tomorrow morning will be "The Battle of the Wilderness;" text Matt. 4:1.

Sunday evening the Men's Club of the church have a meeting at which time the guest of honor will be A. C. Prentice, M. D., of New York city, of the faculty of Columbia University, who will address the meeting on an interesting topic, "Phases of Preventive Medicine."

CLOSED PORTALS.

Washington Camp, No. 30, Patriotic Order Sons of America, has paid the death claim of the late John Britton.

The initiatory team of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, will visit Star of Elizabeth Council, at Elizabeth, tonight. The members will leave the Watchung avenue trolley station at 7 o'clock.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"But it is impossible that he is innocent, or will ever be thought so."

"And I know that he is innocent."

They had come to the station.

"Would you like to speak to Mr. Farrell?" Crane asked. "You are taking my word."

"No, it is useless. I can do nothing but wait; that I can and will do."

"Don't think me cruel," Crane said, "but the wait will be so long."

"It may be forever, but I will wait. And I thank you again for your—for your goodness to me. I'm sorry that I've given you trouble. If you can—if you can—make it easier for Mortimer—I know he'll feel it if you could make him think that you didn't altogether believe him a—a—dishonest—will you, for my sake?"

As Crane looked into the soft luminous gray eyes, swimming moist in the hard-restrained tears of the pleading girl, he became a child. What a wondrous thing love was! Mountains were as mole-hills before such faith. In the unlimited power of her magnetism what a trifle she had asked of him. With an influence so great she had simply said: "Spare of censure this man for my sake." In thankfulness rather than in condescension he promised.

A sharp material whistle cut short these fantastically chaotic thoughts.

"Good-by, and thank you," said the girl, holding out her hand to Crane.

"Good-by," he repeated, mechanically.

Seated in the car, swift-whirled toward the city, he was almost surprised to find Farrell by his side. He was like a man in a dream. A vision of gray eyes, blurred in tears of regret, had obliterated all that was material. In defeat his adversary had the victory.

With an effort he swept away the cobweb of dreams and sat upright—Philip Crane, the careful planner.

"You nearly missed the train," said Farrell.

Farrell smiled knowingly. The veiled insinuation disgusted Crane. Was everything in the world vile? He had left a young life swimming hopelessly in the breakers of disaster, buoyed only by faith and love; and at his side sat a man who winked complacently and beamed upon him with senile admiration because of his supposed gallantry.

Farrell's voice sounded harsh as the cawing of homing ravens at eventime.

"Will it be a court case?" he queried.

"What?" asked Crane.

"That high roller in the bank."

"Oh! I can't say yet what it will lead to." Crane's caution always asserted itself first.

"Well, I've been thinking it over. That's the guy, right enough, but when it comes to swearing to a man's identity in court, it's just a bit ticklish."

Crane frowned. He disliked men who hedged.

Farrell continued: "You see what I mean?"

"I don't," answered Crane, shortly.

"You will if you wait," advised Farrell, a tinge of asperity in his tone. "I'm making a book, say. All the blazin' idiots in Christendom is climbin' over me wantin' to know what I'll lay this and what I'll lay that. They're like a lot of blasted mosquitoes. A rounder comes up an' makes a bet; if at all, just grabs the dough and calls his number. He may be Rockefeller, or a tough from the Bowery, it don't make no difference to me; all I want is his goods an' his number, see? But a bettor of the right sort slips in an' taps me for odds to a thousand. Nat'rally I'm interested, because he parts with the thousand as though it was his heart's blood. I size him up. There ain't no time fer writin' down of earmarks, though most like I could point him out in a crowd, an' say: 'That's the rooster.' But s'posin' a judge stood up another man that looked pretty much like him, an' asked me to swear one of the guys into ten years in Sing Sing, p'r'aps I'd weaken. Mistaken identity is like grabbin' up two kings an' a jack, an' playin' 'em fer threes."

"Which means, if I understand it, that you're guessing at the man—that I've given you all this trouble for nothing."

"Not by a jugful!" ejaculated Farrell. "I'm just tellin' you this to show you that we've got to make it complete—we've got to get collateral to back up my pickin'."

"You mean some one else to identify him also?"

"No, not just that; but that's not a bad thought. My clerk, Ned Hagen, must have noticed him, too. I mean that the bettor's badge number will be in line with that bet, an' you can probably find out the number of the badge this rooster wore."

An inspiration came with Farrell's words—came to Crane. Why had he not thought of that before? Still it didn't matter. The badge number, Mortimer's number, would be in Faust's book, where had been entered the hundred dollars Mortimer put on Lauzanne. He could compare this with the number in Farrell's book; no doubt they would agree; then, indeed, the chain would be complete to the last link. No man on earth could question that evidence.

"It's a good idea, Farrell," he said.

"Bet yer life; it's clear Pinkerton. You'd better come round to my place to-morrow about ten, an' we'll look it up."

"I will," Crane answered.

XL.

The old bay horse that crawled back to Ringwood with Allis Porter after her interview with Crane must have thought that the millennium had surely come. Even the ambition to urge the patriarch beyond his complacent, irritating dog trot was crushed out of her by the terrible new evidence the banker had brought in testimony against her lover.

"I didn't need this," the girl moaned to herself. In her intensity of grief her thoughts became audible in expressed words. "Oh, God!" she pleaded, "strengthen me against all this falseness. You didn't do it, George—you couldn't—you couldn't! And Alan! my poor, weak brother; why can't you have courage and clear your friend?"

Her heart rose in angry rebellion against her brother, against Crane, against Providence, even against the man she loved. Why should he sacrifice both their lives, become an outcast himself to shield a boy, who in a moment of weakness had committed an act which might surely be forgiven if he would but admit his mistake? The punishment accepted in heroic silence by Mortimer was out of all proportion to the wrong-doing. It meant the utter ruin of two lives.

HUNTING THE BUFFALO

BY

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1885, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

ONE September I determined to take a short trip after bison. At that time I was staying in a cow-camp a good many miles up the river from my ranch; there were then no cattle south of me, where there are now very many thousand head, and the buffalo had been plentiful in the country for a couple of winters past, but the last of the herds had been destroyed or driven out six months before, and there were only a few stragglers left. It was one of my first hunting trips; previously I had shot with the rifle very little, and that only at deer or antelope. I took as a companion one of my best men, named Ferris (a brother of the Ferris already mentioned); we rode a couple of ponies, not very good ones, and each carried his roll of blankets and a very small store of food in a pack behind the saddle.

Leaving the cow-camp early in the morning, we crossed the Little Missouri and for the first ten miles threaded our way through the narrow defiles and along the tortuous divides of a great tract of Bad Lands. Although it was fall and the nights were cool the sun was very hot in the middle of the day, and we jogged along at a slow pace, so as not to tire our ponies. Two or three black-tail deer were seen, some distance off, and when we were a couple of hours on our journey, we came across the fresh track of a bull buffalo. Buffalo wander a great distance, for, though they do not go fast, yet they may keep travelling, as they graze, all day long; and though this one had evidently passed but a few hours before, we were not sure we would see him. His tracks were easily followed as long as he had kept to the soft creek bottom, crossing and recrossing the narrow wet ditch which wound its way through it; but when he left this and turned up a winding coulie that branched out in every direction, his hoofs scarcely made any marks in the hard ground. We rode up the ravine, carefully examining the soil for nearly half an hour, however; finally, as we passed the mouth of a little side coulie, there was a plunge and crackle through the bushes at its head, and a shabby-looking old bull bison galloped out of it and, without an instant's hesitation, plunged over a steep bank into a patch of rotten, broken ground which led around the base of a high butte. So quickly did he disappear that we had not time to dismount and fire. Spurring our horses we galloped up to the brink of the cliff down which he had plunged; it was remarkable that he should have gone down it unhurt. From where we stood we could see nothing; so, getting our horses over the broken ground as fast as possible, we ran to the butte and rode round it, only to see the buffalo come out of the broken land and climb up the side of another butte over a quarter of a mile off. In spite of his great weight and cumbersome, heavy-looking gait, he climbed up the steep bluff with ease and even agility, and when he had reached the ridge stood and looked back at us for a moment; while so doing he held his head high up, and at that distance his great shaggy mane and huge fore-quarter made him look like a lion. In another second he again turned away and made off; and, being evidently very shy and accustomed to being harassed by hunters, must have travelled a long distance before stopping, for we followed his trail for some miles until it got on such hard, dry ground that his hoofs did not leave a scrape in the soil, and yet did not again catch so much as a glimpse of him.

It was late in the afternoon before we saw any game; then we made out in the middle of a large plain three black specks, which proved to be buffalo—old bulls. Our horses had come a good distance, under a hot sun, and as they had had no water except from the mud-hole in the morning they were in no condition for running. They were not very fast anyhow; so, though the ground was unfavorable, we made up our minds to try to creep up to the buffalo. We left the ponies in a hollow half a mile from the game, and started off on our hands and knees, taking advantage of every sage-brush as cover. After a while we had to lie flat on our bodies and wriggle like snakes; and while doing this I blundered into a bed of cactus, and filled my hands with the spines. After taking advantage of every hollow, hillock, or sage-brush, we got within about a hundred and twenty-five or fifty yards of where the three bulls were unconsciously feeding, and as all between was bare ground I drew up and fired. It was the first time I ever shot at buffalo, and, confused by the bulk and shaggy hair of the beast, I aimed too far back at one that was standing nearly broadside on towards me. The bullet told on his body with a loud crack, the dust flying up from his hide; but it did not work him any immediate harm, or in the least hinder him from making off; and away went all three, with their tails up, disappearing over a slight rise in the ground.

Much disgusted, we trotted back to where the horses were picketed, jumped on them, a good deal out of breath, and rode after the flying game. We thought that the wounded one might turn out and leave the others; and so followed them, though they had over a mile's start. For some seven or eight miles we loped our jaded horses along at a brisk pace, occasionally seeing the buffalo far ahead; and finally, when the sun had just set, we saw that all three had come to a stand in a gentle hollow. There was no cover anywhere near them; and, as a last desperate resort, we concluded to try to run them on our worn-out ponies.

As we cantered toward them they faced us for a second and then turned round and made off, while with spurs and quirts we made the ponies put on a burst that enabled us to close in with the wounded one just about the time that the lessening twilight had almost vanished; while the rim of the full moon rose above the horizon. The pony I was on could barely hold its own, after getting up within sixty or seventy yards of the wounded bull; my companion, better mounted, forged ahead, a little to one side. The bull saw him coming and swerved from his course, and by cutting across I was able to get nearly up to him. The ground over which we were running was fearful, being broken into holes and ditches, separated by hillocks; in the dull light, and at the speed we were going, no attempt could be made to guide the horses, and the latter, fagged out by their exertions, floundered and pitched forward at every stride, hardly keeping their legs. When up within twenty feet I fired my rifle, but the darkness, and especially the violent, labored motion of my pony, made me miss; I tried to get in closer, when suddenly up went the bull's tail, and wheeling, he charged me with lowered horns. My pony, frightened into momentary activity, spun round and tossed up his head; I was holding the rifle in both hands, and the pony's head, striking it, knocked it violently against my forehead, cutting quite a gash, from which, heated as I was, the blood poured into my eyes. Meanwhile the buffalo, passing me, charged my companion, and followed him as he made off, and, as the ground was very bad, for some little distance his lowered head was unpleasantly near the tired pony's tail. I tried to run in on him again, but my pony stopped short, dead beat; and by no spurring could I force him out of a slow trot. My companion jumped off and took a couple of shots at the buffalo, which missed in the dim moonlight; and to our unutterable chagrin the wounded bull labored off and vanished in the darkness. I made after him on foot, in hopeless and helpless wrath, until he got out of sight.

So far the trip had certainly not been a success, although sufficiently varied as regards its incidents; we had been confined to moist biscuits for three days as our food; had been wet and cold at night, and sunburned till our faces peeled in the day; were hungry and tired, and had met with bad weather, and all kinds of accidents; in addition to which I had shot badly. But a man who is fond of sport, and yet is not naturally a good hunter, soon learns that if he wishes any success at all he must both keep in memory and put in practice Anthony Trollope's famous precept: "It's dogged as does it." And if he keeps doggedly on in his course the odds are heavy that in the end the longest lane will prove to have a turning. Such was the case on this occasion.

Shortly after mid-day we left the creek bottom, and skirted a ridge of broken buttes, cut up by gullies and winding ravines, in whose bottoms grew bunch grass. While passing near the mouth, and to leeward of one of these ravines, both ponies threw up their heads, and snuffed the air, turning their muzzles towards the head of the gully. Feeling sure that they had smelt some wild beast, either a bear or a buffalo, I slipped off my pony, and ran quickly but cautiously up along the valley. Before I had gone a hundred yards, I noticed in the soft soil at the bottom the round prints of a bison's hoofs; and immediately afterwards got a glimpse of the animal himself, as he fed slowly up the course of the ravine, some distance ahead of me. The wind was just right, and no ground could have been better for stalking. Hardly needing to bend down, I walked up behind a small sharp-crested hillock, and peeping over, there below me, not fifty yards off, was a great bison bull. He was walking along, grazing as he walked. His glossy fall coat was in fine trim, and shone in the rays of the sun; while his pride of bearing showed him to be in the lusty vigor of his prime.

As I rose above the crest of the hill, he held up his head and cocked his tail in the air. Before he could go off, I put the bullet in behind his shoulder. The wound was an almost immediately fatal one, yet with surprising agility for so large and heavy an animal, he bounded up the opposite side of the ravine, heedless of two more balls, both of which went into his flank and ranged forwards, and disappeared over the ridge at a lumbering gallop, the blood pouring from his mouth and nostrils. We knew he could not go far, and trotted leisurely along on his bloody trail; and in the next gully we found him stark dead, lying almost on his back, having pitched over the side when he tried to go down it. His head was a remarkably fine one, even for a fall buffalo. He was lying in a very bad position, and it was most tedious and tiresome work to cut it off and pack it out. The flesh of a cow or calf is better eating than is that of a bull; but the so-called hump meat—that is, the strip of steak on each side of the backbone—is excellent, and tender and juicy. Buffalo meat is with difficulty to be distinguished from ordinary beef. At any rate, the flesh of this bull tasted uncommonly good to us, for we had been without fresh meat for a week; and until a healthy, active man has been without it for some little time, he does not know how positively and almost painfully hungry for flesh he becomes, no matter how much farinaceous food he may have. And the very toil I had been obliged to go through, in order to procure the head, made me feel all the prouder of it when it was at last in my possession.

A Deceptive Attitude.

A scene that was more than farcical, declares M. A. P., occurred in the house of commons last season. Two of the most respectable members of the house were seen with their coats off and with a staid old policeman standing between them. They two had been downstairs to wash their hands and by some mischance had changed coats. They went into the house together. One of them, putting his hand into his coat pocket, pulled out an old brier pipe of very strong flavor. It was not his.

He looked at the coat, also that of his neighbor, and, turning to his friend, said:

"Excuse me, but I think you have put on my coat."

"I beg your pardon. I have done nothing of the kind."

"I think," replied the other member, "this is your pipe, and if you put your hand into the right hand pocket of the coat you are wearing you will find a cigar case."

"Dear me!" was the reply. "You certainly are right. What shall we do?"

"We cannot change in the house," observed the first member. "Let us go into the division lobby."

Here is where the policeman came in. Seeing the two facing each other and at the same time taking off their coats, the policeman feared the worst. He rushed up and, placing a hand on the shoulder of each, said:

"Gentlemen! Gentlemen! Not here, please!"

PREFERS TAFT TO BRYAN

Retired Banker, Former Head of Consolidated Exchange, Gives His Reasons.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH'S ARGUMENT

From a Businessman's Standpoint—Is a Lucid and Convincing Article.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, until recently president of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange, an executor of the Samuel J. Tilden estate, and one of the best known bankers in America, at the request of The Daily Press tells why Taft and not Bryan should succeed Roosevelt to the Presidency.

The banker-poet's explanation entitled "Reasons for Preferring Taft to Bryan from the Standpoint of an American Man of Business" follows:

(By L. V. F. Randolph.)

In comparing the two leading candidates for the Presidency and the policies which they respectively represent, two important questions emerge. One is a question touching human confidence and the other concerns National prosperity. I am desired to express my views as to the chief reasons to be put forth from a business point of view for supporting Mr. Taft for the Presidency in preference to Mr. Bryan. My response to this request is that there is more ground for the exercise of business confidence in the administration of Mr. Taft than in the administration we might expect from Mr. Bryan, and that under Mr. Taft's administration we might reasonably look for a greater degree of prosperity than under that of Mr. Bryan. The world's experience has abundantly shown that prosperity lags in the absence of assured trust or confidence. An army that distrusts its leader has but slender chance of victory. A country afraid of the convictions, purposes and judgment of its ruler feels itself always in an atmosphere of danger and is hindered or prevented as to all progressive and important enterprise. It has repeatedly happened that not only the financial world has been shaken by the fear of an unfortunate election but that commerce and manufactures have been paralyzed by the same possibility. A part of the splendidly successful career of the American nation may well be attributed to the confidence of its citizens in its institutions and in its leaders. Neither the captains of industry who make the ventures and take the risks upon which all progressive industrial movements depend, nor the army of laborers and operatives who follow actively in line under such leaders, can look forward confidently to the continuance of a good degree of prosperity under the leadership of a gentleman so given to vagaries as Mr. Bryan has been. When he was first a candidate for the Presidency he was the ideal of the Populists as well as of the Democrats. It was unimportant as to the origin of the brilliant phrase with which he captured the convention—whether he plagiarized it or invented it. The 'Cross of Gold' and its rhetorical flourish captivated his hearers. The adulation he then received was the very incense of populism; and populism was and is the demand of an unreasonable discontent for the impossible—the cry of a peevish child for the moon that cannot be given to it.

Since that moment of rhetorical triumph when the populists fell at his feet and worshipped, Mr. Bryan's general attitude has changed but little. His theories have continued to be largely populistic and either unrealizable or of such character that their realization would be harmful. Such propositions as that of flooding our country with a debased currency, or that of limiting by taxation or by statute of any kind the initiative and the enterprise of American citizens or corporations, or that of the acquiring by the Government of railroad ownership, or that of a gov-

NOON-DAY POLITICAL MEETINGS AT LOCAL SHOPS

At a meeting of the Republican City Committee, last night, arrangements were made for a series of noon-day meetings to be held all next week at the various local manufacturing plants. Able speakers will be supplied by the State committee and every effort will be made to expound the G. O. P. principles clearly and quickly so as to make the best of the limited time.

The schedule as announced is as follows: Monday noon, the Pond Tool Works; Tuesday, the Potter Printing Press Works; Wednesday, the Scott Printing Press Works; Thursday, the Rushmore Dynamo Works; Friday, the Quincy-Manchester-Sargeant shop and the Manganese Steel Safe Works. A similar campaign is to be conducted by the Republicans throughout the county between now and election.

JOHN BARLEYCORN GETS A BONDED MAN IN TROUBLE.

Martin Rogers, the East End man who was mixed up in the cutting fracas with Ira Bowers, Sr., on July 18 last, was surrundered to the police by his bondsman, Herman Klinsman, last night. He has been out on $100 bail pending the Grand Jury's disposition of his case but yesterday he got bunned up and told several friends that he intended to leave town. Klinsman had a vision of his hundred dollars being claimed by the county and he immediately asked Detective-Sergeant Fylnn to lock Rogers up.

In a statement this morning, the prisoner said that he had had no idea of leaving the city and that if he said so it was because he had a little rum aboard. He expressed hopes of getting another bondsman this afternoon. The police have held the opinion all along that Rogers' part in the fracas would not be regarded in a serious light by the Grand Jury.

PROF. W. B. GUTHRIE TO ADDRESS MEN'S MEETING.

Professor William B. Guthrie, of the College of the City of New York, will be the speaker at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow afternoon. He will speak on the topic, "The Business Value of Character."

A. and social settlement worker and by a splendid platform presence to address an association audience. He is regarded as one of the ablest of the men who have, for the past three years, lectured in the free course offered by the New York Board of Education. Mrs. Thomas MacDonald will sing.

Christian Endeavor Mass Meeting.

The fall mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the First Presbyterian church on Thursday night, October 29, at 8 o'clock. Echoes of the State Endeavor convention held at Atlantic City, will be heard and an interesting meeting is promised. The speaker for the evening will be announced later. The Christian Endeavor Union attendance banner now held by the Warren chapel society will again be competed for by the societies. This banner will be awarded to the society having the highest percentage of its active and associate members present at the meeting.

The woman who was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday, suffering from a self-inflicted wound in the forehead, was found to be Mrs. Celetina Braka, of 16 Regent street, the borough. The authorities at the hospital have been unable to ascertain why the woman took this means of injuring herself, but as stated yesterday it is believed to have been done in a fit of anger. The woman will recover.

Came to See Bryan.

Editor W. H. Carpenter of the Clinton Democrat, "Twice-a-Week," accompanied by his wife, was in Plainfield yesterday, having come from the "rock-ribbed" Democratic county of Hunterdon, to see William Jennings Bryan as he passed through Plainfield. Editor Carpenter was also a caller at The Daily Press office.

ROBERTSON WINS RACE

Plainfielder's Car Finishes Second in Vanderbilt Cup Contest Today.

THE CLOSEST OF CONTESTS.

Clifford V. Brokaw's "Isotta" Only One Minute Forty-eight Seconds Behind the Winner.

George Robertson, driving a 120 horse-power Locomobile, won today on Long Island the most exciting Vanderbilt Cup race that has ever been run. Only 1 min. 48 1-5 sec. intervened between the winner and the second driver, Herbert Lytle, in the 60 horse-power Isotta, which won the Sweepstakes, Savannah, Lowell and Briarcliff races. The "Isotta" was entered by Clifford V. Brokaw, of the New Madison, this city.

The winner's elapsed time of 4 hours and 48 1-5 sec., or an average speed of 64.31 miles per hour, is the record for a Vanderbilt Cup race. Hemery, with a Darracq, won in 1905, driving 283 miles at an average speed of 61.51 miles an hour. In 1906, Wagner, driving a Darracq, won over a coarse of 297 miles with an average speed of 61.41 miles an hour.

After the race was won an immense crowd, which had been kept on either side of the road, swarmed into the track and so completely blocked it that the race was declared off, only Robertson and Lytle finishing.

No serious accident occurred.

The Vanderbilt Cup race over the Motor Parkway course started at 6:30 o'clock this morning. A drizzling rain had fallen all night, making the course very slippery. The race was eleven rounds of a 23.46 mile circuit, making 258.06 miles in all. An enormous crowd witnessed the event.

PERSEVERANCE LODGE HAS ENJOYABLE SOCIAL SESSION.

Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., enjoyed a social time following the regular meeting last night, during which the card tourney recently started was continued. In a contest for the euchre championship of the local Pythians, William Schorb bested all participants by beating Morgan Turton, the hitherto undefeated, three games out of four. By so doing, the victor won a box of cigars offered by the lodge.

The card playing was followed by a "Dutch" supper prepared and served by William Schorb, that proved a big feature. Only the delicacies craved by Dutchmen were included in the menu. The lodge will have another social session next Friday night and within a short time will begin a series of formal functions.

CITY'S LARGEST STACK PUT UP AT THE GAS PLANT

An iron stack ninety feet in length the largest in the city, was successfully placed on the East Fourth street gas plant of the Public Service Corporation yesterday. The work was done under the supervision of Fred Hand, the local truckman, and was completed in a very short space of time despite several obstacles that had to be overcome. The stack was shipped to Plainfield in three sections of thirty feet each and because of its position on top of the building extends 120 feet in the air. It is twelve feet in circumference.

During the past week, a new twelve-ton boiler was installed in the gas plant. Employes of Mr. Hand accomplished the task of putting it in.

Mrs. Galloway Recovering.

Mrs. Stephen Galloway, of Chatham street, who became critically ill as the result of non-attention when her baby was born, was reported today as being very much improved. Efforts to secure a physician at the time proved unavailing, it is alleged several failing to respond because of the family's financial circumstances. Former Mayor Hegeman became interested in the case and summoned his family physician, Dr. T. S. Davis. Borough Physician Dr. A. H. Dundon was not at home when a call was sent to his place.

Overcoat Thief Released.

Charles L. Phillips, the young New Yorker accused by Assemblyman A. F. Kirstein of stealing an overcoat, was released from custody, yesterday afternoon, the latter refusing to make a formal complaint. Before being discharged, Phillips signed a statement to the effect that he exonerated the police from any blame in the matter.

GEN. GRUBB CALLS ON GOV. FORT FOR TROOPS

Forced to leave the jammed Association Hall at Millville to address an overflow meeting of enthusiasts in the street, General E. Burd Grubb last night attacked the Gardner district machine, which he asserted is bolstered by the use of Federal patronage, and declared that troops threatened for the closing of Atlantic City Sunday saloons and gambling could be better used to stop ballot-box stuffing in that city on election day. He said:

"If Governor Fort wants really good government he can do nothing better than to use his miltia to stop the Atlantic County gang from counting Gardner in on November 3."

Mrs. Grubb, the handsome and plucky wife of the doughty soldier candidate for Gardner's seat in Congress, joined the party at Millville last night. To her husband and his followers she explained that she "must be close enough to see the battle" which General Grubb is making for clean politics, and she may follow him through the remainder o the campaign.

"The rotten political methods that for years have been perpetuated by the gang of which Congressman Gardner is the boss have been and are an insult to every decent citizen in this district," declared General Grubb. "To my mind, the man who steals a vote is a more dangerous member of American society than the man who steals a million dollars I say to you frankly that the determining factor in my accepting this nomination was to rebuke the ballo corruption that has been the mainstay of Gardnerism."

Signs of the breaks in the Gardner ramparts became visible yesterday when General Grubb shook hands with hundreds of employees in the big cotton mills and greeted other hundreds of the glass plants.

"We're for Grubb and a full dinner pail," the foreman on one glass shop assured the candidate. Enthused Democratic leaders of the county predicted yesterday the turning of hundreds of Republican votes to Bryan, and declared that Grubb will carry Cumberland county by a safe majority.

"Absolute proofs of the casting of hundreds of illegal ballots in the last election and the preparation to cast more next month are in the hands of the Atlantic County Democratic Committee," said the general "The committee has called upon th Governor and county officers and upon me, as a candidate to prevent ballot box stuffing. I have already taken steps to do my part. In the name of clean politics and for the sake of honest voters, whose ballots will be annulled by those of repeaters, I hope Governor Fort will do his part."

Men's Club Officers Installed.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel held a business meeting, last night, during which the recently elected officers were installed as follows: President, Thomas Hendry; vice-president, James Penny; secretary, Peter C. Sweeney; treasurer, James Cullinan. The retiring treasurer, Henry Vogel, was extended a vote of thanks for his efficient work during three years in office, and two new members were elected. Reports showed the club to be in a flourishing condition.

An Approaching Wedding.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Miss Margaret Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Carlton T. Lewis, to Harold Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Phillips, of Madison avenue. The wedding will take place at the home of the groom's parents on Saturday night, October 31. The young couple will make their home in Chicago, Mr. Phillips being located there as the representative of a New York house.

"168 Stumbling Blocks."

"One Hundred and Sixty-Eight Stumbling Blocks," will be the subject of the discourse by Rev. A. E Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night, the sermon to be appropriate to the recent decision of the Plainfield Country Club in amending its constitution and thereby deciding to open its clubhouse and grounds on Sunday.

A Still Alarm.

The fire department was called to the residence of H. Mohring, 526 West Fifth street, yesterday. A small blaze had started in the roof from the chimney but was quickly extinguished before much damage was done.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gilbert, of Stebbins place, were given a surprise party at their home Thursday night There were about forty guests and the evening was spent playing games after which refreshments were served.

Country Club's Trustees Decide on Regulations—Ministers to Voice a Protest.

The trustees of the Plainfield Country Club met last night, all the members being present, and adopted rules governing the opening of the clubhouse and grounds on Sunday after 1 o'clock. The vote amending the constitution Tuesday night simply carried with it the right to open the clubhouse and grounds, leaving it to the trustees to adopt rules governing the privileges to be enjoyed on that day.

As stated by an officer of the club following Tuesday night's meeting, there is no disposition on the part of the members to observe a wide and indiscriminate celebration of Sunday, it being the intention to keep the Sabbath day in a manner that cannot be objected to by the most particular member.

The rules adopted last night provide first that junior associate members shall not be permitted to play golf or tennis on Sunday, and second that caddies under the age of seventeen shall not be allowed on the grounds of the club on Sunday. A third rule provides that golf and tennis competitions for prizes shall not be permitted on Sundays and the fourth prohibits the playing of cards or similar games on that day at the clubhouse or on the grounds. These rules were adopted unanimously by the trustees.

A prominent officer of the club in speaking of the action to amend the constitution, said today, that the club could not have remained in existence another year under former conditions, that the receipts last year were several thousand dollars less than the year before and it would be an impossibility to maintain the organization unless some concessions were made.

The same member added that if the country club had failed to make the change, another organization would have introduced golf for every day in the week and liquors would be served at the clubhouse on Sundays as well. He said that this was a condition that the country club was fighting against and if those who opposed the amendement fully realized conditions they would not have voted against it. In his opinion there is not a club of this character that has a higher regard for the Sabbath and desires its observance in a a more safe and sane way than the Plainfield Country Club.

Speaking of the talk about making arrests and indictments, this member said that the authorities would first be obliged to take action against the many Plainfielders who during the season play tennis on Sunday right in the city. He believed that if baseball could be played here in a neighborhood where it would not be annoying to anyone, it should be permitted, for in his opinion there are hundreds of men who are not able to enjoy sports during the wek and are entitled to some recreation on Sunday.

It is understood that several local pastors will make reference tomorrow to the action of the Country club in voting to open the golf clubhouse and grounds on Sunday.

ELECTION OFFICERS TO EXPLAIN VOTING MACHINES

Secretary of State S. D. Dickinson has officially notified City Clerk James T. MacMurray regarding the law relative to the use of voting machines in Plainfield, calling his attention to the fact that election officers where such machines are to be used are expected to give instructions as to the use of the machines to all voters who apply. According to the law this must be done on the last regular registration day.

The last registration day in this city is Tuesday, October 27, and Secretary Dickinson has requested that besides the general instructions on such occasions, special information and instructions be given: First, with reference to the inerrancy of the mechanism of the machine and its infallibility, if properly set, in recording the will of the voter; second, with reference to the simplicity of its construction and the readiness with which it is set for voting; third the ease, convenience and secrecy offered for "splitting" tickets, especially regarding the manner in which the "click" of the levers may be avoided, and the fact that the levers may be changed at will without recording a vote before the curtain lever is removed.

It is further requested that Mr. MacMurray co-operate with the election boards in carrying out the provisions of the section quoted, and if further assistance is required in doing this, he is advised to inform the State department and the election officers will be further instructed in their duties.

BRYAN DISAPPOINTED 'EM

Big Crowd Here Waited in Vain to Hear the Commoner Speak.

WHIRLWIND TOUR OF STATE.

With James E. Martine, the Nebraskan Makes Fifteen Speeches to Big Crowds.

William J. Bryan made a flying trip through New Jersey yesterday. He spoke in seven counties, made fifteen speeches, and closed his strenuous day by addressing a crowd of ten thousand persons in Newark. Mr.

William Jennings Bryan.

Bryan had originally planned to make three speeches in Jersey City, but the lateness of the hour made it impossible to carry out this part of his schedule. He promised to speak in Jersey City before Election Day.

Despite the fact that the local newspapers and the local railroad agents told all inquiries from morning until night that Mr. Bryan was not scheduled to make a stop here, nearly 1,000 men and women spent two anxious hours at the North Avenue station eager to get a glimpse of the Commoner. His special whirled through here at 5:35 but it was long after 6 o'clock before the awaiting crowd would be convinced that he had gone through without stopping. At the time, the train whisked through here, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Martine and others were comfortably seated in the dining-room car eating dinner. There were a large number of workingmen and not a few fashionably gowned women at the station. Several of the women had bunches of chrysanthemums which they had intended to present to Mrs. Bryan.

Owing to the change in track accommodations, the candidate did not arrive in Elizabethport until 6 o'clock. All through the trip Mr. Bryan was greeted by large crowds. The Bryan train was one hour late in reaching Trenton, the first stopping place in New Jersey. It was 12:15 when he got to the station. A large delegation of Democrats from throughout this State was waiting, including "Jim" Martine, of this city, who made one of his characteristic speeches to the waiting crowd.

At Perth Amboy, which has a large labor population, Bryan made an appeal for the labor vote. At New Brunswick about ten thousand persons were gathered in the square.

Outside the autitorium at Newark Edward W. Townsend, candidate for Congress in the 7th District, was addressing an overflow meeting of about four thousand people, when just as the Bryan procession came along an alarm of fire was turned in from a corner two blocks away. The fire engine dashed tarough the excited crowd, interrupting Mr. Townsend's speech and holding Mr. Bryan's party. The candidate a few minutes later entered the hall in the midst of a wild demonstration.

Mr. Bryan spoke for a quarter of an hour, making the same speech that he delivered at Trenton.

There were five thousand disappointed men and women in Jersey City late last night.

ernmental guarantee of bank deposits through bank contributions or otherwise, or that of reducing to imbecile impotence the legislative efficiency by throttling it with popular initiatives and referendums—these, and such as these—have deluged us from the unresting tongue and pen of the chronic candidate of a party whose one chief moving impulse is an insatiable hunger. It has been my pleasure to meet Mr. Bryan—to hear him and to "swap stories" with him. He is a good story teller and has a pleasant personality and a magnetic manner. As an orator or a lecturer he is fascinating if not instructive. But as President of the United States how could he ever command the confidence and trust of this nation—to whose progress and prosperity confidence and trust are as the very breath in its nostrils or as the pulse of its great heart?

Mr. Taft has never failed to do, and to do well, any task assigned to him and he has never given expression to a wild or foolish notion. As legal adviser to a government department, as cabinet officer as supreme court judge, as special commissioner entrusted with public business of momentous importance, he has kept a level head and an honest heart. He has in every position carried himself with dignity and marked ability whilst showing to others the courtesy and kindness which have helped to distinguish his character and career. Such a character cannot but inspire confidence and trust. He is a conspcuous exemplification of the ideal he inculcates—a free American ruling himself by noble conceptions of duty and by loyalty to the laws of his country. Unless our American character is formed after such an ideal our nation cannot survive. Herbert Spencer has said: "The Republican form of government is the highest form of government; but because of this it requires the highest type of human nature—a type nowhere at present existing." We believe that a greater optimism is allowable than is found in Mr. Spencer's otherwise sagacious utterance.

But if the American Republic is to endure it must be based on a characteer of citizenship and of public policy such as that exemplified and upheld by Judge Taft, and upon a type of common sense and conservation of which Mr. Bryan's ratiocinations show scarcely a trace. I knew the great Republican candidate when he was Solicitor General—one of the youngest men then prominent in public life and already a man of manifest gifts, courteous, alert and able. He has ripened with age and work. We may trust alike his judgment and his heart.

But the reasons that move us to prefer the Republican candidate to the leader of the Democracy have relation to prosperity as well as to trust and confidence and extend into the policy which has characterized Republican administration as in contrast with the avowed policy of the Democratic party. In responding to the request that has been made of me to give business reasons for voting for Mr. Taft rather than for Mr. Bryan, I do not feel called upon to write an argument in favor of the policy of protection and against the policy of free trade. The argument itself has been written in the experience of the nation for nigh a hundred years. My own childhood passed into youth and toward manhood amidst the blighting influences of attempted free trade or low tariff on the budding industries of a young nation. My own "forbears" suffered in their enterprises under this unfortunate and injurious policy.

Whilst as yet the nation was feebly struggling with the problem of how best to develop its industries, it was overtaken by the Civil War, to a large extent the free-trade advocates became involved in Secession, and a higher tariff was recognized as a necessity by the loyal advocates of the Nation's integrity who were left in control of its destinies. The immense cost of the war for the Union was by itself a sufficient argument for the maintenance of a tariff that must needs be protective. At the close of the Civil War the nation's bonds were held to the extent of thousands of millions of dollars in foreign countries and our country had practically no gold reserves. President Cleveland was painfully consistent in insisting upon a low tariff, and, without gold reserves an attempt in this direction was made. President Cleveland was painfully bonds to bridge over absence of a national gold reserve and to supply one for the moment. It was a necessary act but a costly one, and was in itself an object lesson indicating the necessity for a national policy by which a gold reserve could be accumulated. The Republicans under President McKinley rectified the error made by the Democracy and established the McKinley tariff and began the erection or amassing of the gold reserve which is today one of the best bulwarks of national confidence and strength.

Whatever may happen abroad we know that no foreign war nor turmoil can bankrupt our Treasury. The balance of trade is in our favor. By our tariff we have built up a protective surplus, and we have had means with which to make important National improvements throughout our vast domain. Each new post-office and custom house and every improved harbor has found the means by which it was brought into being supplied by the tariff.

That the tariff has been conducive to an encouragement and extension of the employment of labor is sufficiently evidenced in the fact that along with the advance in laborers' wages has come a flood of immigration of laborers from other countries, who, of course, left less favorable conditions behind them in order that they might share the increasing prosperity and the increasing compensation to be found on American shores. There are those who say that the high tariff principle has progressed far enough. Nothing in this world is perfect, and it is possible that a tariff revision might be found practicable and even useful; but our country's history for the last century has abundantly developed the fact that a protective tariff has been of great service in upbuilding our industries, in encouraging invention and individual initiative, in furnishing the means for national enterprise and enabled us to build up a strong gold reserve. These facts are more or less unwillingly admitted even by those who advocate the principle of free trade. The New York Times, for example, has fought the tariff in season and out of season, and is still urging a lower tariff schedule. At this moment, however, it not only advocates the election of Mr. Taft, but, in an editorial published on Saturday, the 17th instant, it distinctly admits "the advantage the United States has experienced by being the pioneer protectionist in modern times." The Republicans may well claim that if the tariff is to be revised it should be revised under the judicious care of those whose wisdom has been effectual hitherto in devising a tariff policy; and even now it would certainly be courting disaster to move actively toward the sudden breaking down of the tariff policy which the Democratic party has consistently opposed in spite of "the advantage" which the Times admts the country "has experienced" in the adoption and enforcement of this policy.

On the ground therefore of an enlightened trust and confidence such as we are more justified in feeling toward Mr. Taft than toward Mr. Bryan, and on the ground also of the prosperity which the country has manifestly enjoyed in pursuing the policy for whch Mr. Taft and his party have stood, and which Mr. Bryan and his party have withstood, the business man who loves his country and its prosperity and desires to feel confidence in its future must certainly cast his vote for Mr. Taft rather than for Mr. Bryan.

One other matter may be alluded to, and here again the question of confidence emerges. The next President will have the appointing of several United States Judges. Mr. Taft has been a judge of the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Bryan has never filled any such position. In whose judgment in such a matter can we (in view of the experience of these gentlemen respectively) place the greater confidence? Ill-judged or non-conservative appointments to the United State Supreme Court might lead to results of the most unfortunate character. For positions of this sort men of the highest integrity and also of the highest ability are required, and men whose views are not tainted or tinged with vagaries or absurdities of any sort whatever.

The business man, whatever his personal prejudices may be, however much he may like or dislike certain men in public life, must sink if necessary his personal wishes, his likes and dislikes, and subordinate these in a conscientious and well considered choice as between these two parties and Presidential candidates. Thus deliberating and carefully choosing, the choice must fall on Judge Taft rather than on Mr. Bryan.

AMUSEMENTS.

The New York Hippodrome—"the bigest show in the world"—is this time bigger and better than ever. It goes to the lungs of an audience of five thousand every night. When the live wire girls of the aerial ballet come soaring over our heads almost into the balcony, dropping roses as they flew, a shout goes up to greet them. The Hippodrome had never housed such a shout. This big show starts at eight with a baseball game which the "fans" tell us is the only adequate dramatic counterfeit in the record of the stage. It closes on the road to midnight with a mid-air bombardment by flying machines and a deep-sea upheaval of mermaidens. Between these extremes of the performance lie a circus that ranges from pet polar bears to the untamed clowning of Marceline, a horse race on a treadmill track that effaces from memory the equine stars of "Ben-Hur," a boat race that provides college spirit for the multitude while it waits, and a ballet, "The Land of Birds," that ought to make funny old Aristophanes, the first of the feather dramatists, sit up in his bones and rattle for joy.

Now that "Paid In Full," Eugene Walter's great American play, has passed its three hundredth performance on Broadway and continues at Weber's theatre as the beacon light of New York's theatricals, the question, "Why was 'Paid In Full' the dramatic success of the last twenty years?"—should be of considerable importance. Wagenhals and Kemper, who produced the play, and believed in its merits from the very first, are of the opinion that the enormous success, both artistic and financial, is, of course, in a measure, due to the play's perfect construction, clever dialogue and careful staging. It is even more so, however, because of the attractiveness to all classes and conditions of people. The people are real, not the kind one has to imagine, but the kind one rubs elbows with in the everyday walks of life. The appeal is not made by fanciful appeal, but by real true human nature—the seething, struggling, heartless, erring, loving, many-sided human nature of today.

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" would seem to have settled down for an all-season run in the Bijou theatre. The newspapers, without exception, predict a long life for the play; while nearly all of them were very enthusiastic in praise of its quality. The piece was designed as a vehicle for Thomas A. Wise, who wrote it in collaboration with Harrison Rhodes, the novelist. Douglass Fairbanks, assigned the role of a cynical young newspaper reporter, "covering" Washington for a big New York city daily. He and Mr. Wise were equally successful in their respective roles, and will, it is now planned, be continued as co-stars even after their present medium is withdrawn.

It is not exaggeration to describe the performances of Louise Gunning in "Marceile," the new Pixley and Louders' operetta at the Casino, as a cyclonic success. She has amply procured her right to the stellar rank now first accorded her by the Messrs. Shubert, and it is quite impossible to predict how many months the star and the operetta will be the attraction at the famous Casino. Pixley and Louders have written a success, equal, if not superior, to their "Prince of Pilsen," and the entire cast eclipses anything in any other musical entertainment now on Broadway. Among the artists supporting Miss Gunning in "Marcelle" are Elsa Ryan, Leona Anderson, Nettie Black, Edith Girvan, George Boniface, Jr., Lawrence Wheat, Herbert Cawthorne, Frank Rushworth, Henry Norman, Robert O'Connor ahd Jess Dandy.

There is apparently no end to the "Devil" craze which Harrison Grey Fiske started with his new star Geo. Arliss. Besides the thousand and one imitations and spurious versions of the original, the New York Evening Post remarks that we may expect after the latest theatrical advertising coup: Twelve dramatic companies playing "Faust," six opera companies singing "Faust," three opera companies singing "Mefistofele," a revival of Shaw's "Devil Disciple," Ben Johnson's "The Devil is an Ass," Foote's "The Devil on Two Sticks," and the anonymous "Merry Devil of Edmonton;" and in the restaurants, after the show, an unexampled demand for devilled crabs, horned snails and cloven-foot jelly.

Miss Maude Adams will open in the middle of October with J. M. Barrie's comedy, "What Every Woman Knows." Before appearing in New York, she will go to Chicago for five weeks; to Pittsburg, Cincinnati, and St. Louis each for a week. Mr. Frohman has selected for Miss Adams a new leading man for this season, Richard Bennett, who will create in this country the important part of John Shand in "What Every Woman Knows." This part is now being played in London by Gerald Du Maurier. Mr. Bennett's selection is the outcome of the work that he has been doing since his success at the Lyceum theatre in "The Lion and the Mouse," both in New York and for Mr. Frohman in London. Others connected with Miss Adams' company this season are Fred Tyler, R. Peyton Carter, Lumsdon Hare, David Torrance, Beatrice Agnew, Lillian Spencer, Thomas Valentine, W. H. Gilmore, and several actors from London who will reach New York on Wednesday. Her company will number in all seventy-five people.

At Proctor's theatre, Newark, for the week of October 26, will contain a series of all-star acts. The headline attraction will be one of the big Lasky acts entitled "The Love Waltz." Charles Evans and company will appear in a rip-roaring comedy sketch called "It's Up to You, William;" Fox & Foxy, in an act introducing several highly trained animals under the title of "The Same as Barnum & Bailey, but Different;" Willia Holt Wakefield will introduce her pianologue, and Felix Adler will show the people just how good he is as a monologue comedian. J. Francis Dooley and Corrinne Sales will do a lively act of song, dance and talk; McNish and Penfield will give one of the best entertainments provided by any colored team in vaudeville and there will be several good acts, the whole to conclude with a reel of the latest and best things in moving pictures.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The new play, "The Right to Live," which comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, is reputed to be one of the strongest and best written plays that has been brought out in this country for several years. It is said to be different in theme from a large majority of dramatic offerings. The author, it is said, has struck a distinctive note of originality; that he has brought forth a dramatic production representing social conditions, not in an exaggerated form, but as they really exist in many communities. The scenes of the play are located in the very heart of the city of New York, with every influence for good and evil at work. Of course, the good triumphs, and society is made the better for it. It is the intention of the author to teach a lesson for the uplifting of the human race, not for its degradation, but to purify society he has first shown its descent toward the lower level. It is believed by those who are familiar with this play that it is destined to be the most sensational production of the present year.

Laugh and the world laughs with you, swear off and you drink alone. If you want to follow the instructions of Shakespeare and others who knew a thing or two, chuckle and grow corpulent and to do this there is no surer way than purchasing tickets to witness "Little Mose" and his merry followers in the Nixon & Zimmerman Company's production of "Little Mose," or "A Night in Venice," which will be at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night. So positive is Manager Nirdlinger of the mission of the Shakespearian theory of laugh and grow stout that he offers to refund money to any and all who one year after date of witnessing "Little Mose's" performance, does not feel better and has not gained thereby, money will be refunded on the next visit. Reasonable interest is allowed. In fact, all interest centers in the "A Night in Venice" engagement at the New Plainfield theatre.

Unwonted laudatory comment has been evoked in Chicago, New York, and Boston, the only three cities so far to see "A Knight for A Day," by what is called the See-Saw pageant of the gaiety. The Boston Transcript termed the effect one of exquisite beauty. The New York newspapers generally hailed it as a revelation in ingenious commingling of lights and grouped girls. "Life 'is A See-Saw" one of the songs of the gaiety introduces the spectacle, the chief effect of which is a giant see saw of many beams, the planks running in some instances a forty foot length. The boards are alive with larking college girls, the scene is a seminary lawn, whose rise and fall rythmically is illuminated by myriad lights, some tiny flashlights held by themselves, other tiny charged lamps interwoven in the fabric of the scene. The mechanism of the effect is so complex, and the beams so many that a car is said to be required for the trans-shipment of the device. Interest in the local engagement of "A Knight for a Day," at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night is said already to exceed that commonly aroused by any early attraction of the theatre.

FOOTBALL.

The P. H. S. H. football team will play the Pingry School eleven at Elizabeth this afternoon.

Senator Everett Colby jumped into football togs Wednesday and helped coach the Brown team for the Lafayette game today, between addressing the Churchman's Club and attending a meeting of the college corporation. Mr. Colby was captain and fullback of the Brown eleven in 1896. The New Jersey Senator showed the varsity how to get away some fast end runs and gave an eye-opening exhibition of line bucking.

Princeton is coming around all right, according to the coaches. It took the Tigers just about three minutes to score their first touchdown against Fordham Wednesday.

Pollard, the Dartmouth star, ran back a punt thirty-five yards through a broken field this week during a strenuous practise session for the game with Holy Cross today.

Annapolis did not play the University of Maryland eleven as scheduled this week. Instead, the Middies lined up against the scrub. During the action the varsity scored once, Lange getting a touchdown on a twenty-five-yard run on a kick formation.

Dr. O'Connor, Dartmouth's coach, is spending a lot of time each day in giving Hawley special punting instructions.

Annapolis and Harvard enthusiasts are disappointed over the inability of President Roosevelt to be present at today's game between the Middies and Crimson, at Annapolis.

Fred Murphy and Ham Andrus were put out of commission in the strenuous practise at Yale yesterday. Murphy was knocked out by a blow on the head, while Andrus sprained an ankle.

Harvard's defense was tried out in secret practise this week. The work consisted of experiments on new formations and a thorough drill in placement kicks.

Coulson, Bucknell's halfback, tore the ligament of his right ankle in practise this week and is likely to be out of action for a week.

Coach Alcott is making every effort to whip the N. Y. U. eleven in shape for the annual game with Wesleyan on election day. Wheeler and Stone are recovering from their injuries received in the Trinity contest, and will be back in the game soon.

The Cornell scrub gave the varsity a hard rub this week, and it was only after a half hour's play with the regulars were able to score a touchdown against the subs.

Michigan registered four touchdowns against the scrub Wednesday by using the forward pass play exclusively. Allerdice kicked all of the goals easily and was also powerful in punting.

BASEBALL.

If reports from Chicago are true, Hughey Jennings, Detroit's peppery manager, cut up some high jinks in the world's championship games against the Cubs. This is what he is credited with in one of the games: Yelled "We-ah," 4,566 times. Squeled "Ee-e-e-e" 3,799 times. Threw imaginary balls 2,488 times. Stood on one foot 2,019 times. Whistled 1,878 times. Ate 453 bushels of Murphy's grass. Spat out 53 angleworms.

Many local admirers of Josh DeVore, the popular little centre fielder of the Indians, will take a trip to Hackensack this afternoon to see the former Newark player perform with the New York Giants in an exhibition game with the Hoboken semi-professionals. George McQuillian, of the Philadelphia Nationals, the former Jersey City twirler, is billed to pitch for the Hobokens.

Hank O'Day, the National League indicator handler, in a statement made at Detroit, a few days ago, declared he was opposed to the double-umpire system. In giving his reasons for taking this stand O'Day said that he has encountered more trouble working in double harness than single, as in many cases he has not only had to give his own decisions but sometimes his partner's as well, as in the famous disputed game played between New York and Chicago, on September 23.

"The Desire For Heaven an Instinct"

15th of a Series on Heaven by

REV. DR CHARLES E. HERRING

God has not only spoken of the heavenly world in the Scriptures; He has written heaven on the heart of man. To believe in life after death is the most natural belief of the human heart. You find that hope everywhere and in all ages. From the very earliest times, food was placed on the graves of the dead, because it was thought that the spirits of the departed feasted on its spiritualess age. There was no evidence that the departed lived, but men were something in them that forced them to believe in their continued existence.

Immortality is an instinct of the human soul; and the very men who have steeled themselves against this hope have found their instincts battling against their reason. We have an example of this in the experience of the scientist Thomas Huxley. Huxley was an agnostic. He did not deny immortality nor did he affirm it. "I see no reason for believing it," he said, "but on the other hand, I have no means of disproving it."

It is interesting to note the development of his thought with regard to immortality. He wrote to Kingsley after he had lost his four-year-old child. "As I stood behind the coffin and heard the minister read, 'If the dead rise not again, let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die,' the words shocked me. Paul had neither wife nor child, or he most have known how that alternative involved a blasphemy against all that, which was best and noblest in the human soul. I could have laughed with scorn. What! Because I am face to face with irreparable loss, because I give back to the sources from whence it came, the cause of a great happiness, still retaining through all my life the blessings which have sprung and will spring from that cause, I am to renounce my manhood, and howling, grovel in bestiality! Why, the very apes know better. You shoot their young and they grieve out their grief and do not seek distraction in a gorge." It was in 1860 he wrote that. Huxley believed in the grand life even without the hope of another life to spur him on and make this life worth while.

Twenty years after this experience he wrote to another friend, that he recognized that his religious views imposed upon him the duty of living the most upright of lives. Well, he did live the upright life, and he lived that life because it was the good life, and not from a sense of a final reward. He said that he found it worth while to be good with no confidence in a future life.

But Mr. Huxley was not different from other men. The instinctive hope in another life was not to be finally crushed. It was there in all its power and it finally asserted itself, for later, he wrote a letter to Mr. Morley which revealed the fact that this instinctive hope was as strong as ever. "It is a curious thing," he wrote, "that I find my thought of extinction increasing as I get older and nearer the goal. It flashes across me at all sorts of times with a sort of horror, that in 1900, I shall know no more of what is going on than I did in 1800. I had sooner be in hell a good deal, at any rate, in one of the upper circles where the climate and company are not too trying. I wonder if you are plagued this way."

Huxley put this hope out of his life because he did not need it, but as time wore on, he found that this hope within him demanded recognition. He never could entirely blot it out of his life. It never became extinct, but as the years wore on, it manifested itself with greater intensity.

This instinctive hope is God's message in the human heart that there is another life, that there must be another life. This is what makes the Bible a great book when a man honestly studies it, because it answers this hope as nothing else does.

The instinctive longing that men have for another life is again evident in the endeavor of scientific men to receive messages from the dead.

Whatever you may think of their attempts, this is true that they long to have more evidence as to the persistence of personality after death.

There are moments in life when this instinct for another life manifests itself with greater force than at other times. The man who was our friend and who magnetized us by his words and presence, suddenly passes out of the world. You say, "he is dead," but you find it difficult to believe it. The evidence seems to be against you but you cannot believe that that magnificent life is extinct forever. Victor Hugo said at the grave of Balzac, "such coffins proclaim immortality. Do we not say to ourselves here today that such a great genius in this life can be no other than a great spirit after death?"

If a man passes away in old age and you have noticed the gradual decay of his powers, perhaps you are not so impressed with the fact of his continued existence after death, as with a man who passes away in the zenith of his power, or when you see him approaching that zenith and he has not realized all you know he would eventually accomplish.

You possibly think of Col. Ingersoll as not possessing the slightest instinct for another life and yet I think that a wrong conception. He delivered this oration over the body of his brother: "The loved and loving brother died when manhodd's morning hour almost touches noon, and while the shadows were falling to the west. He had not passed on life's righway the stone that marks the highest point, but being weary for a moment, he lay down by the wayside, and using his burden for a pillow, fell into that dreamless sleep that kisses his eyelids still. Life is a vale between the narrow peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud and the only answer is the echo of our wailing. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death, hope sees a star, and listening, can hear the rustle of a wing. He who sleeps here when dying, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his last breath, 'I am better now.' Let us believe in spite of doubts and dogmas and tears and fears that these dear words are true of all the countless dead."

These last words are evidence that the instinctive hope had not died out in Ingersoll. In the last verse of his "Declaration of the Free," he says:

"Is there beyond the silent night
An endless day?
Is death a door that leads to light?
We cannot say.
The tongueless secret locked in fate
We do not know. We hope and wait.

There is the instinctive hope here, but contrast this verse with the hope of Whittier.

"Oh friends, no proof beyond this yearning,
The outreach of our souls we need.
God will not mock the hope He giveth
No love He prompts shall vainly plead.

Then let us stretch our hands in darkness,
And call our loved ones o'er and o'er.
Some time their arms shall close about us
And the old voices speak once more."

There is a vacuum in the human soul which nothing but God and an endless life will satisfy. Dugald Stuart speaks "of the exact accommodation of the condition of the lower animals to their instincts, and to their sensitive powers, contrasted with the unsuitableness of the present state of things to the intellectual faculties of man, to his capacity of enjoyment, and to the conceptions of happiness, and of perfection which he is able to form." The lower creation is satisfied with its environment and outlook. Man is not satisfied with his. The evidence of immortality is in your own soul and in your own need..

John Fiske says, "I believe in the immortality of the soul, not in the sense in which I accept the demonstrable truths of science, but as a supreme act of faith in the reasonableness of God's work." Huxley, at the beginning of his career, could be brave and say," it is worta while to be good even though I have no confidence in the future life," but as he neared the goal of his life how his soul longed for some kind of future existence! It is the future life with all its perfection and glory, that puts meaning into this earthly life.

PERFECTION Oil Heaters.

A combination hard to beat. Each represents the best in its class. Perfection Oil Heaters. Equipped with smokeless device, are absolutely odorless. Convenient to carry from room to room; burns nine hours with one filling. Some of the excellent features of the famous Ackroyd Gas Heater are that it heats by radiation, not by air circulation; the heat is radiated from the sides and thrown near the floor instead of going directly to the ceiling. The combustion is perfect and there is positively no odor whatever. We have sold hundreds of them and we have yet to learn of a single complaint.

NO GENERAL DELIVERY.

Fort Says He Had No Thought of Paroling Many Prisoners.

Governor Fort denied yesterday a report that he favored paroling any considerable proportion of the inmates of the State prison as a means of lessening the congestion at that institution. The overcrowdnig of the prison was brought to the Governor's attention some days ago by the prison inspectors, who asked his assistance in procuring an appropriation for increasing the accommodations.

The Governor has for many years been a champion of the parole system and asked the inspectors whether there were not a number of first offenders serving terms for minor offenses whose conduct would justify the Court of Pardons in granting paroles. He was opposed to enlarging the prison at this time, and thought it might be well to try the experiment of increasing the parole list.

He also requested the inspectors to furnish to the Court of Pardons the names of prisoners whom they considered fit subjects for parole. He said yesterday that the largest number of cases he had thought might come up in this way was from 100 to 150.

KING BENTLEY DETHRONED.

Polish Ruler of Bayway Loses Sceptre to German.

"Jerry" Bentley, known as the "King of Baway" and leader of the local Polish colony, has lost his sceptre and his crown. He was defeated yesterday at Elizabeth in a suit brought against him by William Scheerer, with whose saloon customers Bentley interfered. Scheerer got an injunction from the Court of Chancery and also started in the Circuit Court. He was awarded $300 damages.

Bentley was so long the main figure in the city's unruly spot that he used rather forcible tactics in enforcing his sway. His defeat is especially bitter in view of the fact that his opponent is a German, an unpardonable sin in the foreign quarter.

Jersey City Tax Rate Higher.

The Jersey City tax rate for the year beginning December 1 next was fixed yesterday at $19.28 a $1,000 by the Hudson County Tax Board. Last year the rate was $16.18. The increase is attributed to the reduction in railroad assessments made by the State assessors.

HE FINDS TOO MUCH EMOTION IN PULPIT.

"There is too much emotion and not enough intellect in the present-day pulpit," was the astonishing declaration of Professor Forlines, of the Western Maryland Seminary, Westminster, Md., before the annual conference of the Methodist Protestant church, in Trinity church, Atlantic City yesterday.

Asserting that more intellectual men are sorely needed to tell the story of the gospel, he admitted a serious shortage of men qualified for a successful ministry.

"Sunday school teachers are sadly deficient in actual knowledge of the Scriptures," said Mr. Hubble, secretary of the board of young people's work. "Knowledge of the Bible," he said, "is absolutely necessary to teachers if Sunday schools are to accomplish the work cut out for them."

Opposition developed to a proposition to sell a church property in Bridgeport and the plan was abandoned.

GOT MIXED WITH THE CASEYS.

Happily Married Polish Couple Confuse a Newark Judge.

There was a tangle in the First Criminal Court, Newark, yesterday that was straightened out only after considerable trouble. The court crier called for "Mr. and Mrs. Casey" to appear before Judge Freeland, and when the two came forward it was found that they were Polish.

"Why don't you support your wife?" Judge Freeland asked through an interpreter, after consulting his notes. The man replied by vigorously affirming that he had a very happy home, to which his wife agreed. Investigation revealed that the twain were not Caseys, but were witnesses in another matter before the court, and feared from the turn affairs had taken that there was a scheme afoot to forcibly divorce them.

The explanation was that the woman's first name was Geza, and that her husband, Michael Votjek, hearing the name of Casey called supposed the Judge wished to speak to his wife.

WANTS $15,000 DAMAGES.

Suit Against Express Company for Injury to Child.

August Ziegener and J. Merritt Lane, Jersey City attorneys, have started suit in the Supreme Court against the Chidsey Express Company, of Elizabeth, for $15,000 for injuries to Alice Rogers, 4 years old, of 602 Grand street, Jersey City.

On Friday, September 25 last, the Rogers child was walking on the sidewalk close to the curb in front of her home. One of the Chidsey Company's wagons, in charge of Harry Hay, of 1033 Jersey street, Elizabeth, drawn by a team of horses, came along. It moved close to the curb and a whiffletree swung out and struck the child knocking it down, causing a knee cap to be dislocated and other injuries.

SEES AFTER 15 YEARS.

Bullet, Lodged in Eye, Finally Removed by Surgeon.

After fifteen years of blindness in one eye sight has been recovered by James Stryker at Atlantic Highlands. He was shot in the eye and the bullet could not be found, despite frequent operations. A few days ago Mr. Stryker, while in the Flatiron building, in New York, felt a peculiar sensation in his eye, and on consulting a physician the long lost leaden pellet was discovered.

Dr. John H. Van Mater, of Atlantic Highlands, performed a successful operation and now Mr. Stryker can see with the eye as well as before the accident.

Church Fair at Westfield.

Under the auspices of Holy Trinity church, Westfield, a carnival will be held in the Westfield clubhouse beginning today and ending Saturday night, October 31. The hall has been handsomely decorated for the occasion, with a fine assortment of fancy and useful articles. The affair is in charge of a committee under the direction of Rev. Father Daniel F. McCarthy, and a list of attractions have been provided for each night. There will be moving pictures, euchre parties, dancing and other special features.

Whitmore Trial Begins Monday.

Theodore Whitmore will be placed on trial for his life for a second time in the Hudson County Criminal Court on Monday, charged with the murder of his wife in the Lampblack Swamp, near Harrison, on Christmas night. Attorney General Robert McCarter will conduct the case for the State and will endeavor to puncture the alibi which Whitmore's counsel established at the previous trial. The State will have several new witnesses to put on the stand.

Fights Big Rattlesknake for Life.

David Burdunn, proprietor of the Normandie Cottage in Atlantic Highlands, had a fight for his life with a six-foot rattlesnake in a woods near Atlantic Highlands yesterday. The battle lasted an hour, during which Burdunn's clothes were torn twice by the reptile's fangs. Rattlesnakes are rare in that vicinity. The snake had seven rings on its tail.

From John F. Kenah, City Celrk of the city of Elizabeth, and certified to by him, the following copy of a by the Elizabeth City Council at a meeting held September 1, 1908.

By Councilman Nugent:

Whereas, The Morris County Traction Company having partly constructed its trolley line to within a short distance of the city line on Morris avenue; and

Whereas, The completion of said line would be a valuable aid in the bringing into this city of many passengers who would help to increase the trade of local merchants and add to the growth of the city; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders who granted this franchise be requested to appoint a committee to confer and co-operate with out Committee on Railroads and Street Railways for the purpose of ascertaining the reason why said street railway is unfinished, and for the further purpose of facilitating, if possible, the completion of this necessary improvement; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these reolutions be forwarded forthwith to the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The following petition was presented and read:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned citizens and property-owners of the township of Clark, do hereby petition your honorable body to adopt the road laid from Clark township to Cranford and known as the extension of Walnut avenue, in the township of Cranford, as a county road for the purpose of having said road rebult under the State Aid Road Act.

We represent to your honorable body that the said road is a connecting link between both townships and one continuously used for traffic.

The above petition was signed by F. C. Grube, William J. Thompson, Marx Riefel and twelve others.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and referred to County Road Committee.

The following petition was presented and read:

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County ofU n Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen, the undersigned, property owners of the township of Cranford respectfully petition your honorable body to adopt or take over, and improve by laying telford or macadam pavement or other approved pavement, the road known as Walnut avenue within said township, from South avenue, south to the township line, and thence to Clark township to meet the present macadam road and the county road now in that township, representing and showing to your honorable body that such improvement of said road would be for the great benefit of the county of Union as a whole as well as the section traversed thereby, furnishing as it will a direct route by good road across the county from the presentd county road in Cranford township to Clark and the city of Rahway, a road improvement very greatly needed and which will be of much value.

The above petition was signed by Frederick W. Park, James Z. Smith, Edwin G. Woodling, E. K. Adams and twenty-six others.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse received and referred to the county road committee.

Reports of Committees.

By the jail committee.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your committee on jail inspection would respectfully report that it has inspected the jail and the books of the warden, and finds that 89 prisoners have been committed during the month of September; number in jail October 1, 58; daily average during September, 61 9-30; treated by Physician, 11.

Your committee would again call your attention to the need of an isolation ward. Such a ward could be used to advantage at the present time; a prisoner awaiting trial, and whose life depends upon a little pure air and sunshine could no doubt be saved from a permanent breaking down of health if placed for a time in such as we recommend.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Swain, received and placed on file.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

The evening before Alan had been at Ringwood and Allis had made a final endeavor to get him to clear the other's name by confessing the truth to Crane. On her knees she had pleaded with her brother. The boy had fiercely disclaimed all complicity, protested his own innocence with vehemence and denounced Mortimer as a worse than a thief in having poisoned her mind against him.

In anger Alan had disclosed Mortimer's treachery—as he called it—and crime to their mother. Small wonder that Allis' hour of trial was a dark one. The courage that had enabled her to carry Lauzanne to victory was now tried a thousandfold more severely.

Allis crept to her father like a fearsome child. Providentially he had not been initiated into the moral crusade against the iniquitous Mortimer, so the girl clung to him as a drowning person might to a plank of salvation. She longed to tell him everything—of her love for Mortimer, perhaps he had guessed it, for he spoke brave words often of the sturdy young man who had saved her from Diablo.

Allis went to the tea table by her father's side, fearing to get beyond his hearing; she dreaded her mother's questioning eyes.

A square old-fashioned wooden clock on the mantelpiece of the sitting room had just droned off seven mellow hours, when the faint echo of its music was drowned by the crunch of somebody coming up the drive, then the wooden steps gave hollow notice. The visitor's advent was announced again by the brass knocker on the front door.

"I'll go," said Allis, as her mother rose. The girl knew who it was that knocked, not because of any sane reason; she simply knew it was Mortimer.

"Come in," she said, quietly; "I am glad you have come."

"I just want to speak to you for a minute. I said I would come, but I can't see anybody—just you, alone."

"I understand," she answered. "Come inside."

"I am going away," he began; "I can't stand it here."

"You have done nothing—nothing to clear yourself?"

"Nothing."

"And you won't?"

"No."

"Is this wise?"

"It is the inevitable."

They were silent for a little; they were both standing. The girl broke the stillness.

"I am glad you have come, because I can tell you again that I know you are innocent. I know it, because my heart repeats it a thousand times a day."

"You never waver—you never doubt?"

"Never."

"You never will?"

"Never."

"Then I care not. Other men have had misfortune thrust upon them and have borne it without complaint, have had less to solace them than you have given me now, and I should be a coward if I faltered. Some day perhaps, you will know that I am worthy of your faith. There, forgive me. I have said too much; I am even now a coward. If you will say good-by, I'll go."

"God-by, my hero." She raised her eyes, blurred with tears, and held out her hand gropingly, as one searches in the dark, for the room whirled like a storm cloud, and just faintly she could see the man's strong face coming to her out of the gloom like the face of a god. He took her hand. "Good-by," his voice vibrated brokenly; "if—if justice wills that my innocence be known some day, may I come back? Will you wait, believing in me for a little?"

"Forever."

He drew her to him by the hand he still clasped, and put his strong arms about her. What mattered it now that he had been falsely accused—what mattered it to either of them that he must accept the grim penalty of his endeavor? With them in the soft gloom was nothing but love, and faith, and innocence; and within the strong arms a sense of absolute security, as though the false accusing world had been baffled, beaten down, and the victory theirs—love.

He raised the girl's face and kissed her. "Let God witness that I press your brave lips in innocence," he said; "and in this pledge I love you forever and ever."

"Amen," came from Allis involuntarily; it sounded to them both like the benediction of a high priest.

"Amen," he responded. To speak again would have been sacrilege.

He put her from him gently, turned away and walked quickly from the house.

XLI.

As Farrell had suggested, Crane sought him at the office the next day at ten o'clock.

"Ah!" the bookmaker exclaimed when Crane entered, "you want that badge number. Hagen, get the betting sheet for the second last day at Gravesend and look up a bet of nine thousand dollars we roped in over Mr. Crane's horse. I want the number to locate the man that parted."

"Do you mean Billy Cass?" queried the clerk.

"Who the devil's Billy Cass?"

"Why the stiff that played The Dutchman for a thou'."

"You know him?" This query from Farrell.

"I should say! He's a reg'lar."

The clerk brought the betting sheet and ran his finger down a long row of figures.

"That's the bet. A thousand calls three on The Dutchman. His badge number was 11,785. Yes, that's the bet; I remember Billy Cass takin' it. You see," he continued, "he's gen'rally a piker—plays a long shot—an' his limit's $20; so, when he comes next a favorite with a cool thou', d—d if I didn't get cold feet. Bet yer life it wasn't Billy's money—not a plunk of it; he had worked an angel, an' was playin' the farmer's stuff for him."

"Are you sure, Mr. Hagen—did you know the man?" Crane asked.

"Know him? All the way—tall, slim, blue eyes, light mustache, hand like a woman."

"That's the man," affirmed Farrell; "that's the man—I saw him yesterday in your place."

Crane stared.

"I thought you identified—which man in the bank did you mean?"

"I saw three; a short, dark, hairless kid"—Alan Porter, mentally ticked off Crane; "a tall, dark, heavy shouldered chap, that, judged by his mug, would have made a fair record with the gloves—"

"Was not that the man you identified as having made the bet?" interrupted Crane, taking a step forward in his intense eagerness.

"Not on your life; it was the slippery-looking cove with fishy eyes."

"Cass," muttered Crane to himself; "but that's impossible—he never left the bank that day; there's some devilish queer mistake here." Farrell had identified David Cass in the bank as the man who had bet with him, while the clerk asserted that one "Billy" Cass had made the same wager. Hagen's description of "Billy" Cass fitted David Cass in a general way. Again the badge number—11,785—was not Mortimer's, as registered in Faust's book.

Crane stood pondering over the complication. He saw that until further investigation disproved it there could be but one solution of this intricate riddle. Billy Cass, the maker of the bet, was a race track frequenter; David Cass was not. They must be separate personalities; but they resembled each other; they were of the same name—they might be brothers. Billy Cass had been in possession of the stolen note; he must have got it from some one having access to it in the bank—Mortimer, Alan Porter, or Cass—cashier was quite out of the question.

The next move was to trace back through Billy Cass the man who had delivered to him the stolen money. There was still a chance that Mortimer, unfamiliar with betting and possibly knowing of Billy Cass through his brother in the bank—if they were brothers—had used this practical racing man as a commission agent. This seemed a plausible deduction. It was practically impossible that David Cass could have got possession of the bill, for it was locked in a compartment of which Mortimer had the key; the latter had admitted that the keys were not out of his possession.

This far in his hurried mental retrospect Crane spoke to Farrell: "I think this is all we can do at present. I may find it necessary to ask you to identify this Cass, but I hope not to trouble you any further in the matter."

Sitting in his own chamber Crane once more went over the whole extraordinary entanglement. Even yet Mortimer might be the guilty man—probably was. Why should he, Crane, pursue this investigation that might turn, boomerang-like, and act disastrously. Mortimer was either a thief or a hero; there could be no question about that. Crane would commit diplomatic suicide in developing Mortimer's innocence.

Again he asked himself why he should proceed. Mortimer was guilty in the strong, convicting light of the apparent evidence; better let it rest that happy way—happy for Crane. But still would he rest satisfied himself? If Cass had stolen the money it would never do to retain him in a position of trust. Then the devil of subtle diplomacy, familiar at all times to Crane, whispered in his ear that he need not blazon to the world the result of his further investigation; he might satisfy himself, and then if Mortimer were found still deeper in the toils it might be spoken of; but if he were found innocent—well, was Crane his brother's keeper?

That afternoon Crane took a train to Brookfield. As far as Crane was concerned the fate of the two men was held in the hollow of the postmaster's hand. The latter, with little hesitation, allowed him to delve into official secrets.

He learned that David Cass had sent a letter, with a quick-delivery stamp on it, to William Cass, at A B C, East Fourteenth street, New York, at 3:30 p. m., on June 12. So far as guilt or innocence was concerned there was nothing left to discover; the connection between these two men was demonstrated. Farrell's misidentification established another truth—they were brothers. The letter, hastening to its destination, had contained the stolen money. Mortimer would not give it to Cass to send away; even if he had done so he would not then have gone to Gravesend. Alan Porter had also gone to Gravesend; if he had stolen the money he would have taken it with him.

As a dog carries home a bone too large for immediate consumption, Crane took back this new finding to his den of solitude in New York. At eight o'clock he turned the key in his door, and walked fitfully up and down, up and down, the floor. Sometimes he sat in a big chair that beckoned to him to rest; sometimes he raced with swift speed; once he threw himself upon his bed, and lay staring wild-eyed at the ceiling.

Then he thrust himself back into a chair, and across the table opposite sat Wrong, huge—grinning with a devilish temptation.

DO IT NOW.

Plainfield People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due in most cases to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer goes gradually into the grasp of diabetes, dropsy, Bright's disease, gravel or some other serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay.

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and getting a supply, I began their use. Two boxes fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended the remedy since to other persons suffering as I did."

QUALITY and PRICE
The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

EMPLOYES OF CLOTHING COMPANY TO HOLD A BALL.

A meeting of the People's Outfitting Company Employes' Association was held at the Hoboken store, 111 Washington street, with revived enthusiasm, after several quiet months during the summer season. The meeting was well represented by members of their Elizabeth and Plainfield stores, and, among other business of interest, it was decided to run off a ball during the winter months, and a committee of arrangements, headed by L. S. Cohen, manager of the Hoboken store, as the chairman of that committee, was appointed to look up a suitable hall for the occasion and report at the next meeting, which will be held at Elizabeth on November 11.

The association also failed to announce after their previous meeting, the election of the new officers, which are as follows: Hart Abraham, of Hoboken, re-elected president; Charles Samuelson, of Plainfield, vice-president; Miss May Herberman, of Jersey City Heights, re-elected treasurer; Miss Lena Levenson, of Jersey City Heights, secretary; William McClelland, of Hoboken, and J. Silverman, of Elizabeth, re-elected trustees, and Michael Karski, of Hoboken, re-elected sergeant-at-arms.

After several other debates for the good and welfare of the association and for the good and welfare of the People's Outfitting Company's stores, the meting was adjourned.

The store styled by this company at Plainfield is the Plainfield Credit Outfitting Co., located at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, one flight up.

RECIPES FOR USING THE INDIAN MEAL.

Corn, or Indian, meal is beginning to be appreciated at its true worth, and there has been quite a return to the nourishing meal as a food. Probably the wild mania for breakfast foods has brought this about.

The yellow Indian meal is the kind used. It is made into puddings of all kinds and served for luncheon or dinner.

One of the best of these baked puddings is as follows: Take one pint of yellow Indian meal and stir into it a quart of milk, which should be boiling hot. Melt slowly one-quarter pound of butter and mix it with a pint of molasses.

Stir this gradually into the meal, flavoring the mixture with nutmeg and the grated rind of a lemon.

Then leave to stand until it is partly cool, when six eggs are stirred in which have already been well beaten. The batter is poured into buttered pudding dish and baked for two hours.

Boiled Indian Pudding—There is also another recipe which calls for two cups of milk, two of the corn-meal, two eggs, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of beef suet rubbed fine.

To this is added a half teaspoon each of sugar and ground sinnamon. It is best to put a pinch of soda in the milk and heat it until it is boiling, then stir in the meal, salt and suet. This is set aside to cool.

When cold, the spice, sugar and the whipped egg are beaten in and stirred vigorously. This is boiled in a brown bread mold for four hours.

One must be sure to leave room in the mold for the pudding to swell. It is served with hard sauce.

Indian Fruit Pudding—The pudding with fruit in it is supposed to be more palatable than the other. It is made in the same manner and with the same ingreditents as the bboiled pudding, but raisins and currents are added.

A cupful of seeded raisins and cleaned currants are well dredged with flour and stirred into the pudding just before it is put into the mold.

Prehistoric.

The rebellious angels had just been cast out of heaven.

"What's troubling you, Bub?" he called.

"An old problem," answered the future foul fiend, between somersaults—"Where are we going this fall?"—Philadelphia Record.

Appropriate.

"Gillet got a prize of $50 for suggesting a name for a new motor car they're putting on the market."

"What did he call it?"

"The Ill-News Car."

"I don't see it."

"Nothing travels so fast."—Town Topics.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTES

First One at Elizabeth on November 9 and One Here on November 13.

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

Six Meetings Are to Be Held in Succession—The Program in Detail.

Arrangements for the crowning meeting in a series of six to be held under the auspices of the North Jersey Missionary Institute in the week beginning November 9, have been completed. This sixth and last meeting is to be held in Elizabeth Saturday, November 14, and a large attendance is expected.

The sessions will be held in the Second Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, at 2 p. m. and 7:15 p. m. Dinner will be served in the chapel of the Third Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, by the women of that church from 6:30 to 7:15 o'clock. For both sessions an interesting program has been prepared.

The opening address at the afternoon meeting will be by the Rev. L. H. Hough, and from 3 to 4 o'clock there will be a conference led by the Rev. Brewer Eddy, of East Orange, on "The Missionary Committee in a Young People's Society; Its Organization and Work." The Rev. Mr. Eddy is well known as a leader in missionary effort and is chairman of the North Jersey Missionary Institute. Edmund D. Soper, widely known in Y. M. C. A. circles, will conduct the second conference of the afternoon, "The Sunday School and Missions." This will last from 4 to 5:15 o'clock and will be followed by mission study classes. The subjects and leaders for these classes will be: "The Why and How of Foreign Missions," Miss Harriette R. Halloway; "The Moslem World," Harry S. Meyers; "The Frontier," E. D. Soper; "Uganda's White Man of Work," the Rev. Staley F. Davis.

The study classes will be held again in the evening for the benefit of those who cannot attend in the afternoon. They will continue from 7:15 to 8:15. George F. Sutherland of New York city, will conduct a conference on "Sunday Schools and Missions," from 8:15 to 9 o'clock. From 9 to 9:45, Harry S. Myers will give an illustrated lecture, "A Missionary Tour of the World." This closing feature will be of much general interest, and the public is cordially invited. The pictures shown by Mr. Meyers were taken in a recent tour of the world and are remarkable.

The program as outlined above will be given in each of the six centers visited. Every speaker is a "specialist" in the phase of the work which he or she will present, and the outcome of the half dozen rallies will, it is expected, be a deepening of missionary interest and zeal in scores of churches. The dates and places of the six meetings are as follows:

Monday, November 9, Paterson; Tuesday, November 10, Jersey City; Wednesday, November 11, Newark; Thursday, November 12, Orange; Friday, November 13, Plainfield; Saturday, November 14, Elizabeth.

The North Jersey Missionary Institute is designed to meet the need for an intelligent practical presentation of the subject of missions before the young people's societies of the northern part af the state. It is an effort to make more effective the out reaching work of the church. It is a reverent, concentrated, enthusiastic agency for showing church workers how to promote missionary activity.

It seeks to work chiefly through young people's societies and Sunday-schools. In conferences led by experienced specialists, the best methods of work are presented.

The general committee is made up of two representatives from each of the larger denominations and two from each of the six cities in which the meetings are held. The Rev. Brewer Eddy, a former member of the Yale Band of Student Volunteers, and now pastor of Trinity Congregational church, East Orange, is chairman. The Rev. Stanley F. Davis, pastor of Epworth Methodist Episcopal church, Elizabeth, and who has been closely identified with the work from the beginning, is the secretary. The treasurer is John T. Sproull, of the State Christian Endeavor Union. Committe chairmen are: Program, George F. Sutherland, New York city; finance, Charles F. Kilborne, Orange; field, Clarance A. Titus, Roselle Park. These, with Charles H. Baker, of Montclair, and Miss Harriette Halloway, of Plainfield, form the executive committee. The Elizabeth representatives are the Rev. S. F. Davis and the Rev. H. H. Sleeper, Ph. D., for the clergy; Miss Hettie P. Stelle and Edmund H. Graves for the churches.

The committee in charge of the local arrangements is as follows: Chairman, Miss H. P. Stelle; executive secretary, George M. Seaton; chairman field committee, E. H. Graves; chairman finance committee, Alvah O. Boyer; recording secretary, W. F. Adams. The field committee is looking after the matter of securing delegates and the finance committee is seeking a guaranty fund to cover the cost of the movement.

Delegates are not limited to Elizabeth. Everyone will be welcome, and effort is being made to secure representatives from the Epworth Leagues and Christian Endeavor Societies throughout Union county and also from Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and other nearby places.

As far as possible it is hoped that delegates will come for the entire institute. The evening session at 8:15 is open to the general public. It is probable that there will be a large attendance at this meeting because of Mr. Meyer's ability and because of his message.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rush, of Glen Gardner, have been visiting relatives in this city.

Miss Anna Schmidt, of Jersey City, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

TYPHOID

HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.

How to Avoid Infection.

Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisible, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

ACCEPTS TRINITY CALL

Rev. John Y. Brook to Preach His First Sermon as Local Pastor on Nov. 29.

HE SUCCEEDS DR. SCHENCK.

Asbury Park Pastor's Acceptance of Plainfield Charge Made Known Here Yesterday—His Career.

Rev. John Y. Brook, of Asbury Park, has accepted the call extended by the consistory and congregation of Trinity Reformed church. He has not only tendered his resignation to his Grand Avenue Reformed church flock in that city, whose pastor he became in June, 1906, but has signified his acceptance to Trinity's people. At the morning service yesterday, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, acting pastor, read Rev. Mr. Brook's letter to the local congregation.

The call was extended by the unanimous action of Trinity church congregation last Wednesday night, and the fact was communicated to Rev. Mr. Brook in an official call without delay. The pastor-elect will end his service at the Asbury Park church on Tuesday night, November 24, and on the following Sunday, November 29, he will occupy Trinity's pulpit. Arrangements are now underway for the installation ceremony, the date for which has not yet been announced.

Rev. Mr. Brook will succeed Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, who after twenty-one years loyal and devoted service was recently made pastor-emeritus. Mr. Brook is about thirty years old and is an native of Cooperstown, Mich. After pursuing a course of training at Hope College, Holland, Michigan, he matriculated at Rutgers Theological Seminary, where he completed his theological studies. He is of Dutch descent. His father was a Reformed minister before him and his brother, Rev. Dr. Albertus Brook was but recently installed as pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark. An uncle, Rev. Dr. John Brook, is pastor of the Reformed church, at Muskegon, Michigan.

In compliance with the wish of the consistory and the congregation a formal letter of thanks and good will has been transmitted to Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, who has so kindly acted as pastor since Dr. Schenck was compelled to relinquish the work on account of illness. Dr. Johnson has a warm place in the hearts of Trinity's people.

'WARE THE SNEAK THIEVES.

Opening of Windows and Doors During the Unusual Heat Wave Starts Them A-going.

The unseasonable weather of the past week or more has led to considerable sneak-thieving in other cities and Chief Kiely today issued a warning for the benefit of local people. He declared that the opening of windows and doors to get the benefit of the cool air gives crooks just the chance they seek to get inside. In summer, when it is to be expected that everything will be open because of the heat, more or less of a watch is kept but when it comes to an unusual warm wave in the fall the household grows careless. The sneak thieves make it a practice to hover about during the dinner hour in the evening and climb porches to the second story.

Newark and Elizabeth have had a couple of big "touches" in the past ten days and the police there have asked the residents to be more careful in leaving windows up. Plainfielders have been very careless in this way and the chief's warning is intended to put them on their guard.

—All bids against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tomorrow night in order to insure payment at the next Council meeting.

SOLD ALL THE SHINGLES ON CHURCH'S ROOF

Having decided to place a new shingle roof on the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, the members adopted a novel method yesterday of obtaining the money for this purpose. A large picture of the church was placed on the platform at the morning service, and it was so arranged that blocks of shingles were marked off to the number of 10,000, the number required for the job. Walter McGee, superintendent of the Sunday-school, took charge and sold the shingles for two cents apiece. The idea proved extremely popular and not only was the necessary $200 raised to do the work, but an additional $200 was subscribed to make other needed improvements at the edifice. Many of the members subscribed for one hundred or more shingles and within a short time all of them were sold.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school was given an opportunity to contribute toward the improvements. A happy event at this time was the presentation to Superintendent McGee of a silk pocket American flag, in view of his departure this week for a six months' trip around the world. The flag was presented to him by Ruth Kemble, the young daughter of the pastor, Rev. G. S. Kemble. With the flag was this inscription:

"While you are sailing around the world, we here at home will pray that God's great love and this flag unfurled, shall guard you all the way."

Mr. McGee was deeply touched by the incident and it was several minutes before he could speak. It was a total surprise to him. He responded in an appropriate speech.

WESTFIELD WOMAN A VICTIM OF MIXED DRINKS.

Mrs. Frieda Jefferson, colored, who lives on the outskirts of Westfield, was arrested by Patrolman Vanderweg, late Saturday night, after he discovered her prowling about the grounds of a residence at East Front street and Norwood avenue. She was in a bad state of intoxication but explained her actions by saying that she wanted to call on a girl who worked in the house. When the cop took her before the servants, they denied knowing her. She roused the neighborhood by her screams when told she was under arrest.

In court this morning, Mrs. Jefferson admitted that she didn't know what she was doing when she wandered into the premises. She and her husband, she said, had called on their daughter, who was recently married, and in honor of the visit a mixture of drinks was passed around. She imbibed more than was good for her and when she started for home she lost her lord and master and the right way to the trolley. Judge Runyon gave the culprit some good advice on leaving alcoholic drinks alone and then told her to go home.

LOBBY DISCREDITED ITSELF

Censured for Its Irresponsible and Vicious Attack on Senator Ackerman.

N. Y. TRIBUNE'S COMMENT.

The Legislature Record Report It Says Is Fit for Waste Paper Basket.

Although the majority of New Jersey papers have considered the matter as humorous, the New York Tribune has taken seriously the dirty attack made by the People's Lobby of New Jersey on the legislative record of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman. This most undeserved and irresponsible mudslinging, which is aimed at State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen as well, is given the following comment in the Tribune's editorial column today:

"On the principle of printing the news of all phases of the campaign The Tribune gave some space the other day to the report which the so-called or self-called "People's Lobby," in New Jersey, had made concerning the members of last winter's Legislature, with, of course, an implied recommendation to voters of candidates to vote for and against at the coming election. Now, on the principle of seeking to have justice and truth prevail, and to have citizens vote intelligently and fairly, we must say that report was grossly misleading and untruthful, and that its implied recommendations are mischievous and unworthy to serve as a guide for any conscientious citizen.

"The 'People's Lobby,' which seems to be a self-constituted and irresponsible close corporation, classifies the legislators as 'For the People' and as 'For the Bosses and Corporations,' putting the great majority in the latter category. In some respects the classification may be correct. In many respects it is scandalously incorrect. Note, for example, the very first name on the list, taken alphabetically. Senator Ackerman, of Union county, is put in the condemned list as 'For the Bosses and Corporations.' Yet Senator Ackerman, during his whole term has been conspicuous for his advocacy and support of measures in the interest of the people as distinguished from the 'special interests.' He was one of the foremost champions of the direct primaries bill, of the public utilities bill (for which he voted five times), of the pure food bill, of the limited franchise bill, of the railroad school tax law, which now puts more than $3,000,000 a year into the State school funds; of the equal taxation measure, of the measure defining the 'main stems' of railroads, of the bill for the nomination of United States Senators in direct primaries, of the Civil Service law, of the bill for an inquiry into the right of a railroad corporation to operate the Morris Canal and of that for an inquiry into the decline of traffic on the Raritan Canal under the railroad control, and of numerous other measures for the public good—most of the very measures, in brief, which this 'People's Lobby' itself desired. Moreover, when early last summer Mr. Ackerman was in doubt whether to be a candidate for re-election, Mr. Depew, the president of the 'People's Lobby,' and Mr. Moy, one of its chief members, wrote to him almost passionately entreating him to run again because of his splendid independence and his effective opposition to the 'bosses and corporations,' and they signed his petition for nomination. We have no doubt that Mr. Depew and Mr. Moy were then quite sincere, and that they still hold the same opinion of Mr. Ackerman and repudiate this attempt of some of their colleagues in the "Lobby" to put him into the pillory. Still, in the name of the 'People's Lobby,' this scandalous attack is made upon him and upon a number of the most faithful and efficient public servants of the State.

"It is monstrous that such a thing should be. If after such a record and such commendation Mr. Ackerman and others like him for we have cited his case as only one of many in this precious 'People's Loby' list—can be thus held up to execration as enemies of the public weal by a concern whose pretentious title invests it with an air of representative authority, what encouragement is there for men of character, ability and devotion to the general welfare to enter the public service? The triumph of so vicious a conspiracy would be a grave menace to representative institutions. As a matter of fact, we suppose that this 'People's Lobby,' apart from the honorable exceptions whom we have noted and perhaps some others, amounts to little more than a handful of impractical and not overscrupulous notoriety seekers, and we are not sure that this false report is the work of

PLAY GOLF ON SABBATH

Plainfield Country Club Members Go Over the Course Undisturbed.

WOMEN TAKE NO PART IN GAME

Prize Competitions Forbidden and No Caddies Employed—No Sunday Baseball.

The inauguration of Sunday golf at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday for the first, was marked by the presence of about twenty-five members who engaged in the play during the afternoon after 1 o'clock. As predicted there was no attempt on the part of the members to enjoy the added privileges in a wide and indiscriminate manner and the afternoon and evening passed off in a quiet and orderly way. There were a number of women at the clubhouse during the afternoon and evening to enjoy the regular club service.

No arrests or intimation of any action on the part of the prosecutor or Middlesex or Union counties followed the playing of golf by the members and in the opinion of those who indulged in the sport there is not likely to be. Several officers of the club were out but did not engage in play on the course and so far as the eye could see nothing occurred that would offend the most particular taste of a member. During the golf play not an unusual sound of any kind was heard and owing to the very location of the grounds the fact that golf was being played would not have been generally known except a person made it his business to go to the course.

There was no attempt to play baseball in this city, hence the local authorities were not compelled to take any action against such violation of the laws. As the season for baseball is now late and about over, it is not likely than any efforts will be made to test the law in this respect. However, if the Sunday golf continues next summer, it is said, no doubt the Sunday baseball question will come up for a decision one way or the other. Of course, in the golf play yesterday, there was no competition for prizes.

FIRST VOTERS RALLY IN BOROUGH TONIGHT

The Republican First Presidential Voters' Club will hold a big rally tonight at Saengerbund hall, to which all, irrespective of party, are invited to attend. President Harold Hegeman will be the chairman and following a few ten minute talks by interesting local speakers, supper will be served.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley has promised to tell the first voter why he should affiliate himself with the Republican party, while former State Senator Charles Arthur Reed will speak on county issues.

In North Plainfield, the major interest in centered in the State Senatorial fight and every effort is being made to roll up a rousing big majority for Joseph S. Frelinghuysen. Senator Frelinghuysen has engagements in other parts of the county but Mayor Smalley will deliver a message from him to the young voters. The Senator's record in the Legislature is considered to be perfect by the G. O. P. voters. He is the father of the auto law, and the pure food law, and was largely instrumental in the framing and passage of the model civil service law.

Champion Typist Coming Here.

In connection with an entertinment to be given at the Plainfield Business College, Thursday night, Miss Rose Fritz, the world's champion typist, will give a demonstration of her ability on the typewriter. At the National Business show in Madison Square Garden, last week, Miss Fritz made a record of eighty-seven words a minute for thirty minutes. M. A. Korff's orchestra has been secured for the evening and in addition to the musical numbers there will be several vocal selections and readings.

Mrs. Sarah Willis.

Mrs. Sarah Willis, of Morristown, daughter of the late Quincy McCall, of Smalleytown, died at her home Saturday afternoon. She is survived by a son and daughter. The funeral will be held at her late home Wednesday afternoon, and burial will be in the Mount Bethel cemetery.

Doorman McCue Back to Duty.

Doorman Thomas McCue returned to duty at police headquarters today after an absence of six weeks because of illness. He was a victim of grip and bronchitis.

DENOUNCES SUNDAY GOLF

Rev. A. E. Finn Preaches Strong Sermon Against the Club's Innovation.

ON "168 STUMBLING BLOCKS."

Severely Arraigns Those Responsible for Alleged Violation of Laws Rev. Dr. McCrea's Remarks.

Local clergy again raised their voices yesterday against the Sunday golf innovation at the Plainfield Country Club—at least two of them did. Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, made a vigorous protest against the alleged desecration of the Sabbath day, and at the same time, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, at the First M. E. church, had something pertinent to say on the subject.

Rev. Mr. Finn's sermon follows:

"Last Tuesday evening 168 people by their vote to open the Plainfield Country Club a half a day on Sunday the moral and religious progress of the beautiful city of Plainfield. I wonder if these 168 refined cultured, educated, influential people know what God said in His Holy Word about putting stumbling blocks in the way of their fellow men. Listen. God said in Levitus 19:14, 'Thou shalt not put a stumbling block before the blind, but shall fear thy God. I am the Lord.' In 1 Cor. 8:9, He says: "But take heed lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumbling block to them that are weak." And in Romans 13:14 He says: 'That no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way.' That these 168 people who voted in favor of descerating God's Holy Day have already been a stumbling block to the weak is evident from this statement which we read in The Daily Press the day after the vote was taken. 'A seventeen year old youth today asked at The Daily Press office how a certain member of the Country Club voted on the Sunday Golf proposition. When told that he cast a ballot in favor of the innovation, the youth remarked: 'He's my Sunday-school teacher; guess I'll go on gathering chestnuts on Sunday.'

"That the influence of these 168 stumbling blocks is even father reaching than this is evident from the following petition that was sent to the Mayor of our city after he had voted in favor of descrating God's Holy Day: 'To the Honorable Mayor of the city of Plainfield: We the undersigned citizens of this city seeing that you are in favor of Sunday golf playing, ask you for a permit allowing us the privilege of Sunday baseball playing, as we see no more harm in that than in golf.' Aside from the question of the right or wrong of Sunday golfing these 168 people who voted in favor of opening the Country Golf Club on Sunday have violated God's Holy law by the facts already presented in that they have placed a stumbling block in the way of their fellow men.

"I am reminded of an incident that occurred in Old Testament times when the Book of the Law which had been lost was found and read in the presence of Josiah. He was deeply stirred by the revelation that came to him as a result of the reading and said 'Great is the wrath of the Lord that is kindled against us, because our fathers have not harkened unto the words of this Book, to do according unto all that which is written concerning us.' What a marked contrast was the attitude of Jehoikim when the book was read in his presence; so startled and enraged was he by the revelation which came to him that "He cut it with the penknife and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed." In this present controversy we have had our Josiahs and our Jehoikims. Sad indeed was it to read that 168 refined, cultured, educate, influential people of our city, in this enlightened age, should applaud when it was voted to violate God's law and to desecrate God's Holy Day.

"And do not think that because God is silent for the present that He takes no notice of it. A certain farmer, who was an infidel, sent to the editor of a weekly newspaper the following letter:

" 'Sir—I have been trying an experiment. I have a field of Indian corn, which I ploughed on Sunday. I planted it on Sunday. I did all the cultivating which it received on Sunday. I gathered the crop on Sunday, and on Sunday hauled it to my barn; and I find that I have more corn per acre than has been gathered by any of my neighbors during this October.'

"What a triumphant sneer lay behind these words of the skeptic! But one thinks the light faded from his eyes as he read the sentence which

ACCOMODATIONS NEEDED AT FANWOOD SCHOOLS

The Board of Education of Fanwood township has decided to divide the assembly room of the building into three class-rooms, so as to provide temporary quarters for pupils, the enrollment this year being the largest in the history of the school. Several rooms are now so overcrowded that the county superintendent as well as the State superintendent called the attention of the board to the fact that it was violating the State law in not allowing a cerain number of cubic feet of breathing space for each pupil.

The State and county authorities demanded that the local board take immediate action toward remedying the trouble. The board tried to obtain suitable room in some other building in town, but was unsuccessful. As a last resort it was decided to erect a temporary partition in the assembly room which will give the necessary accommodation. This change will necessitate the employment of two additional teachers. At the next annual meeting the question of enlarging the building will be presented to the taxpayers and it is almost assured that the board's request will be granted.

When the present school building was erected eighteen years ago, it was believed that the building would accommodate the pupils for many years to come, but the increase has been more rapid than anticipated.

TO PUT AN END TO DRUG STORE-SALOONS

Chairman Charles J. Fisk and Secretary Peter Backes, representing the State Excise Commission, and the legislative committee of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association will hold a conference at the State house, Trenton, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The discussion, which was sought by the driggists' organization, will be confined to suggestions for the abolishment of the 'drug store-saloon,' the State association as well as the National organization of the druggists having passed strong resolutions against the unwarranted and illegal sale of liquor by members of the profession.

Mayor Fisk today would not say anything in advance of the meeting, but it is learned on good authority that in several cities druggists have systemmatically violated the excise law by conducting an open traffic in liquor. The plan now is to formulate a set of rules governing the business so that the "side-door to unscrupulous druggists" establishments may be abandoned, and to have the sale limited to strictly medicinal purposes. These rules will be put in the shape of recommendations to be incorporated in the Excise Commission's report.

The members of the State Pharmaceutical Association's legislative committee who will be present at the conference are David Strauss, of Newark, chairman; Thomas S. Armstrong, of Plainfield; Edward B. Jones, of Mount Holly; Henry A. Jorden, of Bridgeton, and Stephen D. Wooley, of Ocean Grove.

In The City Court.

Fred Zweifel, a young man living on Grant avenue, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by Patrolman Saffron with discharging fire-arms in the city limits. He told Judge Runyon that he had been shooting at a target and was unaware that he was violating the law. Sentence was suspended with a warning. Carl Taylor, who was with Zweifel and was ordered to be in court, failed to appear and the police were instructed to look him up.

Grace Church Parish Meeting.

At the parish house of Grace church tonight a congregational meeting will be held for the purpose of ratifying the proposed change in the method of electing wardens and vestrymen and changing their terms of office from one year to two and three years, so that they will terminate alternately. It is also proposed to increase the number of vestrymen from seven to nine members, while the number of wardens will remain the same.

Will Get Election Returns.

The Men's Club of Grace church will meet Tuesday night, November 3, and in addition to an informal program arranged for the occasion arrangements have been made whereby the members will receive the election rturns.

A NEW TEA STRAINER.

Soon the tea table will again be in operation. It is not that we love tea, but we love the sociability of it, and it is a pretty custom to drop in at 5 o'clock to enjoy a dish of tea and a platter of gossip.

Fascinating furnishings there are for the tea table—covers and doilies which may be as handsome as purse or fingers can make them. And, by the way, the cleverest little tea strainer was shown to me the other day.

Let me tell you about it, for I at once added it to my list of "suggestions for Christmas gifts," and perhaps you will like to do the same. It is none too soon to plan for Christmas, and we do not discover such really pretty and useful articles every day.

Now, you know how difficult it is to handle the old fashioned tea strainer, how it invariably drips tea all over a dainty tea cloth at the filling of each cup.

The new strainer drips—but it drips decorously and harmlessly. The little affair is really skilfully built. There is a tiny 'drip pan" of silver with an ebony handle attached; then swinging over this "drip pan" is the strainer of perforated silver. The little contrivance is so well balanced that the merest twist of the fingers turns the "pan" to one side, allowing the strainer to swing over the cup.

When the tea is poured a reverse twist brings the "pan" again beneath the strainer, and it may be set upon a cloth of the finest texture with the assurance that the little "drip pan" stands between fair linen and ruin.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Some years ago there was terror in the ranks of the mashers of Atlantic City by Mayor Stoy's sweeping edict in order to prevent sparking, but that is not a marker to the unrest and anxiety felt among the vast army of Johnnies in Philadelphia. The reason for the alarm is the superb muscular development, physique and ability of the sixteen American girls of Nixon & Zimmerman's big, musical fun play, "Little Mose," or "A Night in Venice," which has created such a sensation in Philadelphia, and which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. The girls range from five feet eight to upward of six foot and are built in proportion, and the dexterity with which they handle the boxing gloves, the art of self defense, swing the ash and hickory, not only rivals many of our college aspirants but will make many professionals look to their laurels. There may be those who think that this is a press agent's story or a romantic pipe dream, but those who wish to be convinced should take a trip to the theatre and see what might happen to them if one of that double octette uncorked a left hook. Shades of Bat Masterson—wow, wow.

"A Knight for a Day," the big musical gaiety that scored a sensational success at Wallack's Theatre practically all last-season is the attraction to be put forth at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. Everyone familiar with the run of records of last season's hits in New York is familiar with the unwonted acclaim of this production. The original cast headed by John Slavin and Miss May Vokes, will be a feature of the local engagement. The ensemble ranks, too, it is pledged, will show the same galaxies of youthful, vivacious and lively femininity. Novel spectacular effects abound in the performance. Original and charming stage pictures is another accredited lure of the production. Comedian Slavin in his role in the piece, is conceded to be doing the most effective comic impersonation of his career. The same is true of the part of Tilly Day, played by Miss Vokes. Comedian Slavin's character is that of a nimble-witted little waiter who undertakes to pose as a knight. The period of the play, contrary to the suggest of its title, is of today. Smart fun of the hour with people of now is the atmosphere. There's nothing of the medieval about the story. Miss Vokes plays a girl's college chore girl, a maid of all work. Tilly and the waiter knight develop to be lovers. From the little waiter knight's efforts to pass for a noble and incidents that attend his courtship of the "servant lady" most of the fun develops. A giant see-saw with varicolored lights and alive with bevies of teetering tomboy girls, and a sensational electric curtain comprehending the entire compass of the stage, are among the pictorial effects.

LeRoy Sumner, who is generally regarded as being one of the foremost of the younger generation of stars, has a new play this season, by Joseph Santley and Walter Woods, which is said to fit his requirements perfectly. The play is called "Billy, the Kid." It is a melodrama, telling an interesting story and is put on the stage in an elaborate manner. The company carries everything used in the production, with the exception of a very few minor "properties." The scenes of the play are all laid in New Mexico and the authors are said to have preserved the atmosphere of the locality most admirably. Supported by an exceptionally strong company, Sumner will present "Billy the Kid,' at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night.

THE FORUM.

Corrections Noted.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Sir—May I ask you to correct two errors in my "Reason for Preferring Taft to Bryan," published on Saturday? The first of these errors is my own, and grew out of a too hurried dictation of the article, but was discovered by myself when just too late to correct before publication.

The second error is yours. I referred to Judge Taft as having actually occupied a place on the U. S. Supreme bench. The President offered him the place, but he did not accept it. He had been (as early as 1887) judge of the Superior Court in Ohio; and from 1892 to 1900 he was U. S. Circuit Judge of the sixth circuit. My points in that connection were simply, that Taft had, himself, worn the judicial ermine, and had a judicial mind, and would if elected President, exercise a correct judgment in choosing U. S. judges.

The other error consists in an odd maladjustment of type on pages two of your Saturday's paper; seventeenth line from the bottom, and second column on that page of the article. It reads: "President Cleveland was painfully bonds." It should read, "President Cleveland sold bonds to bridge over," etc.

the editor appended to his letter: 'N. B.—God does not always settle his accounts in October.'

"Just as truly as the retribution of God came upon the people in Isaiah's time for the descecration of His Holy day, so we have every reason to believe that the people who are enedavoring to break down one of the great institutions that God has given us for our moral and spiritual development will be called to account for it.

"But these 168 stumbling blocks have not only violated God's law but upon this very day when they open their golf links will violate a State law. And here I quote the statement of our Corporation Counsel Mr. Craig A. Marsh: 'It is against the State law to play golf on Sunday, a misdemeanor and the guilty ones are liable to indictment;' and one of the leading lawyers of the city declared that 'Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was right when he stated that Sunday golf is a violation of the State laws and those who indulge in the sport on that day are liable to indictment.'

"We were very proud of the Honorable Mayor of our city when we learned what good work he was doing as chairman of the excise commission. We were very proud of him when he with his colleagues found that Atlantic City was openly violating the State law, that they did not try to conceal it but reported it to the Governor. We were very proud of Governor Fort when he informed Atlantic City that he would use the State militia if necessary to enforce the law. Where, where is the consistency of our Honorable Mayor to report to the Governor the violation of law in other cities and join with 168 people to openly violate law in our own city? We look with alarm at the antinomian tendencies of the Anarchists and the Socialists. Is it not incipient Anarchy to openly defy what is known to be existing laws?

"Our Honorable Mayor together with other honorable people in our city have been doing what they could to stamp out the germ of Tuberculosis. A moral germ entered our city last Tuesday evening which if permitted to linger will effect very much the moral and religious standing of the rising generation. Will the Honorable people of our city stand by and see this germ grow until it eats into the very fibre of our moral existence? We call upon the citizens of Plainfield who have any regard for their homes, their children, their city, their church, and their God to see that God's laws are obeyed, that State laws are enforced and that this moral germ is destroyed in its incipient state."

Rev. Dr. McCrea's Criticism.

In his sermon at the First M. E church last night, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea made direct reference to the innovation. He declared that cities as bad as Sodom and Gomorrah exist today and that they are only saved from destruction by the persevering Christian element. He cited the fact, with commendation, that Governor Fort had warned the Atlantic City authorities that unless the laws of the State were enforced at that place he would send the troops there. He asked his congregation its opinion on a mayor who voted not directly for Sunday golf but to have the club house open on Sunday. He stated that the mayor endeavored to excuse his action on the ground that the club property was not in the jurisdiction over which he presided, adding that it was just as bad from a moral and religious standpoint as if it were in his jurisdition. The preacher incidently stated that this is not a one-man government and implored his hearers to vote for and uphold those who represent civic righteousness.

more than a small minority of that little coterie. Yet by familiar press agent methods it is exploited into a semblance of serious importance, and might actually, if its hollowness and falsity were not exposed, influence some votes and even turn the electoral scale in some counties. If the thing has been done understandingly, it is one of the worst pieces of political slander we have seen for a long time. If it has been done ignorantly, as a piece of the reckless 'slangwhanging' to which a certain type of propagandist is addicted, it is none the less detestable. We earnestly advise every New Jersey voter, of whatever party, who desires good legislation for the welfare of the people, to throw the report of the 'People's Lobby' into the waste basket, where it belongs."

Missionary Tea.

The women of Trinity Reformed church will hold a missionary tea Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, on East Second street. At 3:45 o'clock, Rev. H. V. S. Peeke, who is home on a furlough from the foreign mission fields, will make an address. A silver offering will be received.

—Ageneral cleanup of the manholes and catch basins in the borough is being executed by order of Mayor Townsend.

CENTRAL CONDUCTORS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL BANUET.

Members of Central Railroad Division No. 307, Order of Railway Conductors, held their annual banquet yesterday in Achtel-Stetter's, Newark. More than seventy of the railroad's conductors sat at the tables a number of them being from this city. Officials of the company were guests and the principal speakers at the dinner.

George B. Van Nortwick, chief conductor, of Somerville, acted at toastmaster. George F. Trimmer, assistant chief conductor, of Dunellen, sat at his left hand and was the first speaker. W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the railroad company, made the principal address. He said that all railroad men are brothers and they must consider themselves as public servants.

This was the first time the annual banquet has been held in Newark. Every one of the diners pronounced the affair a great success and it was prophesied that in all likelihood it will be held there in the future. It is necessary to hold the dinner on Sunday, because only on that day are there a sufficient number of conductors off duty.

The banquet hall was decorated with signal flags and suitable souvenirs were at each place.

CIGARETTE SMOKERS TO BLAME FOR TWO FIRES.

Cigarette smokers caused slight fires in the city on two occasions since Saturday, bringing out the greater part of the fire apparatus each time. Both alarms were turned in from box 12, the first on Saturday night at 7:30 for a blazing awning at the VanCamp store, Front and Somerset streets. Someone from a floor above threw a cigarette on the canvas and started the trouble. The damage amounted to $25.

The second alarm was received at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, the scene of the fire being the St. Stephen confectionery store on West Front street where a young man accidentally placed a cigarette against a lace curtain. The blaze was out when the apparatus arrived but there was no more curtain. It was worth about $3.

TYPHOID

HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.

How to Avoid Infection.

Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisible, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

PRESBYTERIANS REJOICE

Twentieth Anniversary of First Presbyterian Church is Observed.

REV. DR. KETCHAM SPEAKS.

Rev. Mr. Bond Gives a Historical Address—Special Music a Feature of Celebration.

The twentieth anniversary of the building of the First Presbyterian church was celebrated in that edifice yesterday morning by a special program, the principal feature of which was a sermon by Rev. Dr. K. P. Ketcham, of New York, under whose pastorate the present building was erected. His subject was, "The Efficacy of Prayer," taken from the sixth chapter of Daniel, twenty-third verse.

The musical program consisted of a piano and organ slection by Clifford A. Braider, organist, and Miss Helen Carr George, pianist; hymn by congregation; anthem by the choir, "I lay my sins on Jesus," Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Andrew J. McClintock, tenor; Herbert R. Byard, baritone; offertory contralto solo, by Miss Jessamine Burd; hymn by the congregation.

In the evening Rev. Lewis Bond, son of the first pastor of the church, delivered a historical sermon. He said in part: 'Three church buildings have stood here. The first corner stone was laid in 1825 and the edifice was finished and dedicated to God in 1827. We have a record of the early condition of Plainfield in a sermon preached by the first pastor of the church, January 5, 1851: 'There are now nearly 400 dwelling houses in Plainfield, eight churches, one school house sustained at public expense, fitted for the accommodation of 300 scholars, 15 store houses, together with a goodly number of other buildings adapted to the business of our mechanics and manufacturers.'

"The organization of the church, 1825, with 18 members was effected by a committee of the Elizabethtown Presbyterian and Lord's Supper administered under the shade of some large trees standing on the bank of the brook just south of the milldam.

"Rev. Lewis Bond preached for the church by appointment of Presbytery from June, 1826, to April, 1829, when he was installed as pastor and continued as such until 1852. He was followed by Rev. Joseph H. Myers, 1858 to 1860; Dr. Samuel M. Studdiford, 1860 to 1862; Dr. D. V. McLean, 1862 to 1863; Rev. Benjamin Corey, 1863 to 1868; Rev. Henry L. Teller, 1868 to 1870; Dr. Kneeland P. Ketcham, Jr., 1871 to 1892; the present pastor, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, 1892 to 1908.

"In 1855 our building was too small for the congregation; four years later a second church was built which was torn down in 1888 to make room for the present beautiful structure."

The lesson of Rev. Bond's sermon was taken from Samuel seventh chapter, twelfth cerse: "Then Samuel took a stone and set it down between Mizpah and Shier and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying hitherto the Lord helped us."

BIG NOONDAY MEETING ADDRESSED BY CROWTHER.

Dr. Frank Crowther, formerly an assemblyman from Middlesex county, addressed 200 men at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant at noon today. He was introduced by City Chairman Winfield S. Angleman and was given a good reception.

Mr. Crowther confined himself to a discussion of the labor question and the Bryan theory of guaranteeing deposits. It was a plain and concise explanation of both issues and he brought conviction to his hearers that their interests are with the Republican party.

The noon day meeting tomorrow will be at the Potter Press works and on Wednesday at Scott's plant.

BEATING HIS TIME

By Frank H. Williams.

It's going some when a man of three months' acquaintance beats the time of a lifelong sweetheart. Not every man could do it—but then not every man is Matt O'Brien.

It was all over with Matt the moment that he saw her passing, holding on the arm of that little pasteboard man she was engaged to. She was pretty—pretty as you ever find them—and she threw one glance at Matt out of her big, you-can't-forget-me eyes that turned him white as a sheet. For a moment he gazed after the couple as if he was dazed, then he grabbed one of the boys hard by the arm.

"For the love of heaven!" Matt cried, "who's the girl?"

The boys laughed.

"Her?" Pat Burden asked. "Don't you know her? She's Nick Wadson's daughter, Nellie. That fellow she's walking with has been her steady since she was knee-high to a grasshopper."

Matt gritted his teeth a little, hitched up his coat, and said:

"There goes my future wife!"

Of course, starting out with that statement, Matt got a rough lot of joshing from the boys. But he stuck to it, and those that know say he told the girl what he intended to do the third time he called on her. However that is, he was calling her by her first name the second day after the introduction, and was feeling sorry for the pasteboard man by the end of the week. By the end of the third week Matt was trying to decide which of the boys to have for ushers.

Somehow, though, he didn't get along so well in the fourth week. She was just as friendly with him as ever, but when he'd take her lily white hand in his and turn on the mush talk, she'd only laugh. Matt began to have a worried look, while the pasteboard man—who had been rather uncomfortable while Matt was in the ascendancy—began to bulge a bit about the head.

The boys, naturally, all took a deep interest in the progress of affairs.

"I can't understand it," said Matt, sadly. "I thought I had her won in a walkaway, but now it's different. I tell her that I'm going to marry her, but she laughs. She seems to think it's a joke."

All of the boys sympathized deeply and offered all kinds of advice. Some thought it would be best for Matt to take a correspondence course of courtship to see if he had overlooked any important points, while others thought the absent treatment to make the heart grow fonder might be successful.

At any rate it went on that way until toward the end of three months. The pasteboard man seemed to have a little the best of the argument. Matt was getting desperate. He had been at a standstill for two months. Finally, one day, he met the girl and her fellow coming down the street together. Matt, with a look of chancing everything on a single throw, stopped them.

"I've had enough of this dilly-dallying business!" he cried. "Which is it going to be, me or him? I'm asking you to marry me, Nellie; what are you going to do about it?"

"Why, marry you, of course," said the girl, and with her face as red as a peony she left the pasteboard man and came over and stood by Matt.

"Why, why!" cried Matt, hardly believing his ears. "Do you really mean it?"

"Surely," said the girl. "You could have had me seven weeks ago; but do you realize that this is the very first time you have really asked me to marry you?"

It's going some to beat the time of a lifelong sweetheart in three months, but it's going a lot more to beat his time in three weeks and not know what you've done!—Chicago Journal.

Another False Alarm.

In the early hours of the evening she stood on the dark corner.

"Save me!" she cried. "Save me!"

Twenty determined young men dashed to her assistance.

"Where is he?" demanded the first modern knight.

"Did he get your pocket book?" demanded a second.

"Who frightened you?" shouted a third.

And then the rescued smiled on the rescuers.

"Be calm, gentlemen," she implored. "There is no cause for excitement."

The gallant knights were abashed.

"No cause for excitement?"

"None whatever."

"But, great Caesar, miss, didn't you scream 'Save me?'"

"Yes, gentlemen; I want you to save me your cigar bands. You see, our charitable society authorized me to collect 10,000 in a week and—" But the gallant knights had fled.

Where Rights Are Equal.

While a great many women are clamoring for their "rights" some other women are not only holding their own with the other sex, but surpassing them, for, in the matter of literary ability, there is no question of sex. Mrs. Humphrey Ward writes, if anything, a more virile story than any man writer of the present time, and she gets paid for it. An American magazine is said to be paying her $50,000 for 100,000 words, and that is only one of the many tasks she completes each year. Marie Corelli makes nearly as much by the sale of her books each year.

Did You Burn Too Much Coal?

It's cheaper to have a good furnace, to say nothing of the comfort. The best furnace is the

BOYNTON

The Furnace with the Square Fire Pot

It has the only fire pot that furnishes perfect combustion, burns all the coal cleanly, without clinkers or clogging, and at the same time saves coal and labor. Look up a Boynton dealer and ask him to explain.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for steam or hot water. Also ranges.

TIPPED THE YOUNG ARISTOCRAT.

Condescension of Customer Displeased the Lordly Chauffeur.

Since it has become usual for younger sons of the English aristocracy to engage in the automobile business, it is extremely difficult for the ordinary purchaser to distinguish between the professional chauffeur and the aristocratic driver who occasionally exhibits a car to a client. There are at least 30 young Englishmen of noble families studying the fine points of motoring and taking customers for trial runs, with the result that some amusing mistakes are made.

Recently a young cousin of the duke of Beaufort was instructed by his employer to exhibit a car to one of the London newly rich, the wife of a retired tradesman. The young man made himself agreeable, and when the car returned to the big house in Belgravia, the customer alighted and, pressed a half-crown upon the chauffeur, said:

"There, my lad! and take care not to spend it foolishly!"

The young man drove back to his employer, a son of Lord Llangattock, and indignantly recounted his experience.

"Well, you can consider yourself jolly lucky," was the consoling rejoinder. "The last time I saw the lady she gave me only a shilling."—Exchange.

ROBIN A FAMED VENTRILOQUIST.

The Most Accomplished Mimic Among Birds.

The familiar robin is at times a ventriloquist. The bird seated only a few yards off is singing and the sound appears to come from some other bird at a distance. When singing thus the beak is kept closed and only the ruffling of the feathers of the throat shows that the robin is singing at all. Such a power might be useful, especially to a bird like the blackcap, which sometimes sings when sitting on the nest.

As regards mimicry the starling is our most accomplished mimic. He will sing so like the song thrush and blackbird that it is hard to tell the difference, and in autumn he gives a fine imitation of the curlew.

The blackbird, as a rule, is not a mimic, yet Yarrell relates that it has been heard to crow like the cock, and the writer of these notes had the pleasure of hearing it do so on one occasion. Sometimes the imitation is unconscious, as in the case of the jackass penguin, which, according to Darwin, makes a loud noise "very like the braying of an ass."—London Field.

What Made the Puppy Sick?

A puppy that was brought to the Animal Rescue League in Boston, suffering from some unknown ailment, had the contents of its stomach removed and there were found the following articles that had been swallowed just in play: One large tack, a large pin, two sewing-machine bobbins, a lump of coal, half a needle with thread and a bunch of something that looked like the bristles of a brush. Those who have the care of puppies should remember that they need watching as closely as babies to see that they do themselves no harm in this way.

Rapid Transit.

Banks and Billings, deeply interested in the automobile question, were discussing the relative merits of electricity and gasoline, when Harding strolled into the club.

"Say, Harding," said Billings, earnestly, "if you were to buy an automobile, to what kind of power would you give the preference, gasoline or electricity?"

"Both too slow," replied Harding. "I'd have mine go by sound, because sound is odorless and travels 743 miles an hour."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Futurity.

Time, 2 a. m. Voice outside second-story window:

"Help! Hello, Jane! Gitme outa thish."

Voice inside window, wearily: "Tommie, go get the extension ladder and the ironing board and make a bridge to the tree. Your father would go to the club in his airship to-night, and he's been flopping around in a circle for a half hour, and now has lighted in the tree. Tell him not to try to walk on the plank, to crawl, and not to try to bring the airship in the window."

One Point Settled.

"And now, Cryptomeria," said the young man, still holding her hand, but with a note of anxiety in his voice, "where shall we go for our wedding journey?"

"Some quiet little place in the country, not far away, Gerald," she answered, "will suit me a great deal better than a long and expensive trip."

"We are going to be very happy, dear!" said Gerald, with a sigh of relief.—Chicago Tribune.

How Did She Know?

The young man carefully removed the cigars from his vest pocket and placed them on the piano.

Then he opened his arms. But the young girl did not flutter to them.

"You," she said, coldly, "have loved before."—Pittsburg Post.

Loyal.

"Queen Elizabeth was the greatest woman the world has ever seen," remarked the historian.

"That shows," remarked Mr. Meekton a little haughtily, "that you never met my wife."—Washington Star.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

And Crane need commit no crime, unless inaction were a crime—just leave things as they were. In the eyes of the world Mortimer was a thief; he would never claim Allis so branded.

Crane with a word could clear the accused man; he could go to David Cass and force him to confess. But why should he do it—sacrifice all he held dear in life? Everything that he had valued before became obliterated by the blindness of his love for the girl. Yet still the love seemed to soften him. Into his life had come new, strange emotions. As he swayed in contention, the face of Wrong fronting him became the face of Sin—repellent, abhorrent; how could he ruin her life, and by a criminal act?

Hour by hour the struggle went on, until, exhausted, Crane flung himself upon his bed to rest a few minutes, and sleep, unsought, came, and hushed the turmoil of his heart.

As the first glint of the sunlight came through the uncurtained window, he sprang from his couch with the call of an uncompleted something in his ears.

But calm had come to him in his sleep; the question of right or wrong had been settled. As he slumbered Allis Porter had come with the big gray eyes full of tears and asked him once again to spare Mortimer humiliation for her sake. And he had answered, "He is innocent." God! he remembered it, even now it thrilled through his frame—she had bent over and kissed him on the forehead. Yes, that was what had wakened him. What foolish things dreams were. He had won just a kiss and had paid the price of his love; and now waking, and in the calm of a conflict passed, he had won over the demon that had tempted him. He had lost; but he would prove himself a good loser.

XLII.

That day Crane went to Brookfield.

At Brookfield he went to the hotel, secured an isolated sitting room upstairs, and with this as a hall of justice, followed out with his usual carefulness a plan he had conceived. First he wrote a brief note to Allis Porter asking her to come and see him at once. One line he wrote made certain the girl's coming, "I have important news to communicate concerning Mr. Mortimer." Then he sent the note off with a man. Next he dispatched a messenger for David Cass. It was three o'clock. "I think five will do," he muttered; "it should be all over by that time." Another note addressed to Mortimer, asking him to call at the hotel at five o'clock, went forth.

David Cass came, treading on the heels of a much-whiskied hostler who had summoned him.

"You sent for me, sir?" he asked of Crane. It may have been the stairs that put a waver in his voice.

"Take a seat, Mr. Cass," Crane answered, arranging a chair so that a strong light from the one window fell across the visitor's face.

The hostler had left the sitting-room door open; Crane closed it carefully, and, sitting with his back to the window, said to the bank clerk: "Mr. Cass, I am going to be very candid with you; I am going to tell you that I have discovered you stole the thousand dollars Mortimer has been accused of taking."

Cass's face blanched a bluish white; his jaw dropped loosely. His weak, watery, blue eyes opened wide in terror; he gasped for breath; he essayed to speak—to give even a cry of pain, but the muscles of his tongue were paralyzed. His right hand resting on the arm of his chair, as Crane ceased speaking, fell hopelessly by his side.

Crane waited for his victim to speak.

At last Cass found strength to say: "Mr. Crane, this is a terrible accusation; there is some dreadful mistake—I did not—"

The other interrupted. The man's defense must be so abjectly hopeless, such a cowardly weak string of lies, that out of pity, Crane continued speaking rapidly, holding the guilty man tight in the grasp of fierce denunciation.

"You stole that note. You sent it, with a quick-delivery stamp to your brother, Billy Cass, in New York, and he bet it for you on my horse, The Dutchman, on the thirteenth, and lost it. Mortimer, thinking that Alan Porter had taken the money, replaced it, and you nearly committed a greater crime than stealing when you allowed him to be dishonored, allowed him to be accused and all but convicted of your foolish sin. It is useless to deny it, all this can be proved in court. I have weighed the matter carefully, and if you confess you will not be prosecuted; if you do not, you will be sent to the penitentiary."

Cass rose from his chair, steadying himself with his hands on the table, and spoke in a voice scarce stronger than the treble of a child's: "My God! Mr. Crane! Do you mean it, that you won't prosecute me?"

"Not if you confess."

"Thank God—thank you, sir. I'm glad, I'm glad; I've been in hell for days. I haven't slept. Mortimer's eyes have stared at me through the night, for I liked him—everybody liked him—he was good to me. Oh, God! I should have gone out of my mind with more of it. The devil put it into my hands. But it wasn't that—it wasn't the money—it was to think that an innocent man was to suffer—to have his life wrecked because of my folly."

How it was coming home to Crane. Had he not dabbled his hands in the same sin, almost committed it?

"You have never known what it is to suffer in that way. But let me tell you all. I must. Then perhaps you will understand how I was tempted. For years I have been ground in poverty. My mother and my sister, even my brother, have all looked to me. My brother should have supported them, but all his money went on the race course, gambling. When I heard Alan Porter tell Mortimer that your horse was sure to win, for the first time in my life I felt a desire to get money that way. But I had no moeny to bet. That day as I went into the vault I saw under a lower shelf—the devil drew my eyes that way—a bank note. I hardly knew it was a bank note, for I saw but a piece of paper indistinctly in the dim light. I picked it up. Oh, God! if I hadn't touched it! I looked at it. My heart jumped in my throat and choked me; my head swam. In my ears were strange voices, saying: 'Take it! Put it in your pocket!' Perhaps it was because it was so large—a thousand dollars—perhaps it was because it seemed lost, out of place, I don't know. I had handled thousands and thousands before, and never felt that way.

"The devil voices that were in my ears said: 'This is your chance. Take it, borrow it, no one will know. Bet it on the horse that will surely win, and you will get many thousands; then you can replace it, and for once in your life you will know what it is to have something of your own.'

"I tried to put it back. I couldn't. The voices called me a fool, a coward, I thought of my mother, my sister, what I could do if I had the courage. I tried to take it in to Mr. Lane and say that I had found it. I couldn't. Oh, my God! you don't know what it is to be tempted! You have been successful, and don't know how miserably weak ill-fortune makes a man. I yielded—I took it; then when its loss was discovered, and Mortimer was accused, I tried to confess—I couldn't; I was a coward, a traitor, a Judas. Oh, God!"

The overwrought man threw himself, face down on the table and wept with great sobs that shook his frame.

An exultation of righteous victory swept through Crane's soul. He might have been like that; he had been saved from it by his love for a good woman.

Crane waited until Cass's misery had exhausted itself a little, and when he spoke his voice was soft in pity.

"I understand. Sit in your chair there and be a man. Half an hour ago I thought you a thief—I don't now. You had your time of weakness, perhaps all men have that; you fell by the wayside. I don't think you'll do it again."

"No, no, no! I wouldn't go through the hell I've lived in again for all the money in the world."

"Well, it is better that the truth has come out, because everything can be put right. I was going to drive you from the bank—I was going to let it be known that you had stolen the money, but now, I must think. You must have another chance. It's a dangerous thing to wreck lives—"

"My God! it is; that's what haunted me night and day. I felt as though I had murdered a man who had been my friend."

Cass had interrupted Crane. When he ceased again out of exhaustion, Crane proceeded, "Mortimer must be paid back the money."

"I'll save and work my fingers off till I do it."

"You can't. Those dependent upon you would starve. I'll attend to that myself."

"And you will let me go without—"

"No, you can't go."

"My God! I'm to be prosecuted?"

"No, you can stay in the bank. I don't think you'll ever listen to the voices again; it's bad business."

Cass sat and stared at the strange man who said these things out of silly, expressionless eyes.

"Yes, you can go right on as you have been. It will be understood that the money was found, had been mislaid; I'll think that out. Go back to your desk and stay there. I've got to tell Mortimer and Miss Porter that you made this mistake, and Lane, too, I suppose, but nobody else will ever know of it. You may go now."

Cass rose, his thin legs seeming hopelessly inadequate to the task of carrying his body, and said, "Will you take my hand, sir?"

"Of course I will. Just do right from this on, and forget—no, better not forget; remember that there is no crime like weakness; all crime comes from weakness. But I needn't tell you. I know from this out I can trust you further than a man who has never been tried."

At the door Cass turned and looked back at the man who had reached down in the abyss, and pulled him up. The man was sitting quite still, his back to the light, his head drooped, and Cass could not see his face.

For an hour Crane waited; then Allis arrived.

Crane had gone down stairs to meet her.

"Good afternoon, Miss Porter," he said. "It was good of you to come. I've got something very important to tell you, and it's better that we have quiet—it doesn't seem quite the usual order of things here. Should you mind coming upstairs to the sitting-room, where we shall be undisturbed?"

"I don't mind," answered the girl, simply.

Crane paced restlessly up and down the room; it cooled the fever of his mind.

"I hope it isn't more bad news, Mr. Crane," Allis said; for her companion seemed indisposed to break the silence.

"It is—" the girl started—"for me," Crane added, after a little pause; "and yet I am glad."

"That sounds strange," Allis commented, wonderingly.

"What I am going to say to you means the destruction of the dearest hope I have in life, but it can't be helped. Now I wouldn't have it any other way."

Suddenly he stopped in his swift pace, faced the girl, and asked, "You are quite sure you can't love me?"

"No, I can't—I hate to cause you misery, but I must speak the truth; you have asked for it."

"And you've answered honestly. I know it was foolish in me to ask the impossible. Do you still believe in Mortimer's innocence—do you love Mortimer?"

"Yes."

"If I were to tell you that he is innocent, that I have discovered the guilty one."

"Oh, my God!" It was a cry of sudden joy, full in its exultation of soul. Then, in quick transformation, the girl collapsed, as Cass had done, and huddled in her chair, stricken by the sudden conviction that the crime had been brought home to her brother.

Crane understood. He had forgotten. He stepped quickly to the girl's side, put his hand tenderly on her head; her big gray eyes stared up at him full of a shrinking horror.

"Poor little woman!" he said, "your big, tender heart will be the death of you yet. But I've got only good news for you this time. Neither Mortimer nor Alan took the money—it was Cass."

"They are both innocent?"

"Yes, both."

"Oh, my God, I thank Thee." She pulled herself up from the chair, holding to Crane's arm, and looking in his face, said, "You did this; you found the guilty man for me?"

Crane nodded his head; and it came to the girl as she looked, that the eyes she had thought narrow in evil grew soft with gentleness for her.

"How can I thank you—what can I do or say to repay you?" She knew what it must have cost the man to clear his rival's name.

"It was your doing, Miss Allis; it is I who must thank you. You made a man of me, brought more good into my life than had been there for 40 years. I will be honest. In my love for you I was tempted to conceal the discovery I had made; I knew that if I cleared Mortimer you were lost to me. I struggled with temptation and fell asleep still not conquering it. In my sleep I dreamed—I don't think it was a dream—it was like a vision—you came to me, and when I said that Mortimer was innocent, you kissed me on the forehead. I woke then, and the struggle had ceased—the temptation had passed."

"Would you like it—would you think it wrong—it seems so little for me to do—may I kiss you now, as I did in your dream, and thank you from the bottom of my heart for making me so happy?"

For answer Crane inclined his head, and Allis, putting her hand upon his shoulder, kissed him on the forehead.

"That's Mortimer coming," Crane said, suddenly, as a step sounded coming up the stairs. "I sent for him," he added, seeing the look of happy confusion in Allis' face.

"Come in," he called cheerily, in answer to a knock on the door.

"You sent for me—" Then Mortimer stopped suddenly, and stood staring first at Allis, then at Crane.

Crane turned his back upon the younger man and busied himself wondrously over the manipulation of a chair. A strange dread crept into Mortimer's heart; it smothered him; he felt dizzy. Why did Allis look so happy? Why were there smiles on her lips when she must know there were ashes of gloom in his soul? Why was she alone with Crane?

"Good afternoon, Miss—" the words stuck in Mortimer's throat.

The girl laughed outright; how droll it was to see a man trying to make himself unhappy when there was nothing but happiness in the world.

Her laugh twirled Crane about like a top. He saw the odd situation. Crane had a big cloud of his own not quite driven from his sky, but a smile still hovered on his thin lips. This happiness was worth catching.

Mortimer noticed the distasteful mirth reflected in the other man's face, and he repeated with asperity, "You sent for me, sir—may I ask—"

"Will you take a chair?" said Crane, and he pushed the one he had been toying with toward Mortimer. The latter remained standing.

Allis sprang forward and caught him by the arm—Crane turned away, suddenly discovering that from the window the main street of Brookfield was a most absorbing study.

"I'm so happy," began Allis. Mortimer shivered with apprehension. Why had Crane turned his face away—what was coming? How could she be happy, how could anyone in the world be happy? But evidently she was. She stole a quick look at Crane—to be exact, Crane's back, for his head and shoulders were through the window.

Then the girl—she had raised on her tiptoes—kissed the sad man on the cheek. I'm ashamed to say that he stared. Were they all mad—was he not standing with one foot in the penitentiary?

GOLF SCORES MADE ON P. C. C.'S COURSE

The events at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday attracted a large number of members to the course, several who have been absent for several weeks being present and taking part in the competitions. The present condition of the course, while in need of a little rain, was excellent, and many low scores were returned for the day.

In the weekly competition for the Fall Handicap cup, Class A, Arthur Murphy won first honors, W. Lester Glenney second, while Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and Frank O. Reinhart divided the one remaining point. In Class B, Charles W. King finished first, while A. E. Barclay and W. F. Merrill were second and third respectively. The leading scores for the two cups follow:

Class A—Arthur Murphy, 82, 8-74; W. Lester Glenney, 84, 0-84; Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, 95, 14-81; Frank O. Reinhart, 87, 6-81; E. T. Wilson, 102, 14-88.

Class B—Charles W. King, 99, 26-73; A. E. Barclay, 102, 22-80; W. F. Merrill, 105, 23-82; Henry L. Hall, 108, 25-83; George S. Clay, 110, 24-86; Hugh F. Fox, 112, 25 87.

There was continuation of play for the Winners' cup, presented by W. Lester Glenney, the result being as follows:

George S. Clay, 24, beat W. B. Tyler, 22, 3 up and 1 to play; Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, 14, beat W. T. Glenney 6, 2 up and 1 to play; Laurens H. VanBuren, 25, beat Dudley H. Barrows, 4, by default; Arthur Murphy, 9, beat Charles W. King, 26, 1 up in 19 holes.

The pairings for next Saturday are as follows: George S. Clay vs. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and Laurens H. VanBuren vs. Arthur Murphy. The finals will be played on Election Day. Next Saturday there will be the qualifying round medal play, for the Autumn cup, offered by George S. Clay, and on Election day morning and afternoon there will be the concluding rounds, match play.

The only event at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, was the weekly competition for the President's and Golf Club cups, but this brought out a good field and several good scores were made. The links are in the best of condition just now and the members find it a pleasure to take part in the competitions. These scores were posted Saturday:

D. H. Rowland, 99, 15-84; W. V. Gano, 85, 0-85; W. R. Faber, 96, 11-85; W. V. Byard 98, 9-89; Charles B. Morse, 105, 13-92; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 93, 0-93; W. E. Lough, 103, 10-93; Charles W. McCutchen 113, 15-98.

During the afternoon a number of the members enjoyed a tea provided at the clubhouse by the committee. During the pleasant weather these social functions have been held out-of-doors, but now those attending find the clubhouse more pleasant.

P. H. S. NO MATCH FOR PINGRY SCHOOL

In one of the best games of the season at Elizabeth, the Pingry School eleven defeated the team from the Plainfield High School, Saturday afternoon by a final score of 10 to 0. The Plainfield boys put up a fine game, but could not cope with the cleverness of Pingry. Davis scored a touchdown in the first half. Plainfield, in the same half, had the pigskin within ten inches of Pingry's goal line, when the locals held the visitors for downs. Pingry had a decided advantage in the second period and Simons was pushed over the goal line in the first seven minutes of play. Davis missed the goal. The lineup:

Score at end of first half—Pingry, 5; Plainfield, 0. Final score—Pingry, 10; Plainfield, 0. Touchdowns—Simons, Davis. Time of halves—15 and 10 minutes. Referee—Alfred Halsey, Pingry. Umpire—Roy Phillips, Plainfield.

BACHELORS DEFEATED BY THE BENEDICTS' NINE

The married men defeated the single men in a lively game of baseball on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 3. The players were for the most part selected from the members of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club, with a few outsiders to fill in with. During the practice, Jack Martin was struck in the eye with a line ball and put out of business. He was hustled off to a doctor's office and fixed up, after which he went home. Although the injury was a serious one, it is not likely that Martin will lose the sight.

Another accident in practice occured to James Steele, the club's umpire. A ball struck him on the middle finger, splitting the nail, causing him to seek medical aid.

The contest was not marked by any brilliant plays, although it was close throughout. Conshay and Dixon formed the battery for the single men, while Squier and Ramsberger officiated for the married men. The lineup of the teams follows:

Married Men—Barnes, 1b; Montross, 3b; B. Martin, 2b; J. Scott, cf; S. Scott, ss; VanArsdale, lf; Bolmer, rf; Ramsberger c; Squier p.

Single men—Schott 1b; Giles, 2b, O'Loughlin, ss; Sullivan, lf; Emery, 3b; Randolph, cf; Dixon, c; Weigman rf; Conshay, p.

HOLY CROSS DEFEATS BOUND BROOK HIGH

The Holy Cross Club eleven journeyed to Bound Brook Saturday, and took the high school team of that borough into camp by a score of 15 to 0. This is the third game played by Holy Cross and adds another to straight and successive victories in all three of which Holy Cross has not been scored against.

The game was a cleanly played one, free from wrangling and objectionable delays. During the first half Bound Brook by clever trick plays worked the ball dangerously near the Holy Cross goal line. Then by equally effective work Holy Cross forced the ball into Bound Brook territory. After considerable seesawing back and forth accompanied by much punting, Holy Cross worked a long and accurate forward pass from halfback, Nash to Coyle at end, who carried the ball over for a touchdown.

In the second half by almost perfect interference Coyle went around the end for a seventy yard run which carried him over the line for a touchdown. Near the end of the half Miller broke through to block a kick, he received the ball squarely in the chest, gripped it in a flash and before the play could be realized carried it over for a touchdown. The final score was 15 to 0 in favor of Holy Cross.

Nash was sent repeatedly through the line for gains as was Mosher and Miller. Sinclair, Neff and Stine were always effective when needed, in fact the whole lineup was strong in holding together both in offensive and defensive playing. Coach Emmons has expressed himself as much pleased with the wearers of the maroon and white and says that he expects them to make a good showing against Rutgers Prep at the Cricket Field Saturday afternoon.

All of today and part of tomorrow forenoon will be occupied by the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Missionary convention, and during tomorrow afternoon and evening the seventieth annual meeting of the New Jersey Baptist Education society and the eleventh annual meeting of the Social union will be held.

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS HOLD INTERESTING SESSION.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield, and North Plainfield met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Riley on Myrtle avenue, and the meeting was devoted entirely to the presentation of a paper by Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, which gave a concise and comprehensive history of equal suffrage in America, beginning with the first convention held in this country. Despite the disagreeable weather there was a good attendance of members and following the reading of the paper, there was an informal discussion of the topic.

Mrs. Riley stated in her paper that this year marks the sixtieth anniversary of the first woman's rights' meeting held on July 19, 1848 at Seneca Falls, N. Y. James Mott presided and following the resolutions adopted favoring woman's rights, there was a general discussion in which Mrs. Lucretia Mott and others took a prominent part. Similar meetings were held at other places until the Civil War absorbed the attention of the country. After this struggle interest was again renewed and has continued unabated ever since.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, believe that with a fixed program of study for the winter, there will be increasing interest and attendance at the forthcoming meetings.

Will Vote on Holiday Opening.

The question of the merchants who are members of the Plainfield Merchants' Association, keeping their shops open on Election Day, will be considered at a special meeting of the association tonight. There is a strong feeling against the proposition to open on that legal holiday but in order to take official action it was thought best to bring the matter before the association. It is the general opinion that the members will decide to close on Election Day, as usual.

BADLY HURT IN A CRASH

Trolley Car Smashes Into Cab, Whose Driver is Seriously Injured.

COLORED MAN THE VICTIM.

Conflicting Stories Told Regarding Accident—Motorman Eick on Trolley Car.

Trolley car No. 132, westbound on Fourth street at 8:15 last night, crashed into the rear of a cab belonging to John Lynch, of Elizabeth street, practically demolishing the vehicle and badly injuring the driver, William Banks, colored. The horse was thrown down and shoved ahead for twenty feet while one end of the rig was swung around and into another cab belonging to Dennis O'Brien, left standing at the curb in front of his home. One wheel was ripped off the latter vehicle.

When the collision occurred, Banks was hurled from his seat over the dashboard and fell beneath the horse's heels. He was carried along with the wreckage and was extricated with considerable difficulty. He was hurried to the office of Dr. Lufburrow where it was found that he had been injured internally but he refused to go to the hospital. He was taken to the home of his mother on Elizabeth street, where it was said this morning that his condition is quite serious. He is in charge of Dr. Pittis.

According to the testimony of Banks, he was proceeding down West Fourth street toward Liberty when he noticed the O'Brien cab standing at the curb ahead of him. He was unaware that a car was anywhere near him, as no warning bell had been sounded and he swung his horse to the left to pass the obstructing vehicle. He was fully upon the tracks when the trolley crashed into the rear of the rig.

Several men were in the vicinity at the time and they prevented further trouble after the collision by catching the horses of the two cabs. Both animals were in a frenzy and made desperate attempts to get away. Banks was mixed up with the wreckage in such a position that he was in imminent danger of being kicked to death, but fortunately escaped the hoofs.

The trolley car was in charge of Motorman Eick and Conductor Golden. The former's statement is to the effect that the cab was proceeding ahead in leisurely fashion and turned directly in front of him as he attempted to pass.

MEAT MARKET MANAGER DROPS DEAD IN STORE

Ellis Eddy, of New street, employed by Thomas Callahan & Son, in that firm's meat market on Richmond street, was found dead in a retiring room at that place at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Heart trouble is believed to have been the cause of death. During the morning he had complained of not feeling well. He was preparing to go home to dinner when he stopped in a room for a few minutes. Considerable time elapsed and this aroused the suspicion of the firm. An investigation showed that Mr. Eddy had dropped dead in the place. Repeated efforts to arouse him proved unavailing. Dr. E. W. Hedges was then summoned and he pronounced the man dead.

Mr. Eddy was at one time a well-known butcher in the West End. Recently he had been in charge of the market at Thomas Callahan & Son. He always enjoyed good health until today. He is survived by a wife and one son, Benjamin Eddy. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of George W. Cole on West Second street, where it will be viewed later by County Physician F. W. Westcott.

Judge Acts as Peacemaker.

Samuel and Israel Berlowitz, two West End boys, were arraigned before Judge Runyon, this morning, on a charge preferred by Morris Brussell, another boy, that they had assaulted him in front of the New street synagogue last Saturday morning. The fathers on both sides were in attendance and the case narrowed down to bad feeling between the two families. His Honor disposed of the matter by making the boys and their parents shake hands with each other and promise to be good.

RALLY OF FIRST VOTERS

Young Republicans in Borough Hear Local Spellbinders' Arguments.

IN FRELINGHUYSEN'S BEHALF.

Former Mayors Smalley and Hegeman, Former Senator Reed and W. F. Williams Speak.

The meeting of the North Plainfield Republican First Voters' Club at Saengerbund Hall last night was attended by a large crowd, and the speakers were greeted with enthusiastic applause. Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., former State Senator Charles A. Reed, William F. Williams, former Mayor [illegible] B. Smalley and William L. Smalley were the speakers.

At the conclusion of the speaking and informal reception was held by the members of the club. Refreshments and cigars were served by President Harold Hegeman Edward Brown, Arthur Humble and Grover Schuck. William Kenyon played the piano while a chorus sang

Former Mayor Hegeman as chairman, opened the meeting with a few remarks urging all voters to come out on November 3; to bring their friends with them and to assume the responsibility of seeing that a full Republican vote is cast. "As a business man," said he, "I know the result on that day means one thing or the other, prosperity or the reverse, and if the verdict is for Taft, the entire county will heave a great sigh of relief with a feeling that business future is assured. Therefore it is vital that every one of us do what we can for success."

Former Mayor Smalley spoke briefly saying: "For twenty-five years I have been interested in borough politics and I have never known less reason for the Republicans of this district not pulling together. I see no reason for fear as to the result of the election but there is always excitement at the closing days of a campaign. I cannot conceive any reason why Frelinghuysen should not be returned to the Senate. Like all others he has made mistakes but they are mighty few compared with his good deeds."

Former Senator Reed, on being presented to the audience said:

"I suppose all of you young men are Reupblicans. It is very easy for one to say he is a Republican or a Democrat and feel right about it, but when asked why, he cannot always give a reason.

"There are four things we American citizens are proud of. We are proud of our nationality; of our flag; of our great nation and of individual liberty, which gives every man a chance to represent the people. We have a sound national currency; our people are workers, getting better wages and educating their children better than in any other nation on earth. We are all proud of these things.

"If the Democrats had had their way at previous elections we would not have these advantages to be proud of. The Republican party has held the country together. Isn't that reason enough why the Republican party should be supported? The Republicans accomplished the abolition of slavery. Had it not been for this party we would have had debased currency. None of the good the Republicans have done while in power grew out of policies of the Democratic party.

"In regard to the contest for the senatorship there is some opposition to Frelinghuysen by automobilists who are sore because one bill may not be fair to them. Maybe it isn't quite fair, but when that bill was pending in the Legislature, the legislators, many of whom are themselves autoists, picked it over and they never discovered that it wasn't fair—not until after it was passed. His automobile opponents admit that he is right on everything but that—a perfect man, they say. Now are they going to vote against the party ticket because of that bill. Frelinghuysen's defeat would not change the auto law.

"Local option was being discussed long before your time, young men, therefore, it is not a new topic. Senator Frelinghuysen does not commit himself to local option beforehand. He accepted the nomination on the Republican platform. Why should somebody on that ticket wander off and try to change a platform that all the other candidates have adopted."

The speaker produced statistics to show that of a total of sixty members in the assembly, thirty-two are from the five counties opposed to local option.

Mr. Williams, who was sitting in the audience was asked by the chairman to speak. He responded with

J. FRANK BURKE TALKS TO LOCAL OPTIONISTS

A local option rally was held at Debele Hall, in the borough, last night. A band paraded the streets and attracted an audience, which was addressed by J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the New Jersey Local Option League, and William Cairns, of Newark. A number of women were present.

Mr. Burke took several raps at Senator Frelinghuysen, candidate for re-election. Some of his remarks were:

"We endorse Dungan against Frelinghuysen.

"Frelinghuysen is insincere and is merely catering to the people's votes. He is not for the people except at election time. He came out openly against the primary law the very night that Taft announced himself for it.

"Taft and Bryan believe in local option.

"There are only five States that do not favor local option: Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada, Utah and New Jersey.

"Our organization belong to God Almighty and not to party. We believe in party, but when we find something wrong we go to another party.

"I am always glad to see women in the audience. Their influence in an election cannot be overestimated. They seem to understand the moral questions better. I always appeal to women as much as to men."

Mr. Cairn also gave a brief talk.

SCHOOLS NOW CROWDED; MAY ENLARGE PROPERTY

At the regular meeting of the Borough Board of Education, last night, it was brought out that the two school buildings in the district are taxed almost to their limit for the accommodation of pupils and that additional room will be a necessity in the near future. No definite action was taken to bring about plans for a new structure right away but the advisability of securing the two pieces of property at Park place and Vine street, thus squaring the school grounds, was discussed at some length. The opinion prevails that it would be the best location for an addition to the Somerset street structure.

The following school calendar was adopted for 1908-9: Fall term, beginning September 15 and ending December 23; holidays, Election Day, November 3; Teachers' Institute, November 16 and 17; Thanksgiving, November 26 and 27. Winter term, beginning Monday, January 4, and ending Thursday, April 8; holidays, Lincoln's birthday, February 12, and Washington's birthday, February 22. Spring term, beginning Monday, April 19, ending Friday, June 25; holidays, Decoration Day, May 31. Fall term, beginning Tuesday, September 14.

Charged With Non-Support.

Walter Ulmer, a young man living in the East End, appeared in the city court, this morning, to answer a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, Nora Uumer. When the complaint aws offered, Corporation Counsel Marsh moved that it be dismissed on the ground that it was defective and had a new one sworn out. Ulmer's counsel, Robert Newton Crane, demanded a trial by jury and the case was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. When the time was agreed upon, Mr. Marsh moved for the arrest of the defendant and a warrant was served upon him. He was afterward released by Judge Runyon in $300 bail.

Funeral of Mildred Dennis.

The funeral of Miss Mildred Dennis, whose death occurred at Muhlenberg hospital after an illness with typhoid fever, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her aunt, Miss Della Dennis, 67 Watchung avenue. During the service, Miss Etta Raybert sang two selections, "Some Day We'll Understand" and "The Christian's Good Night." Rev. Mr. Moynahan, of Elizabeth, officiated. Burial was at Hillside.

Has Not Regained Eyesight.

Joseph Soukup, of Dunellen, who recently attempted to commit suicide, and who lost his eyesight as a result, remains about the same. He is still unable to see and it seems to be a question as to whether he will regain his sight for sometime provided he recovers.

Hot Ashes Cause $50 Fire.

Hot ashes in a pit in the basement of John B. Dumont's home in Central avenue, started a slight fire at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. A still alarm was turned into fire headquarters and the flames were quickly extinguished. The damage is placed at $50.

WALKER ANSWERS DEPEW

People's Lobby Legislative Record Prober Makes a Terse Statement.

AS TO SENATOR ACKERMAN.

Committeeman Responds to President Depew's Query for Information as to Candidate.

Herman B. Walker, who enjoys the reputation of being the best informed political writer in the State, has replied to President R. Henry Depew, of the People's Lobby, as to why State Senator Ackerman has been classed by the organization's committee as "a friend of the corporations and of the bosses." Mr. Walker, together with Dr. Roder compiled the report classifying General Assembly candidates for re-election after an investigation of their records. In justice to Mr. Walker, his letter is given equal publicity to that afforded the protest of Mr. Depew.

Mr. Walker's letter follows:

"I have your letter protesting against the classing of Senator Ackerman as 'For the Bosses and the Corporations,' in the recent report made by the People's Lobby of the record of members of this year's Legislature. In replying, and explaining why Senator Ackerman was thus classified, let me briefly, as a member of the committee which made the report, state what led up to its publication.

"You will remember that a meeting of the executive committee in the early summer the plan of classifying legislators as 'For the People' and 'For the Bosses and the Corporations,' was unanimously agreed upon, and a commitee was appointed to do the work. The classification was made as finally published, with one or two differences. Before its completion, this classification was referred to a number of men of standing and intelligence who had been in close touch with the legislative proceedings of last winter. Every man consulted agreed, although reluctantly, that Senator Ackerman, while showing ocasional evidences of independence, had voted against more reform measures than he had voted for, and had generally voted with other Senators whose subserviency to boss and corporation influences was beyond question.

"This report was submitted to the executive committee at a meeting two weeks ago or so, as you will remember. You then agreed that Mr. Ackerman could not be classed as having been 'For the People,' but urged that a third class of legislators be put in the list, attempting to segregate legislators who, while not possessing such records as would permit their being endorsed as wholly independent, had shown evidences of independence, and were not wholly subject to baneful influences.

"The committee to which the matter was then referred made an earnest effort to carry out your ideas, but soon discovered that to attempt to search men's reasons and motives for doing things was not only exceedingly difficult, but likely to lead to the doing of injustice. Therefor the committee agreed to publish the report as originally drafted. If you will re-read this report you will find it clearly stated that the judgment rendered as to the value of members' services was based wholly on the record, and that no atempt had been made to impute motives. While there has been no charge or insinuation that Senator Ackerman is boss-controlled or dishonest, and while some of his public actions have been highly creditable, the record does show that in a majority of instances he has voted against reform measures opposed by the political bosses and their corporation backers. Whether Senator Ackerman or any other member voted in this way because of conviction or for other reasons, the committee did not attempt to find out or to decide. The classification was made for public information, and based on the idea that it doesn't make much difference what a man's reasons are for opposing a reform, so far as public interests are concerned. The main question is whether he is for the public rights or the special interests.

"It is urged in Senator Ackerman's behalf that he has often denounced bossism, which is undoubtedly true. Few men in public life do otherwise, whatever their affiliations or acts.

"It is pointed out that he showed his independence by refusing to vote for Senator Dryden's re-election. True. But he did vote for the election of Senator Briggs, whom Mr. Dryden selcted as his successor after his own election became impossible. He also voted to confirm the re-appointment of Colonel Samuel D. Dickinson as Secretary of State.

"The people of New Jersey have long demanded a popular vote for United States Senator. Mr. Ackerman voted in the Senate, in 1907, against the bill embodying the Oregan plan for such popular election, which had passed the House, and voted for the Hilery bill, which was urged by the political bosses as a makeshift and harmless compromise. In the Republican National convention this summer Senator Ackerman voted against the adoption of a popular vote plank in the Republican platform. As a candidate now for re-election, he has failed to make the statement permitted by the law that he will be guided by the party vote in the 1910 primaries, in selecting a successor to Senator Kean.

"It is urged in Senator Ackerman's behalf that he voted for the Perkins law which resulted in the railroads paying more taxes. True. He also voted for the maximum tax act and the county tax board act, both of which were supported by railroad interests, and the

MORRIS J. DUMONT WEDS

Miss Janet Wildey is the Bride of John B. Dumont's Younger Son.

REV. DR. ZELIE OFFICIATES.

Harvey Fisk Best Man—Miss Natalie Wildey, Sister of the Bride, Maid of Honor.

Miss Janet Wildey, daughter of Charles Frederick Wildey, of Central avenue, and Morris J. Dumont, son of Former Councilman John B. Dumont, of Stelle avenue, were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's father in the presence of about one hundred friends from this city, New York and Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

The bride, who was gowned in white satin, trimmed with lace and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lillies-of-the-valley, was attended by her sister, Miss Natalie Wildey, as maid-of-honor. Her gown was of white chiffon cloth, Empire, with chrystal trimmings. The best man was Harvey Fisk, a close friend of the groom, and C. F. Wildey, Jr., was an usher.

The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion, there being a profusion of greens, potted plants and cut flowers, arranged in an attractive manner in the parlors, reception hall and dining-room. The wedding march and the music for the reception which followed the ceremony, was furnished by an orchestra. After congratulations and an elaborate supper, Mr. and Mrs. Dumont left the city for a two weeks wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside on Madison avenue.

The bride was the recipient of a large collection of valuable gifts from relatives and friends. She is a member of the Plainfield Country Club, and has distinguished herself by her clever playing in many of the prominent tennis tournaments in the East. She and her sisters, the Miss Edna and Natalie Wildey have been formidable opponents of the best players in the country. During her residence in Plainfield she has been a favorite in the younger society circles and prominent at many social functions.

Mr. Dumont is also a member of the Plainfield Country Club, where he has been active as a golf player for several years; also of the Watchung Hunt Club. He, too, has been a leader in the younger society set and is popular.

JURY OUT FOR 19 HOURS; MINISTER HELD IN BAIL

After being out for nearly nineteen hours, the jury in the case of John Long and Jack and Wilhelm Capitelli against Rev. George A. Francis, which was tried in the Court of Common Pleas, Elizabeth, returned to the court at 10:45 o'clock this morning and reported a disagreement. The jury was promptly discharged and the $2,000 bail under which the defendant is held was continued pending a new trial.

Mr. Francis, who was formerly pastor of the Baptist church, Westfield, but who has since been engaged in the real estate business, being president of the Central Realty Company, is charged by the complainants with obtaining money under false pretences. They allege that Mr. Francis persuaded them to sign papers giving him the power of attorney and that he sold property belonging to them under these conditions. W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, represents Mr. Francis.

JUDGE SCORES COUNCIL

City Court Magistrate Declares City Fathers "Whitewashed" Supt. Wolverton.

IN INDUSTRIAL HOME CASE.

Defendant Arraigned Today After Several Postponements and Has Sentenced Suspended.

The long-pending Industrial Home assault case, in which Superintendent Arthur Wolverton was found guilty of knocking down and abusing Samuel Vermeule, an aged inmate, was finally disposed of in the city court this morning. The defendant was called before Judge Runyon and, after receiving a rebuke for his treatment of the people placed in his care and a warning to adopt different methods in the future, had sentence suspended. The magistrate's statement in reference to the matter, however, was of more import than would at first be supposed as he took occasion to severely criticise the Common Council for the manner in which it acted when he submitted the case for the consideration of the members. In addressing Wolverton, he said:

"You were tried before this court on a charge of assault and I found you guilty. For the purpose of having affairs at the Industrial Home investigated, as it was made plain to me that there had been other infractions, I referred the matter to the Common Council, withholding sentence in the meantime. The Common Council seems to have resolved itself into a Court of Appeal and reviewed this one particular case, a matter that was none of its business. After doing so, a report was returned to me, practically nothing but whitewash and attempting to dictate as to what should be done with the defendant. The report was remarkable for the things that it left out rather than what was in it and contained nothing of what I had alluded to when requesting that the Home conditions be scrutinized.

"As I remarked previously, Wolverton, I found you guilty as charged and I still believe you are. I realize that the people you have in charge are somewhat hard to manage and become very exasperating at times but you must remember that there other ways of handling them than by rough treatment. It is possible that in this one particular charge, your temper got the better of you and you acted hastily and I trust it will be a warning in the future. Sentence is suspended."

Wolveston was represented by Counsellor William G. DeMeza but the latter made no plea before the court made its disposition

Samuel Vermeule, the aged man who preferrer the charge against Wolverton, and who has been out of the Home since he made his complaint, was recommitted to the institution yesterday. He has been living at the home of relatives but they preferred to have him returned instead of keeping him.

GRACE CONGREGATION INCREASES VESTRYMEN.

At a congregational meeting of Grace church held in the parish house, last night, the report recommending a change in the method of electing vestrymen and wardens and increasing the number of vestrymen from seven to nine members, was ratified. Rev. E. Vicar Stevenson, rector, acted as the chairman of the meeting and the tellers were W. H. P. Veysey and Laurens H. VanBuren.

The change in procedure not only provides for nine vestrymen, instead of seven, but it further provides that at the next annual election in December three members shall be elected for one year, three for two years and three for three years and one warden each year. After that election there will be chosen each year three vestrymen and one warden, instead of selecting the whole number each year as at present.

Great Show Coming.

After a long run at Wallack's, on Broadway, "A Knight for a Day," with its original cast, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. Manager Counihan says it is one of his best bookings for the season and as a musical comedy dramatic critics have universally placed it in the front rank. Last week, the show eclipsed all records for box office receipts at the Newark theatre.

Thaddeus W. Markley.

He was engaged in business in New York and had lived in Plainfield for the past three years. He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Miss Naomi E. Markley. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

HUNT CLUB MEMBERS HOLD WEEKLY CHASE

More than a dozen members of the Watchung Hunt Club enjoyed the weekly chase after the hounds, Saturday afternoon, the start being made from the Baltusrol Golf Club at 3:30 o'clock and the run being concluded at Lyde Park, Scotch Plains. The going was pretty stiff and there were several spills, especially at "blind ditches." Among those who had falls were H. A. Bourne, Miss Gertrude Noe, William Casey, of Long Branch and Rufus L. Finch, but there were no serious injuries. Miss Noe and Louis Batjer did not finish, the latter because his mount refused to take the jumps.

Following the chase the hunters returned to the clubhouse, where a fine hunt dinner was enjoyed. There were about eighty guests. After the dinner there was a vocal and instrumental program of music. The hunt was considered one of the most successful of the season. The members will meet at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for another chase, and on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 the meet will be at the Colonia Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Among those who rode on Saturday were Lewis E. Waring, master of the hounds; Harvey Fisk, Charles W. Fisk, Rufus L. Finch, Harry Finch, William Casey, H. A. Bourne, Louis Batjer Miss Gertrude Noe, Chris. Comins and C. E. S. Bellows.

The Past Chiefs' Association of Iona Council, No. 14, Degree of Pocohontas, held a successful entertainment at the last meeting on Thursday night, in the rooms in the Coward building. Mrs. Peterson, of Steiner place, received the $5 gold piece. There were recitations, piano solos, violin and banjo duets and dancing, after which refreshments were served by the committee, comprising Mrs. Margaret Pitts, chairman; Mrs. William Halford, Miss Sebring and Mrs. Charles Dodwell. Mrs. Pitts left today for Atlantic City, where she will represent Iona Council at the Great Council session which continues for a week.

Hunt Club Races Planned.

The Watchung Hunt Club has decided to hold several races on its own grounds, Election day afternoon. There will be two steeplechase, two flat and pony races. The entries will be not only from the hunt club but from other clubs throughout the Metropolitan district and a fine program is anticipated.

DR. A. C. PRENTICE TALKS ON PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Dr. Alfred C. Prentice, a surgeon on the medical staff at Columbia University, gave a delightfully interesting talk before the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Sunday night, on "Preventitve Medicine," and means of preventing illness, followed by an informal discussion, a social hour and the serving of refreshments.

In presenting well established rules for the prevention of sickness, Dr. Prentice did not fail to mention good habits, temperate hours for work, recreation and sleep, and practically covered the whole gamut in suggesting ways and means to maintain a healthy condition of the body and mind. During the talk there were many valuable suggestions which if followed will undoubtedly reduce to a minimum the risk of one being ill.

The doctor freely answered questions during the informal discussion which followed, thereby making the meeting one of the most helpful held this season. The social hour and serving of refreshments were greatly enjoyed.

ONLY TWO RACES IN FINAL MATINEE PROGRAM

On account of the disagreeable weather and attendant conditions, only two of the four races scheduled for the driving park, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club, were held. The attendance was not large and while the two races were close they were hardly of sufficient interest to arouse much enthusiasm. During the afternoon, Adam C. Blair's "Aron B." trotted an exhibition mile, covering the distance in 2:17 flat. It was one of the best exhibitions ever witnessed on this track.

This was the last matinee meet of the season at the park. The club has had good success with the meets this year, a majority of them being largely attended by people from all parts of the northern end of the State. The summaries of Saturday's races follow:

Class A.

Joe McGregor, G. Forgerson	2	1	1
New Haven, F. W. Suydam	1	2	2
Bay Prince, Wm. Buckalew	3	3	3

Time—2:28, 2:32, 2:31¼.

Class B.

Prince A., S. Hoffman	1	1	1
Asia, Phil. Jenner	3	2	2
Lady Sidnut, C. S. Smith	2	3	3

Time—2:40½, 2:40, 2:39.

TIMELY ITEMS CONCERNING LOCAL Y. W. C. A.'S DOINGS.

The third lesson will be given next week, which will mark the beginning of real work and some basketball practice. The class for beginners meets Friday evenings; that for young girls under twelve years of age on Monday afternoons at 3:30. Register at once for these classes.

The first of the series of lectures on "The Care of the Body" will be given at 8 o'clock Thursday evening by Dr. Corbusier on "How to Care for the Skin." Every member of the association should have this lecture in mind and be sure not to miss it. At 8:30 Thursday evening is the Hallowe'en party.

The first meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Glee Club will be on Monday of next week. It will be under the direction of William Holmes, as it was last year. Please register for glee club this week.

On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, a "touring party" will be conducted by the Lincoln Sunday-school, to which the public is invited. All are requested to be on time as the return trip is to be made the same evening.

IT'S A CALL OF GOD SAYS REV. MR. BROOK

Rev. John Y. Brook, who has accepted a call to Trinity Reformed church, announced his resignation of the Grand Avenue Reformed church Asbury Park, Sunday morning in deavors have endeared him to his has yet been considered.

"As many of you know, I have during the past week receiven a unanimous call from Trinity Reformed church, Plainfield, N. J. After most thoughtful and prayerful consideration, I have come to a decision in the matter. I can truthfully and conscientiously say that this call was entirely unsought on my part. I am greatly impressed with the way in which I was selected to be called to this pastorate, and the delightful spirit of unanimity manifested on the part of the calling congregation. A deep feeling of prayer for divine guidance pervaded the entire action of the calling church. Truly God's handiwork must be in such an action. I believe in my heart that thi call is a distinct call of God to a larger opportunity of service. Feeling that it is a call of God, I cannot be disloyal to it, recognizing that He who calls to larger service, also equips and strengthens for that service. I have therefore accepted the call to Trinity Reformed church of Plainfield, N. J.

"In accepting this call, I am also filled with deep feelings of regret in leaving this church at Asbury Park I recognize that I owe a debt of obligation and gratitude to you. Two years and a half ago, when I was called to this pastorate, I was an unknown quantity in the ministry, but you placed your confidence in me. It was in this church that I was ordained to the gospel ministry. I have labored as far as possible solely for the welfare of this church. Wherever I go, I shall never forget the first two years of my ministry so rich in spiritual blessing. I shall ever remember the pleasant associations and the strong ties of friendship I have here formed. While I leave you now, I shall ever remember you in my prayers for your continued prosperity and blessing, and I assure you that if in time you are pastorless I can be of any service to you, I shall be ready at your command.

"I believe it would not be honorable to leave you immediately. My resignation, therefore, will take effect on Tuesday, November 24, 1908.

"I entrust the interests of this dear church to the covenant-keeping God."

Rev. Mr. Brook has been pastor of the Grand Avenue Reformed church for two years and a half, and his pleasant ways and studious endeavors have enedared him to his congregation, who deeply regret his announced departure. No successor has yet been considered. Mr. Brook is a graduate of Alma College, Alma, Mich., and of the Rutgers Theological seminary. He was born in Coopersville, Mich., and is a son of Rev. Dr. Brook. His brother is pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church of Newark. An uncle, Rev. John Brook, is pastor of the Reformed church at Muskegon, Mich.

On Sunday, Nov. 22, at the Asbury Park church, Rev. Mr. Brook will administer communion in the morning and in the evening will preach his farewel sermon.

POLITICAL NOTES.

M. A. Coles, of the Federal Department of Justice, Washington, was to have addressed the men at Potter Press Works today noon, but he failed to appear, and in his place City Chairman W. S. Angleman and J. Henry Crane, of this city, spoke concerning the important issues of the campaign, emphasizing especially those of national interest. About one hundred employes of the works listened to the speeches with evident interest and frequently applauded the speakers. The noon-day meeting tomorrow will be at the Scott Press Works and the speaker will be J. W. Jones, of New York.

Jane A. McKinless.

Mrs. Jane A. McKinless, widow of James C. McKinless, died yesterday noon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph F. O'Keefe, of West Seventh street. She was a native of New York and had been living in Plainfield for the past three years. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church tomorrow morning and burial will be in Calvary cemetery, Long Island.

GOOD ALE A TONIC.

Prescribed by Physicians for Convalescing Patients.

Ale, properly brewed and aged is a maker of blood, brain and brawn. It is peculiarly adapted to stomachs that suffer from nausea or weakness. Many times when the stomach rejects all other food and drink, ale will digest.

Ask your doctor.

Good ale is a perfect food drink, and in cases where the vitality is at low ebb and nervousness apparent, there is nothing better.

It puts rich red blood in your veins, muscle on your bones and makes you feel younger.

Henry Haurand is the Plainfield agent for Bartholomay's Sparkling ale brewed by the Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and he will tell you that it has given the greatest satisfaction in many homes.

Henry Haurand's address is 68 Somerset street, and his telephone number is 229.

Drop him a card or phone him and he will gladly send a dozen bottles or a case direct to your home. Send in your order today, it will be promptly taken care of.

purpose and accomplishment of which were to increase the valuation of private property and thus reduce the average tax rate by which the railroads are taxed.

"It is urged that Senator Ackerman voted for a civil service law, which bore his name. True. And the effect of the bill he was willing to father would have been to create an expensive State commission to regulate a handful of State appointments, leaving all local offices under the spoils system.

"Senator Ackerman did vote for a direct primary law, but only after it had been agreed upon as a party measure, and in such form as to apply only to local officers, leaving Governor, Congressman and delegates to national conventions to be selected in delagate conventions.

"He did vote, finally, for a railroad commission law, in 1907, but an hour before voted for a snap adjournment of the Senate to prevent its passage.

"In the session this year Senator Ackerman voted against the Colby-Martin utilities bill, which followed the lines of the Hughes law in New York and vested in the commission on the power to make and enforce adequate service, to ascertain the value of the property of utilities bill, but for the Robbins measure, which contained none of these provisions, and which had the active support of the entire railroad and corporation lobby.

"In the session of last year, too, you will find that Senator Ackerman voted for the so-called 'insurance reform' bills, the main effect of which was to eliminate any claims policy-holders may have had to a participation in the $19,000,000 surplus of the Prudential Insurance Company.

"This is not a complete record, but it was considered sufficient to justify the classification made by Mr. Ackerman.

"Permit me to say, too, that while many of us who are Republicans may have a very friendly feeling towards Mr. Ackerman, the People's Lobby is a non-partisian organization, and I think you will agree with me that no special consideration should have been shown Senator Ackerman because he happens to be a Republican, or because he had received the endorsement of the 'new idea' organization. It is never a pleasant task to attack individuals, but there is certainly nothing unfair in criticizing a public man's public record, and in Mr. Ackerman's case I do not believe the People's Lobby has done him any injustice."

some reminisences of his early voting days and concluded by congratulating the young men of the club in having become affiliated with the Republicans.

W. L. Smalley, Jr., candidate for councilman, responding to a call from the chairman, said: "My little boy hailed me when I went home this evening, with 'Dad, I see you're going to make a speech tonight.' 'Yes,' I replied, 'I'm going to deliver an oration touching on subjects like the Panama canal, the battleship fleet, war in Turkey and so forth. 'Yes, and they'll give you the hook, too,' he said, and I expect it, too, when you put me up along side of such speakers as we have heard tonight. I know every candidate from Taft to myself will be elected with a big majority."

DEMOCRATS SUPPORT SENATOR ACKERMAN.

Among the many assurances of support State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has recieved from Democrats throughout the county, the following unsolicited letter from George S. Clay, president of the Parker and Davis Club in the last Presidential campaign, is a sample:

"Dear Senator Ackerman:

"There is one vote I shall cast on election day which will give me sincere pleasure and satisfaction and that is my vote for you. When a man of your high character and attainments is willing to serve the people at great personal sacrifice, it seems to be the duty of every citizen who has the best interests of the State and the community at heart to aid his election in every way possible.

"Hoping that you will receive an overwhelming vote and with expressions of personal esteem and regard, I am,

"Yours very truly,

"GEORGE S. CLAY."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Tillie Day, a "servant lady" part, played by Miss May Vokes in "A Knight for a Day," the tremendously successful musical comedy, is reported elsewhere to be possibly the funniest feminine role ever offered in a production of this character. Tillie is awkard, slatternly and simpering. Her first appearance is with a 'barrow, pushing her own chattels, consisting of a parrot in a cage, a bull pup and her gowns. She shows first on the lawn of a girls' college. She is after the job of housemaid. Eventually she gets it. Five minutes of screaming "business" and repartee intervene before her engagement, with the school's woman principal, her interlocutor. The part is probably more talked of than any low comedy role seen in a modern production. "A Knight for a Day" will be at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

With the success of "The Squaw Man," "Arizona," "The Virginian" and the many other melodramatic plays, dealing with certain phases of life in the western country, there will be quite a number of new plays this season with the locality laid west of Missouri. One of the first of these to leave New York for its season is "Billy, the Kid," which is the vehicle that has been selected for the starring tour of the favorite young actor LeRoy Sumner. From what can be learned of the play it is stated that it tells a very interesting story and tells it well. That there are numbers of good strong situations and plenty of comedy and that it fits the requirements of the young star to a nicety. Sumner will present "Billy, the Kid," at the New Plainfield theatre next Friday night.

The prim, prudish old maid who delights in a bit of gossip and who possesses her full share of sentiment, will always hold a place in the hearts of theatre patrons. That great impersonation of female characters, Mr. Neil Burgess, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre Election day afternoon and night, in the delightful comedy of New England life, "The County Fair," which most of the people are familiar with. In such a character as "Aunt Abby" which Mr. Burgess plays, none but a truly great actor could possibly hold the public favor as he has done for many years; none but a powerful delineator of the ways of humanity could so captivate and enchain as in pleasant toils such audiences that greet his efforts everywhere. The joys and sorrows, hopes and fears of the quaintly interesting spinster may easily afford a most useful analytic study of that genuine type of sturdy, honest, straightforward womanhood. The great race scene with "Cold Molasses" is as exciting as ever and when it is announced that he has won the race, and has saved "Aunt Abby's" farm, is always the signal for rounds of applause. The story of "The County Fair" is too well known to dwell upon its details. Nearly everyone has seen it before and are always anxious to see it again. This year, Mr. Burgess has introduced a male quartette in the barn scene which is said to be very fine.

The well known weekly publication, "Vogue," speaks of Wagenhals and Kemper's production of "Paid in Full" as follows: "To Mr. Eugene Walter, practically an unknown play writer, is the New York upblic indebted for the first genuine dramatic surprise of the season, which was literally thrust upon it at the Astor Theatre, on Monday, December 13. It is refreshing to have something out of the ordinary bob up at the right moment and, in this case, there is additional reason for rejoicing because success has rested where it properly belongs." "Paid in Full" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre on December 3. The engagement will be notable. Wagenhals and Kemper promise an elaborate production and a brilliant cast of players.

Thoroughbreds

By W. A. FRASER

Copyright, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

She drew him toward the chair, calling to Crane: "Will you please tell Mr. Mortimer the good news. I am too happy; I can't."

A fierce anger surged in Mortimer's heart; it was true, then—his disgrace had been too much for Allis. The other had won; but it was too cruel to kiss him.

Crane faced about, and coming forward, held out his hand to the man of distrust. "I hope you'll forgive me."

Mortimer sprang to his feet, shoving back his chair violently, and stood erect, drawn to his full height, his right hand clenched fiercely at his side. "Shake hands? No, a thousand times no!" he muttered to himself.

Crane saw the action, and his own hand dropped. "Perhaps I ask too much," he said, quietly; "I wronged you—"

Mortimer set his teeth and waited. There were great beads of perspiration on his forehead, and his broad chest set his breath whistling through contracted nostrils.

"But I believed you guilty—" Mortimer started as Crane said this— "now I know that you are innocent, I ask—"

Mortimer staggered back a step and caught at the chair to steady himself. He repeated mechanically the other's words: "You know I am innocent?"

"Yes, I've found the guilty man."

"Then Alan—oh, the poor lad! It's a mistake—you are wrong. The boy didn't take the money—I took it."

Crane looked at him in admiration.

"Nonsense, my dear sir!" he exclaimed, dryly; "Alan did not take the money—neither did you. Cass took it."

"Cass took it?" asked Mortimer in a dazed way.

"Yes; he has confessed." He went on speaking hurriedly: "I ask you to forgive me now for my suspicions. Your innocence is completely established. You acted like a hero in trying to shield Alan Porter, and I like men of that stamp. The thousand dollars you paid in will be restored to you; it is yours. We will devise some scheme for clearing up the matter as far as your good name is concerned that will shield poor Cass from people who have no business in this affair."

"But how did Cass manage to get the note?"

"Found it on the floor of the vault, he says."

"I don't see how it could have fallen out of the box, because the three bills were pinned to the note."

Crane drew forth a pocket book, and opening it took out the bill that had been stolen. He examined it closely, holding it up in front of the window.

"I think you are mistaken," he said, "there are no pin holes through this bill; I see," he continued, "The pin had not gone through this one; being detached, in handling the box, it has slipped out."

"It must have," concurred Mortimer.

"It doesn't matter," added Crane, "I must go now. Good-by, Miss Allis."

Turning to Mortimer he held out his hand.

"Good-by, and long happiness to you both," he said; "I trust you will think kindly of me and poor Cass. I am sure we are sorry for what has been done."

XLIII.

With the going of Crane an awkward restraint came over the two who were left; the man who had suffered so much for the woman's sake, and the girl who had endeavored so much.

He was like a man suddenly thrust into a new world of freedom; he indulged in a physical manifestation of its exhilaration, drinking in a long, deep draught of the clover-scented air.

Allis watched Mortimer curiously; she was too happy to speak—just to look upon him standing there, her undefiled god, her hero, with his heroism known and applauded, was a suffusing ecstasy. He was so great, so noble, that anything she might say would be inane, tawdry, inconsequent; so she waited, patiently happy, taking no account of time.

The ecstatic magnetism of congenial silence has always a potency, and its spell crept into Mortimer's soul and laid embargo on his tongue. He crossed over to Allis, and taking her slender hand in his own, crouched down on the floor beside her chair, and looked up into her face, just as a great St. Bernard might have done, incapable of articulating the wealth of love and gratitude and faithfulness that was in his heart.

Even then the girl did not speak. She drew the man's strong, rugged head close up to her face, and nestled her cheek against his.

In the end the girl spoke first, saying like a child having a range of but few words, "You are happy now, my hero?"

"Too happy—I almost fear to wake and find that I've been dreaming."

She kissed him.

"Yes, it's real," he answered; "in dreams happiness is not so positive as this. You did not doubt?" he queried.

"Never."

"You would have waited?"

"Forever."

"And now—and now, we must still wait—"

"Not forever."

They talked of the wonderful necromancy the gods had used to set their lives to the sweet music of happiness. How Lauzanne the Despised had saved Ringwood to her father; how he had won Alan's supposed price of redemption for Mortimer; how he had stood sturdy and true to the girl of much faith and gentleness. And the room became a crypt of confessional when she, in penitence, told of her ride on the gallant chestnut.

Just a span of Fate's hand from these two happy mortals, and twice the sand had sifted through the hour glass, sat a man all alone in his chamber. On his table was the dust of solitariness; and with his finger he wrote in it "Forever." But he looked fearlessly across the board, for there sat no grinning demon of temptation, nor remorse, nor fear. But a fragrance as of lilacs and of sweet clover coming through an open window was in his nostrils; and in his memory was the picture of a face he loved, made like unto an angel's with gratitude, and on his forehead still burned, like a purifying fire, a kiss that reached down into his soul and filled him with a joy of thankfulness.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1908.

ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, NO. 4.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

Be It Resolved, (the Senate concurring), That the following amendment to the Constitution of this State be and the same is hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of the members elected to the Senate and to the House of Assembly, the said amendment shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature next to be chosen, and published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next, in at least one newspaper of each county to be designated by the President of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Assembly and the Secretary of State, payment for such publication to be made by the Treasurer on the warrant of the Comptroller.

First—Strike out Paragraph 10 of Section VII of Article IV, and change the numbers of the following paragraphs to correspond:

Second—Change Paragraph 10 of Section V so to to read as follows:

10. The Governor or person administering the government, and four citizens of the State appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall constitute the Board of Pardons. The members of said Board, or any three of them of whom the Governor or person administering the government shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures, and grant reprieves, commutations, pardons and parodes, after conviction in all cases except impeachment. The four members specially appointed shall hold office for five years, and receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment.

Third—Change Section 1 of Article VI so as to read as follows:

SECTION I.

The judicial power shall be vested in a Court for the trial of impeachments, a Supreme Court, County Courts, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as may be established by law, which inferior Courts the Legislature may alter or abolish as the public good shall require.

Fourth—Strike out all of Section II, IV, V, VI and VII, of Article VI, change the number of Section III of Article VI to Section II, and insert the following sections in Article VI:

SECTION III.

Any judge of any of the Courts of the State may be removed for disability continuing for one year, or for refusal to perform the duties of his office, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate and of two-thirds of all the members of the House of Assembly voting separately, after a hearing before both Houses in joint session.

SECTION IV.

1. The Supreme Court shall be organized in three divisions, namely: the Appeals Division, the Law Division, and the Chancery Division. It shall consist of a Presiding Justice of the Appeals Division who shall be styled the Chief Justice, a Presiding Justice of the Law Division who shall be styled the President Justice, and a Presiding Justice of the Chancery Division, who shall be styled the Chancellor, and eighteen Associate Justices, which number may be increased by law.

2. The Appeals Division shall consist of the Chief Justice, and six other Justices of the Supreme Court to be assigned by the Governor. A Justice of the Supreme Court assigned by the Governor to the Appeals Division shall serve in said Division until the end of his term.

The remaining Justices shall be assigned by the Supreme Court to the Law or Chancery Division, as the business of the Court may require.

3. Whenever the number of causes before the Appeals Division shall be so great that the Division cannot promptly hear and determine them, the Governor shall, when authorized by statute, temporarily assign five of the Justices of the other Divisions to sit in the Appeals Division, which shall thereupon sit in two Divisions for the hearing and decision of causes pending at the time of such assignment.

4. Four Justices shall be necessary to constitute a quorum on the final hearing of any cause in the Appeals Division, but the Supreme Court may provide by rule for the making of interlocutory orders by a lesser number of justices, or by one justice; such orders to be subject to revision by the Appeals Division.

On the hearing of a cause in the Appeals Division, no Justice who has given a judicial opinion in the cause in favor of or against the judgment, order or decree under review shall sit at the hearing to review such judgment, order or decree, but the reasons for such opinion shall be assigned to the Court in writing.

5. A majority of all the members of the Supreme Court, to be presided over by the Chief Justice, shall constitute a quorum for the assignment of justices, and for the appointment of officers, and the enactment of rules.

6. The Supreme Court shall appoint one or more reporters, not exceeding three, to report the decisions of the Court, and shall by rule define his or their duties and powers. The reporters shall hold office for five years, subject, however, to removal at the discretion of the Court.

SECTION V.

1. The Appeals Division shall have and exercise the appellate jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Errors and Appeals, the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court on writ of error, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court on appeal, and by the Ordinary on appeal, and such further appellate jurisdiction as may be conferred upon it by law, together with such original jurisdiction as may be incident to the complete determination of any cause on review, saving, however, the right of trial by jury.

2. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Supreme Court and the Justices thereof not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Circuit Courts and the Judges thereof, and such further original jurisdiction not of an equitable nature, and such further appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts, as may be conferred by statute, shall be exercised by the Law Division of the Supreme Court and by the several justices thereof, in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court.

3. The jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Prerogative Court and the Ordinary, not hereby conferred on the Appeals Division, and the jurisdiction heretofore possessed by the Court of Chancery and the Chancellor, and such further original equity jurisdiction as may be conferred by statute, and such further original jurisdiction as is now conferrable on the Prerogative Court shall be exercised by the Chancery Division and by the Chancellor and the several justices of said Division in accordance with rules of practice and procedure prescribed by statute, or, in the absence of statute, by the Supreme Court, but the Justices of that Division shall be under such control and supervision by the Chancellor as shall be provided by the Supreme Court.

4. Terms of the Supreme Court presided over by a single Justice of the Law Division for the trial of issues joined in or brought to the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be held in the several counties at times fixed by the Supreme Court. Until so fixed, such trial terms shall be held at the places and times now fixed by law for the holding of the Courts of Common Pleas in the several counties.

5. The Supreme Court may provide by rule for the transfer of any cause or issue from the Law Division to the Chancery Division, or from the Chancery Division to the Law Division of the Supreme Court, and from the County Court to the Law Division or the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court, and for the giving of complete legal and equitable relief in any cause in the Court or Division where it may be pending.

6. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the alteration, by law of any statutory power or jurisdiction conferred upon any Court or Judge since the adoption of the Constitution in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Legislature from conferring upon any inferior Court which may hereafter be established such power or jurisdiction as was exercised by or which may now be conferred upon the inferior Courts mentioned in Section I of Article VI, of the Constitution of 1844.

SECTION VI.

The County Courts shall have and exercise, in all cases within the county such original common law jurisdiction concurrent with the Supreme Court, and such other jurisdiction heretofore exercised by courts inferior to the Supreme Court and the Prerogative Court as may be provided by law. The final judgments of the County Courts may be brought for review before the Supreme Court in the Appeals Division. Until otherwise provided, the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the Courts of Common Pleas, Orphans' Courts, Courts of Oyer and Terminer, Courts of Quarter Sessions, or by the Judges thereof, shall be exercised by the County Courts pursuant to rules prescribed by the Supreme Court. The justices of the Law Division of the Supreme Court shall be ex officio Judges of the County Courts. All other jurisdiction or authority now vested in any Court, Judge, or magistrate with jurisdiction inferior to the Courts in this section mentioned, and not superseded by this article, shall continue to be exercised by such Court, Judge or magistrate until the Legislature shall otherwise provide.

SECTION VII.

This amendment to the Contitution shall not cause the abatement of any suit or proceeding pending when it takes effect. The Supreme Court shall make such general and special rules and orders as may be necessary for the transfer of all suits and proceedings to the appropriate Division or Court created by this amendment. Matters pending when this amendment takes effect shall be decided by the judge or judges to whom they were submitted, and the order, judgment or decree made or advised by said judge shall be entered as that of the Division or Court to which the suit or proceeding shall have been transferred.

Fifth—Strike out Paragraphs 1, 2, 5 and 8 of Section II of Article VII; and substitute the following paragraphs in place of Paragraphs 1 and 2, and change the numbers of the paragraphs following 5 to correspond:

1. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the President Justice of the Law Division, the Chancellor and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court shall be nominated by the Governor and appointed by him, with the advice and consent of the Senate. They shall not be less than thirty-five years of age and shall have been practicing attorneys in the State for at least ten years. They shall hold office for the term of seven years; shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during their term of office, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State, or of the United States, and shall not engage in the practice of law during their term of office. The Chancellor and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Vice Chancellors and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, in office when this amendment takes effect, shall be Justices of the Supreme Court until the expiration of their respective terms.

The Circuit Court Judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall be continued in office with the powers of the Justices of the Supreme Court at the Circuit until the expiration of their respective terms. They may hold the County Courts, subject to assignment by the Law Division of the Supreme Court.

2. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint one Judge of the County Court in each county, and such additional County Judge or Judges in any county as may be authorized by law. The County Judges may hold court in any county subject to the control of the Supreme Court. The County Judges shall not be less than thirty years of age, and shall have been practicing attorneys in this State for at least five years. They shall hold office for the term of five years; shall at stated times receive for their services such compensation, which shall not be diminished during their term of office, as the Legislature in its discretion shall fix for each county, and they shall hold no other office under the Government of the State or of the United States, and shall not engage in practice of the law in the courts of the county where they hold court during their term of office. The judges of the Common Pleas, in office when this amendment takes effect shall be the judges of the County Courts until the expiration of their present terms.

3. This amendment shall take effect on the first Monday in February, in the year next following its adoption by the people.

4. The Legislature shall pass all laws necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the constitution and this amendment thereof.

TYPHOID

HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.

How to Avoid Infection.

Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisable, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

CHAMPION TYPIST COMING

Emil A. Trefzger, Winner of World's Competition, to Give an Exhibition Here.

DRAKE COLLEGE, FRIDAY NIGHT

Principal C. W. Fogarty Who Has Made a Splendid Record Here, Invites the Public.

The winner of a world's championship in fast typewriting, Emil A. Trefzger, will be in Plainfield Friday night and give a demonstration of speed, writing blindfolded at a speed upwards of 115 words per minute. He will also write shorthand blindfolded and in two languages. The exhibition will take place in the rooms of the Drake Business college at 8 o'clock, and a general invitation is extended to the public.

A great deal of interest is being taken in this event, not only by those interested in feats of skill, but by persons contemplating a course in shorthand and typewriting, as it is an example of what can be accomplished by a system which permits the acquirement of speed combined with accuracy. Mr. Trefzger uses the Gregg shorthand system and performs his typewriting exhibitions on the Remington machine.

In 1905 he won the world's championship and in 1906, the western championship, and has been increasing his speed ever since. In this year's contest he whote 5,818 words in an hour, with a net speed of 86 words a minute, after all penalties for errors had been deducted; while his opponent, Miss Fritz, wrote 5,836 words, with a net speed of 87 words a minute. Miss Fritz has not improved in her speed since the international contest of last year, her record then being the same as now, 87 words a minute, while Mr.

C. W. Fogarty.

Trefzger's record last year was a net speed of 78 words a minute making a net gain for him of 8 words.

That the present holder of the championship has reached her limit in speed is claimed by Mr. Trefzger's friends, while he with a record of only one word behind, is gaining on her rapidly.

Everybody is welcome at this exhibition and those who attend will find it interesting to inspect the rooms of the business college in which it is held. The commercial department is fitted with a bank which is used in connection with the subjects taught in the department.

The bank is equipped with all appliances, books, stationery and everything necessary for the proper execution of the work. Each student performs the duties of the different offices of a commercial bank. The equipment is said to be the finest for this purpose in the State. In fact, thousands of dollars have been expended in fitting up the college with the one idea of bringing it up to date in every particular. The students desks are of heavy golden

BAPTIST WOMEN HEAR OF THE NEGRO PROBLEM

A paper full of interesting facts on the "Negro Problem" was preesented by Mrs. Martin I. Cooley at the meeting of the Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room.

The African slave brought into this country with cruel force, the connecting link he became between man and the beast of burden, the Civil War one of the results of slavery, the grafting into the citizenship of one of the most intelligent nations of the world of 6,000,000 of negroes and the agonies of reconstruction were points in Mrs. Cooley's préface. She contrasted the negro's patience, affection, lack of vindictiveness, cheerfulness and religious instincts with his shiftlessness, lack of enterprise, and untruthfulness which were in part outgrowths of the system under which he had lived for many years.

The work done at Hampton Institute and Tuskagee in the education of the race was told by Mrs. Cooley and a high estimate of the influence of Dr. Booker T. Washington, who believes in the industrial training of his race, was given.

The Tuskagee Institute, she claimed was in some regards a national institute, its trustees representing a number of States and its 1,600 pupils representing 38 States and 21 foreign countries. The paper was followed with a short talk on Negro melodies by Mrs. B. J. Shreve and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss gave some southern incidents of much interest.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. S. T. Wilson.

QUIETLY CELEBRATING THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Washington Park, today are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Many friends have called in person to extend their congraulations and others from distant points have sent telegrams. No informal reception has been planned but many of their warm friends will pay a visit to the happy couple tonight.

Mr. Matthews is a wealthy retired New York lawyer and like his wife has a host of friends in the city and borough. She was Miss Ellen A. Baldy, daughter of Peter Baldy, a prominent resident of Danville, Pa., and their marriage took place in that city. The couple settled in New York, and when Mr. Matthews had amassed a fortune as a celebrated barrister, they came here in 1885 taking possession of a handsome home at Grove street and Prespect place, which they have occupied ever since.

There are two children from the union, Peter B. Matthews and Mrs. Hegeman, the latter being the wife of former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., a wealthy commuter.

JOHN P. STEVENS ELECTED COUNTRY CLUB TRUSTEE.

At the last meeting of the trustees of the Plainfield Country Club, John P. Stevens, of Hillside avenue, was unanimously elected a trustee to fill the vacancy in the board caused by the resignation of L. G. Timpson. Mr. Stevens is well-known in Plainfield and is much interested in the success and development of the county club as a high-class, conservative family organization. He is also interested in golf and tennis and other out-of-door sports.

During the last three years the golf course has been practically reconstructed and is now laid out on modern lines, requiring only to be kept in good playing condition, so that the trustees will devote their attention next season to an enlargement of the clubhouse and an improvement of the clubhouse service in all departments. A competent superintendent will be put in charge of the entire club property and of the office at the club; while the high-class restaurant service which has obtained since July under Miss Scott, will be maintained another season.

Mr. Stevens is known to be in entire accord with the plans of the trustees to develop the clubhouse and social side of the club life, and his acceptance of a position on the board is gratifying to the officers and trustees.

Will Attend G. O. P. Rally.

The North Plainfield Republican Club, accompanied by a fife and drum corps, will attend the big Republican mass meeting to be held at Somerville tomorrow night. Six special trolley cars have been engaged for the trip to and from the county seat, and the start will be made from Saengerbund Hall.

G.O.P. CLAIM LEGISLATURE

Looks Like a Majority of Twenty in the House and Seven in the Senate.

BOTH BRANCHES ARE THEIRS.

Those Who Will Probably Be Elected Next Week and Those Who Hold Over.

Republicans expect to retain control of both branches of the Legislature by sending to Trenton for the coming winter Republican lawmakers from Atlantic, Cape May, Camden, Cumberland, Ocean, Salem, Monmouth Middlesex, Mercer, Burlington Union Essex Passaic, Gloucester, Morris, Bergen and Somerset counties. According to this plan of estimating the Republicans should have forty-five of the sixty members of the next house of Assembly, and, including the holdovers, fourteen of the twenty-one members of the Senate, giving them a majority of twenty in the lower branch of the legislature, and seven in the upper branch and a majority of twenty-seven on joint ballot.

The present House consists of forty Republicans and twenty Democrats, with fourteen Republicans and seven Democrats in the Senate, a Republican majority of twenty-seven on joint ballot.

Indications are that the next Legislature will be made up as follows:

House of Assembly — Atlantic, Martin E. Keffer, Republican; Bergen, Joseph H. Sharff and Henry P. Ward, Republicans; Burlington, J. D. Irick and G. W. Lewis, Republicans; Camden, T. B. COOK RE-COMMITTED ON YOUNG GIRL'S CHARGE.

Harold Cook, the borough young man accused by Miss Jessie Smith, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Amelia Smith, of West Second street, was given a hearing in the city court, yesterday afternoon. He was represented by Judge William Newcorn, while the State's case was taken care of by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. The proceedings required less than half an hour and at their conclusion Judge Runyon refused the defendant counsel's move for a dismissal of the complaint. He was re-committed to the county jail to wait the Grand Jury's action.

Miss Smith was the only witness put on the stand and after giving direct testimony was cross-examined by Judge Newcorn. His line of questioning was objected to in its vital points by the State's lawyer, who was upheld by Judge Runyon. The complainant was unable to fix time or date for the crime alleged and it was on this point that Cook's counsel argued for a dismissal, claiming that both are essential. The assistant prosecutor was sustained in his contention that they were not because of the nature of the complaint.

The defendant's young wife, who has remained loyal to him, was present during the proceedings. Bail has been fixed by the county authorities at $2,000 but Cook has been unable to procure a bondsman.

FREEDOM CASTLE, K.G.E. HAS A JOLLY GOOD TIME

Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, entertained about one hundred sir knights and friends at its meeting last night, when a program of exceptional interest was arranged by the good and welfare committee. It was planned to exemplify the opening and closing degree work of the castle, and this was performed in a faultless manner by the castle officers without ritual of any kind.

In the good and welfare of the order, an entertainment, lasting about two hours and a half, was then enjoyed. The program opened with piano selections by Prof. Schulte, of Brisbane, Australia, including the overture to "Faust," and several Sousa marches. Then followed Victor selections under the direction of Past Chief W. J. Allen, the fine machine being courteously loaned by S. V. Lough, of East Front street.

After a short speech by Horace J. Martin, Sr., William Davenport, of Newark, a hypnotist of more than ordinary ability, entertained the audience for an hour with his clever work. He had five subjects, a member of the castle and four boys, and he gave a great demonstration, explaining the scientific features and possibilities of the art. He handled his subjects with unusual ease and held the close attention of his audience throughout as he directed those under his control to do this bidding.

Remarks by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and piano selections by Prof. Schulte, closed the program. Cigars were then passed around and a social hour was spent. As a result of the affair the castle received a number of new applications for membership.

BOROUGH DEMOCRATS HOLD MASS MEETING

North Plainfield's Democrats held a rousing meeting at their headquarters in Debele's Hall last night, at which Major Nelson Y. Dungan, the party's nominee for State Senator, fired more shots at his vigorous Republican opponent, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen. Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, president of the North Plainfield Democratic Club, presided.

In addition to Major Dungan speeches were made by William V. Steele, nominee for Congress; G. W. C. Wakefield, of New York; Clarence Garretson, candidate for Assembly; George W. Anderson, candidate for county clerk, and Ray Mayham of Rahway. "Tune" Melick also had something to say in his characteristic way.

Colonel Dungan in his speech attacked Colonel Frelinghuysen for his attitude on the insurance measures in the last Legislature and also on his stand regarding taxation. He asked if his opponent is fighting the trusts, and claimed that Frelinghuysen had been instrumental in having pigeon-holed desirable insurance legislation.

"As I understand local option," said the speaker, "it means that you, the people and not the court, shall control licenses. It does not mean prohibition unless you want it to. As it now stands the power of excise license is now in the hands of one man. I want to say that I am in favor of local option. I stand for a bill that will give the people the right to say whether saloons shall be licensed." The suggestion that Sunday opening be included in the local option bill was intended by its enemies to confuse the issue. There is no idea of allowing Sunday selling. The brewers are the opponents of the people in this matter."

After asking if the people wanted to delegate the right to the brewers to select their Senator, the Colonel dwelt on the subject of taxation opposing his opponent's alleged actions along that line.

The speeches of the other candidates were equally well received. The vice-presidents of the meeting were John H. Van Winkle, Jacob Voehl, William L. Saunders, David T. Kenney, Samuel Townsend, Charles R. Thiers, Charles Dresselt, John T. Case, Dr. Fred Hughes, A. E. Kenney L. M. Bird, W. L. Hammond, W. J. Conroy, Stonewall Jackson, Dr. P. J. Zeglio, Elston M. French, Herman Klinsman, Tell A. Begulin, J. A. Blatz, David Bodine, Richard Boice, M. Kohler. Few of these appeared on the platform.

The lad was taken home and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan set the broken bones.

COP HAS A HARD FIGHT

Battles With "Mike" Heffernan While Big Crowd Stands By.

LONE CITIZEN HELPS OUT.

Complaints That Officer Was Premature in Using His Club Fall Flat at Prisoner's Hearing.

Michael Heffernan, a native Plainfielder who has been doing army service in various parts of the country for the past few years, returned to the city a couple of weeks ago and last night got into a mix-up with the police that resulted in his getting a badly damaged head. He was arrested on Park avenue after he had given battle to Patrolman McDonald during which his scalp was laid open by a blow from the officer's club. Because of the injury he had suffered and the fact that his record has been a good one, he escaped with a suspension of sentence when arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning.

Heffernan was out with a crowd last night that was hitting up the booze and between 8 and 9 o'clock he had about all he could carry. The whole delegation was noisy and insulting at Park avenue and Second street when Patrolman McDonald gave them a warning to disperse. All obeyed but Heffernan who shuffled away for a short distance and then returned. When McDonald told him a second time to move on he applied a few selected cusses to the cop and also to Joseph Loughead, a citizen, who stood nearby. He followed this up by declaring that he was the "warmest thing on the block" and intimating that he was ready for fight.

The patrolman started toward Heffernan and as he did the latter made a move as if to draw a weapon from his back poket. McDonald and Loughead both took it as a danger warning and the cop acted quickly. He brought his locust down on Heffernan's head and though it made him wince he sprang at McDonald and the two clinched. In their struggles they fell into the doorway of Rafferty's saloon and just at that instant someone from inside flung the swinging door open, giving the policeman a bang on the cranium that almost stunned him. Loughead sprang to his rescue and the two succeeded in holding Heffernan down but they were unable to get the handcuffs on him until Patrolman Sweeney ran up in response to raps for assistance. The prisoner fought desperately until the nippers were placed on his wrist. A big crowd standing by without offering assistance.

Before court opened this morning, a number of men of the Citizen Fixit class filed complaint with Chief Kiely and Judge Runyon that McDonald had no right to hit Heffernan with his club as he did, claiming that it was unprovoked. As is usual in such cases, their argument was made over the telephone and none of them would attend the hearing to testify. When the case was heard, Heffernan admitted the policeman's charges and the testimony of Loughead proved conclusively to the magistrate that McDonald had acted in the right and that the prisoner was lucky he didn't get worse. Before he was discharged, Heffernan told the court that threats he made last night to "kill" both the officer and Loughead when he got a chance were only his drunken ravings and that he held no animosity toward either. The two afterward took him to the "hospital" room and fixed up his injured head.

Dr. Strong speaks with authority on the most pressing problems of American life. His subject on Sunday afternoon next, will be "Success in the Times in Which we Live."

Henry in the Toils.

He was given the choice of a $15 fine or fifteen days in the county jail. He goes to jail.

THE FORUM.

Replies to Mr. Randolph.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Will you permit me to comment on the article in your issue of Saturday on Taft and Bryan by former Mayor Randolph, unless you have already accorded the privilege to another of Democratic proclivities.

Mr. Randolph lays much stress deservedly on the question of confidence to be reposed in the two men and much effort is made everywhere to divert attention from the real issues of this campaign to this question of confidence. It seems to many of us that Bryan does not suffer by comparison with Taft in this respect in fact, that there is a great contrast between the two men greatly in favor of Bryan. Have we ever heard of Bryan being called any body elses man. Is it not notorious that Taft is but the puppet of Roosevelt. Bryan is given credit for dictating, almost, the Democratic platform. No one has ever suggested that Taft figured in the drafting of the Republican platform.

A part which has been most conspicuous during the whole of Bryan's career is his entire independence in thought and action. He has been honest in this to his own political detriment. Can we say the same of Taft. Has he not been in all things but the echo of Roosevelt? To such an extent even, that he must go to him to have his speech of acceptance edited.

As to honesty, Bryan's record is unimpeachable. Has Taft been honest with the public in declaring as he has done time and again during this campaign, that the Democratic tariff (the Wilson bill), caused the panic of 1893, when every well informed man knows that the two bore no relation whatever one to the other. We know what Roosevelt would say of such a statement were he on the otherside.

Should not the relative honesty and independence of the two men be the determining factor in a question of where confidence should be placed. Is not honesty and independence in thought and action a characteristic of Bryan which was shown out in strong relief against the almost truckling dependence of Taft on Roosevelt?

But it is urged Bryan has favored bimetalism and several other heresies. Suffice it to say that so was McKinley in favor of bimetalism and Congress sent a committee abroad to see what could be done to accomplish the unpractical thing. These dead issues are not relevant to this campaign and they are brought up by the Republicans to divert the public mind from the vital, and almost the only issue of their campaign, namely, the Tariff. On this subject Mr. Randolph's article betrays some confusion of facts. For instance he says, "every improved harbor has found the means by which it was brought into being by the tariff." Well, now, if there is any effect which the protective tariff has had, it is to lessen the necessity for harbors in the United States. The very object of the protective tariff is to check imports, to prevent merchandise from being brought into this country. Of course, if imports are checked, exports are checked, for trade and commerce mean of necessity an exchange of commodities. Shipping to be profitable means loaded ships in both directions. The protective tariff therefore as is intended by its promoters handicaps trade and this lessens the need for harbors.

Mr. Randolph also gives credit to the tariff for encouraging invention. This is a new discovery indeed! We have generally believed that monopoly had a tendency to stifle invention for well known and obvious reasons. And is there a man so blind as not to see how the tariff, more than any thing else, makes possible monopoly. In economic circles it is an axiom that the protective tariff fosters monopoly. We have many examples of tariff fostered monopolies and their bearing on ourselves all around us. One of these is that of the Singer Sewing Machine with its factory but ten miles distant. Its sewing machines are sold to us at $65, and to people in Europe and South America at about $30 less money. That such extortion by force is submitted to by a liberty loving manly people is only because, as in this campaign, the issue is deftly sidetracked by the beneficiaries of the protective tariff. A more proper designation would be the "robber tariff."

Since the passage of the present tariff law, the cost of living has increased 48 per cent., while wages have increased but 19 per cent. This increase in cost of living is mainly due to the control of prices which the tariff has enabled the monoplies and combines to exercise—due in other words to the stifling of competition, to the closing of our harbors to foreign commerce, except as the manufacturing combine desire, to the denial of the inherent right of the individual merchant or citizen to buy of whomsoever he pleases, by the insidious tariff.

Let me again refer to the matter confidence. Bryan proposed long ago that contributions to both parties be made public before election day and all contributions to the Democratic fund have been made public and are being announced to the public daily as made. Taft refused to make public the contributions to the Republican campaign until after election. When we recall the correspondence between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Harriman recently, and accidentally exposed to the public eye, we can readily understand why Mr. Taft refuses to make public contributions to his campaign before election.

By the way, does any one suppose that Mr. Roosevelt would go on his African trip if Taft should be elected? That is, unless his African camp be connected by telephone with the Whitehouse. Are not his arrangements for the African trip an indication that he did not really expect Taft's election. Let us not prevent the President's African hunting trip.

Yours truly,
L. J. ELLIS.

A Timely Suggestion.

Editor, The Daily Press:

My attention having been called to the condition of the out-buildings of one of our public schools, it occurred to me that much of the cause for complaint could be avoided by employing a portress to oversee the girls' department while the janitor might perform the same service for the boys' department. All railroad stations, department stores hotels, etc., of the better class which handle large numbers of persons have adopted this plan with success, and when large numbers of children gather and spend so many hours of the day as they do in our public schools, a proper supervision is of far greater importance, especially of the younger children. Furthermore, these places should be thoroughly scrubbed several times a week at least and daily if necessary.

Yours truly,
A. L. KUARF.

GOVERNOR PREDICTS 50,000 TAFT MAJORITY

Governor Fort and other Republican leaders were in a happy mood at the State House at Trenton yesterday, being confident of Republican success throughout the State next Tuesday. The Governor received reports from all sections of the State, and then, in an interview, declared that Taft would receive a majority of not less than 50,000, while gains would be made in the Legislature by the Republicans. He added:

"Essex county, in my judgment, will elect its entire ticket, Senator Colby by not less than 10,000 and the Assembly ticket and the Sheriff by an equal majority. It is possible that the Sheriff's majority will exceed this.

"The contest in Hudson county is close, and I shall not be surprised if the county elects a Republican Sheriff and a part of the Republican Assembly ticket.

"We shall surely elect Senators in the counties of Gloucester, Camden, Essex, Union and Monmouth, and I have no doubt of the election of the Republican Senator in Somerset. In Salem county there will be a close contest, but Senator Plummer is strong and has been a very efficient Senator, and I believe he will be elected. This will leave the Senate for the next year the same as it was this year.

"There will be little, if any, change in the Assembly delegation, except that probably in the county of Monmouth we will carry the entire Assembly delegation and thereby gain three votes, and I feel sure we will carry all three of the candidates in Middlesex, thereby gaining two members of the lower house. I know of no way where we will make a loss on the Assembly delegation over last year."

United States Senator John Kean, one of the Governor's callers, was inclined to take a confident view of the Republican situation. He predicted a plurality for Taft of at least 30,000.

Vivian M. Lewis, clerk in Chancery, said that Taft would carry Passaic by about 3,000, and that the invasion of Passaic by Bryan yesterday would have no appreciable effect on the Republican vote. Passaic county, he contended, stands for protection because of the many industries which have been built up by the protective policy.

quartered oak. Remington typewriters are used throughout.

Drake college has had a phenomenal growth this year and this is said to be due to the energetic efforts of its principal, Mr. C. W. Fogarty, a young man, who came to this city from Syracuse, N. Y. He began as a teacher and solicitor and showed such marked ability combined with heart and soul devotion to his work, that it soon won for him the principalship of the school. He is enthusiastic and impresses all who meet him as being very much in earnest. Besides, he is rapidly forging his college to the front as a leading educational institution. Drake College is now considered by many Plainfielders as "the popular college of Plainfield."

Mr. Fogarty is a graduate of America's leading penmanship school, The Zanerian Art College, Columbus, Ohio, and is recognized by the profession as one of the most highly skilled penmen in this country. His dexterity with the pen has been obtained by several years of hard practice. He has demonstrated his skill in ornamental penmanship several times here in exhibits held by Drake College.

The wonderful success in enrolling nearly one hundred students in Drake College during the past three months, is due to integrity in management, attractive advertising, and giving to the students of the college the best of instruction in those subjects which qualify for business.

The students' work in the penmanship department of the college is beyond comparison.

Drake College instructors are experts in their line.

Last Wednesday evening the day students entertained the night students in the college rooms. A group picture was taken by Photographer Stone which contains about eighty of the scholars. Refreshments were served and the Student's Society of Drake College received many applications for membership. The object of this society is to promote good fellowship among the students.

Principal Fogarty reports the following enrollment in day and eve. classes during the past two weeks: Shorthand course: The Misses May Stricker, Mildred Brown, Helen Mullen, M. Wagner, Edith Mague, Anna Whalen, of Plainfield; Bessie Rose, Bound Brook, Grace Fletcher, Brooklyn. Messrs. D. W. Adams, Plainfield; W. L. Dietrick, Westfield; Eugene W. Fuer, Bound Brook.

Special English course—George H Huff, Plainfield; John Novack, N. Locomo, M. Kurtanick, Bound Brook; Miss Emma Yehto, and Anna Moore of Plainfield.

Commercial course—Miss Edith M. Lyngard, Dunellen; George Francisco, C. Walter Clarkson, W. Matthews and Harold Vanderhoef, of Plainfield.

Miss Amy Meyers, of Raritan, has secured an excellent position as stenographer for a law firm on Broadway, New York city, through the Drake College Employment Bureau.

Home-Coming to John Taylor.

In honor of his return after a visit to Petersburg, Pa., John Taylor, of West Third street, was given a surprise party at his home Monday night. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Taylor and Oscar Nelson and was attended by twenty-five friends. The program for the evening comprised dancing and music, while special vocal numbers were contributed by the Black Diamond quartet and Mrs. Etta Schenck. In the course of a number of clog specialties, George Ruggles gave a representation of the Mississippi Side-Wheel that mad a big hit. A supper was served at midnight.

Merchants to Decide for Themselves.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association held a special meeting last night to decide the question whether the various shops should be kept open on Election Day. After some discussion of the subject, it was decided not to take a vote, but to allow each merchant to do as he wishes. It was the general opinion of those present that the shops should be closed on Election Day, according to custom in years past. It is the intention of the association at an early date to agree on future action regarding holidays, instead of having the question come up so often.

Miss Mary G. Ryan a Bride.

Miss Mary Gertrude Ryan, of Dunellen, and Egbert Joseph Gessner, of New York, were married at St. John's Catholic church, Dunellen, this morning. Rev. Father Dunphy, the pastor, officiated at a nuptial mass performed in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The couple left immediately following the ceremony for a wedding trip. They will reside in Brooklyn. The bride is well-known in Dunellen, where she has many friends.

BAPTISTS HALT ON PLAN FOR A UNION

The delegates at yesterday morning's session of the Baptist State convention at Lakewood decided to postpone the final vote on the adoption of the consolidation plan until today. The general opinion is it will be adopted with some slight amendments.

Yesterday has been given up to the work of the seventy-eighth session of the New Jersey Baptist missionary convention. The opening service at 9:30 o'clock was conducted by Rev. George Boddie, of Lambertville Central association. Rev. W. G. Wedenmeyer, pastor of the First church, where the meetings are being held, made a brief address of welcome, stating the great pleasure Lakewood in general and the Baptists in particular experienced in entertaining the delegates from all sections of the State. He dwelt upon the beauties and attractions of Lakewood, and expressed the hope that all present would thoroughly enjoy their visit to this resort.

At the conclusion of the address of welcome, the convention resolved itself into a committee of the whole and proceeded to consider the joint report of the boards of the convention and the education society on "Consolidation." The report provoked some discussion, but final vote was postponed.

The name of the organization will be the New Jersey Baptist convention and will have for its objects the development of denominational unity; the giving of expression to the denominational life in relation to general religious, educational and philanthropic interests; to promote the preaching of the gospel throughout New Jersey; to render worthy young men and women, who give promise for usefulness in Christian work, such aid as may be necessary in securing adequate preparation; to encourage Baptist people, young in Christian life and service, to increase the efficiency of the effort to evangelize the world, and to engage in such other lines of work as may advance the Kingdom of Christ.

The composition of the new body shall be as follows: Each regularly recognized Baptist church in the State shall be entitled to appoint the pastor and one delegate; also, one additional delegate, for each 100 members or a major fraction thereof above the first hundred. Each association of Baptist churches in the state shall be entitled to appoint two delegates. Other Baptist missionary, educational or philanthropic organizations in the State, which have received official recognition of this convention, may be represented by not more than two delegates from each organization.

The officers shall be a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, a treasurer, and seven trustees, who shall be elected annually by ballot, and shall serve from the close of the meeting at which they are elected to the close of the next meeting, or until their successors are chosen. The trustees, elected from the several boards, shall hold all the property of the convention, holding the same according to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

A majority of the votes cast shall be necessary to election. According to the new constitution, the work of the convention shall be conducted by the boards of State missions, the board of ministerial education and such other boards as the convention shall deem necessary.

The new constitution retains the present date for the annual meetings, the fourth Monday in October, which has been the custom for many past years.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Judge Benjamin F. Jones, of the Republican State Committee speakers' bureau, received a telegram yesterday announcing the illness of Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris, and his inability to keep his engagement to speak in Newark last night. Mrs. Hillery says that her husband is confined to his bed and would have to cancel all his dates for the campaign. The news was conveyed to the Senator's friends, and messages of sympathy poured in upon him.

Christian Endeavor Social.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church held a social last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Searing on East Fifth street. PAROLE FOR MANY STATE PRISONERS BY THE BOARD.

Charles A. Ransom, clerk of the court of pardons, has about completed preparing the list of those desiring parole from the State prison, at Trenton, and yesterday said the list would contain about 250 applications, or about twenty per cent. of the prison population.

The board of prison inspectors has recommended about fifty men for parole whose conduct has passed the test set by Keeper Osborne. The board thinks this about the right number to free at one time, if there are to be men given tickets of leave to reduce the prison population.

It is understood that this is in line with the recommendations of Governor Fort who has never thought that there should be wholesale release of prisoners, as incorrectly reported in some quarters.

TYPHOID
HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.
How to Avoid Infection.
Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisable, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The qualifying round, medal play, for the Autumn cup, offered by George S. Clay, will be held at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, and the concluding rounds at match play will be on Election Day.

Golfers are approaching the sere and yellow edge of their season, for the championships are all over with and there is nothing in the way of an open tournament ahead except the annual fall fixtures of the Atlantic City and Lakewood Country clubs. This week there is to be a three-day tournament for women at the Wilmington, Del., Country Club and the Boston girls who were at Chevy Chase will all go to it.

Judging from the number of entries already received by the tournament committee of the Fox Hills Golf Club the one day women's open tournament to be held next Thursday promises to be, from point of entries, one of the most sucessful events of its kind ever held in the Metropolitan district.

Among the local entries will be Mrs. Charles T. Stout, Miss Julia R. Mix, Miss Elizabeth Hurry and Mrs. L. W. Callan. Essex County, Baltusrol, Hackensack, Yountakah, Plainfield, Apawamis, Wykagyl and Dunwoodie will also be represented by their best golfers. In practice rounds some very low scores have been made Mrs. Callan having returned a card of 92 while Miss Mix has been well up in the 90s. There will be two events to occupy the attention of the golfers—an eighteen hole handicap in the morning for which there will be three prizes, and an approaching and putting contest in the afternoon, for which there will be three prizes. The prizes have been donated by President Joseph J. O'Donohue, Jr., Charles Holtzman, Lionel H. Graham, E. G. Potter, W. W. Lowrey and W. M. Richardson. R. R. Mamlock has offered a prize to the woman member of Fox Hills returning the best score.

"A fine women's course and just the links for our Senators and Supreme Court Judges to potter over at golf," said an onlooker at the national women's championship last Saturday regarding the Chevy Chase Club's course. It was in excellent condition and the state of the turf, despite a long drought, reflected great credit on Douglas, the club's professional. Few know it, but James is the brother of Geordie Douglas, who had a meteoric career here in 1897. He had served his time as a soldier in the Black Watch regiment and came to this country under engagement to the Country Club at Brookline. Geordie won every professional tournament held in this country in 1897, winning over $1,200. Returning to Edinburgh, he re-enlisted and went with the Black Watch to South Africa, to be shot and killed on the same battlefield on which Lieut. F. G. Tait of the same regiment, and England's greatest amateur golfer, met his death.

The players most prominent in Washington golf mostly use the course of the Columbia Golf Club—such men as F. Oden Horstman, the two Harbons, Ormsby, McCammon and Allan Lord. George Turnbull, one of the longest drivers in the world and the most clever coach, is the professional at the Columbia Golf Club.

Whatever else may be proclaimed in favor of the 1908 golf season it cannot be said that it has proved a record-breaker in developing youthful "phenoms." In fact, it may be put down with little fear of contradiction that the past season has been unusually barren in this particular, although tournament records throughout the country show that more boys are playing the game than ever before. In the recent national championship at Garden City the younger element cut practically no figure. By this it is not meant to infer that the honors were carried off by battle-scarred veterans. On the contrary, most of the glory rewarded the efforts of young men, but not boys.

A glance at the names of the four that adorned the semi-final bracket—Max Behr, Fred Herreshoff, Jerome D. Travers and Walter J. Travis—fails to reveal anything bordering on exterme youth. Behr graduated from Yale several years ago, while Herreshoff, who lost to Behr in this semi-final round, missed by the narrowest of margins a chance to reach the final, a distinction he gained in 1904 at Baltusrol, when he was a youthful prodigy. So far as Champion Travers is concerned, this remarkable golfer celebrated his twenty-first birthday last May, which was after he had gained the triple crown of national Metropolitan and New Jersey title-holder. It is, therefore, hardly fitting to refer to Travers any longer as "the boy."

Devotees of the game do not have to be reminded that the blush of youth has long since faded from the cheek of Walter Travis. In fact, almost from the time he became prominent as a golfer he has frequently been referred to as the "old man." Always playing with head as well as hands, Travis has been able in scores and scores of notable encounters to more than offset the greater brilliancy of his youthful opponents by exercising rare judgment at critical stages. There have been times however, when even with this great exponent of the game, execution has not kept pace with intention, a case in point being the recent semi-final tilt between Travis and Travers, in which the former after being two up with only four to play—"but that's another story."

Because Albert Seckel, a Western entrant, enjoyed the distinction of being the youngest player in the recent championship, his movements were watched with more than passing interest, but the boy did nothing to startle. While youngsters have quite frequently won fame on the links the fact becomes more and more apparent as time wears on that the odds are all against the precocious youngster. No matter how brilliant he may be he must ever be lacking in that valuable asset, years of tournament experience. When Warren K. Wood carried Travers to the home green during the national tournament at Euclid a year ago, the Chicago was promptly claimed as the coming champion, yet he failed to qualify at Garden City. In this way incident after incident might be cited at the expense of the schoolboy brigade.

Speaking of schoolboys, calls attention to the fact that the usual interscholastic championship was allowed to go by the board this year. Considering the little that has been done for the boy golfers hereabouts it seemed a pity that their one chance of getting together and measuring skill had to be abandoned. At the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association in 1906 the suggestion was made to have the association not only offer a cup to be played for annually by the schoolboys, but, if possible, have the M. G. A. run off the tournament as well The matter was laid on the table and has not been disturbed since.

FOOTBALL.

On Election Day afternoon, Holy Cross wil play East Orange on the Cricket Field, and on November 7 the team plays Somerville High, and Rahway High School on November 14. Coach Emmons will have his pick from the following squad for the Rutgers Prep game Saturday afternoon: R. Vail, Blazier, Neff, Sharpe, Sinclair, Stine, Little, Coyle, Brakeley, Miller, Nash, Mosher, Williams and Lindsay.

The football games of last Saturday brought out the hardest fighting, considered as a whole, of any of the season so far. Yale was up against a team that was only play for the blue hosed warriors and could afford to take chances and try all sorts of manoeuvres of the open work variety, but Harvard, Annapolis, West Point, Princeton, Pennsylvania, the Indians, Cornell, Brown, Lafayette and Amherst were engaged in stubborn and hard fought games. Four games resulted in ties, while the margin of victory in several others was narrow. The tie games weren't any fault of the rules—that is, the weaker team didn't hold the stronger to a tie because of plays allowed by the rules. The drawn encounters were the result of teams being matched in scoring ability, or as near evenly matched as two teams can be. No two teams can be exactly evenly matched in a game, but Saturday's tie scores were a fair measure of the merit of the work done by the contenders.

Princeton and Harvard and Pennsylvania did not come out of their hardest games to date as well as Yale did in her first two severe tests, but that fact in itself is of no especial significance. Princeton may not have been as good against Syracuse as Yale was, but on the other hand Syracuse may have been better when she met Princeton than when she played Yale. Yale beat West Point, which was more than Harvard could do to the Navy, but the Navy played a stronger game against Harvard than West Point did against Yale. It was a faster and more resourceful game. The Navy has nine experienced players on its list, and if it can keep on edge for the remainder of the campaign bids fair to rank high. As to Pennsylvania's tie with the Indians, who knows whether any other team could have done any better?

Harvard has reason to feel pleased that the clash with the midshipmen wasn't a defeat for the Crimson. This is true because the midshipmen did the better individual playing in fundamentals, their team play was quite as good and their tactics more diverse. The Navy was forcing the fight and was in the lead, with every prospect of staying there, when in the thick of a scrimmage the ball suddenly changed ownership and a Harvard man darted away with it and made a long run for a touchdown. It recalled Torney's run against Yale at West Point in 1904, Yale had the upper hand, but the unexpected play won the game for West Point.

No Eastern football team save Yale has reached the middle of the season without being scored on. Annapolis, Harvard, Dartmouth and Lafayette fell by the wayside last week, and the goal line of each of them was crossed. Princeton has been scored on, but by a goal from the field; her goal line is still intact. Yale and Princeton therefore are the only Eastern teams who have prevented opponents from making a touchdown. Princeton's defence, while it has yielded considerably to opposing pressure, has shown a commendable and encouraging faculty of tightening up when near its own goal line and probably has had more fighting the shadow of the goal posts to do than any other team to date.

Of the stronger teams, only Yale and Cornell have won every game they have played. Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Annapolis, Carlisle, Dartmouth and Lafayette have not been beaten, but each of them has been tied. It is an exceptional state of affairs, that of finding only two of the stronger group of elevens that have won evry game. The Midshipmen still lead in total points and have averaged over 23 points a game. The only other team that approaches this average is Carlisle, with 21 5-8 points a game, and Williams, with 24 points a game for four games. Both Carlisle and the Navy has maintained a greater speed than the others, causing some conjecture whether they can keep it up and stay on edge. As to that, it is up to the men in charge, and the latter probably know what they are about. Next Saturday the two speedy ones, Annapolis and Carlisle, will come together, and that ought to be one of the best scraps of the year.

Pennsylvania is the only team besides the Navy and the redskins that has made over a hundred points, but the Quakers have played more games than any of them. Harvard has averaged 16½ points a game; Yale, 16 3-5; Princeton, 12; Pennsylvania, 13½; Cornell, 13; West Point, 11; Brown, 15 1-3; Dartmouth, 14; Syracuse, 15 1-3; Williams, 24; Lafayette, 12 3-5; Pennsylvania State, 19 3-5. The point record follows:

Harvard, 99—6, six games; Yale, 83—0, five games; Princeton, 72—4, six games; Pennsylvania, 110—10, eight games; Cornell, 52—10, four games; West Point, 44—6, four games; Annapolis, 141—6, six games; Carlisle, 132—11, six games; Brown, 92—24, six games; Dartmouth, 70—5, five games; Syracuse, 92—29, six games; Williams, 96—10, four games; Wesleyan, 55—22, five games; Amherst, 12—16, four games; Colgate, 12—21, four games; Dickinson, 13—26, three games; Lafayette, 63—6, five games; Lehigh, 17—16, three games; Holy Cross, 22—46, five games; Vilanova, 0—27, three games; Bucknell, 51—22, four games; Pennsylvania State, 98—18, five games; Washington and Jefferson, 60—49, four games; Tufts, 44—34, five games; Rochester, 55—23, four games; Maine, 84—43, five games; New York University, 12—62, three games; Fordham, 50—17, three games; Stevens, 12—62, five games; Vermont, 22—26, six games; Union, 23—28, four games; Haverford, 17—6, three games; Georgetown, 33—4, two games; Trinity, 24—43, three games; Bowdoin, 57—35, six games; Virginia, 33—0, three games; Andover, 16—5, five games; Exeter, 29—41, five games; Chicago, 79—12, three games; Michigan, 38—18, four games; Minnesota, 21—0, three games.

Disturbed a Neighbor.

The next time Adolph Bohren, wholesale beer bottler, 11 Greenbrook road, has callers at his home he says he will invite the neighbors, and thus avoid all hard feelings. Friday night about 8 o'clock two or three young couples dropped in and enjoyed themselves with music and dancing until about 10:30 Willard Smith, who lives next door, could not sleep and so complained to the police. At the hearing Monday night before Recorder Dolliver the case was dismissed.

BLOCKADED.

Every Household in Plainfield Should Know How to Resist It.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

Mrs. Anna Holmes, New Market, N. J., says: "Some years ago I gave a statement for publication regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me and I now willingly confirm what I then said. Sharp pains in my head, back and sides made me miserable. If I sat down for any length of time or attempted to rise quickly from a reclining position, the trouble would always be more severe. I gradually grew worse and my work became a burden. Having Doan's Kidney Pills brought to my attention, I procured a box from Randolph's Pharmacy and was helped from the beginning of their use. I improved steadily from that time on and was soon entirely relieved."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Knight for a Day," with the original company, including John Slavin and May Vokes, is tonight's offering at the New Plainfield theatre.

With a record of one hundred nights run at Wallack's theatre, New York, during the past summer and the emphatic endorsement of the entire corps of critics of Gotham as well as of Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Montreal, Toronto, Julian Edwards' new comic opera, "The Gay Musician," with book and lyrics by Siedle and Campbell, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. Of the twenty comic operas written by Julian Edwards, it is the general opinion that in "The Gay Musician" he has given the public the best work of his career. In his latest effort, the distinguished composer has written music that will undoubtedly last. The country has been surfeited with the strains of "musical reviews" and "musical shows" and has welcomed the melodies of Edwards with pleasure, wherever his comic opera has been heard. The book teems with genuine comedy and has a theme that is consistent, with lines that sparkle with wit, set to harmonies that jingle joyously.

Judging from the demand for seats for Neil Burgess who comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday afternoon and night, a good dramtic treat is in store for theatre-goers in "The County Fair," which will be given during the engagement. Neil Burgess in the character of the old spinster Abigail Prue, is one of the most delightful creations ever protrayed upon the stage and his impersonation of this well known female character has never been equalled. One of the greatest inventions ever attempted on any stage is that of the horse race in the last act in which the horses are obliged to gallop at their topmost speed in order to keep their footing on the mechanical platforms that are used in the race. The race is one of the most thrilling stage effects ever seen and it can be easily imagined that two large baggage cars are required for the transportation of those big machines around the country. Mr. Burgess has engaged a splendid company to appear with him, including that funny comedian Bartley McCullum, Annie Blanke and Gail Y. Towers.

"Lincoln at the White House," the attraction announced for next Wednesday night, is said to resemble the clever dramatization of a pleasing novel full of unexpected delights and thrilling surprises. There is nothing of the set of stereoptpyed nature in any of its features. The plot contains material of real dramatic value and the action is laid at the White House during the term of President Lincoln. The dramatic construction is such that the many incidents in each act form a well defined story. It is brimful of excitement and traverses the entire range of human emotions. It is the kind of drama that appeals to passions; that arouses the audience to demonstrations of affection, hatred, joy and sorrow. These varied sensations are so cleverly drawn by the play-writer that the auditor unconsciously becomes oblivious to his surroundings and follows the action of the play with absorbing interest until the final climax unweaves its remarkable story.

Christian Endeavor Rally.

Martin A. Korff, leader of the Y. M. C. A. Orchestra, will be the speaker at the the rally meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, to be held at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock. The singing will be led by a Christian Endeavor volunteer choir. Each society in the Union will be allotted space as indicated by a card bearing the name of the society. After the rally a brief meeting of the general and finance committees of the Union will be held.

Frederick C. Hyer,
Democratic Candidate for Senator.

Frederick C. Hyer, the Democratic candidate, was born in Rahway, December 10, 1874. He is the only son of Judge Lewis S. Hyer, editor and proprietor of the Union Democrat, published weekly in Rahway. The younger Mr. Hyer is associate editor. He is a descendant of Revolution soldiery in the American army.

Mr. Hyer received his education in the Rahway public school, and shortly after leaving school, became connected with the printing establishment of his father, and assisted in the newspaper and machanical work.

In 1892 he entered the law offices of Shafer & Durand, in Rahway, subsequently attending the New York Law School, from which he graduated with the degree of L. L. B. He then entered as a student in the offices of Guild & Lum, in Newark, and remained with them until 1896, when he was admitted to practice as an atorney. He then took offices in Newark, at the same time doing clerical work in the law offices of John O. H. Pitney. In 1899, Mr. Hyer was admitted to practice as a counselor-at-law, and shortly after opened offices in Rahway, occupying those of the late firm of Shafer & Durand, both members of the firm having then recently died. Since that time he has had a gradual increasing law practice. For several years he has been secretary of the Bar Association of Union County. In 1904 he was honored by the appointment of city attorney for five years, but resigned at the end of one year, finding that the duties interfered with his general practice of law.

THE INK OF DESTINY

By WILL KENYON

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

"Will we make it, Mojave girl?" the gaunt man croaked through cracked and blistered lips to his ratty little mule. The man walked, resting his hand affectionately on the mule's withers.

Before, behind, and everywhere, the desert stretched away in miles of fantastic imagery. Nothing but heat, dust and death. Oppressed with utter loneliness, the gaunt man lifted his voice and cursed, but the vast barrens made a jest of his impotence and turned his oaths to bitter laughter.

Every laboring step a growing agony, resolutely denied. His mouth was as dry as the white bones back yonder, the burnished disk in the heavens seared his eyes, and his brain reeled, but the iron spirit refused to submit to the tyranny of environment. On and on, and on he pressed, his padded footfalls inaudible in the awesome immensity.

The desert rose gently to a rock-ribbed rim, and the added toil of the ascent cruelly taxed the well-nigh spent travelers. Mojave stopped once, and the fear-frenzied man rained futile blows upon her. After a time the brute moved on of her own accord. Thrice they stopped, the breath of life sucking shallowly, raucously in and out of the channels of respiration. At the third halt the man looked about him dully, the volcanic rim which hedged in the desert falling dimly on his filmy vision. It danced and capered against a lake of deep turquoise sky.

He turned stiffly and gazed back across the desert, a quivering hell of sand and painted rocks, done in brick-red and umber, and orange, brown, black and yellow, to the distant mountains loomink large in a violet haze, from whence he had won thus far. Slowly his eye circled back with quickening perception to the flinty barrier. And then he knew. The desert was passed!

With an inarticulate cry rattling in his throat he plunged forward, to have his legs limply refuse him. He lurched drunkenly against Mojave, clutching her gear to keep from falling. Hope died instantly and his travailing soul gave birth to poignant despair.

On the instant an erring wisp of breeze strayed over the desert rim, blowing cool on his cheek, growing stronger and fresher. Mojave threw her head up into the wind like a startled antelope. She snuffed the current for an instant and with a screaming bray breasted the remaining slope, the exhausted man mechanically retaining his hold on her trappings. A glimpse over the brink made him a man again. There lay a rugged, seamy valley, splashed with vivid green grass and sentinel cottonwoods patrolling the banks of a running stream, winding down in silvery reaches and feather-tipped rapids. Water!

Down they plunged, gasping, sliding, leaping, stumbling, insane with thirst, dead to the cruel stab of rock and root—plunged headlong into the cool, shallow stream. The man fondled the water as a miser caresses his gold; he wallowed in it, kissed it, lapped it up greedily like a dog. In the mighty revulsion of feeling the dried-up wells of his eyes filled again, and he wept.

Three things bring a man to such a pass. Lust for gold, love for a woman, and revenge. Aaron Whipple knew not this last, but the other two were inseparably woven into the fabric of his life, a strangely intricate pattern. Lust for gold and love for a woman had carried him far afield to the violet mountains lying behind the fearsome desert, and love for a woman had urged him through two score miles of heat, thirst and death to keep his knightly word to that woman.

As he lay there on the dry sands, his blistered feet laving in the refreshing waters of the singing stream, the sun's heat mercifully tempered by grateful breezes, with new strength streaming into every fiber of his being and the gift of life flowing evenly through his veins again—under such strange circumstances this man of iron did the most unexpected thing in the world.

Fumbling with stiffened fingers at the neck of his flannel shirt he drew forth a worn packet of oiled silk, neatly sewn with even stitches; long and round and slender. He placed it in his lap and then searched out a tiny celluloid calendar, a miniature record of the twelvemonth. Each small square allotted to a day had been pierced through with a pin, one every 24 hours, until there remained but one intact—that of the last day of the year. This Aaron punctured, and the cycle was complete.

In a fit of sullen wrath he tore the calendar to bits and tossed the ghostly record of a vanished year to the winds, each pinhole the mute testimony of herculean labor; each day an eternity of crushed hope and sterile endeavor.

Turning eagerly to the packet he ripped off the coverings, disclosing a fountain pen, a hard-rubber reservoir of ink, a stamped envelope and several sheets of note paper—strange things to interest a man set down a hundred miles from any known habitation. On one closely written sheet were these words:

Dear Aaron: To-day you are keeping the compact made one year ago. I wonder where you are and what you are doing—how it fares with you, and, so, with me. God grant that all is well with you, and that the words you are about to pen will bring joy to my heart, faint with the longing, and the waiting, and the dread uncertainty. It was brave of you to challenge fate alone in the wild mountain fastnesses, but rash—oh, so rash!—to limit yourself to one short year. I have faith in you, Aaron; I believe in your scientific knowledge. But even science may pass by the gold you covet. Don't you see it leaves too much to blind chance?—that you have no right to put me in the balance against Luck?

You don't know how I tremble as I write and make ready my little packet. I call this writing fluid the ink of destiny, and I pray that, for the sake of your pride and for the sake of that thing men call honor, the message you write will be in script of gleaming gold. But whatever comes, whatever fortune brings you, dear, do not deny me because of that foolish compact which binds no one other than yourself. I will wait. Come to me, and we will win out together.

Lovingly, faithfully,
JANET SEWARD.

His fingers closed convulsively on the letter, his head bowed hopelessly and the darkest hour Aaron Whipple ever knew descended upon him.

Science and trained acuteness had availed him nothing; the everlasting hills had mocked every effort and the glistening sands had laughed and held close their secret hoards of golden grains. Time and time again he had assaulted the flanks of granite mountains, delving with pick anl shovel and rude windlass; had burrowed deep in sands of promise, only to abandon and hurry on with renewed hope, leaving a tortuous and pock-marked trail a full thousand miles long, behind him. Bitter defeat lay behind him; before him lay the bitterest thing of them all—the confession of failure to the woman he loved.

But it was to do this very thing that he had walked through the valley of death, and he faced his present, not daring to venture even a little way into the future. Awkwardly filling the pen he tested the broad stub on his thumb-nail—the clerkly habit of years—smoothed out the crisp sheets and composed himself to write, the ink of destiny flowing smoothly in firm, heavy characters.

One page was filled, and Aaron instinctively glanced about for a blotter to take up the surplusage of ink.

"Janet forgot that," he laughed tremulously.

Impatient at the slight delay he took up a handful of fine, powdery sand and sifted it over the letter, as his ancestors had done from time immemorial. The wind whipped away some as it fell, the rest lingering thirstily. Aaron raised the sheet to blow away those fine particles remaining, when suddenly his eye was caught and held by several glistening yellow flecks adhering to line and dot and character.

"Gold! Gold!" he screamed, his eyes a-glitter with the prospector's lust. "Gold! Janet's prayer—'in script of gleaming gold.' It can't be true. Dear God, don't flout me now!"

Leaping to his feet, unmindful of the exquisite agony, he caught up a gold-pan from his camp utensils, scooped it full of sand and waded into the running stream. Dipping the pan in the water he rocked it with the miner's peculiar cradling motion, tilting so that the lighter stuff flowed out with the waste, the heavier particles puddling down to the bottom. As the water exhausted itself, he dipped up more, always cradling rhythmically, until there remained the final sediment—What?

Aaron scanned the bottom of the pan with straining eyes, each muscle set, each nerve tense as a piano wire, his breathing almost at a standstill, the blood booming in his ears. Ah! A tremor ran over him as the gleaming yellow grains of gold went rolling and sliding and spilling about in the thin film of water. He began to count, but fancy outstripped him.

"A hundred and fifty colors—200—in one little pan!" he cried, utterly unstrung by this miracle he had been courting daily for a weary year.

In a delirium of excitement he ran far up the sandy bar and washed another pan; the yield was the same. Like a wild thing he raced with the stream to a point far below, where again the heavy yellow metal puddled thickly in the pan. El Dorado lay as a carpet under the feet of Aaron Whipple.

"I have won!" he cried with a passionate gesture. "The sands of Midas! All mine!—all mine!—and Janet's," he added softly.

A piece of paper fluttered along the sands to his feet. It was her letter. Reverently he picked it up. One turn of fickle fortune's wheel, and how differently those words called to him!

"Ah, yes, Janet," he whispered. "I will write and write and write, and the message will be in script of gleaming gold."

How Sundaes Were Named.

Many queries with regard to the origin of the word "Sundae" have been made, and a considerable number of theories about it have been exploited. The most popular one seems rather prosaic. Its locale is reported to have been New Orleans, where a progressive but unlucky soda water dispenser found himself one bright and warm Sunday afternoon entirely out of carbonized water, with no chance to renew his supply. There was a constant demand for his services, and after repeatedly answering the embarrassing question why he was unable to produce the drinks, in desperation he hurriedly mixed ice cream and fruit syrups into a frozen concoction, which greatly delighted his customers. During the following week days he had so many calls for "that Sunday recipe" that the idea flashed over him that it would be a good thing to put it regularly on his bill of fare. A well-meaning but uneducated clerk who prepared the menu, did the trick of transforming "Sunday" into "Sundae," and the palate-tickler has remained "Sundae" ever since.

QUALITY and PRICE

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

On the Other Shore

By C. T. RYDER

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

When you have been paddling for a week and a half down an unmapped Canadian river, with very little variety of scenery and none whatever of anything else, when you begin to think it doubtful whether there is any way out, and highly improbable that you ever find it, when your companion's voice makes you wriggle and you hate to meet each other's eyes, then it is as good as being snatched from the jaws of death to see the smoke of somebody else's camp down the next bend.

Arthur May and I were in the condition described on the twenty-eighth of August, 190—, at eighty thirty in the morning. At that moment we slid out of a big bullrushy meadow upon a lake about five miles long by three miles wide, and probably very beautiful if one were in a condition to care. But the thing that absorbed our attention was a canoe drawn up on the other shore about a mile away, and the gleam of a duck tent through the trees.

As we came near the shore I thought I distinguished through the trees two persons sitting on the ground beside the tent, but before I had fully made them out the bow of our canoe touched the shore, and I jumped out and pulled up.

Down the bank to meet us came the most extraordinary spectacle of a man I have ever seen in my life. He was, I should think, between 25 and 30 years old, tall and naturally of a powerful build, but in the most pitiful state of starvation. His shirt was open at the throat, and his bones positively glistened white through his brown skin. But the most astonishing and shocking thing about him was the perfect poise and good breeding with which he greeted us, just as though he were putting us at our ease at some commonplace reception in town.

"Good morning," he said. "My name is Waite—Chandler Waite."

We conformed as best we could, returned his greeting and told him our names.

"Delighted to see you," he went on with that awful incongruous savoir faire, "though I am afraid I can't offer you very hospitable entertainment. Won't you come up and meet my wife?"

He turned and led the way up the bank. At the tent he stopped and bowed back to us, his strange eyes directed toward us with the most indescribable lack of focus, like a man walking in his sleep.

"Margaret, let me introduce Mr. Kimball and Mr. May; gentlemen, my wife."

She was sitting against a tree and she did not move to acknowledge the introduction. She was stone dead.

We looked back at Waite, expecting some instant sign of shock; but he showed no surprise.

"You will pardon her not rising—she has seemed very tired for some days. I am afraid the trip has been too much for her; she has always been somewhat delicate."

He evidently expected us to shake hands with her, and one after the other we lifted the pitiful little limp hand and dropped it back on her lap. She was very small and had been pretty, and she had evidently died in such a quiet, patient way.

Arthur and I looked at each other and grit our teeth. Arthur was the first to pull himself together.

"Mr. Waite," he said, "I don't know whether you've had your breakfast yet, but we haven't had ours, and if you'll allow us to cook on your clearing we'll be very much obliged—possibly you'll join us if you haven't breakfasted."

The man said: "Certainly," with an air of being glad to confer a favor. The idea of hunger had evidently passed completely out of his mind.

We built a fire, and brought coffee, bacon, and biscuit up from the canoe—only a little, because much will kill a man who has starved for many days. When everything was ready we served it to him in his own cup and plate. He took them, but only to set them down before the dead woman.

"Mr. Kimball and Mr. May have not breakfasted—shall we keep them company?" And the astonishing thing is, that when she did not touch the food he himself refused to eat. We urged him and plead with him, but with the same ghastly courtesy he remained firm. I think he no more knew that he was hungry than he knew that she was dead.

After the travesty of breakfast Arthur and I went down to the shore, ostensibly to wash the dishes, really to settle our course of action. Here we were, at large in the province of Quebec and more or less lost, with not more than enough provisions at best; and now, in addition to this, we were intrusted with the care of a man starved crazy and refusing to eat, and a dead woman whom he supposed alive.

We went over all this together, and ended by deciding to try dinner and supper, hoping for some spontaneous clearing of Waite's mind. If none came, to risk the shock and try to explain to him the real state of the case.

Dinner was a repetition of the same grim farce which we had witnessed at breakfast. Waite offered food to the dead woman and when she did not move refused to eat anything himself. After dinner Arthur took the canoe and explored the lake, looking at once for the outlet and for food, while I stayed at camp.

I suppose strange and terrible things are common enough in the world, but I hope I shall never have to go through anything more strange and terrible than what took place at that camp.

Waite sat for awhile in silence, and then rose and went into the tent. He walked exactly like an automaton, with a distinct pause and effort before each step. In a moment he came back with a book, sat down again beside the body, and began to read aloud. The book was some French romance, and the incongruity of the thing was simply hysterical. He had been reading for about an hour, with great interest and expression, when his voice suddenly sank and petered out like a run-down phonograph, and he toppled over across the body of his wife.

I went to him and put my ear to his breast. His heart was still beating, but fluttery, and only about 40 to the minute. Left to himself he would not regain consciousness; he might die in five minutes, or live an hour or two. I confess that for a moment I was tempted to let the man die. Even while those thoughts were suggesting themselves to me, I had got the brandy flask, and was pouring a little of the liquor between his lips. His pulse strengthened, and his breathing became somewhat less shallow. I spread a blanket beside the tent—out of sight of the dead woman—and laid him there, then made a little thin corn gruel, the nearest approach to invalid food that our supplies afforded, and forced it down his passive throat.

And now there was nothing to do but wait for Arthur. As I sat there I tried to plan for the future. When he becomes conscious, if his delusion persists, it will be the same thing over again. If he is sane, what can we tell him? If he sees the body, the shock will probably kill him or destroy his sanity again. My course was plain. I must bury the body at once.

There was no use hesitating. I lifted the body and carried it some hundred feet back from the lake; it was no heavier than a child. There I buried it, breaking the soft earth with my hunting knife and spading it up with my hands. Poor little girl.

It was sunset when I finished my work and came back to the camp. Waite was lying as I had left him, breathing as easily and regularly as in sleep. To my surprise, Arthur had not yet come back. I made more of the gruel and gave it to the unconscious man, then ate a little myself and lay back on the ground beside him.

I have no excuse except exhaustion, but contrary to all resolution and duty, I fell asleep. I must have slept about three hours. When I woke it was with a start, like a sudden sharp contraction of every nerve in my body. My eyes came wide open all at once, and I saw that it was night, and bright moonlight, and at the same instant I saw Waite standing erect in front of me. I lay there perfectly motionless.

He stood there for a second or two, with the moon shining straight into his great, light-blue eyes, looking at nothing. Then, as I stared at them, they suddenly began to change and clarify like the image in an opera glass when you turn the screw. An indescribable difference came over not only his face, but his whole form, and he spoke the one word—"Dead."

Then he spread his hands slightly toward the place where I had buried his wife, took a couple of steps, and fell full length on the ground. When I reached the body the spirit of Chandler Waite had joined that of his wife on the other shore.

About dawn Arthur came back. He had found the outlet, followed it for a mile or two to make sure, and got lost in a backwater. We buried Waite with his wife, and sank their canoe and kit in the middle of the lake, not liking to think of anyone else using them.

Some days later we reached the lumber village of Mishawee, and found that Waite and his wife had passed through there on their way up.

"Poor lad; poor lad," said our French-Canadian host. "He would take no advice. But, ah, M'sieu', what love!"

Making Them Pay.

Anyone who has tried to collect a claim from a railroad company and has met with insolence and delay will appreciate this story of how Senator Warren of Wyoming got a settlement.

Coming to Washington for one session of congress, Senator Warren's trunk became lost. It contained, besides his own belongings, some of the most expensive gowns of his wife and daughter. Long and diligent search failing to bring the trunk to light, Senator Warren put in a claim for damages. The railroad company ignored the claim. Congress adjourned and Warren returned to Cheyenne, but still there was no settlement of the claim. The senator decided it was time to act. He stationed an agent in the railroad yards at Cheyenne with instructions to notify him as soon as a freight car belonging to the railroad which had lost his trunk made its appearance. Such a car showed up one day, and Warren immediately went before a local magistrate and swore out a writ of attachment. Then he wired the headquarters of the railroad company, telling what he had done. That very day an answer came, stating that a check in full of the claim was on its way—and wouldn't Senator Warren please release the attached car?

ELISE'S CALLER

"I am glad," said Mrs. Clurger, "really glad that Lon is not home this evening! He has such decided views. Besides, he has always said that when his daughter was old enough to have callers he intended to take his newspaper and stay in the room to chaperon her. I can't seem to make him see how unnatural and awkward he would make the poor child by doing so.

Elise.

"Of course" she admitted, "Elise is only 14 and it is absurd to say that Roy is a real caller, but it's the first time a boy has ever come formally to see Elise. She asked him to her class dance and his sister phoned today that he was going to do the proper thing and call to-night. Why, I'm as nervous as I can be, mother! After Roy gets here I'm going upstairs so that Elise won't feel embarrassed. If Lon were here he'd embarrass the children to death. That meeting downtown was providential."

When the bell rang Mrs. Clurger and her mother rose precipitately and the former welcomed the flushed and painfully dressed-up boy of 16 who was ushered in. At Elise's haughty entrance, slightly marred by her short skirts and a stumble over the rug, her mother hastily and mirthfully withdrew, gasping into her own mother's ear broken remarks about how funny it was.

"It brings back memories of my own," said the elder woman, with cheerful malice.

"He'll be gone by nine o'clock," murmured Mrs. Clurger, as she proceeded to write some letters.

At a quarter past nine she looked up with a start.

"Mercy!" she said. "What can they find to talk about? Lon'll be home any time now—and he loves so to tease! I wouldn't hurt Roy's feelings for the world! I think—yes, I'll drop my shoes over their heads!"

Two heavy thumps resulted in no cessation of the chatter in the library below. Mrs. Cluger began walking up and down.

"I never thought to tell Elise that he mustn't stay late," she murmured. "I thought she'd know that!"

"You always said under like circumstances," put in her mother, who was enjoying herself very much, "that you couldn't very well tell the boys to go home and that you were helpless in the situation. I fancy that Elise is helpless also."

"If it wasn't for Lon!" worried Mrs. Clurger, discreetly passing by the reminiscences of her early life. "I can understand that Elise doesn't know what to do or how to get rid of Roy or that Roy doesn't know how to make his escape—but you know how a man is! Why, Lon would just roar with laughter if he came in at ten and found his 14-year-old daughter sitting up entertaining a caller!"

She went out on the stair landing. "Roy," she called, sweetly, "when you go home—when you go home, I say, would you mind telling your sister that I wish she'd call me up on the phone to-morrow, as I want to speak to her?"

"No, ma'am, not at all," responded Roy with nervous heartiness.

The conversation in the library was resumed.

"I had no idea that Elise had enough things to talk about to fill up 15 minutes," said Mrs. Clurger, plaintively. "I have another idea— Gracious! Was that Lon on the front porch?"

She flew to her desk telephone and, calling up the telephone exchange, asked the operator to ring the bell of the downstairs telephone. It was always Elise's task to answer that bell. For five minutes the downstairs telephone bell sizzed and rang spasmodically, but to deaf ears. In the library Elise was playing the perfect lady to whom telephones were things to be attended to by housemaids or small children.

Mrs. Clurger was nearly in tears. "What shall I do, mother?" she wailed.

"Excuse me for laughing," said her mother. "I have done what you are doing so many times in my life. I never really saw justice overtake a sinner before. I really can't sympathize with you as I should."

It was 20 minutes of 11 when Elise's caller departed. When she came upstairs her mother grabbed her.

"I hear your father's latchkey," she almost hissed. "Hurry into your room and don't dare make a light to go to bed by! If he knew—"

Elise flew from her mother's hands like the wind. Mrs. Clurger drew her first long breath of relief as her husband came upstairs at a leisurely pace.

It was over the telephone next day that Mrs. Clurger got the rest of the story.

"I asked Roy," gurgled Roy's sister, "what under creation he could scrape up to talk about for three mortal hours and he said—he said he didn't have to talk—that Elise did all that!"

"The idea!" exclaimed Elise's mother. Then her thoughts went back to the days when she herself was a girl! "Well, maybe she did!" admitted Elise's mother.—Chicago Daily News.

NOTHING LIKE THIS IN LIFE.

Things Don't Come So Easy for the American Father.

The American father of the heiress greeted the count who was a suitor for her hand with dignified frigidity.

"Sare," said the count, "your daughter has done me ze honnaire of consenting to be my wife. I am called to complete ze negotiations."

"All right," wearily said the father. "How much of a cash settlement do you expect?"

"Nossing, sare."

"What! How much will I have to pay for your poker debts?"

"Nossing, sare; I do not gamble."

"How much will I have to put up to settle breach of promise cases brought by chorus girls?"

"Nossing, sare; I do not flirt."

"How much will I have to pay to rebuild your castle?"

"Nossing, sare; it is in fine repair."

"But there must be some expense for me. Out with it."

"No, sare; nossing. I simply love your daughter and she loves me, and we wish to be married. Is not zat enough? Is it not enough to ask you to give me your daughter wizzout your expecting to—"

"Come to my arms!" exclaimed the American father, and tried to fall upon the neck of the delighted count.

But he awoke on the floor, having tumbled from the bed as a finish to his amazing dream.—Judge.

SURVIVED THE LOSS OF BRAIN.

Brooklyn Man Lost Four Ounces as Result of Injury.

With his brain smaller by four ounces than when he fired a bullet into his head on April 3, Jacob Ritz within a few days will be discharged, cured, from St. Mary's hospital in Brooklyn, says the New York Press. His case has drawn the attention of physicians from all parts of the city. The hospital doctors said the recovery was one of the most remarkable on record.

It was thought that even if Ritz survived he would lose sight and taste, as the bullet passed through the part of the brain controlling these senses. Repeated tests, however, have shown his sight has not been impaired and that his taste is as sensitive as ever.

A bullet plowed through Ritz's brain, fracturing the skull on both sides and passing through the frontal lobes. He lay unconscious for several days. A tumor formed between the brain and skull and pressed upon the injured lobes. A rubber tube was inserted in the bullet hole in the right temple and the tumor was drained off. Before Ritz began to recover the physicians removed, through the bullet hole, part of his brain, weighing in all about four ounces.

Psychology and Religion.

We venture to say that the time has come when the church must enter more deeply into the personal lives of people and make a freer use of the means of modern science and the gospel of Christ placed at her disposal if she is to continue even to hold her own. . . . The teachings of modern psychology and physiology as to the essential unity of human nature and the mutual relations of mind and body have sunk so deep into the popular conscience that the church can no longer address men as disembodied spirits, and no scheme of salvation causes the heart to beat with hope which does not include the whole man, and which does not begin now. . . . If the nineteenth century was materialistic and critical, the first half of the twentieth century promises to be mystical and spiritual.—Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, in "Religion and Medicine."

Men Are More Romantic.

Men are said to be more romantic than women, as what woman ever cares to read poetry aloud? And how many poor women have spent hours of martyrdom listening to some man pour forth his soul in some one else's verse. The majority of sweethearts find it easy enough, but to wives it is generally nothing else than a bore, which should not be the case; at least, the wife should not allow the hubsand to find it out, and should regard her own lack of interest as a fault.

An American Venice.

It is a surprising thing to know that New York city, although not known at the American Venice, contains more islands than any city but Venice, for within its boundaries are 31 separate and distinct islands, most of which, encircled by deep water, will afford unlimited shipping accommodations and dockage for the commerce for future years, to reach undreamed of proportions, judging from past and present growth.—National Magazine.

The Base Ball Spirit.

"The base ball spirit is a wonderful and impressive thing," said a New Haven barber. "New manifestations of it continually crop up.

"Tad Jones, the great Yale catcher, flopped into that red plush chair there the other day.

"'Shave, sir?' said I.

"'No,' said he. 'Throat cut. Yale lost.'"

That Indefinable Air.

"There's no use talkin'," said Farmer Corntassel, as he knocked the ashes out of his corncob and laid it on the mantelpiece, "there's something about a college education that does give a young feller polish."

"Do you think our boy Josh is improved?"

"Yep. He kin smoke a pipe in a way that makes it look real stylish."

BUYING POOR WOMAN'S SMILE.

Homely Mr. Gwillkintoss Accomplishes This at Very Little Cost.

"Can a woman's smile be bought? Well, yes," said Mr. Gwillkintoss, "sometimes, and it may be for little money.

"Here is a woman who for weeks has been sitting on a downtown doorstep selling shoestrings. This is a disused door and so she interferes with nobody and nobody interferes with her, and so she sits there, with her stock spread over the greater part of the step, while she sits at the other end, holding on her arm an infant.

"And it always seemed to me that trade must be dull with her, because I never saw anybody buy of her; and finally I thought it was up to me to buy something and sort of help trade along a little. Because, you see, while the profit on shoestrings is very large, still you don't make anything at all unless you sell some.

"So I thought I'd buy a pair, which was easy to do, for the reason that she had a good stock. Not a skimpy little mess thrown down there on the doorstep to attract attention to her and the child, but a real assortment to choose from; and it wouldn't be any charity to buy of her.

"So I stopped and looked the stock over and selected strings of the exact length I wanted, and I found these there with tips of the particular kind I like best, she looking on while I was making my selection; and when I handed over the nickel she looked up a little at her customer and signified her thanks with a pleased little smile, for every nickel counted, and I am afraid that business had been dull with her."

PLATES WORTH SMALL FORTUNE.

Have the Valuable Peculiarity of Constantly Growing.

"If you could eat your dinner off a service like this, now!" said a collector of porcelain, taking a strange, bright plate from a cabinet. "Why, such a service would be worth $100,000 or more."

The plate's surface was covered with an irregular and glittering crystalline growth a half-inch high. Beautiful crystals, in their graceful outline suggesting quaint pagodas and gnarled trees, rose up everywhere from the porcelain pattern.

"It is," said the collector, "a growing plate. It is one of those plates whose clay, containing aluminum and magnesium, causes an outgrowth of crystals under the enamel. Such plates are very rare. I paid $2,000 for this one.

"Only a half-dozen growing plates are known. One, that belongs to a Boston collector, is valued at $4,500. Another, that had belonged to a poor New York woman who attached no value to it, sold at auction in '91 for $3,700.

"It is interesting to have a growing plate in your collection. This specimen here has put forth three crystals under that little blue mountain design since it came into my hands."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Appearances.

"One day down in Texas," said a civil engineer, "I was sitting on the porch of my hotel with a fresh youngster from the north. On his right sat a plain old man, smoking a cob pipe with the kernels left on it.

"'Ye gods,' said my friend, 'what do you think of that for nerve. Sitting right up against a gentleman and puffing his old dope right in my face. Here, you, clear out with that pipe. Move clear over on the other side so the smoke won't blow this way. You are making a nuisance of yourself.'

"'All right,' said the old man, meekly. 'I'll move.'

"He did so. 'John,' said I, 'do you know who that old gentleman is you talked to like that?'

"'Nope, don't know and don't care.'

"'That is the governor of Texas.' It really was."

Electricity from Human Body.

That electricity, heat and ether are one and the same fluid is the assertion of Frederick Hovendon of London, who also claims that every person exhales electricity from the finger tips and that he can take moving pictures of the process. To do this he fills a square glass box with cigarette smoke, mixed with air. The experimenter thrusts a finger through a hole in the bottom of the glass box and a powerful arc lamp is turned on. The ether or electricity is immediately seen issuing from the finger tips and photographed.—Popular Mechanics.

Pleasant Morning Chat.

Overheard in Broadway:

"When I scuffle with him, just before I strangle him, you rush forward, knock the bottle of poison from my hand, and say: 'Fair play, fair play.' Then grab the two pistols, rush to the window, left center, and yell: 'Stand back! I shoot to kill!' That's the signal for the cabin to be blown up by dynamite, and I fall on top of Bunco Bill's body, with blood streaming from my mouth. You tear the papers from his bosom, and as the roof falls on you, shout: 'The girl is mine!'"

A Study in Natural History.

Three-year-old Roger had seen a mouse before, but never one in a trap. Going into the kitchen the other morning, he discovered a strange-looking contrivance on the floor, with a tiny mouse caught fast in it. For a minute he looked at the thing in puzzled silence. Then he observed, thoughtfully:

"Well, I didn't know there was a mouse in our house with a red thing like that on him!"

HUNT CLUB'S ACTIVITIES

Organization Has Prepared an Elaborate Program of Winter Events.

"OPEN HOUSE" ELECTION DAY.

Chase in the Morning, Races in the Afternoon and Election Returns a Feature at Night.

The Watchung Hunt Club is planning an elaborate program of winter events which is sure to enliven the social season in Plainfield. Real activities will begin on Election Day when a full program will be arranged for the enjoyment of the club members and their friends. The clubhouse will be open all day and evening for the entertainment of guests and members will be privileged to invite as many friends as they desire.

In the morning there will be a chase after the hounds, the hunters meeting at the New Market pond at 10:30. In addition there will be tennis and other out-of-door sports at the club. At noon luncheon will be served. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a program of races on the club grounds, the first of which will be one mile on the flat, sweepstakes of $5 each, seventy-five per cent. to the first; fifteen per cent. to the second and ten per cent. to the third, for horses which have not won under jockey club rules, within a year from date of entry; weight 160 pounds; half-breds allowed ten pounds, ponies 14-3 hands or under allowed fifteen pounds; gentlemen riders allowed five pounds.

The second event will be a steeplechase about two miles; sweepstakes of $5 each, for four year olds and upwards; weight 165 pounds; half-breds allowed ten pounds; gentlemen riders allowed five pounds.

The third event will be a hunters' steeplechase about two miles; sweepstakes of $5 each; weight 165 pounds; half-breds allowed ten pounds; gentlemen riders allowed five pounds. Unless four or more horses start in each event, third money will be divided between first and second horse.

The fourth race will be a quarter-mile on the flat; sweepstakes of $5 each; ponies 14-3 and under; weight 155 pounds; gentlemen riders allowed five pounds. The committee in charge comprises H. A. Bourne, C. E. S. Bellows and Lewis E. Waring.

It has been arranged to serve a table d'hote dinner at 6 o'clock, and those intending to be present should notify the steward not later than Sunday night.

A big feature in the evening will be the plan to receive the election returns at the clubhouse by special telegraph wire. In order to do this it has been necessary to run two and half miles of wire. The returns will be posted in the main room of the clubhouse; also the grill room. Between 11 and 12 o'clock at night a fine buffet luncheon will be served to the members and guests. It is fully expected that at least 400 people will be at the club throughout the day.

Invitations have been issued to the members of the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Club to partake of the hunt club's hospitality for the day, and members of other hunt clubs in the metropolitan district have also been invited and their horses will be entered in the afternoon races.

CAME HERE FOR WORK BUT GOT LOCKED UP.

Frank Ieury, who said he had a wife in Newark, was so anxious to get work in a piano factory he had heard was in Plainfield that he fell off the train which brought him here late yesterday afternoon and increased his weight by embedding about a quart of gravel ballast from the North Avenue station platform in his face and hands. From his behavior, Detective-Sergeant Flynn concluded that he had some pints of liquor in his make-up, so he was taken to a cell for the night.

At his hearing before City Judge Runyon today, he said he had been last employed at Steinway's piano factory and had come to town for similar work. The judge assured him that there is no piano factory here. He looked crestfallen. "Newark lies over that way," concluded the judge, pointing, "so you'd better go back to your wife."

"Geg'an'gen?" asked Ieury.

"Yah, gegangen," said the judge.

And, fixing his eyes in the direction indicated, Ieury left the courtroom.

JUROR REPRIMANDED IN THE DISTRICT COURT

For an infraction of the law governing the action of juries in that he left the jury room in search of further information after the evidence in the case was all in, Charles Woolston was summoned to appear before Judge William Newcorn in the district court, this morning to show cause why he should not be punished. Mr. Woolston admitted the charge against him and Judge Newcorn severely reprimanded him. His remarks were not only intended for the one juror, but for all who were in the court. He clearly defined the law in such cases and gave everyone to understand that any future infractions would be severely dealt with.

The case in question was that of Christopher S. Meyers against the Public Service Corporation. After the evidence was all in and the jury retired to find a verdict, Mr. Woolston left the room to obtain further information. The law is very specific on this point and strictly prohibits a juryman from leaving the room or conversing with any outside persons relative to the case until after the jury is discharged by the court.

Two other members of the jury were guilty of similar offences, but there was some doubt as to who they were and as the two mentioned declared their innocence, the court accepted their statements.

OFFICIALS HOLD FURTHER TRUNK SEWER CONFERENCE

Official representatives from New Brunswick, Fanwood and Scotch Plains, met the special sanitary sewer commission from this city, in the Common Council rooms, last night, and expressed their willingness and desire to join with the other municipalities in this vicinity in the proposition to establish a trunk line sewer. They realize that now is the time to lend their influence and make arrangements to get in the proposed sewer, as there is little prospect of any other solution to the problem in their towns. The representatives present last night gave assurance that the muncipalities from which they came would be willing to stand their proportionate share of the expense for investigation.

The municipalities now interested in the proposition include Plainfield, North Plainfield, Fanwood, Scotch Plains, Dunellen, Bound Brook, South Bound Brook, and New Brunswick, while it is expected that Raritan and Somerville will also join in the scheme.

Hering & Fuller, of New York, the engineers engaged to make the preliminary survey are progressing well with the work and it is expected that a report will be ready for the special sewer commission in the near future. Until that is ready the commission is not in a position to say whether tidewater or sewage beds will be the best means of sewage disposal. It is expected that the report will give sufficient data which will help the commission to decide this matter.

WOMEN HOLD "BRIDGE LUNCHEON" AT HUNT CLUB.

The Watchung Hunt Club extended the use of the clubhouse yesterday to the women friends for the first of a series of social functions to be held during the winter months. Yesterday's affair was a "bridge luncheon," and it was a delightful one. Fully seventy women were present as guests and the men's grill room was thrown open for the afternoon. There were eighteen tables, and the guests were made up of sevral parties, it being optional with each group whether they wanted to play for prizes.

The luncheon was one of the pleasing features, comprising boullion, lobster a la Newburg, celery, almonds, broiled squab on toast, potatoes, salad, ice cream, cake and coffee. The women fully appreciated the courtesy of the club and are anticipating many similar affairs during the coming season.

Social Season at Park Club.

The opening of the fall and winter social season at the Park Club will take place tomorrow night, when a program of unusual merit will be presented. Miss Saunders, daughter of W. L. Saunders, will give several original monologues, and a quartet from Yale will give a number of selections. There will be the usual dance.

Only One Contested Case.

The weekly session of the district court this morning, was a short one, there being but one contested case, that of Worth & Marsh against W. H. Bohl, on contract. Judgment was given the plaintiffs for $264.31.

IN ACKERMAN'S DEFENSE

Union County Voters of All Parties Issue a Letter Upholding His Record.

CLAIM IT IS UNIMPEACHABLE.

Resenting People's Lobby Attack Reputable Citizens Urge that He Be Supported at the Polls.

Resenting the attack on State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, made by the People's Lobby, many of his friends in Union county have issued a letter which is being generally circulated with a view to presenting in a few words the admirable record of the Senator during his service in the Legislature.

The circular has been signed by Democrats and Independents as well as Republicans, and among those from this city whose names appear on the circular are Alexander Gilbert, Frederick W. Yates, George S. Clay, Leighton Calkins, George Wharton Edwards, Frank L. Clark, J. E. Erickson, Henry C. Titus, B. O. Bowers, Samuel Huntington, Walter E. Stewart, Archibald Cox, George R. Cornwell, Robert H. Cox and Dr. Albert Pittis.

The circular declares that Senator Ackerman's record has been unimpeachable; he has stood for clean laws and solely for the betterment of the people, as his votes on various measures show. Attention is called to the fact that in certain quarters there is a movement to discredit him and not return him to the Senate, on account of his having advocating and advancing laws which mean higher standards in government service and morals.

The signers then urge all good citizens of the county, irrespective of party affiliations, to turn out en masse, and do personal work for the Senator's election, to give to him the assurance, by an overwhelming majority, that the people are behind him as he stands for good government in New Jersey.

There is probably no better informed man regarding State affairs than former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, and he is constantly in touch with Legislative matters. Although a prominent Democrat, he never fails to realize that which is for the best in the other party. When interviewed today as to his opinion of the People's Lobby attack on Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, he expressed himself as follows:

"Who are these lobbyists who call themselves the "People's Lobby?" Who elected them to office and are they responsible to anybody but themselves? I called up the "Seminary" and the "Hartridge School" to ask if their kindergarten departments had any such sub-division, but could find none. I have asked several people on the street, but nobody claims them. One man's answer was to point his finger heaven-ward, but when I looked I saw only the milky-way.

"If these self-constituted moral censors have come that way they really ought to fly back, have another measure, and return to earth with halos that fit them. Really, these "people" have taken upon themselves a great responsibility in attacking Senator Ackerman. To compare people's lobby men to the Senator is to match a mewing puss with a Bengal tiger. Senator Ackerman is respected, admired and loved by all who know him whether they be Democrats or Republicans. He has been put in office by the real people. His record is as 'clean as a hounds' tooth.' He has conscience character and ability. His backbone can be seen through his coat and any organization which puts this man on any list but the 'First and Best' makes a confession of political vacuity comparable only with a last year's birds' nest!"

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS AT TWO FACTORIES TODAY

Three noon-day Republican meetings were held here today, one at the Potter Press Works, where the employes were addressed by Captain Robert Kirkland, the candidate for sheriff, another one at the Rushmore Dynamo Works, where the men were addressed by former Assemblyman Garrabrant, of Essex county, and the third at Scott Press Works. Captain Kirkland was accompanied to Potter's by Tax Collector William R Townsend, while City Chairman W. S. Angleman went to Rushmore's plant with Mr. Garrabrant.

At all the meetings there was a large gathering of men and the fundamental principles of Republicanism as well as the strong characteristics of the candidates on the ticket. Captain Kirkland made a decided hit with the men at Potter's and they gave every evidence that they would support him. Mr. Kirkland reviewed briefly county issues and made a strong appeal to every voter to support all the Republican candidates.

Mr. Garrabrant treated national issues almost entirely and presented them in a forcible manner. He had the close attention of every one in his large audience and his speech was marked by frequent applause.

THEATRE RALLY TONIGHT

Republicans Plan for a Big Audience at Their Final Mass Meeting.

GOVERNOR FORT TO SPEAK.

Congressman Fowler and County Candidates Also Scheduled to Make Addresses—Women Invited.

All arrangements are completed for the monster Republican mass meeting to be held at the New Plainfield theatre tonight and there is every indication that there will be capacity audience of voters to hear Governor J. Franklin Fort and Congressman Charles Newell Fowler, the principal speakers of the evening. An extra attraction will be vocal selections by the Plainfield High School glee club.

City Chairman Winfield S. Angleman will be in charge of the meeting and more than two hundred prominent Republicans have been invited to serve as vice-presidents. All of the county candidates will be present and some of them will speak.

The women are especially invited to the meeting and seats will be reserved for them. They are requested to come to the theatre early so that they may have no trouble in being seated.

This will be the last Republican mass meeting in Plainfield and the city and county committees are especially anxious to make it one of the largest and best held in the county. Both Governor Fort and Congressman Fowler will treat with State and National issues, while the county candidates will talk of local issues. All voters should be particularly interested in this meeting and attend. It is also expected that Congressman Fowler will have something to say concerning the "guaranteed banks" question which is being advocated by William Jennings Bryan.

Following the meeting at the theatre, Governor Fort will go to Somerville, where he will address a large Republican mass meeting. He will be the guest of Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen over night, returning to his home tomorrow.

AUTO AGENT HELD CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Harry S. Pfieffer, an automobile agent with an office in Westfield avenue, Elizabeth, was held under bonds by Judge Owen P. The amount involved is $500.

Pfieffer, the charge states, had recently contracted for the purchase of the agency of an automobile concern, the amount to be paid by him for the privilege of selling to be something over $2,000. $300 of this money, it is said, was paid by the defendant and with the rest of the money still owing it is alleged that he represented himself as the agent of the concern and transacted a deal which involved the $300, Thompson being the alleged victim.

COMMUTOR RECOVERS FOR PICKED-UP TICKET

In the district court, this morning, Judge William Newcorn gave a decision in the case of S. Henry Rosenbaum against the New Jersey Central, in which the former sought to recover $200 for the loss of a commutation ticket, which was taken up while he was a passenger on one of the company's trains, and subsequent humiliation. In his decision, Judge Newcorn reviewed the evidence and in conclusion stated that the company had failed to sustain its position and he therefore returned a verdict for the plaintiff, allowing him $14.20.

The action was brought against the company by Mr. Rosenbaum, following the taking up of his commutation ticket on August 9 last by Conductor George Van Nortwick, who claimed that a few days previous to that time the same ticket was presented to him in the hands of another person not the owner. The conductor said that he made note of the ticket at the time and when it was presented by Mr. Rosenbaum on August 9 he took it up. The latter declared that he did not use his commutation ticket the day Conductor Van Nortwick claims he took it up, and that it was not loaned to anyone else.

In returning a verdict for the plaintiff, Judge Newcorn allowed him damages to the extent of $14.20, including sixty cents for single return ticket, $6 for excursion tickets to New York for six succeeding days after the ticket was taken up and $7.60 the price of a commutation ticket.

VERDICT OF GUILTY IN ULMER NON-SUPPORT CASE

After having been closted for nearly an hour, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Walter Ulmer, of West Second street, tried before City Judge William N. Runyon for non-support at the council chambers yesterday afternoon. The judge ruled that Ulmer pay $3.50 a week for a year for the support of Mrs. Ulmer and her children, two-year-old Nettie Ulmer and John Ulmer, an infant son.

Posponed several times since action was begun in August, the case attracted a good-sized gallery to the court-room. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh represented the city and Robert Newton Crane was Ulmer's lawyer. Henry Liefke was foreman of the jury, which comprised Thomas Carty, Thomas Hughes, William B. Grannatt, Frank McInerney, James Kane, John Casey, Edward Connors, William J. Counihan, Antonio Garthwaite, William Willis and Fred Bird.

Nenighbors gave convincing testimony supporting Mrs. Ulmer's story of desertion and the witnesses included Mrs. William L. Gloak, Mr. and Mrs. Workman and Mrs. Smalley, who testified that the family had been left with no means of support about August 1, when Ulmer left his wife. After that the neighbors, including Mrs. Gloak, helped the destitute woman, providing food for the family. Mrs. Ulmer was subsequently forced to sell the household furniture and went to Elizabeth where she found her husband and lived with him for about a week. At the end of this period he again left her.

This fact that the man and wife had again reunited for a time in Elizabeth made a second case of desertion and clinched the case for the plaintiff. Nine witnesses were called for the defense and Ulmer testified that he had left town in search of work.

In giving his ruling, Judge Runyon made a strong plea for the preservation of the family and home life for the sake of the children. The object of the decision, he said, was not to punish the defaulting father and husband as to again unite the family. The judge summoned man and wife to him and urged them to fix up their differences. Both left the court room together.

DEATH OF SAMUEL BURR

Appendicitis Proves Fatal to Editor of Prominent Mechanical Publications.

STRICKEN AT HOME SUNDAY.

Author of Several Books on Mechanical Topics—Deceased Among Early Graduates of City High School.

Stricken with appendicitis Sunday, death came to Samuel DeVere Burr at his home on Central avenue and West Third street at 9:30 o'clock last night. Although the promptest medical assistance was rendered, Mr. Burr was too weak to undergo an operation.

Born in New York city January 23, 1855, Mr. Burr came to this city while in his teens and was graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1870. Of a mechanical temperament, he continued his education at Rutgers College, securing the degree of civil engineer from that institution in 1875. He subsequently secured the degrees of A. B., and A. M.

Mr. Burr assisted his father in compiling a two-volume work on the Centennial Exposition and later did editorial work with the Engineering News, where he was employed for three years, the Scientific American, for six years; the Iron Age, for sixteen years and Metal Industry. He was with the last publication at the time of his death, where he was the mechanical editor.

As an author, Mr. Burr is known for three works, "Bicycle Repairing," "Tunneling Under the Hudson," and "Rapid Transit in New York and Other Large Cities." The last-named book was prepared at the request of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

Shortly after completing his college education, Mr. Burr married Miss Evelyn Hart, of Cranford in this city. His widow, a daughter, Mrs. C.W. Buckelew, and a son, Hudson Burr, survive him. The late Mrs. Lowrie, wife of Dr. Lawrie, of this city, was a sister of Mr. Burr. The funeral services will be held at the house, 306 Central avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pasto. of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Burr was a member, will officiate. Burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

BOROUGH BOY COMMITTED TO STATE REFORM SCHOOL.

Because Mulford Darling, fourteen years old, has persistently refused to go to school and otherwise misconducted himself he was this morning commited by Judge Lewis Schenck to the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg. The boy and his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Darling, a widow, have been living with his grandfather in North Plainfield, since the lad's father died. It was through the grandparent's complaint to the school principal that the action was taken which resulted in his being sent to a place where he will be held in restraint and receive the discipline and instruction which he has heretofore avoided. It was explained to the magistrate that he had spent his time in idleness, refused to work or attend school and habitually stayed out all night, and had thus passed beyond the control of his natural guardians.

Judge Schenck made a special trip to the borough for the purpose of hearing the case and conducted the proceedings at the grandfather's home.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

The followers of football at the University of Michigan have been caused no little anxiety by the poor showing the Wolverine's gladiators of the gridiron have made thus far this season. The Ann Arbor collegians were scored on by Case, held to a scoreless battle by the Michigan Aggies and only defeated Notre Dame by a scant field goal. Yost, however, declares that the Notre Dame game was the turning point in Michigan's season, and that from now on his charges will develop rapidly for the annual Pennsylvania contest on Nov. 14.

Capt. Schulz's return to the eleven will undoubtedly strengthen what appeared to be a rather weak line and a strong front is expected to be shown by the Wolverines in future games. Hard scrimmage work is the proposed program for the week and many new formations will be tried by the varsity. Vanderbilt is the Maize and Blue's opponent on Saturday and many of the new plays will doubtless receive a thorough trying out against the speedy Nashville combination.

It is rumored around the campus that immediately after the syracuse game on Nov. 21, the last date of Michigan's schedule, Coach Yost will leave for West Point. The Army football authorities are reported as being extremely anxious that the Western coach assist in the preparation of the cadets for their final game of the season with the Navy.

Coaches Fennell and Golden of Penn. State have been working their charges extremely hard in expectation of a trying tussle with Cornell on Saturday. It will be remembered that State unexpectedly defeated the Ithacans last year, due to two field goals by Vorhis. As that star player is again playing behind State's line, a repetition of his 1907 work is confidently expected by the supporters of the Pennsylvania institution. Ballou continues to perform in brilliant form at quarterback, and will undoubtedly shine in Saturday's contest. The loss of Capt. McCleary is a great blow to State, but as Hirshman expects to be in condition by the end of the week, the backfield will not be as weak as was anticipated.

GOLF.

Although the 1908 season will be allowed to slip by without a junior golf tournament in the New York district, it is gratifying to note that such a state of affairs cannot prevail in the West. Not long since Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, won the junior championship of that section over the Westward Ho links, defeating Albert Seckel, Riverside, by 10 up and 9 to play, in the thirty-six-hole final. Young golfers from thirteen cities outside of Chicago took part in the tournament, and the entrance of David Jolly, of St. Andrews Scotland, lent an international flavor to the affair. One of the most promising of the Western juniors, Donald Edwards, of Midlothian, had low score, with 76 in the qualifying round, but he finished 1 down to Seckel in the semi-final.

In this same round Evans defeated Jolly by 4 up and 3 to play. Among others in the tournament were Philip Statnon, former Michigan champion, John Fornof, a former Illinois titleholder; Paul Hunter and G. A. Bunn Jr. So taking it all in all, the field was about the classiest lot of youngsters ever got together in the West.

That young Evans is a golfer of unusual promise was again demonstrated, when he retained his title as champion of Chicago by defeating Rev. D. T. Magill, Jackson Park, by 4 up and 2 to play, in the final over the Jackson Park public links. Evans who ruled favorite from the start, won all his matches by comfortable margins. It therefore seems clear that the West at least is corralling a formidable array of youngsters, some one of whom might be able to spring a surprise another year, more especially if by any chance the tournament should be decided over a course in the Chicago district.

One thing that militates against the younger element in our national tournaments is the exacting medal play qualification test. Steadiness and youth rarely go hand-in-hand, be it in golf or any other game, but wildness in the former is especially disastrous, for it only requires a bad hole or two to put a person out of the running. This recalls the 1902 championship at Glenview, where Louis N. James, after finishing last among the sixty-four qualifiers, went on and won the title at match play. But that tournament has always been regarded as more or less of a fluke all around, as a flood put half the course out of commission.

TRIMMER TO MAKE UP HIS ALLEGED SHORTAGE.

The proceedings against Charles B. Trimmer, former collector of taxes, at Roselle, have been adjusted. Trimmer has arranged to pay to the borough $1,710, the amount of the alleged shortage in his accounts as tax collector and custodian of the school fund. All proceedings against him are to be discontinued, including the civil suit instituted to recover the borough's claims. The adjustment was reached at a conference between Mr. Trimmer's counsel and two representatives of the borough.

Trimmer was removed from office January 22, 1907, on the ground that his bondsmen, the National Surety Company, had canceled his bond. This was in Mayor Howe's administration. With its action the Council also charged Trimmer with being short in his accounts. After a long legal fight Trimmer was reinstated by the Council and held office until succeeded last November by Roswell S. Nichols.

The charges of the Council were based on the report of expert accountants, who were hired by the borough to go over the books of the borough.

Trimmer's contention throughout the affair has been that his books were regularly audited and approved. He accepted the statements of the experts who examined the accounts of the borough. These experts were in several cases found to have made mistakes by the experts who went over Trimmer's books for the whole period of his office by order of the Council after he had been removed.

BLUE SEALS ARE ON ALL COMMISSIONS NOW.

Governor Fort has directed that all military commissions in the future bear the Jersey blue seal instead of the old dull white seal which has been put on them for years past. The new commissions look well with this dash of color to relieve the white of the body of the instrument.

Lieutenant Charles A. Ransom, executive clerk, who was formerly connected with the New Jersey Naval Reserves, asked for and got the first commission with these blue seals.

The governor commissioned Lieutenant Ransom an aide to Commander De Younger, of the Second Battalion, New Jersey Naval Reserves, with headquarters in Camden yesterday.

SENATOR ACKERMAN.

The attack made by the people's lobby on Senator Ackerman in Union county seems to have made friends for that estimable gentleman. The lobby charged Senator Ackerman with being a corporation man, on the ground that he is interested in several business enterprises and has made for himself a fortune. That sort of warfare rarely counts against a man who has shown unusual business acumen, and Senator Ackerman's friends, Republicans and Democrats alike, do not hesitate to say that they will support him to the end. Senator Ackerman, while he may have encouraged legislaion that is not pleasing to everybody, must be given credit for honesty of purpose and devotion to his senatorial duties. While a Republican, he is known to be independent to a degree that saves him from the charge of extreme partisanism. It will, we believe, be impossible for the people's lobby to bring about Senator Ackerman's defeat. His legislative record is clean, and his career as a citizen a highly creditable one. He has the confidence of the people of Union county, and they will prove it next Tuesday.—Trenton State Gazette.

JERSEY CENTRAL GRANTED NON-SUIT IN DAMAGE CASE.

Judge Vail in the Union county court, today, granted the defendant company a non-suit in the case of Mrs. Minnie Buchanan, of Roselle, against the New Jersey Central, who sought tto recover $5,000 damages for injuries which her little daughter, Lillian, sustained on May 3, 1908, by falling through an iron grating on the stone platform at the railroad station.

The non-suit was granted on the grounds that the plaintiff had not shown negligence on the part of the company. The grating, it is alleged, was defective and gave way when the girl stepped on it. It is claimed she sustained permanent injuries to her ankle and knee which will cripple her for life. J. A. Kiernan, of Elizabeth, was counsel for the plaintiff and Frederick K. Faulks, of Newark, for the defense.

Tunison, J. K. Harriman; two years, Rev. E. R. Tilton, Rev. B. Freeman, G. R. Sweeney, John Force; three years, Rev. F. E. Herxon, Rev. J. C. Killian, W. R. Reed, I. R. Polkenhorn.

Yesterday morning the first address which aroused a great deal of interest, was by Rev. E. E. Ferris, pastor of Hawthorne Avenue church, East Orange. His subject was "The Church and the Social Question."

The concluding hour of yesterday forenoon's session was devoted to the annual convention sermon. The preacher of the sermon this year was Rev. Dr. Clarence Augustiu Adams, of Camden, who selected as his texts St. Matthew 22:42, and Colossians 2:9.

Pastors had their oratorical guns in use yesterday, for it was not until a late hour of the afternoon that the discussion over their plan of consolidation closed. Several sections of the proposed document were savagely attacked by some of the younger men, who thought the plan centralized too much power in the hands of a few.

There were strenuous pleas for more democracy in the affairs of the denomination, and statements were made that many churches were losing interest in the work of the denomination because there was no close connection between the boards as at present administered and the rank and file of the denomination.

The older men of the convention refuted these imputations and declared there was no thought of excluding the younger men from the boards of the church.

However, a compromise was reached when the advocates of consolidation yielded to the more democratic members on the method which should be used in the election of officers at the annual gathering. The committee on consolidation agreed to have the articles amended in this particular, that the nominating committee, whose duty it is to suggest names for the different offices, should be nominated from the convention floor at each convention, thus decreasing the tendency, as some speakers asserted, to have the affairs of the convention operated as a political machine.

This compromise cleared the air, and the general plan of consolidation was then carried by a vote, which was practically unanimous, and the best of feeling prevailed after the protracted debate which had occupied several hours. The leaders of the church are of the opinion that a great advance step had been taken in the administration of the affairs of the denomination, and predicted a rapid growth under the new arrangement. There was a feeling of relief that finally the subject which has been agitated for ten years had been settled.

The closing moments of the session were devoted to a memorial service, and obituaries to the memories of four ministers who had died during the year were read. The ministers who have died were Rev. Dr. J. B. Lowry, of Atlantic City; Rev. Dr. Hartman, of Trenton; Rev. Dr. C. J. Keevil, of Trenton, and Rev. M. McMichael, of Arlington. Last night a largely attended missionary meeting was held. Rev. Dr. J. W. Tyrell, of Camden, spoke on "China," and Dr. Emory W. Hunt, of Dennison University, Granville, O., spoke on "Our Great Commission."

Mrs. G. G. Davidge, of Binghamton, N. Y., formerly of Rockview terrace, spent yesterday at the home of Augustus Van Deventer of Myrtle avenue.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want

GOOD ALE A TONIC.

Prescribed by Physicians for Convalescing Patients.

Ale, properly brewed and aged is a maker of blood, brain and brawn. It is peculiarly adapted to stomachs that suffer from nausea or weakness. Many times when the stomach rejects all other food and drink, ale will digest.

Ask your doctor.

Good ale is a perfect food drink, and in cases where the vitality is at low ebb and nervousness apparent, there is nothing better.

It puts rich red blood in your veins, muscle on your bones and makes you feel younger.

Henry Haurand is the Plainfield agent for Bartholomay's Sparkling ale brewed by the Bartholomay Brewery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and he will tell you that it has given the greatest satisfaction in many homes.

Henry Haurand's address is 68 Somerset street, and his telephone number is 229.

Drop him a card or phone him and he will gladly send a dozen bottles or a case direct to your home. Send in your order today, it will be promptly taken care of.

AUTOS WILL CARRY THE INVALIDS TO CHURCH.

Co-operating with their pastor, Rev. Charles S. The use of five automobiles has already been pledged.

The reason will be marked by a special sermon by the pastor, who will speak on the subject: "The Relation if old age to Christian Service." Music will be a feature.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE PLANNED FOR PLAINFIELD

The North Jersey Missionary Institute, which has planned to hold six one day sessions throughout this part of the State, is organized for the purpose of encouraging people in the study of missions, especially in the Young People's Associations and Sunday-schools. Last year a similar conference was held for one week in Newark, but this year it was thought best to have at least six one day sessions at various points in the Northern part of the State.

One of these sessions will be held in Vincent chapel on Friday, November 13. A committee has been formed in Plainfield, representing seventeen churches. Miss Edna Brown is the secretary, and L. R. Hopton is the chairman of the finance committee. The first meeting of the committee was held at the Y. M. C. A. a few nights ago, when Stanley F. Davis, of Elizabeth, made an address and there was a discussion of plans for the coming conference at Vincent chapel, which will be of great interest to the churches of Plainfield.

Miss Harriette R. Halloway is the originator of this work in Plainfield, and she will conduct a class in the "Why and How of Foreign Missions," under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, each Friday night, beginning November 6, and continuing until Christmas. Other mission study classes will also be conducted on the subjects of "Immigration," and "China," at the same church. The young people of the Crescent Avenue church are the most active in this kind of work of any church in the city. Last year there were five mission study classes. W. Lester Glenney is the president of the association and he, too, is much interested in this work. That association will be largely represented at the forthcoming institute.

There will be an afternoon and evening session of the institute in this city, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with an opening address by Rev. L. H. Hough. Between 3 and 4 o'clock there will be conference, on "The Missionary Committee in a Young People's Society; it's Organization and Work," conducted by Rev. Brewer Eddy. E. D. Soper will conduct a conference on "The Sunday-school and Missions," between 4 and 5:15 and between 5:15 and 6:30 Miss Harriette R. Halloway will tell of mission study classes, her topic being "The Why and How of Foreign Missions."

The afternoon program will be concluded with the following lectures: "The Moslem World," Harry S. Meyers; "The Frontier," E. D. Soper; "Uganda's White Man of Work," Stanley F. Davis. Dinner will be served from 6:30 to 7:15 o'clock.

From 7:15 to 8:15 there will be a consideration of mission study classes the same as above, and George F. Sutherland will speak on "The Sunday-school and Missions," from 8:15 to 9 o'clock. A feature of the evening session wil be the illsutrated lecture on "Missionary Tour of the World," together with moving pictures by Harry S. Meyers, to which the general public is invited and will be welcome.

"Life's Realities."

"Life Realities" will be the feature film at the Bijou on East Front street this afternoon and evening. It is considered one of the best yet shown at the theatre.

—Neuman Brothers' store will be closed all day election day, Tuesday next. Plenty of fruit and vegetable specials on Monday.

Noted Irish Actor Coming.

This city will be one of the first in America to pass judgment upon the eminent Irish singer and acter, Joseph O'Mara, who is about to open his first American starring tour in the ramontic comedy, "Peggy Machree." Rehearsals are now under way in New York and Mr. O'Mara's season will begin in Philadelphia on November 9. His engagement in this city has been set for Thanksgiving afternoon and night. Mr. O'Mara comes to America with the prestige of great popularity on the other side. He is credited with being the finest tenor in all Ireland and one of the most noted actors of romantic roles in Great Britain. His sponsors include such notable names as the Princess of Wales, Cardinal Logue, the Archbishop of Westminster and other distinguished notables.

Preparing for Big Game.

The Holy Cross Club expects a record-breaking crowd at the Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, to witness the game with Rutgers Prep. The management has made an excellent arrangement for policing the grounds and keeping the field clear for the players. Coach Emmons and the boys have been up against hard weather conditions which have interfered to some extent with practice. The entire team and substitutes will be out tonight and it is said that nothing short of a cyclone wil interfere with the practice. The church boys feel confiident of defeating the New Brunswick team on Saturday.

Piano and Violin Recital.

Upon the invitation of Miss Susan Corey and Miss Maud Van Boskerck, an audience of about seventy people enjoyed a delightful violin and piano recital given at the home of Miss Corey, yesterday afternoon, by Miss Winifred Bauer. The various numbers were enthusiastically received and Miss Bauer generously responded to the encores. Miss Bauer, who is a sister to Harold Bauer, is a teacher of violin and piano at The Hartridge School, and has met with unquaHfied success.

Adam Angerbauer, former manager of the Trenton, Atlantic and Pacific Tea store, has been transferred to Jersey City Heights, as manager for the same firm. Mrs. Angerbauer is temporarily stopping with her husband's mother on East Third street.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Scenes from real life, carefully blended together into a strong story are said to be the ergo of "Billy, the Kid," by Joseph Santley and Walter Woods, which LeRoy Sumner is presenting this season. The play is a melodrama, full of exciting incidents, relieved by some excellent comedy, with the characters well drawn all telling the story which is full of interest. It is said to be a most excellent vehicle for LeRoy Sumner, who in the stellar role is reported to have a part which fits him perfectly. The management is reported to have given the play an elaborate production and to have surrounded the star with a company of exceptional merit. "Billy, the Kid," with Mr Sumner in the title role is to be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

Leroy Sumner as "Billy the Kid," at New Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night.

The remarkable success that has marked the production of the new comic opera, "The Gay Musician" by the noted composer, Julian Edwards, is an evident proof that the public has tired of the so-called "musical reviews" and is glad to welcome a production that has merit and artistic worth and it is a foregone conclusion that a crowded house will witness the presentation of "The Gay Musician" in this city, at the New Plainfield theatre on Monday, November 2.

In "The Gay Musician" Julian Edwards has undoubtedly written the best music of his career and he has more than a score of successes to his credit.

Dainty lilting songs, dreamy waltzes, stirring marches and ensemble numbers pervade the comic opera and its music immediately takes hold of all who hear it, for it is heard on all sides in the cities where "The Gay Musician" has been presented.

The book and lyrics by Siedle and Campbell are in keeping with the artistic atmosphere of the music. The story is one of up-to-date events, with characters that are probable and scenes of every day life. There are no fairy lands, impossible kings or queens and absurd courtiers. In fact, Julian Edwards himself has said that the plot of "The Gay Musician" would make a most sucessful comedy without the music.

That eccentric comedian, Mr. Neil Burgess, and his carefully selected company of players, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Election day afternoon and night, where he will present the best and funniest of comedies ever written, "The County Fair." Theatre-goers will remember, with pleasure, the barn scene, well stocked with grain, the horses and cows in the barn, the merry party of neighbors who come over to the husking bee, the old fashioned dance, and last of all the visit to the fair grounds where "Cold Molasses," fighting for supremacy in the great race, saves the farm for "Aunt Abby." Really Mr. Burgess' performance in this play is a study. It is the result of natural ability, thought and experience and display in design and a thorough knowledge of female character. It is replete with touches of human nature and womanly peculiarities. Every syllable that falls from the comical old lady's lips is listened to with rapt attention, the spell only broken by peals of laughter which follow her odd expressions and queer doings.

Mr. Benjamin Chapin, the author and dramatists who has given to the stage a vaudeville portrayal of Abraham Lincoln that caused many favorable comments from the admirers of that distinguished character, has again come forward with a stage production in four acts entitled "Lincoln at the White House," a play that for years to come will hold its place at the very top of the list of successes. Sparkling in humor, thrilling in situations, picturesque in atmosphere, magnificent in characterization prevaded with a delicate romance of heart interest the great dramatic masterpiece, "Lincoln at the White House," which will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night, will be without doubt one of the strongest theatrical attractions of the local season and one that will leave an impression that will make it welcome should it return this season or next. The thrilling situations developed by the rapid action of the play and the wholesome comedy help to make this piece doubly popular. It has been pronounced by the public and press alike to be the best war drama in many years. It has that rare thing in drama—literary merit.

Typhoid fever is prevalent. Thoroughly boil all water and milk used for drinking; all water used for cleansing uncooked eatables and all used in brushing the teeth. Purify the waste pipes, sinks, closets, and cellars with Platt's Chlorides. Places where disease germs may develop, nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisable, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense. Platt's Chlorides is an odorless, colorless liquid disinfectant which instantly destroys foul odors and disease breeding matter. It is sold by druggists everywhere in full quart bottles, and is prepared only by Henry B. Platt.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 1, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Songs of the heart.—VI. The sleepless watcher.—Ps. cxxi. Consecration meeting.

It has been said that the One Hundred and Twentieth Psalm is one of complaint, while the one before us is one of comfort and consolation. In this psalm the writer forgets his distresses or overcomes them by "lifting his eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help." The hills were the hills of Zion, the location of the temple, the especial abode of God Himself; hence the psalmist means that he was really looking to God, and, moreover, he adds, "My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth."

The protection of God is amply set forth throughout the entire psalm and by various figures. In the fifth verse he says: "The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade (protector) upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night." They were to be free from sunstrokes and the deleterious effects of the moon's rays by night. Some have doubted such injuries of the moon, but modern travelers have proved that bad effects do follow sleeping in the moonlight in hot countries. When the full facts are known the Bible is always proved to be true. It always will be. "The Lord shall preserve thy soul"—keep us in temptations to evil. "The Lord shall preserve thee * * * forevermore"—for time and for eternity. These declarations of the psalmist are all true. Our God is both able and willing to do all that is here set forth. The only condition is our willingness to trust Him that "He may bring it to pass."

The supreme thought of the psalmist selected for our consideration is that the Lord is a sleepless watcher and keeper. "He that keepeth thee shall neither slumber nor sleep." There are sweet comfort and satisfaction in this fact that God is a sleepless watcher. Neither by day nor by night is He unconscious of our cry. How often a child becomes restless at night and, filled with fear in the dark, cries out, "Are you awake, mamma?" And when the answer comes back, "Yes, dear," how the little brain and heart are comforted and soon find rest in sleep! Mamma is awake. Why should she fear? Children of God, Christian Endeavorers, your Heavenly Father is always awake. Why should you fear? There is no need unless you have offended Him and are not on good terms with Him, and even then if you cry to Him in penitence how ready he is to hear you! No sound is so sweet to the ear of our Heavenly Father as the cry of the penitent, and He is willing to forgive and able to forget, which we cannot do, the sin that has separated us from Him. Let us only fear to offend God, and then we may "lay ourselves down and sleep in peace," because He who never slumbers watches over us.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. iv, 8; I Sam. xvi, 1-7; Amos. ix 2-4; Matt. x, 26-29; Ps. xxiii, 1-6; xxvii, 1-14; xxxi, 1-6; xxxvii, 1-11; Matt. vi 24-34; lxvii, 1-7.

With a New Zeal.

I would recommend that we labor with a new zeal this year:

First.—By stirring up the fires of Endeavor wherever they require it. For various reasons there are not a few societies which need a new baptism of life and enthusiasm, and it should be our special aim to study how to poke up their embers into a blaze of enthusiasm among the young.

Second.—By heaping up fresh fuel upon the old fires in all parts of the land. The baptism of God's own Spirit, the baptism of heavenly fire, should be sought for every one of our 700 societies. A new love for the Master, a fresh passion for His word, a mighty yearning for the salvation of souls and an all absorbing eagerness to build up the local church—this is the fuel which all our Endeavor societies specially need in order that they may carry the fire of God's all consuming love unto all who come in contact with them.

Third.—By starting new Endeavor fires wherever possible. There are many places within your reach and mine where Christian youths are lying helpless and useless who could be converted into new sources of power for the cause of Christ and humanity by being organized into Christian Endeavor societies. Why should not every society study the field around it and carry its message of light and its fire of life into neighboring villages and towns? Let us treble the number of societies this year, and thus brighten the flame of our own lamps by kindling others.

And let us do this not ultimately for the cause of Christian Endeavor, but for Christ and for the furtherance of the great kingdom of righteousness which He has established. Let us remember that Christian Endeavor finds greatest prosperity when it does not obtrusively seek its own and when it is the eager handmaid of God's own church.—Rev. J. P. Jones, President India C. E. Union.

"Heart Failure" and "Pledge Failure."

The heart of Christian Endeavor is in the first clause of the pledge.

"Heart failure," the cause often assigned for death, is only a confession of ignorance. So with "pledge failure." Back of that is usually the failure of the executive committees, the secretary, the lookout committee, and so on.

A Safety Valve.

The more Christian Endeavor societies the safer the republic.—Governor Stuart of Pennsylvania in Patriotic Address at Reading State Convention.

Judge Higbee, in Atlantic City, refused yesterday to admit to probate a will Joseph S. Ireland, of Linwood, was alleged to have made a month before his death, in January last, bequeathing his estate, valued at $50,000, to one daughter and several grandchildren after he had previously made a testament bequeathing the whole of his holdings to two daughters, Mrs. Ella A. Doughty and Mrs. Mame H. Ryan.

Frank Brandriff, a veteran engineer, narrowly escaped a horrible death at the machine shops of Isaac Owen at Millville yesterday. A running hook caught in the back of his jumper, and, as he was slowly being drawn toward a swiftly revolving fly wheel he attempted to extricate himself, but was unable to do so. He tried to call for help, but was too frightened to utter a sound. When Brandriff was but a few inches from the wheel Frank Hayes, a young machinist, saw his plight and quickly shut off steam. As the engine stopped the aged man fell in a faint.

GIRL WIDOW PLEADS.

Admits Killing Husband, but Plea of Not Guilty Is Entered.

"Yes, I killed Tony, but he tried to kill me first," exclaimed Jennie Mataline, the Italian girl wife, when arraigned before Justice J. J. Bergen at New Brunswick yesterday by Prosecutor George Berdine and charged with the murder of her husband, Tony Mataline. The girl seemed cheerful, and laughed aloud when the prosecutor mispronounced her name in calling her to the bar. She did not seem to realize the seriousness of her position.

She has claimed that her husband had been brutal to her since their marriage a few months ago; that he attacked her with a butcher knife and then she shot him to save herself. She seemed to think that this explanation would end the matter. Justice Bergen directed that a plea of not guilty be entered. No date was set for the trial, as Justice Bergen does not know the extent of his engagements in the Supreme Court as yet. He expects to try hr during the December term.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press.

I would like to add a few words to the excellent letter of Mr. L. J. Ellis published in your yesterday's edition, in reply to a former article from former Mayor Randolph. The latter gentleman dwells on the importance of "trust and confidence," which he asserts depends upon Republican success. We already have the "trust," that industrial monster which the Republican party has given us and which is fast destroying all confidence; and it is through the trust and the tariff that the Republican party has been poaching upon the American people the most consummate confidence game that the world has ever known.

"BECAUSE" GETS HER IN JAIL.

Woman in Contempt for Not Obeying Court's Order.

A woman's reason of "because" she was not ready to comply with a court order to sell her deceased husband's property to satisfy debts against his estate sent Mrs. Francis H. Somers, of Linwood, to jail at May's Landing yesterday afternoon under contempt proceedings ordered by Circuit Judge Endicott.

Judge Endicott ordered the sale of the Somers property, consisting of a farm and other real estate, several days ago. Mrs. Somers failed to carry out the order, and when summoned cooly told the judge that she was "not yet ready to sell out." Threats of contempt proceedings failed to move her.

The table used by Miss Fritz was also unevenly placed on the floor, which necessitated moving her chair to follow the table. Both Miss Fritz and Mr. Blaisdell were unfortunate in having their typewriting sheets fall to the floor, losing valuable time, as well as losing their place on the manuscript. Miss Fritz's average in errors in the last four years is but eight.

CIVIC WORKERS DISBAND

The Town Improvement Association Has Dissolved Its Organization.

HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH.

Formed in February, 1896, the Society's Efforts Have Been Far-Reaching—Sketch of Its History.

The Town Improvement Association of Plainfield and North Plainfield has resolved to disband. For this purpose the resignations of officers and members were presented to the secretary.

The officers were: Mrs. Pierre Mali, president; Mrs. Craig Marsh, first vice-president; Mrs. Frank Warren, second vice-president; Miss Isabel Tweedy, treasurer; Mrs. William Fleet Taliaferro, secretary.

The reason for this action was the feeling that the city authorities and tree commission are now better equipped to carry out the ideas of the association than the members have power to do themselves.

The Town Improvement Association was founded in February, 1896. The first officers were: Mrs. E. D. McCarthy, president; Mrs. A. S. Paterson, first vice-president; Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, second vice-president; Mrs. H. B. Ford, recording secretary; Miss Mary Ellis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Alexander Gilbert, treasurer.

The aim has always been to exert an influence for the betterment of the city, from the standpoint of beauty, sanitation and cleanliness; to encourage private effort toward improvement among the residents of the more neglected -looking portions of the city, by planting young trees, covering unsightly walls with vines and offering prizes for the best kept yards. Much has been accomplished through the hearty co-operation of the citizens and officials of the city in improving the appearance of the streets. The association also made suggestions in regard to the improvement of railway stations and beautifying of their grounds.

The best known work of the association has been the laying out of the city park on Eighth street, which from an unkept-looking place, full of underbrush and discarded church pews has become an ornament to the city. The success of that work was chifly due to Mrs. Mali, who inspired and directed it.

The fifteen hundred dollars originally expended upon the laying out of the grounds, the making of the paths, and the planting of the shrubbery was raised at a most beautiful Fete Champetre held at the home of Mrs. Mali in June, 1891. The expense of caring for the park was borne entirely by the association until 1900 when the city made an appropriation of $100 a year, which was continued for five years, after that for two years the appropriation was increased to two hundred dollars and in 1908 an appropriation was also made for unfinished work in the park.

The association in a vote of thanks expressed the feelings of the members that the best that they have stood for has been directly inspired by the president, Mrs. Pierre Mali, whose earnest conscientious devotion for eleven years has been the life of the association.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT THE LOCAL Y. W. C. A.

An enjoyable Hallowe'en party was given by the members of the Y. W. C. A. last night at the association building on East Front street.

MISSIONARY TEA HELD AT MRS. W. A. WOODRUFF'S

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, a missionary tea was held yesterday afternoon at the beautiful home of Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, on East Second street. Considering the weather there was a gratifying attendance and the affair proved to be a delightful one.

During the afternoon there was a vocal solo by Miss Etta Raybert, which was well received. Mrs. S. C. Baker poured cocoa and Mrs. W. VanDeventer poured tea. They were assited in serving the guests by Mrs. T. R. VanZandt, Mrs. J. Beckman, Mrs. L. B. VanCamp, and Mrs. F. P. Storr, all attired in Japanese costume. Mrs. Virginia Chickering, Mrs. F. S. Templin and Mrs. A. L. Force comprised the reception committee.

A feature of the afternoon was an interesting address by Rev. Harman V. S. Peeke, missionary at Saga, Japan. He is an easy, fluent speaker. The chief thought of his remarks was the urging of larger gifts for both foreign and home missions and the creating of more interest in this work. Mr. Peeke gave some interesting facts concerning his work in Japan, all of which was encouraging to the members of the society and their friends. After his remarks and during the social hour those present were given an opportunity to meet Mr. Peeke.

BUSINESS COLLEGE ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

The faculty and pupils of the Plainfield Business College entertained the friends of that institution last night with music, elocution and demonstrations of fast typewriting by Miss Rose L. Fritz, the present world's champion typist.

The program began with a vocal solo, "Dreaming," by Clarence Rittenhouse. Miss Aime Louise Emmons gave readings entitled a "Tempest in a Teapot," "Leap Year Mishaps" and "At the Box Office." The Y. M. C. A. orchestra, under the leadership of M. A. Korff, played two selections, "A Dream of Love," and The Empire Express March.

Probably the most important event of the evening was the preformance of Miss Fritz. She copied from a book 154 words in one minute and 24 seconds. In a two minute test she copied from the book 264 words, which was at the rate of 132 words per minute. From dictation she wrote 148 words in one minute. While blindfolded she wrote from dictation 108 words in one minute. The severest test was when she copied from a book 144 words in two minutes at the same time answering questions asked her by some one in the audience. The fastest speed attained was writing 198 words in one minute from memory.

Geo. A. Meinecke, manager of the Underwood Typewriter Company's employment department, was present. He stated that in Philadelphia a few months ago Miss Fritz made a record of 90 words per minute after all errors had been counted and the penalties therefor deducted. This, Mr. Meinecke says indicates that the champion is increasing her speed, her previous highest record, made at the time of winning the world's championship, being 87 words net.

In her work last night she was not penalized for errors, hence the higher figures.

FAVORS LOCAL OPTION

S. S. Swackhamer Advocates It in Stirring Political Address.

UPHOLDS MAJOR DUNGAN.

Former Assemblyman Calls Upon Voters of Somerset County to Elect Him to the Senate.

At a Democratic rally in Basking Ridge last night, Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, made a strong plea for local option. At the same time he urged the election of Major Nelson Y. Dungan as State Senator and arraigned his opponent, Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen in strong terms. The address was along the lines of the one he gave at the rally in Debele's hall, the borough, Tuesday night. In part it was as follows:

"I think it will be conceded that in this campaign the people of Somerset county are confronted with a condition as serious and important as any presented in the last fifty years of history.

"The rapid multiplication of office and commissions; the special favors bestowed by class legislation; the heavy increase in taxes, and the reckless waste of the peoples' money, must arrest the atention of every thoughtful citizen and force the conviction that such a policy is most dangerous, and productive of evil consequences; but all these and similar considerations pale into significance when placed in contrast with the great fundamental principle of majority rule and local self government asserted on the one side and denied on the other.

"The Democratic candidate for the Senate declares his belief in this principle, and in the capacity of the citizens of Somerset county to decide for themselves. The Republican candidate for the Senate states that he is unable to bring himself to agree to this proposition.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone can resist the fairness, the reasonableness and the justice of the principle for which the Democratic candidate stands, and against which the Republican candidate stands; and it would seem that the friends of liberty and majority rule could have no difficulty at the ballot box as to which of these candidates should be supported.

"When Senator Frelinghuysen refused to recommend the removal of the voting machines from the Borough of North Plainfield, the people were compelled to resort to local option, and a special election was called, and by an overwhelming vote the machines were excluded. Did Senator Frelinghuysen or any other citizen of Somerset county deny the right to apply the principle of local option in that case? Why then should the same right be denied them with reference to the question of the saloon license?

"If the local option law were passed, it could not be acted upon unless thirty per cent. of the voters of the given municipality should petition the County Judge for a special election. If that election were called the question of license or no license in that municipality would be submitted to the people, and the vote would be for, or against the license, just as the vote was for, or against the voting machine. If the majority were in favor of a license, it would be granted, for the will of the majority is the supreme law. If the majority were against the license, it would be denied, for the will of the majority is the supreme law. If the vote of the majority were for the license, the persons interested in the license were for the license, the persons interested in the license would be pleased and satisfied. If the vote of the majority were against the license, the people who cast the majority vote, would be pleased and satisfied; and what right would the parties interested in the license have to complain. What is fair for the one, is fair for the other.

"It is further charged that local option would result in the open Sunday; but the people of Somerset county will not be imposed upon by this pretense either.

"They know that the local option bill for which Mr. Dungan stands in this campaign, excludes the possibility of the Sunday opening altogether, and that he has said he would be opposed to any bill which should in any way embrace the right to interfere with the American Sabbath.

"It may be that the people of Somerset county in the various municipalities, would be in favor of the continuance of the license system, and if the election showed this result, no one would have the right to complain. It may be that they would be against it, and if the election

SERVANT'S ACT FATAL

Poured Denatured Alcohol in Range and is Frightfully Burned.

HER DEATH EXPECTED HOURLY.

Accident Occurred at Dr. Groszmann's Cottage Where Girl Had Been Employed Two Weeks.

Burned from head to foot as the result of an explosion of denatured alcohol, poured by herself in an open range to hurry a fire, Miss Anna Timmins, a nineteen-year-old servant girl in the employ of Dr. Maximilian P. E. Grazmann, of Watchung Crest school, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital in a dying condition at 8 o'clock this morning. Every stitch of clothing upon her was destroyed before the flames were extinguished and she suffered terrible agony previous to losing consciousness. Her death is but a matter of a few hours.

Miss Timmins has been a housekeeper in Dr. Groszmann's cottage, adjoining the school, coming here from New York two weeks ago. In starting a fire in the morning she had used inflammable liquids on several occasions and her employer, on learning of it, had forbidden her continuing the practice. At 7 o'clock today she found the range fire progressing too slow to suit her and opening a lid, poured in a large quantity of the alcohol, kept in the cottage for various purposes. The explosion that followed sent a burst of flame into her face and in an instant her clothing was ablaze.

The young woman became panic-stricken as soon as she realized her plight and leaped through an open window to the grounds about the place, screaming pitifully for help. F. Richard Stevens, who lives in an adjoining cottage, was the first to reach her side, but it was almost impossible to aid her as she was so hysterical, she would not keep still. Mr. Stevens managed to wrap a coat about her and practically smother the flames but there was hardly any clothing left at the time for them to feed upon. Her running about had fanned the blaze until she was a human torch.

A hurry call was sent to Muhlenberg Hospital for the ambulance and she was removed there in about an hour. The physicians declared at the outset that she could not live and devoted their efforts to relieving her sufferings. She has relatives in New York and they have been informed of the accident.

Mrs. Groszmann, who witnessed part of the occurrence when Mr. Stevens sought to save the girl, suffered greatly from shock and a physician had to be called to attend her. Mr. Stevens was badly burned about the hands.

GRAND JURY INQUIRING INTO REGISTRY FRAUDS

The Grand Jury returned to the Union County Court, this morning and reported a batch of indictments, some of which are alleged to be based on evidence on registration frauds in Elizabeth. It is said that many witnesses were called before the Grand Jury, and that as a result arrests may be made soon. According to report it is said that over sixty witnesses have already been examined.

When the Grand Jury presented its report, it asked the court for instructions relative to an editorial appearing in The Evening Times, of Elizabeth, last night, on "False Registration in Elizabeth?" The Elizabeth newspaper want to know why there are so many strange negroes in that city at present, intimating that they have been brought there and falsely registered with a view to defeating the Democratic ticket. The Times also wants to know "if the Mayoralty of the city of Elizabeth is to be decided by the work which these irresponsible idlers will do in Elizabeth next Tuesday," concluding that "Evidently, it is up to the Grand Jury to adopt means to prevent such theft of the highest office in the gift of the people of good old Betsytown."

Developments of a sensational character are said to be due, and an official report of charges made recently concerning registration methods is confidently expected.

FORT AND FOWLER THRILL ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

$10 FINE PREFERABLE TO A NIGHT IN LOCAL JAIL

According to Isaac Heller, a New York young man who was arrested yesterday for peddling gas mantles without proper credentials, it is preferable to hand up $10 than to spend a night in one of the cells at the Sycamore street police headquarters. He was in a position to know, this morning, because he had undergone the ordeal and declared he would far rather pay the money than to go through it again.

"It's awful, Judge," was the way he addressed the court; "I served four years in the Philippines but I never put in so hard a time as I did here last night. I've been in since 11 o'clock yesterday morning and its worse than camping out in a Jolo marsh. I hope I never have to go through it again and I'd-a given $10 to have kept away. Br-r-r, the cold was something fierce."

Heller's experience is only one of many as when it comes to first class human freeze-outs the jail cages have got the North Pole beat to a frazzle. The nearest heat is in another room nearly fifty feet away and when the thermometer takes any kind of a drop the prisoners are up against a cold proposition. Judge Runyon thought Heller had gotten all that was coming to him but at that, it was found that he had a veteran's license, entitling him to consideration. Sentence was suspended.

WALTER GRAY DIES FROM TYPHOID FEVER

Following an illness with typhoid fever, Walter Theodore Gray, son of Theodore G. and Rosa Gray, died last night at his parents' home on West Front street. He was stricken two weeks ago and his condition had been critical almost from the outset. His mother and brother, Fred Gray, are ill with the same disease at the present time, the former having been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday morning. As yet she has not been informed of her son's death.

The young man was twenty years old and always lived in Plainfield He was employed for some time at the Vacuum cleaning plant on North avenue, but recently had been engaged in the motorcycle business. He was of a bright and cheerful disposition and was greatly liked by his numerous acquaintances. Beside his parents and brother, he is survived by a sister, Miss Frieda Gray.

The funeral will be strictly private because of the illness of his mother and brother.

REPUBLICANS HOLD LAST NOON-DAY MEETING

The last Republican noon-day meeting was held today at the Quincey-Manchester-Sargeant plant on West Front street, where one hundred employes were addressed by Milton Bennett, a prominent lawyer of Port Jervis, N. Y., City Chairman W. S. Angleman and J. Henry Crane. The three speakers gave an impressive presentation of facts, showing the great advantage that would result to the country in the election of not only the national Republican ticket, but the local ticket as well.

Mr. Bennett is a convincing speaker and he held the close attention of his audience from start to finish. He was frequently interrupted by hearty applause. The remarks by Mr. Angleman and Mr. Crane also came in for a generous share of applause. These noon-day meetings have been a great success and no doubt have been the means of winning many votes for the Republican ticket.

Theatre Packed to Overflow to Hear Republican Speakers on National Issues.

PRAISE FOR STATE SENATORS.

The Governor Lauds Ackerman and Also Frelinghuysen—Angleman Presides at the Big Rally.

Governor J. Franklin Fort, Congressman Charles Newell Fowler, as well as all of the Republican candidates in the county and city, together with more than two hundred prominent citizens acting as vice-presidents, were greeted by an audence at the New Plainfield theatre last night, that packed the playhouse from pit to dome. A few minutes after 8 o'clock it was necessary to shut the doors, every available bit of space being occupied, including the large stage. Previous to the meeting the Plainfield Band made a tour of the business section.

City Chairman W. S. Angleman presided and after a few introductory remarks, followed by a couple of selections by the Plainfield High School quartet, Mayor Charles Joel Fisk was presented to introduce the Governor. He expressed his pleasure over the large attendance and adding that the people were not there to hear him, he at once presented Governor J. Franklin Fort as the first speaker of the evening. He was greeted with prolonged cheers and applause.

During the course of his remarks, the Governor took occasion to sound the praises of Congressman Fowler, State Senators Ernest R. Ackerman and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, as well as all of the county candidates, not forgetting to put in a good word for William Howard Taft, the Presidential candidate, who he said would be elected on November 3 by a handsome majority.

After impressing upon all the voters the importance of exercising a sacred right, that of voting, the Governor said that he wished all could forget prejudice and consider that which is best for the country. He declared that the one great issue was not between Republicans and Democrats, but whether Bryan or the present Republican form of government is to continue.

Continuing the Governor reviewed some of Bryan's issues during his several campaigns, beginning with the 16 to 1, and stating that his policies have been noteworthy for omitted issues. Every issue in the Democratic platform, the speaker said, was made by Bryan.

"The people of the country refused to accept Bryan in 1896, 1904 and I believe they will turn him down in 1908," said the Governor. "I admire the way the Democrats have stood by the grand principles of the Republican party. Who is this man Bryan? Personally he is a fine fellow, but no one knows what he believes. Twelve years ago it was the cross of gold and the crown of thorns and he shouted his theory of 16 to 1 which was going to save the country. That is an omitted issue now. Four years later he went over the land crying against imperialism and said that if the Republicans were continued in office the country would be at war with every one. Notwithstanding this we have not seen imperialism and that issue is omitted in this campaign.

"Bryan advocated the election of Federal judges by the people, but that is omitted now. After his trip around the world he returned home heralded as a regenerated man, but this was not true. He soon came out in favor of the Government ownership of railroads. His party said that would never do, so Bryan modified this by advocating the Government ownership of railroads that run across the States. Later Bryan dodged this and now that is an omitted issue. He is the same old Bryan today as before. A good many people say that the voters are apathetic, but that is not so. The voters have made up their minds what they will do. The result is already settled and it won't be Bryan. O, my, how he will get it in November.

"Bryan has discovered more new things that are no good than any other person I know. He is opposed to all trusts and says they should be abolished. He says that any corporation doing fifty per cent. business should have a registered certificate. He makes no distinction between good and bad trusts. We can't divide the nation in this way, as Lincoln once said the country can't exist half-slave and half not.

Suits and Overcoats

That Justify All Our Claims

To build quality and shapeliness into clothing regardless of price is our aim. We permit no lowering of standard in tailoring and finish because of the selling figure. We strive to bring our garments of the less expensive fabrics up to the general high tone of those of more costly materials.

The exclusive fabrics and distinctive models of our Fall Suits and Overcoats, no matter what the price, afford ample justification of all our claims.

The new colorings and pattern effects—especially the new models—will interest you.

Suits and Overcoats $10 to $30.

The only contest for township officers at the election on Tuesday, will be the race for Freeholder, between the present Freeholder, John Robison, who is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, and Charles French, the Democratic candidate. The Republican candidates should win unless the usual Republican majority is cut into, as they have a majority of fifty in the township.

The work of partitioning the assembly room of the school building will be started tomorrow and it is expected to have the three rooms completed by the opening of school Monday morning.

The stormy weather could not keep some of the G. O. P. women from attending the Republican rally held last night in Plainfield.

The monthly covenant meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

These are troublous times for varsity captains. Injuries or some other affliction have put several of them on the shelf for various lengths of time. Captain Burch of Yale is watching the practice from the side lines with a broken collarbone and his arm done up in a sling. Capt. Morse of Williams is out of the game with a damaged collarbone and Capt. Kennedy of Dartmouth is limping up and down the side lines with an ankle which is out of commission. Capt. Hollenback of Pennsylvania is on the crippled list after the Indian game in which, incidentally, he did wonderful work in keeping the Carlisle score down. Capt. Dennie of Brown has been out of harness since the Pennsylvania game and Capt. Dillon of Princeton has been out of the game a greater part of the season with an injured knee. Even Capt. Burr of Harvard, almost invulnerable, has not been immune, though it was a cold that put him out of play for several days. Capt. Walsh of Villanova is just recovering from the effects of the Princeton game after a desperate scrimmage with his studies. His case and that of Capt. Burr are striking examples of the severity of football.

Capt. Burch, it is now said, may be fit enough to play in the Harvard game. A broken collarbone in itself does not always incapacitate a player for the rest of the season. In 1896, when Yale trimmed Cochran's crack Princeton team, there was a big freshman centre on the Yale squad named Cadwaller. He broke his collarbone about the middle of the season, but with the aid of a pad played against Princeton and put up a star game.

Coach Yost of Michigan won't allow his players to play cards. His men were playing a game recently when he raided it with this admonition: "Card playing is not conducive to quick thinking, and lightning thought is a big part of football." The latter clause is true enough, especially in the new game. Yost, however, seemingly never has read the memoirs of Old Man Greenhut or sat in a bridge game when he had to decide quickly between spades and no trumps on a passed make.

Yost, by the way, has predicted that Pennsylvania will wallop Michigan by a score of 30 to 0. If he had said 29 to 0 his prediction would have carried more weight, but what isn't clear is where he gets that extra point. There is a spear of grass on Ferry Field which will deflect one of Pennsylvania's goal kicks away from the crossbar. Neil Snow has been assisting Yost in the coaching. There was one of the best ends that ever wore a shoe. Talk about your Hinkeys and Campbells and Palmers! Snow was right in their class.

GOLF.

The executive committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association has appointed as a nominating committee Findley S. Douglas, Harvey Murdock and Max Behr.

In the week-end event at the Dyker Meadow Golf Club there were thirty-two entries and the winner was W. J. Noble with 102, 24-78.

Only W. L. Gunther scored a win in the match at Tuxedo on Sunday between the Orange County Golf Club and the Tuxedo Golf Club. The home players won by 15 up.

Rain marred the closing day's program of the women's invitation golf tournament at the Wilmington Country Club, and the mixed foursome Wednesday afternoon was played in semi-darkness and a fine drizzle, there being several withdrawals in consequence. The Wilmington cup was won by Miss Harriot Curtis, of the Essex Country Club, defeating Miss F. Osgood, of Brookline, 1 up. The vice-president's cup was won by Mrs. Fitler, of Merion, who defeated Miss Frismith, of the Riverton Club, 3 up and 1 to play.

The golf clubs report a season of remarkable prosperity. There have been more players than ever and they seem more devoted to the game. One of the officers of a big club explained that the increase was because so many business men had more time these days of dull trade, and found they might as well play golf as to sit in their offices without occupation. But there are many men of some years and much activity who have retired from business during the last decade of prosperity. They have plenty to live on, and are engaged in keping healthy and having a pleasant time. Most of them have taken up golf and find more in it than any other diversion, both for health and honest fun. They are at the links constantly, and account for much of the increase in the popularity of the game.

THE FORUM.

NOT A DEMOCRAT.

Editor, The Daily Press:

My attention has been called to an item in the Press of October 27, in which you class me as a Democrat. I was president of the Independent Parker club of Plainfield and voted for Judge Parker, who is a personal friend of mine, and who I thought was best fitted for the Presidency. I have always been a Republican, but I never hesitate for party reasons to vote for the candidate for any office who in my judgment will most acceptably serve the interests of the people.

Yours truly,
GEORGE S. CLAY.

October 28, 1908.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Mr. L. J. Ellis in Wednesday's issue of your paper says that "Bryan is given credit for dictating almost the Democratic platform." Why, of course, it was a Bryan platform pure and simple, not a Democratic platform. Mr. Ellis' confession is timely and "As to honesty, Bryan's record is unimpeachable." Is it possible that Mr. Ellis is so forgetful of the fact that upon two notable occasions the voters of the United States declared that Mr. Bryan by advocating a fifty cent dollar was not "honest" enough to be the president of the United States. Oh, but says Mr. Ellis "bimetalism (fifty cent dollars) is a dead issue." Has Mr. Bryan been "honest" enough to say so?

Then Mr. Ellis pays his respects to the "robber tariff." Now what he doesn't know about the tariff is a tremendous quantity. He seems to be sorry and sad because the balance of trade is in our favor. He truly says that "the very object of the protective tariff is to check imports." For the more we import of foreign goods the less we will be called on to make ourselves. He says that if imports are checked exports are checked. Will the gentleman kindly give us the figures of our foreign trade for the last ten years and see how they tally with his statement. Does he not know that foreign countries will not take what we have to export unless they can get it cheaper elsewhere?

But again "tariff fosters monopoly." Does it? and yet the greatest monopolies in the country are entirely free from any tariff. Has free trade England no monopolies? He says that one of the fostered monopolies is that of the Singer Sewing Machine trade. That their sewing machines are sold in South America and Europe for $30 less than here at home. Will Mr. Ellis kindly tell us why it is that you can buy Brisish manufactured goods in New York, a certain line of goods, cheaper than in London, or why it is that you can buy California fruits in New York cheaper than in San Francisco, and Florida oranges in New York cheaper than in Jacksonville. I don't suppose Mr. Ellis knows so; I beg to inform him. Manufactured goods, as surplus stock, are often sold away from home in a lump, so as to keep their men to work instead of laying them off a month or two until the superflous stock could be worked off in the regular way. Then, again, Bryan proposed long ago that contributions ot both parties be made public before election day. A simple case of "thumbs up." Had Mr. Bryan proposed that neither party should contribute anything before or after election would the Republican party be in duty bound to follow suit?

If Mr. Taft is dishonest because he attributed the panic of '92-'96 to the Wilson-Gorman fizzle, then he has an immense following including the writer.

Church Team Ready for the Fray.

The Holy Cross Club football eleven management showed considerable resourcefulness in the face of weather conditions which were against out-of-door practice, last night. Through the courtesy of the head of the school, the Hartridge School auditorium was leased for the evening and the church boys spent an hour or more running through signal practice. If the team in meeting weather conditions successfully, can show as much resourcefulness in football tactics against their adversaries tomorrow afternoon, the Rutgers Prep team, they should make a good showing, and also be able to cope with the enemy from East Orange, who will play the club team on the Cricket Field, Election Day afternoon.

Raymond Strayer Surprised.

Raymond Strayer, of East Third street, entertained twenty of his young friends at his home last night, the affair being a surprise party arranged by Miss Florence E. Buckley and Charles F. Hopewell. The evening was spent playing games, while vocal and instrumental music was a feature. Refreshments were served at midnight. Theodore S. Pruden entertained the company with a clever exhibition of legerdermain.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

Four years from now Bryan will omit this issue from his campaign. This and his guarantee bank issue are the only two new ones he offers this year.

"We have a Congressman in this district who is nationally prominent, and who is considered the best authority on finance in the United States. I want to see this district give Congressman Fowler a big majority. You all know that a new man in Congress is useless, but Mr. Fowler has been there long enough to be of great value not only to his district, but the whole country as well. Whether Bryan or Taft wins we are going to have tariff revision, not for revenue only, but for the benefit of the industrial conditions and the working man. Wages are none too high for me. I never saw the time when any one was getting more than he ought to get if he was getting it honestly.

Governor Fort then briefly reviewed the immediate effect, in his opinion, that would follow the election of Bryan, and said that the men with capital to invest would certainly wait until they knew where they were at before putting their money in circulation. Recalling the bank panic, the Governor said that what is wanted now is a little care and conservatism. Let me tell you there is more reasons for voting against Bryan this year than ever before.

"What would you think of Grover Cleveland putting something into a platform that he did not believe in, or Governor Hughes, of New York, a magnificent specimen of American statemanship, advocating something in which he did not believe. Even though the Republicans omitted from their platform the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, Mr. Taft comes out boldly and declares that he is in favor of this method of electing United States Senators. We want men of courage. It is not what a party believes in, but it is a question of standing for one's conscience. You can do this and be a Republican.

"Bryan is shouting about the fact that we have a billion dollar Congress, but he forgets that we have a billion dollar country. This is no kindergarten. The sailing of twenty-one ships from Fortress Monroe was a great object lesson, but this could not be done without money. We have 36,000 rural free delivery routes, reaching twelve and a half millions of people, you are not taxed heavily for that. What we want is a mercnant marine, ships carrying the products of this country and flying the American flag.

In concluding his remarks, the Governor referred to the candidacy of Senator Ackerman, the father of the Civil Service Act, and he praised him as a wise, judicious, painstaking legislator, one who refused in the Governor's office to compromise one single feature of this law. He is a man that you want to return to Trenton, added the Governor. "Over in Somerset county, there is Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, who stands next to Senator Ackerman,' said the Governor. "He is a man of intelligence and won't accept everybody's opinion. He is a man of courage and has demonstrated his loyalty to the State."

Governor Fort's closing remarks were in praise of Taft, who he presented as a man of superior capacity and one eminently fitted for the highest office in the gift of the people. With such a man at the head the republic would be safe.

Immediately following his speech, the Governor was taken to Somerville, where he addressed another large Republican meeting.

It remained for Congressman Fowler, the next speaker, to present the financial questions of the campaign. He was introduced by Senator Ackerman. He is so thoroughly informed concerning the currency problems that he is able to explain them in a way that cannot fail to satisfy his audience. At the outset of his speech he declared that President Roosevelt had no more to do with the bank panic a year ago than a new born baby. Disposing of this, Mr. Fowler punctured holes in Bryan's pet theory, the guaranteed bank issue. Referring to corporations, he said that they belong to the age, they are to be found everywhere and it is a question whether the people want to take advantage of them or destroy them. He said that the great progress in the transfusion of thought had practically made the world one.

"I am in favor of protecting the American markets for the American working men," said Mr. Fowler. "The world commercially is one and we are an essential part. In 1896 it was all free silver and in 1904, Bryan told us that the tariff was the mother of trusts. Corporations exist everywhere, abroad as in this country and the recognized plan is to control and not kill them. Bryan says that when a business man exceeds the limit of doing a fifty per cent. business he must go to jail. This would block all inventions and discovery. Following his trip around the world, when he was believed to be safe and sane he made the statement that the country would be far greater if it only had free silver.

"Bryan advocates Government ownership of railroads. He wants the government to own the main lines and the States the branches. Think of it! The States do not want the branches, which start nowhere and end nowhere. The million and half of people employed by railroad companies are entitled to ful protection. Governor Hughes, of New York, did a wise thing when he vetoed the two-cent mile rate.

"We possess two-fifths of all the bank resources of the world and Mr. Bryan's plan of guarantee deposits is far too abstract to be a success. He says 'Shall the people rule?' I think the people did rule when they adopted the constitution of the United States, when they defeated Bryan in 1896 and again in 1904, when Roosevelt was given a handsome majority. The key-note to Bryan is: 'He is always behind the people.' He never constructs, but is always destroying. He says that he suffered because of mistakes made by Grover Cleveland. When did Grover Cleveland ever make a mistake that caused Bryan to suffer. Grover Cleveland had great principles, an immortal American, whose name will live in letters of living fire."

Concluding his remarks, Mr. Fowler paid the highest tribute to Taft, recalling his achievements during the time he has held office, in the Philippines, in Panama, as a Judge and in other offices which he has been called to fill, adding that he is a man of an exact sense of justice, a man who comprehends the constitution and is a fit successor of John Marshall, who can be depended upon not to swerve from what he believes to be his duty.

This finished the speech-making and after three cheers for the candidates led by Mr. Angleman and a patriotic air by the band, the candidates held an informal reception on the stage.

GOOD ALE A TONIC.

Prescribed by Physicians for Convalescing Patients.

Ale, properly brewed and aged is a maker of blood, brain and brawn. It is peculiarly adapted to stomachs that suffer from nausea or weakness. Many times when the stomach rejects all other food and drink, ale will digest.

Good ale is a perfect food drink, and in cases where the vitality is at low ebb and nervousness apparent, there is nothing better.

It puts rich red blood in your veins, muscle on your bones and makes you feel younger.

THE FORUM.

Practicing, Not Poaching.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In my "trust and confidence" letter to you of yesterday I stated that "through the trust and the tariff the Republican party has been practicing upon the American people the most consummate confidence game that the world has ever known.

As published, the word "poaching" appeared instead of "practicing," destroying the sense.

Kndly correct the error.

J. O. STEVENS.

Plainfield, October 30, 1908.

Rejoinder.

Plainfield, Oct. 30, 1908.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Sir:—It is hardly regrettable that my compliance with your request for "Reasons for preferring Taft to Bryan" should have aroused some interest, and particularly amongst those who prefer Bryan to Taft. Mr. L. J. Ellis lays great stress on Mr. Bryan's honesty. It is agreeable to believe that Mr. Bryan would not willingly wrong any one; but, to take a single example, namely Mr. Bryan's first proposition of a silver dollar to be forced out as a dollar, though it was only worth half that—that proposition would have wronged millions of persons. It would have wronged everybody and especially the wage-earner.

But Mr. Ellis considers that the protective tariff upheld by the Republicans has had the effect "to lessen the necessity for harbors in the United States." He does not support his statement with any figures. Let us offer a few; and these figures will show our county's progress in imports as well as in exports.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century our annual imports of goods aggregated ninety millions of dollars. A hundred and five years later our imports aggregated in a single year twelve hundred and twenty-five millions of dollars. In the year 1800 our exports were seventy-one millions, and in 1905 our exports were seventeen hundred and forty-three millions; that is, at the end of this period of one hundred and five years our imports were about fourteen times as much in a year as they were at the beginning of the period; and the exports had increased to almost twenty-five times as much as they were at a point of time one hundred and five years earlier.

Within this one hundred and five years America had imported goods to the amount in all of nearly thirty-six billions of dollars, and had sold to other countries merchandise valued at nearly forty billions.

This does not seem much like a falling off of American commerce. Mr. Ellis fears that the necessity for harbors in our country will be "lessened." This fear is a worse "bogey" than even the horrid "Trust."

But let us clinch our argument by pointing out that even the import business, which our Democratic friends fear may fall off, has increased by leaps and bounds since the establishment of the protective tariff, whilst within the past ten years our export business has (fortunately for us) advanced still more rapidly. In 1897 our exports aggregated about one billion (I use the term in its French significance of one thousand million). This year and next our gross exports cannot be much less than two thousand millions, or two billions, per annum. That is, under Protection our trade has nearly doubled in about ten years. A pretty fair trade, this—and one likely to prevent for some years to come the rotting away of our wharves and filling up of our harbors. We can surely afford to take some of our tariff-revenue to enlarge our harbors for our rapidly growing commerce. Growing thus rapidly, and thus largely, under the influence of the McKinley tariff!

I am in no way interested in a protective tariff except as every American citizen is interested. "Free trade" may be philanthropy; it is not American patriotism.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

SLEEVES ARE BIG; SLEEVES ARE SMALL.

It is hard telling just where the fashions in sleeves wil alight next. New bulletins are issued every hour and all differ. One thing seems to be determined—that they shall be long.

Of course, this is the most novel feature of the whole dress or blouse and may be plain, smooth, wrinkled, slashed, filled in with net bands, ruffles, button trimmed or perfectly unadorned. The evening coat with its medium-sized sleeve and broad cuff is made in the three-quarter length, with wide lace ruffles falling beneath. Many decollete garments show a single wide band, possibly not more than six inches wide, for the sleeve arrangement, with no fullnes at the top, but what has the appearance of a continuation of the shoulder lines.

Soft materials are tucked in with waist portions, but today they are much narrower than formerly and the latest models show comparatively few wide arm pices. On satin gowns the sleeve frequently consists of a close-fitted piece of lace for a short upper sleeve, often threaded with puffed satin or ribbon to carry out the color scheme. The fancy sleeves for satin and silk waists are indescribable, for they present points often many of them, bias folds stitched the entire length, wide-braided effects, laces and buttons, to say nothing of fancy shapes.

HAMMERSTEIN ANNOUNCES MANHATTAN REPERTOIRE

Mr. Oscar Hammerstein yesterday announced the repertoire of the opening week of the Manhattan Opera House. The third season begins on Monday evening, November 9. Tosca will be the introductory opera, arrangements having been made whereby Mr. Hammerstein shall hereafter have the right to produce this and all other operas by Puccini.

The first night of the season will be the occasion of the American debut of the Contessa Maria Labia, the beautiful young Italian dramatic soprano whom Mr. Hammerstein "discovered" at the Berlin Opera Comique where she achieved an extraordinary popularity last season. The great French baritone Maurice Renaud will be the Baron Scarpia of the cast, a role in which he appeared for the first time last Spring at Monte Christo when he made a sensational impression. Signor Zenatello, Mr. Hammerstein's principal Italian tenor, who carried everything before him at the Covent Garden season, will be heard as Cavaradossi.

Miss Mary Garden will make her re-entry on Wednesday evening as Thais, a role in which she always appears to the greatest advantage. Mr. Renaud will repeat his wonderful presentation of the Monk Athanael. The new French tenor M. Valles—another Hammerstein "discovery"—will make his debut as Nicias the Alexandrine "swell" and patron of Thais.

Friday evening will be the production of Saint Saens' Samson and Delilah, an opera practically unknown to our lyric stage. Mr. Hammerstein intends presenting it with all the scenic pomp and circumstance that the work calls for. He will combine the ballets and choruses of his Manhattan and Philadelphia Opera Houses for the performance. Mlle. Gerville-Reache, she of the lustrous eyes and the mellow contralto, will be the Philistine fascinator; while in the role of Samson, Mr. Dalmores, tenor among athletes and athlete among tenors, will be heard for the first time this season. The great French basso, Felix Viculle, who comes from the Paris Opera Comique, will make his debut. The cast will also include Mr. Dufranne.

Tosca will be repeated at the Saturday matinee with Contessa Labia and M. M. Renaud and Valles.

Mme. Tetrazzini's reappearance has been reserved to inaugurate the regular subscription performances henceforth to be given on Saturday nights. The opera will be the Barber of Seville, and she will sing the part of Rosina, which she has not done here before. She made a great "hit" as Rosina at Covent Garden last spring. The role is said to fit her admirably as it gives her fine opportunities for exploiting her talent for comedy. Of course she will introduce some appropriately florid aria in the Lesson Scene. That sterling artist M. Sammarco will be the Figaro and M. Gilibert the Bartolo. Another Hammerstein "discovery" Signor Colombini, an Italian tenor, will make his bow as Almaviva.

Maestro Cleofonte Campanini, who is never afraid of work, will direct at each of the five performances of the season's first week.

Scene From "Billy, the Kid," at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A fine old southern Colonel, and his faithful orderly, who are still fighting the battles of the late war of the Rebellion and who live entirely by military discipline are said to furnish some delightful comedy in the new melodrama "Billy, the Kid," in which LeRoy Sumner is starring with great success this season. Both of these characters are said to have been "drawn from life" and they are certainly a most entertaining pair. The play itself is reported to be an exceptionally strong one, replete in highly dramatic situations, yet telling a straightforward story most interestingly. Play and star will come to the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Julian Edwards' new comic opera, "The Gay Musician" is proving one of the greatest musical successes in many years. Following its memorable run at Wallack's Theatre, New York city, it has duplicated that triumph in Boston, Baltimore, Philadephia, Providence, Montreal and Toronto. In each city where it has been presented it has played to capacity nightly, a certain proof of its merits and drawing powers. "The Gay Musician" is to be heard in this city at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

The many admirers of that eccentric comedian, Neil Burgess, will be pleased to learn that he comes to the New Plainfield theatre Election Day afternoon and night, when he will again be seen as "Abigail Prue" in that greatest of all rural comedies "The County Fair," which Mr. Burgess has been playing for the last fifteen years and whose impersonation of the well known female character has never been equalled.

One of the great secrets of his success in those roles is the fact that he sinks his own personality for that of the character he is assuming, and to see him on the stage with curls and skirts and to see the brisk and energetic man on the street one would never know them to be the same person. Two large baggage cars are required to transport the scenery and mechanical effects for both plays over the country as well as a corps of assistants.

In the play named, there is a good and sufficient reason to anticipate a war drama, which while sensational to the limit and full of spicy fun and comedy through everyone of its five acts, rises far above the slap-bang, crude ungrammatical and uttterly impossible dramatic trash now so commonly inflicted upon the public, which, in addition is insulted and slandered with the assertion that anything better would be way over its head. The play in question is an enthralling appeal at once to common sense, to that intelligent appreciation which is the property of all classes, to the broad human love of humor, to the universal desire for thrilling, noble and picturesque, and is so true to the embodiment of the ruling passions, that it not only irresistibly appeals to everybody, but strikes straight home to the heroic and tender in every heart. No play on the stage today bids for more favorable patronage than "Lincoln at the White House," which is the attraction announced for the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night.

GIRL AT HOME MAY MAKE.

A new hat, or the old one freshened a bit.

The new high, full neck ruches.

A narrow band of velvet with tiny bow or with tasseled or jeweled ends for the base of the stock.

The new high directoire girdle, usually with sash ends.

Long, close-fitting sleeves, if they can be possibly added to the frocks in one's possession.

If fresh trimmings are needed, add large covered buttons and satin cordings of the same color as the gown.

Fresh new gloves and footwear are worth more than their cost in giving a smart, well-groomed air to one's costume.

LOCAL ENDEAVOR UNION HOLDS A BIG RALLY

An enthusiastic rally was held in the First Presbyterian church, last night, under the auspices of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union. The affair marked the beginning of the active fall work of the local union. The meeting was open with a ten minute song service, followed by devotional exercises in charge of Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of Faith chapel.

Reports of the various sessions of the State Endeavor convention held at Atlantic City were given by Chas. F. Windham, of Warren chapel; Peter C. Sweeny, of Hope chapel; Miss Mildred Greene, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church; Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel; Alexander Galloway, of Warren chapel and Clarence B. La Rue, of the Congregational church.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Martin A. Korff, the leader of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. The attendance banner awarded to the society having the highest percentage of its active and associate members present, was won by the Faith chapel society, with an attendance of fifty-six. Warren chapel was second and the First Presbyterian church society was third in the contest.

Clarence B. La Rue presided at the meeting and W. A. Conger was at the organ. Announcement was made that the next meeting of the Congress of the Union will be held on Thursday, November 5, at Warren chapel.

At the Bijou Today.

"The Hat of Fortune" is the feature film to be displayed at the Bijou theatre, East Front street, this afternoon and evening. The illustrated song will be "Garden of Dreams."

Sudden Death of Miss Miller.

Miss Grace E. Miller, daughter of the late Rev. Robert Miller, died suddenly at her home in Clinton, Iowa, yesterday. Word came through telegrams received last night by her aunt, Miss Grace Johnson, of Duer street. Miss Miller and her mother, Mrs. Louise Miller, spent about two months in Plainfield the past summer and only returned to her home in Iowa three weeks ago. The probable cause of death was heart trouble with which she had been a great sufferer.

Breaking Attendance Records.

"The Gay Musician," the big musical production to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, has been drawing crowded houses at the Newark theatre, Newark, all this week. The company is the same as appeared at Wallack's all last season and will come to this city with the principals and chorus intact.

Funeral of Ellis Eddey.

The funeral of Ellis Eddey, who died suddenly Tuesday of heart trouble, was held at his late home on New street, last night. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was made at Perth Amboy this morning.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will have an interesting social session at the close of the regular meeting tonight.

STRAIGHT FROM PARIS.

The new dress models are fascinating, and as I sat in Drecoll's salons the other day, watching at least a dozen manikins parade up and down, the picture was more like a brilliant reproduction of some old world fete than the mere showing of new fashion models.

Tailor-mades show short skirts, straight three-quarter coats, tight sleeves, with no fulness at the shoulder, and the favorite material for everyday wear is heavy serge. The skirts, short and not at all full, are high-waisted, and, as the tight-sleeved coat demands, the chemisette above them must be finely tucked and of soft material, which takes up little room. Neck and wrist ruffles are a sine qua non, and the fshion gives a light and dainty note to the plainest of gowns.

The new skirt is made in two parts, loose pantaloons covered by the two divisions of the skirts itself. At the back the pantaloons are only attached to the lining, leaving the material to sweep away unconstrained; but in front the whole fabric is sewn to them, thus establishing an intimate connection between every movement of the body and the corresponding fall of the draperies. Save in name, the new skirt, is perhaps, not more daring than the sheath skirt which Paris has adopted with such rapture; and it certainly does not so closely reveal any faults of figure as does the sheath. But it is unlikely to catch on here.

La Mode, ever in search of novelties, has certainly achieved a remarkable success in the combination of the Elizabethan ruche and the medici collar. he ruche in front is nothing more than a soupcon, while at the back it is in the form of the medici collar that was so beloved of our grandmothers.—Philadelphia Record.

Cantata at Hope Chapel.

"The Seasons," is the title of a cantata to be given at Hope chapel, tonight at 8 o'clock, by the choir of the chapel, under the direction of Mrs. L. R. Howard, organist and choirmaster. The choir will be assisted by Joseph C. Martin and Edward Jones. Considerable time and effort have been expended on the affair and a fine entertainment is promised.

Will Chase the Hounds.

The members of the Watchung Hunt Club will meet at the Colonia Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, for a chase after the hounds. This will be the last hunt of the club this month and it is expected that a large number of riders will be out. The schedule of November hunts will be announced in a few days.

Stangel-Muller.

Miss Pauline Stangel, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stangel, of South Stirling, and Joseph F. Muller, of the same place, were married Wednesday night at the home of Rev. Peter Gibbs, at Millington. They were attended by Miss Mabel A. Bowers, of Hope, and William Muller, of South Stirling, a brother of the groom.

Only Two New Cases.

Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow reports that there have only been two new cases of typhoid fever reported during the past two weeks. He believes that the disease has been checked. Despite every effort the health authorities have been unable to ascertain the source of the infection.

Linemen Sounded Fire Alarm.

The repeated blowing of the fire gong this morning was caused by some changes and repairs in the telephone distributing box in the rear of The Daily Press office. A cross with the alarm circuit was at the bottom of the trouble.

—Neuman Brothers' store will be closed all day Election Day Place orders early Monday.

—White Label canned goods at Neuman Brothers; this season's pack of sugar sifted peas, smal lima beans and Maine corn now ready.

FEATHERS FOR TRIMMING.

Fancy feathers are a popular trimming, and the styles are legion, from the broad bandreau of great height, covering the entire crown of the hat, to the smallest quill effect. Some of the bandeaux stand upright, while others have the feathers of which they are made lying flat down upon the brim of the hat. Pocahontas effects are now being produced in many ways, made of various sorts of plumage, and in many combinations. Some of these are bound with satin or silk, and edged with soutache, and are ornamented with buttons and cabochons made of textile materials, or with metallic ornaments.

Broad wings of all kinds and descriptions are not only popular for side trimmings, but also for forming bandeaux.

Pompoms are much larger than last year; they are made of various kinds of feather plumage, and are used in solid colors or in combinations, and take the place of the ribbon bow of last season.

Some of the Pocahontas effects are being produced of ostrich feathers, of quills and of gourah, and if the consumer "has the price' they can be aigrette or paradise.

Something for Lunch.

If a woman lives at home and finds that her digestion is not doing its best there are delicious dishes made of nourishing ingredients that are said to serve for a whole meal.

Mrs. Rorer strongly advocates the following dish: Boiled rice mixed with an equal quantity of chopped nuts, a hard-boiled egg chopped fine and a very little seasoning, salt and onion juice.

This is mixed thoroughly, put into a baking dish, covered with a half pint of milk and baked until tender. Serve with a meat sauce.

Pretty Barrettes.

Much attention is given now to the pretty combs and barrettes for milady's hair. The new barrettes in bowknot, formed of shell and amber, are extremely pretty.

These useful little accessories are much larger, both in length and width, than those used formerly. The jeweled barrettes for evening wear are aglow with artificial gems, and nothing seems to be too elaborate for formal occasions.

The dainty shell barrettes for day wear are exceedingly smart and entirely practical.

Satin and Silk Combined.

So closely aillied are these two materials that they will be used together this season and one will find a satin dres trimmed with silk, or a silk one trimmed with satin, though the silks partake of such fabrics as voiles, crepe de chine and the like and not taffetas. Of course, taffetas are worn, especially black silks of this kind, but he grosgrains with satins take precedence. We see fine silk grosgrain in millinery work, and there are many satin and net waists trimmed with pipings of the materia..

A New Experience.

"I wonder what Millyuns, who had so much money while his wife had so little, is contesting her bequests for?"

"I heard him say he didn't care a picayune for the money, but he wanted for once in his life to feel what it was like to dispute her will." Baltimore American.

She Didn't Know.

It was night.

They—he and she—were sitting on the porch, looking at the stars.

"You know, I suppose," he whispered, "what a young man's privilege is when he sees a shooting star?"

"No," she answered, "I haven't the slightest idea. There goes one!"—Chicago Tribune.

Rather Effeminate.

The Saucepan—I wonder what makes the kettle so happy? It hasn't stopped singing all day.

The Coffeepot—Why, didn't you notice its new lid?—Puck.

The Annydays Call

But Not When They Were Expected.

"If there's anything in luck it does give the wife and me much of a break in one respect," complained the young married man. "What I'm talking about is this: Whenever anybody or anybodies drop in of an evening to see us the wife and I look like—well, like tramps.

"Now, I don't know why it is, but in New York it's hard to get folks to name an exact evening for calling upon you. You invite 'em to drop in and see you on such and such an evening, but they always flag you so far as any particular evening is concerned.

"'Oh, we'll look in on you some evening next week,' is the way you get it.

"And then, of course, in your state of uncertainty during all of the evenings of next week you've got to stand by with your wife to greet visitors.

"That's the way it works out with us. Every evening this week we've both been looking as pretty as the dickens after dinner—until last evening.

"On Monday evening last, to begin with, by way of illustrating a lot of weeks we've passed through, said I to the wife:

"'By the way, I met Jim Annyday on Saturday, and he said he and Mrs. Annyday'll be digging us up some evening this week. So I guess we'd better not get into the easy togs for a while to-night, eh?'

"Of course she agreed with me. Now, our easy togs, worn when we're not expecting anybody, are nothing short of disreputable. Well, when one or the other of us sounds the warning that maybe there'll be visitors of an evening of course we don't put on this delightfully slouchy makeup of ours.

"We fixed up and sat around on Monday evening last in expectation of the Annydays. The Annydays are a swagger sort of couple—though I've no doubt that in their hours of relaxation they look just as bum as we do—and of course we didn't dare to take a chance on having them sail in on us and find us looking like a pair of outcasts.

"Tuesday evening, the same. But the Annydays didn't show up Tuesday evening either. The wife and I sat and yawned in each other's faces and read sort of abstractedly and felt sort of stiff and sewed up and each had a sneaking sort of longing for the punkerino old togs that permit of so much lolly comfort, but of course we couldn't switch so long as there was a chance for the Annydays to drop in.

"Same goes for Wednesday and Thursday evenings. We sat around stiff and wretched and yet in fear that if we permitted ourselves to get comfortable the inevitable—according to the dope we've kept on this thing, as I say, ever since we were married—would happen again.

"Last evening after dinner I felt dog tired. It was hot, and I'd had a skewgee day at the office, and I didn't feel a little bit like sitting around in company clothes.

"'I'm going to take a chance,' says I to the wife. 'Those Annyday people won't come out on a night like this—rain threatening and all that—even if they're even meaning to come. I'm going to shed this gear and get into the old stuff. Might as well gamble on their not coming to-night as any other old night.'

"'But wouldn't it be awful if they were to come?' said the wife. 'I really am afraid myself to put on—'

"'Oh, you've got to change into the old stuff if I do, my dear,' I said to her. 'It wouldn't do a particle of good if you were all fussed up if they came and caught me looking like a tramp. What's the difference? It'd be a giveaway anyhow. So come on.

"Which we did. The wife removed the nine or ten pounds of supposititious hair that she packs around on her head and climbed into the easy stuff, and me similar. We'd just got rigged that way, and were spraddled out comfortably in the sitting room, me reading the baseball junk and the wife pulling on some best seller, when—

"But you know the rest. Yes, it was the Annydays, togged to within an inch of their lives. The maid had gone of course, and I had to answer the bell. My wife hadn't time to make her visit to her room to tidy up before the visitors were in the apartment. And there we were, the pair of us fairly caught!

"We tried to square it, of course, with a lot of cheap witticisms and such like, but nix, didn't go. The Annydays pretended to take it as a fine joke, the horrible way we looked, and just laughed and laughed about it, and made as if to let us down easily by saying they themselves often made themselves comfortable of evenings the same way—which was no doubt true; but all the same I'll bet a hat they went away commenting on what a pair of sights we looked and all like that.

"Never knew this to fail, as I say. And if there really is any such a thing as luck, why, I wonder why we don't get an occasional break, eh?"—New York Sun.

THEIR CHANGE OF VIEW

"She is absolutely perfect, Billy," said Billy's younger sister with enthusiasm. "She's just the kind of girl I should love for a sister, but of course I don't expect you to appreciate her at all. You haven't got a bit of sense about girls. I'm sure I don't know what would become of you if I didn't watch over you a little."

"I Think She Is Sweet."

"Is she blonde or brunette?" asked Billy with lazy interest, for he and his sister had little similarity of tastes when it came to girls.

"She's the dearest little blonde, with the most appealing face and big, baby blue eyes. There's this about her, too; she has a lot of good common sense and makes nearly all her own shirt waists and she sings beautifully and her father owns a steam yacht—"

"That's plenty about her, thank you. I've read all about that kind in books. You forget to mention that she is matrimonially inclined and is liable to try to capture a promising person like myself."

"Why, she wouldn't consider you for a moment. If you will only be nice to her while she is visiting me it won't be at all necessary for you to do anything more. Don't neglect her, though, for I want her to like you."

Next day the little blonde arrived with much fuss and feathers.

"Oh, she'll pass in a crowd," was Billy's verdict a little later when his sister anxiously sought his opinion of her friend.

The little blonde visitor accepted Billy's devotion, together with that of all the other men who crossed her path, as a matter of course. Billy's sister felt a little piqued at such indifference, because if she did say it herself there were few girls who had as good-looking a brother as Billy was.

It was at the ghost party that the visitor really forfeited the good will of Billy's sister. It wasn't just because she committed the unpardonable social error of fainting at the appearance of the sulphur ghost, for Billy's sister really had been solicitous when Billy carried the blonde girl upstairs and hovered around until she opened her eyes just as he was bending over her. It was what the little blonde girl did when she saw Billy there. Two little hands had caught Billy's face between them impetuously and then had quickly dropped when Billy's sister ejaculated: "Oh!"

"I don't think Ruth need have upset the whole party the way she did last night," complained Billy's sister to Billy the next day. "She is going home to-morrow and I'll really feel relieved, for she is so hard to entertain."

"Poor little girl!" said Billy, meditatively. "When'll she be back from the hair dresser's? She's been gone an hour and 45 minutes."

"She may stay there all day for all I care," remarked Billy's sister, indifferently. "I suppose you might take her for a little ride in the machine when she comes in, for we ought to be nice to her even though we are so tired of her. We never will have her to visit us again, anyhow."

"You never can tell, though," remarked Billy as he left the room.

"I hope Billy doesn't compromise himself with her," said Billy's sister to her mother a little later as she waved her hand at the couple departing in the machine.

"Why, you were so fond of her and so anxious that he should fall in love with her," said her mother with a puzzled expression. "I think she is sweet."

"She is a snippy little cat and so weak and washed-out looking," stormed Billy's sister.

When the little blonde girl and Billy returned that night his sister was waiting up for them and met them with a worried frown.

"What a naughty girl to stay out so late without a chaperon!" she said, playfully.

The little blonde girl and Billy looked at each other and then laughed.

"Go ahead—tell her," commanded Billy.

The little blonde girl put up a little hand on which gleamed a new gold band ring.

"We—we're married," she stammered, blushing. Then she threw her arms around her new sister's neck. "Oh, I just never can love you enough! Billy told me how you wanted me for a sister from the very first and we owe it all to you!"

"A Steam Yacht in the Family."

"I suppose it is for the best," soliloquized Billy's sister later as she mentally reviewed the situation. "Besides, it is nice to have a steam yacht in the family."

HUNTING THE ELK BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

[Copyright, 1885, by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Published under arrangement with G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.]

ONE day Merrifield and I went out together and had a rather exciting chase after some bull elk. The previous evening, toward sunset, I had seen three bulls trotting off across an open glade toward a great stretch of forest and broken ground, up near the foot of the rocky peaks. Next morning early we started off to hunt through this country. The walking was hard work, especially up and down the steep cliffs, covered with slippery pine needles; or among the windfalls, where the rows of dead trees lay piled up across one another in the wildest confusion. We saw nothing until we came to a large patch of burnt ground, where we at once found the soft, black soil marked up by elk hoofs; nor had we penetrated into it more than a few hundred yards before we came to tracks made but a few minutes before, and almost instantly afterward saw three bull elk, probably those I had seen on the preceding day. We had been running briskly up-hill through the soft, heavy loam, in which our feet made no noise, but slipped and sank deeply; as a consequence, I was all out of breath and my hand so unsteady that I missed my first shot.

Elk, however, do not vanish with the instantaneous rapidity of frightened deer, and these three trotted off in a direction quartering to us. I doubt if I ever went through more violent exertion than in the next ten minutes. We raced after them at full speed, opening fire; I wounded all three, but none of the wounds were immediately disabling. They trotted on and we panted afterwards, slipping on the wet earth, pitching headlong over charred stumps, leaping on dead logs that broke beneath our weight, more than once measuring our full-length on the ground, halting and firing whenever we got a chance. At last one bull fell; we passed him by after the others which were still running up-hill. The sweat streamed into my eyes and made furrows in the sooty mud that covered my face, from having fallen full length down on the burnt earth; I sobbed for breath as I toiled at a shambling trot after them, as nearly done out as could well be. At this moment they turned down-hill. It was a great relief; a man who is too done up to go a steep up-hill can still run fast enough down; with a last spurt I closed in near enough to fire again; one elk fell; the other went off at a walk. We passed the second elk and I kept on alone after the third, not able to go at more than a slow trot myself, and too much winded to dare risk a shot at any distance. He got out of the burnt patch, going into some thick timber in a deep ravine; I closed pretty well, and rushed after him into a thicket of young evergreens. Hardly was I in when there was a scramble and bounce among them and I caught a glimpse of a yellow body moving out to one side; I ran out toward the edge and fired through the twigs at the moving beast. Down it went, but when I ran up, to my disgust I found that I had jumped and killed, in my haste, a black-tail deer, which must have been already roused by the passage of the wounded elk. I at once took up the trail of the latter again, but after a little while the blood grew less, and ceased, and I lost the track; nor could I find it, hunt as hard as I might. The poor beast could not have gone five hundred yards; yet we never found the carcass.

Then I walked slowly back past the deer I had slain by so curious a mischance, to the elk. The first one shot down was already dead. The second was only wounded, though it could not rise. When it saw us coming it sought to hide from us by laying its neck flat on the ground, but when we came up close it raised its head and looked proudly at us, the heavy mane bristling up on the neck, while its eyes glared and its teeth grated together. I felt really sorry to kill it. Though these were both well-known elks, their antlers, of ten points, were small, twisted, and ill-shaped; in fact hardly worth preserving, except to call to mind a chase in which during a few minutes I did as much downright hard work as it has often fallen to my lot to do. The burnt earth had blackened our faces and hands till we looked like negroes.

The finest bull, with the best head that I got, was killed in the midst of very beautiful and grand surroundings. We had been hunting through a great pine wood which ran up to the edge of a broad canyon-like valley, bounded by sheer walls of rock. There were fresh tracks of elk about, and we had been advancing up wind with even more than our usual caution when, on stepping out into a patch of open ground, near the edge of the cliff, we came upon a great bull, beating and thrashing his antlers against a young tree, about eighty yards off. He stopped and faced us for a second, his mighty antlers thrown in the air, as he held his head aloft. Behind him towered the tall and sombre pines, while at his feet the jutting crags overhung the deep chasm below, that stretched off between high walls of barren and snow-streaked rocks, the evergreens clinging to their sides, while along the bottom, the rapid torrent gathered in places into black and sullen mountain lakes. As the bull turned to run I struck him just behind the shoulder; he reeled to the death-blow, but staggered gamely on a few rods into the forest before sinking to the ground, with my second bullet through his lungs.

Two or three days later than this I killed another bull, nearly as large, in the same patch of woods in which I had slain the first. A bear had been feeding on the carcass of the latter, and, after a vain effort to find his den, we determined to beat through the woods and try to start him up. Accordingly, Merrifield, the teamster, and myself took parallel courses some three hundred yards apart, and started at one end to walk through to the other. I doubt if the teamster much wished to meet a bear alone (while nothing would have given Merrifield more hearty and unaffected enjoyment than to have encountered an entire family), and he gradually edged in pretty close to me. Where the woods became pretty open I saw him suddenly lift his rifle and fire, and immediately afterwards a splendid bull elk trotted past in front of me, evidently untouched, the teamster having missed. The elk ran to the other side of two trees that stood close together some seventy yards off, and stopped for a moment to look round. Kneeling down I fired at the only part of his body I could see between the two trees, and sent a bullet into his flank. Away he went, and I after, running in my moccasins over the moss and pine needles for all there was in me. If a wounded elk gets fairly started he will go at a measured trot for many hours, and even if mortally hurt may run twenty miles before falling; while at the same time he does not start off at full speed, and will often give an active hunter a chance for another shot as he turns and changes his course preparatory to taking a straight line. So I raced along after the elk at my very best speed for a few hundred feet, and then got another shot as he went across a little glade, injuring his hip somewhat. This made it all right for me, and another hundred yards' burst took me up to where I was able to put a ball in a fatal spot, and the grand old fellow sank down and fell over on his side.

No sportsman can ever feel much keener pleasure and self-satisfaction than when, after a successful stalk and good shot, he walks up to a grand elk lying dead in the cool shade of the great evergreens, and looks at the massive and yet finely moulded form, and at the mighty antlers which are to serve in the future as the trophy and proof of his successful skill. Still-hunting the elk on the mountains is as noble a kind of sport as can well be imagined; there is nothing more pleasant and enjoyable, and at the same time it demands that the hunter shall bring into play many manly qualities. There have been few days of my hunting life that were so full of unalloyed happiness as were those spent on the Bighorn range. From morning till night I was on foot, in cool, bracing air, now moving silently through the vast, melancholy pine forests, now treading the brink of high, rocky precipices, always amid the most grand and beautiful scenery; and always after as noble and lordly game as is to be found in the Western world.

Since writing the above I killed an elk near my ranch; probably the last of his race that will ever be found in our neighborhood. It was just before the fall round-up. An old hunter, who was under some obligation to me, told me that he had shot a cow elk and had seen the tracks of one or two others not more than twenty-five miles off, in a place where the cattle rarely wandered. Such a chance was not to be neglected and, on the first free day, one of my Elk-born foremen, Wadlow by name, and myself, took our hunting horses and started off, accompanied by the ranch wagon, in the direction of the probable haunts of the doomed deer. Towards nightfall we struck a deep spring pool, near by the remains of an old Indian encampment. It was at the head of a great basin, several miles across, in which we believed the game to lie. The wagon was halted and we pitched camp; there was plenty of dead wood, and soon the venison steaks were broiling over the coals raked from beneath the crackling cottonwood logs, while in the narrow valley the ponies grazed almost within the circle of the flickering fire-light. It was in the cool and pleasant month of September; and long after going to bed we lay awake under the blankets watching the stars that on clear nights always shine with such intense brightness over the lonely Western plains.

We were up and off by the gray of the morning. It was a beautiful hunting day; the sundogs hung in the red dawn; the wind hardly stirred over the crisp grass; and though the sky was cloudless yet the weather had that queer, smoky, hazy look that it is most apt to take on during the time of the Indian summer. From a high spur of the table-land we looked out far and wide over a great stretch of broken country, the brown of whose hills and valleys was varied everywhere by patches of dull red and vivid yellow, tokens that the trees were already putting on the dress with which they greet the mortal ripening of the year. The deep and narrow but smooth ravines running up towards the edges of the plateaus were heavily wooded, the bright green tree-tops rising to a height they rarely reach in the barren plains-country; and the rocky sides of the sheer gorges were clad with a thick growth of dwarfed cedars, while here and there the trailing Virginia creepers burned crimson among their sombre masses.

We hunted stealthily up-wind, across the line of the heavily timbered coulies. We soon saw traces of our quarry; old tracks at first, then the fresh footprints of a single elk—a bull, judging by the size—which had come down to drink at a miry alkali pool, its feet slipping so as to leave the marks of the false hoofs in the soft soil. We hunted with painstaking and noiseless care for many hours; at last as I led old Manitou up to look over the edge of a narrow ravine, there was a crash and movement in the timber below me, and immediately afterwards I caught a glimpse of a great bull elk trotting up through the young trees as he gallantly breasted the steep hill-side opposite. When clear of the woods, and directly across the valley from me, he stopped and turned half round, throwing his head in the air to gaze for a moment at the intruder. My bullet struck too far back, but, nevertheless, made a deadly wound, and the elk went over the crest of the hill at a wild, plunging gallop. We followed the bloody trail for a quarter of a mile, and found him dead in a thicket. Though of large size, he yet had but small antlers, with few points.

There was a crash and movement in the timber below me.

The Sphinx and Success.

The ambitious young man approached the sphinx and said, "Oh, tell me, what rule makes for success?"

"I will, sir," said the sphinx, with a slight smile. "No man is a success alone. He must have his associates, his assistants. Select a capable general manager and make him responsible to you for everything. Choose for him a lieutenant, holding him responsible to your general manager. For the lieutenant get a division superintendent under command of the lieutenant, under him an assistant, and under the assistant-assistant a helper, each in turn responsible to the one above. Follow this to the last and lowest man. You yourself have no worry, no frets, and need only to draw the dividends. You may even live in Europe."

"But," asked the ambitious young man, puzzled, "how am I to be able to select the right men?"

And then the sphinx smiled broadly.

BOROUGHITES' BIG RALLY

Former Governor Stokes Addresses Enthusiastic Meeting in Saengerbund Hall.

UNDER REPUBLICAN AUSPICES.

Assemblyman W. W. Smalley Also Speaks—Robert Clark, Jr., Chairman for the Occasion.

The most enthusiastic political meeting of the campaign in the borough was held last night at Saengerbund Hall by the Republicans. The speakers, Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, were vigorously applauded, their remarks constantly bringing forth cheers. A stringed orchestra helped to liven up things.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., called the meeting to order and introduced the chairman, Former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., who after a few general comments on the political situation, presented Former Governor Stokes.

Observing that there were many women present, Mr. Stokes noted the fact and paid a tribute to the influence of womanhood in the affairs of the nation. In behalf of Senator Frelinghuysen he declared that the latter had made a record so illustrious, efficient and courageous that the eyes of the whole State are watching his progress in this campaign and that the voters of Somerset county can best serve the interests of the county and commonwealth by returning him to the Senate. He compared the conditions in the State fifteen years ago, when the Democrats were in power, with those at the present time, saying:

"During the Democratic administration the race track gamblers controlled the State. The Republicans have wiped out their power and constitutional amendments have been adopted. In those days the officials put the fees in their pockets; now the money goes into the trasury. The appropriations bill shows what is done with the funds. Then, the income of the State was insufficient, now it is more than sufficient. Fifteen years ago they were asking us not to disgrace the State by the passage of the race track bill. The Republicans passed the bill and thirteen years later a petition for reform in regard to the sale of liquor was needed and the Bishops' bill was passed. Local option does not settle the question of the preservaion of Sunday. If the saloon has a right to sell on Sunday, hasn't the shop keeper and every one else? If you open the doors to some on the day of rest you must open to all. I honor Senator Frelinghuysen that he will not permit the violation of the American Sabbath."

Mr. Stokes described W. J. Bryan as the perpetual candidate, who lives on failures. He said he reminded him of the Iraelites who were compelled to march around Jerusalem seven times before they could enter. Bryan had been around the White House twice and has five times more to go. He believed every man should be in his right place and the right man should be in the chair. In regard to the guarantee of banks he said:

"Such a system would do away with honesty and integrity in the banking business. I am not in favor of a law which makes honest men pay dishonest men's debts."

Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, candidate for re-election entered the hall while the former governor was speaking and was given an ovation. In his speech he said he had just come from a trip through the county and found the people very much awake. Continuing, he said: "All of the candidates on the Republican ticket, both national and local, are men of experience. Senator Frelinghuysen is a capable man. He has made mistakes, it is true, but who does not? We should treat them in the same way as the nation treats those made by Roosevelt. He has been faithful, always on duty, on guard, planning to put through some important bill. His auto bill was for the good of the people at large. The autoists use the roads more than any others; let them help pay for them. It is said that the Auto Association is to have revenge. I am sorry to hear that any Republicans are thinking of scratching Senator Frelinghuysen's name."

Mr. Smalley put in a word for County Clerk Anderson, saying that he is always to be found at his desk attending to his duties.

Hallowe'en Masquerade.

The S. S. S. Society held a Hallowen'en masquerade party last night at the home of Daniel Applegate on East Fifth street. There were about twenty-five guests, all dressed in costume. The evening was spent playing Hallowe'en games and dancing. At midnight refreshments were served.

PLAINFIELDER'S TRIBUTE TO SHRIEVALTY CANDIDATE

A warm, personal Plainfield friend of Captain Robert Kirkland, the Republican candidate for Sheriff in Union county, recognizing his many excellent qualities, has the following to say in praise of him:

"The position of Sheriff in Union county is one of honor, of dignity and of great responsibility. The duties are important, requiring in their execution both fairness and fearlessness.

"The Republicans have nominated for Sheriff a gentleman fully equipped both mentally and physically to measure up to the high standards demanded by the people. Captain Robert J. Kirkland has a record which should make any citizen feel justly proud. Captain Kirkland has navigated as a commander the waters around New York harbor for over twenty-two years. He has had in his charge vessels of importance like the 'St. Johns,' 'Jesse Hoyt,' and the 'Kill von Kull.' As will be noted from the names of the steamers, he has been engaged not alone in piloting boats between Elizabeth and New York, but has been employed on the important and popular Sandy Hook route. During this time he has never been in trouble or called before the Board of Steamboat Inspectors and his work has ben absolutely free from all criticsm by those most interested—the owners of the steamers. During his career he has carried millions in value in freight and thousands of passengers and without loss or accident.

"Captain Kirkland has long been noted for his personal bravery and during his time has saved twenty-nine lives, many times at his personal risk. Like men of his training he is kind hearted and sympathetic, also firm and resolute to do the right and uphold the dignity of the law. He has all the qualifications of an ideal Sheriff. The Republican party is fortunate in securing the consent of Captain Kirkland to accept a nomination for the office.

"Captain Kirkland has been brought up from a poor boy in the school of practical things and his splendid record should command the support and admiration of his fellow citizens."

SPEEDY TYPIST GIVES REMARKABLE EXHIBITION

At the Drake Business College, last night, Emil A. Trefzger, of New York, the speedy typist and short hand writer, demonstrated his skill in some remarkable tests, and it was announsed that some world's records were broken. About 250 pupils and friends of the school were present to witness the performance.

Mr. Trefzger wrote from copy 197 words in 84 seconds and in another similar test, 141 words in 60 seconds. He wrote a letter from memory at the rate of 207 words in one minute. His speed from distation was 125 words in 55 seconds and while blindfolded, from distation, 118 words in 54 seconds.

In the world's championship contest held at Madison Square Garden, New York, Mr. Trefzger was but one word behind the winner, his speed being 86 words per minute against 87 for his opponent.

In the short hand tests he wrote on a blackboard from dictation, 109 words in 30 seconds and again 111 words in 30 seconds. On being blindfolded he took dictation at the rate of 109 words in 29 seconds. Some of the pupils were able to translate the work on the board and he himself read it off readily.

In all of the tests the stop watch was held by a disinterested party and the manuscripts were passed around for inspection.

An intersting talk was made by Mr. Morgan K. Deale, of the Remington Typewriter Co., of New York, on the value of a business education and what to do after securing a position. He advised the appliant for a position to use the same confidence in his test for employment as he displays at school and after securing the position to stick to it in the face of all discouragements. "Cultivate the acquaintance of those in the office who are workers and climbers and not the laggards," he said, "and cater to those who can help you."

To Receive Election Returns.

The City Republican Committee has completed arrangements for a special wire at headquarters in the City National Bank building, election night, and the complete returns will be received there. The committe has also planned to stretch a canvas on East Front street, on which the returns will be flashed throughout the evening.

—The Plainfield office of Eisle & King will be open all election night for the execution of orders on the London Exchange. 10 30 3

PARK CLUB RESUMES SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

The opening reception of the Park Club, marking the resumption of social activities at the club for the winter, was held last night, and was largely attended by society people from the borough and city. The entertainment committee, of which Harry L. McGee is the chairman, planned an enjoyable affair, and the attractive clubhouse was elaborately decorated for the occasion with potted plants, ferns and flowers. The arrangement about the stage was particularly attractive.

The early part of the evening was devoted to general sociability, and a little later guests were entertained in a delightful manner by Miss Louise Saunders, who gave three original monologues, in a charming manner. She was greeted with genuine applause and her work was truly appreciated.

The rest of the evening was spent in dancing, music for which was furnished by vonDerHeid's Orchestra. This was continued until a late hour. The patronesses for the affair were the wives of the governors of the club, and they also acted as a reception committee, receiving the guests throughout the evening.

COUNTY ENDEAVORERS HOLD FIRST FALL MEETING

The first fall meeting of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union was held last night in the First Presbyterian church, Cranford. There was a large attendance. H. C. Woodruff, of Westfield, first vice-president of the Union, presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, W. E. Kendall, of Elizabeth. Owing to conflict in dates Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, was unable to speak and his place was filled by Percy Nuessle, of Newark, former president of the Essex County C. E. Union, and superintendent of the introduction department of the State C. E. Union. He spoke of the first two days of the convention at Atlantic City and urged the Endeavorers of Union county to work harder and to be more faithful in their C. E. service during the coming year.

Brief echoes of the State convention at Atlantic City were given by W. M. Lumm, of Union Village, and Charles F. Windham and Clarence B. LaRue, of Plainfield. Mrs. Robert Lowery, of this city superintendent of the Union county Junior Endevor Union, made an earnest appeal for the extension of Junior work throughout the county at the request of the district secretary, Miss Nellie K. Toole and the State secretary, Miss Ida B. Stephens. The Plainfield Endeavorers repeated the song that was sung at Atlantic City, inviting the State union to hold its convention in Plainfield in 1909. The verses were sung as a solo by B. L. Lumm, of Elizabeth, and the others joined in the chorus.

TRINITY BIBLE CLASS GIVES AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible Class, of Trinity Reformed church, a successful entertainment was given in the lecture room of the church, last night, by Prof. Malcolm Shackleford, assisted by Miss Harriet Randall and Miss Lucie Coriell, who rendered a piano duet. For over an hour Prof. Shackleford enteretained the large audience with some of his best recitations, songs and monologues, opening with "Tain't No Disgrace to Run When You Are Scared," followed by a vocal selection, "Nursery Rhymes."

Among the hits was a monologue, introducing an Irishman, a duck and the hall room boys, negro stories, songs, "A Man is a Hero," "That's Me," "Baffin's Bay," and "Yours." Before Mr. Shackleford appeared, Miss Randall and Miss Coriell gave a piano duet. After the entertainment the members of the Bible Class and their friends enjoyed a social hour. The silver offering netted a satisfactory sum for the class.

Entertained Primary Class.

The teachers of the primary classes of Grace M. E. Sunday-school, Miss Belle Lunger and Miss Alice Carroll, assisted by others, entertained the children and their mothers yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5 in the parlors of the church. It was an enjoyable sight to see eighty-five happy little ones at their games. Miss Carroll was in charge of their entertainment. At 4 o'clock ice cream and cake was served. Friday evening, November 6, the regular Sunday-school will hold a social with the parents and home department.

Mrs. Mary Brokaw, who lives near Whitehouse, has been spending some time with the family of Lewis Wyckoff, of this city.

PLEAD TO INDICTMENTS

Elizabeth Men in Court to Answer Registration Fraud Charges.

DISCLAIM OF BEING GUILTY.

Bail Fixed at $200 in Each Case and Trials Set Down for November 10 and 12.

Following the investigation by the Union county Grand Jury, eight arrests were made in Elizabeth, yesterday, in which the prisoners were asked to plead bfore Judge E. S. Atwater to indictments charging illegal registration and false swearing. In each case the accused entered a plea of not guilty and was released under bail to appear on November 10 and 12 for trial. Those arrested yesterday and last night are Democrats.

George Daubner, who is janitor of the City Hall, Elizabeth, and a former members of the Common Council there, was arraigned on eleven indictments for illegal registration and five indictments for false swearing. He was released on $200 bail on each count, furnished by himself. His counsel is Samuel Schleimer, and trial was set for November 10.

The others arrested are as follows: Martin Reitman, Adolph Weill, Spencer Titus, John Voss, James Burns, Thomas O'Reilly and Thomas Smith. They are represented by William R. Wilson, as counsel and each one was released on $200 bail and trial was fixed for November 12. Each one entered a plea of not guilty.

Leo Sauer, editor of The Elizabeth Evening Times, was summoned before the Grand Jury yesterday to answer for an editorial appearing in that newspaper criticizing the Grand Jury for its action regarding alleged illegal registration. It is understood that a satisfactory conclusion was reached, although Mr. Sauer admitted that perhaps he had overstepped the bounds in his criticism of the Grand Jury.

GONGS SCARED PONY; GIRL DRIVER THROWN

Taking fright at the clanging of the bells on the fire apparatus, which was responding to an alarm for fire in Trinity Reformed church, a little brown pony, driven by Miss Claire Kenworthy, twelve-year-old daughter of A. W. Kenworthy, of Willow avenue, became fractious at Park avenue and Second street this morning, collided with another rig, upset the pony cart to which it was attached and threw its young driver at the corner. The pony dragged the overturned cart about fifty feet and was finally stopped by Patrolman John Kelley. Miss Kenworthy was uninjured by her tumble and there was no damage.

Miss Kenworthy, who was alone in the pony cart was driving toward Front street on Park avenue, when the alarm was sounded from box 12. As the chemical engine dashed across Park avenue, the pony took fright and turned sharply into West Second street, crashing the rig into a wagon standing near the corner. The wheels dished and the light basket cart was overturned. Bystanders rushed to the plucky driver's assistance as she fell, and the pony dashed across the street, dragging the cart. At the curb it was stopped by Patrolman Kelley.

The "fire" in Trinity church proved to be no fire at all. H. W. Van Arsdale, janitor of the church, started a fire in the auxiliary furnace unaware that the smoke pipe had not yet been connected with the chimney for the winter and the dense smoke filled the edifice. When the firemen arrived, Van Arsdale sought to keep them out of the church, declaring that there was no fire. The trouble was remedied without damage.

Emma E. Lefevre.

After an illness of but nine days Miss Emma E. Lefevre died last night at the home of her neice, Mrs. William H. Wootton of Carlton avenue, of pneumonia. She had been a resident of this city for only about a year. Miss Lefevre is survived by a sister, Mrs. John Tift Kipp, of Baltimore, Md. The funeral will be at Baltimore Monday and the interment will be at London Park cemetery in that city.

Epworth Leaguers at Cranford.

Thirty-five members of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church went to Cranford last night and enjoyed a Hallowe'en party given by the League of St. Paul's church. The Elizabeth League also was there. A large empty hause had been sesured for the occasion and prettily decorated for the occasion.

SERVANT GIRL DIES FROM TERRIBLE BURNS

Miss Anna Timmins, the nineteen-year-old girl who was so frightfully burned at the home of Dr. and Mrs. M. P. E. Groszmann on Watchung Crest, yesterday morning, died at Muhlenberg Hospital at 6:30 o'clock this morning, without recovering consciousness. Her condition was critical from the time she was admitted to the institution and her death was known to be only a question of a short time.

It was through a friend, who is employed as a laundress at the Groszmann School, that Miss Timmins came to Plainfield. She was born in Ireland, and had lived in New York about a year. It was two weeks ago that she came to this city. Despite repeated warnings, the girl used denatured alcohol on the kitchen range to hurry the fire. An explosion followed and the girl's clothing was in ablaze almost instantly.

The body has been removed to the undertaking rooms of George Cole on West Second street, where it will be held awaiting instructions from a sister who lives in New York, and who has been notified.

BIG SIGN ADVERTISES 'RUSHMORE TAX BOOK'

Samuel W. Rushmore, proprietor of the Rushmore Dynamo Works, who recently started a campaign of education regarding tax assessment methods in Plainfield, has renewed interest in his efforts by changing the lettering on the big sign at his factory on South avenue. Commuters on their way to and from New York today read the following: "Plainfield Taxes Who Pays Them? Tax Book Ready November 10."

The work of changing the sign was started yesterday afternoon and it caused considerable interest on the part of those residing in the East End of the city.

A few weeks ago following the erection of the big sign, Mr. Rushmore had it lettered in this way: "Tremendous Taxes for Easy Plainfielders. Easy Taxes for Those in the Ring. See Rushmore tax book for who's who and why." In connection with this lettering there also appeared a picture of a boodle alderman, wearing a silk hat, flashy clothes and diamond and smoking a cigar. The announcement caused great interest among taxpayers and city officials, although the latter said that if Mr. Rushmore had any complaint to make he had redress through the local, county and State boards of taxation, but so far as known he had not taken up his grievances with either one of these boards.

When questioned as to the new wording on his sign today, Mr. Rushmore said that there was nothing new in the situation, except that he desired to announce the fact that the tax books would be ready on November 10. Beyond that he had nothing more to say. The tax book compiled by Mr. Rushmore is expected to contain the assessment of every taxpayer in Plainfield and it is his purpose to distributing the same to show who are the favored few."

Mr. Rushmore, through a corps of clerks, obtained the complete list of assessments from the tax collector's office and this is to appear in his book. It is also expected that there will be general comments by the way of explaining the reason for Mr. Rushmore's attack on the assessors and taxing body of the city.

LARGE GATHERING AT FUNERAL OF MRS. McVOY.

The funeral of Mrs. Isaiah L. McVoy, who died Tuesday night, was held at her late residence on East Front street yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea officiated, assisted by Rev. George Angleman, of Sussex, a nephew of the deceased.

The attendance was very large. Set pieces of flowers were presented by Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps, the Sunday-school and the Missionary Society of the First M. E. church. During the service Mrs. Thomas MacDonald sang two selections. The members of the W. R. C. and G. A. R. each dropped a carnation in the casket as they took their last view of the body.

Burial took place at the M. E. cemetery on Plainfield avenue. The following acted as pall bearers: Monroe and Elmer Terry, Charles Hellyer, Frank Emmons, Raymond Guinn and Harry Joseph.

Sixty-five Paid Pupils.

The success of Mount Saint Mary's College, which was recently opened on the mountain in North Plainfield, seems already to be assured. There are now sixty-five paid pupils at the institution and the work is progressing satisfactorily under the direction of the Sisters of Mercy.

COPS' UNIFORMS HELD BY TAILOR'S ATTACHMENT

Several of the beaux Brummel of the city's police and fire department were thrown into a state of great consternation yesterday afternoon by the action of Justice of the Peace Hezekiah Hand in serving the papers of an execution sale of the "goods and chattels" of Charles Rogoff's tailoring establishment on West Second street. And the "why" of it all is this: The said cops and firefighters have their uniforms at the store, being cleaned and pressed to make more gala the appearance of these men on the Rialto of "The City Beautiful." The legal papers executed by "Hezekiah Hand, Sergeant at Arms of District Court of City of Plainfield" made it impossible for even a cop to go to the tailor's and get his brass buttoned blouse and his jeans This realization brought murmurs of consternation from the lee side of the new police bungalow and several of the "Finest" figured it out that "Black shoes, neatly shined" would be the only uniform regulations with which they could comply.

But there's always a way out of trouble, and when the cops learned that some firemen were in the same fix as themselves, they "got together" and a delegation of earnest-faced flame and disturbace quellers "waited upon" 'Kiah Hand After a long session, at which law books were freely consulted so as to be sure everybody was in the right, eighteen yards of red tape were disentangled from the proceedings at the little tailor shop and each man involved was given typewritten permission to get his clothes.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the "clothes line" formed in front of Rogoff's place and under the watchful "Judge" Hand, each cop and fireman walked quietly in, picked up his own particular coat and pants and went proudly away. And the "Finest" are still the finest

The attachment proceeding are the result of action brought against Rogoff by Kasper and Kussell Sacher. The "goods and chattels" to be disposed of include fifteen coats, twelve pairs of trousers and "a lot of other clothing" Since the cops and firemen called, however, there is less of a lot.

DR. JOSIAH STRONG AT THE Y.M.C.A. TOMORROW

The Sunday meeting for men in Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon will be addressed by Dr. Josiah Strong, one of the most widely known and most influential men in America. Dr. Strong is accepted as one of the greatest authorities on the interpretation of facts concerning the world's progress. Some of the most significant books of the time have come from his pen, including "Our Country," "The New Era," "The next Great Awakening," "The Times and Young Men," "Expansion" and "The Challenge of the City." He is just now engaged in the writing of what will probably be his greatest contribution to the literature of social progress.

Dr. Strong has also achieved eminence in the lecture field, for which he is rarely equipped by his rare personal charm, his power of statement and by the vital nature of his message. His address tomorrow on "Success in the Times in which we Live" is one of his very strongest.

Miss Edith Allen Mooney, mezzo-soprano, will sing.

Special Musical Service.

A special musical service will be held at Faith chapel, tomorrow night, when several selections will be rendered by an orchestra composed of Arthur S. Mosher, violin; Elmer P. OFFICIALS CALL A HALT

Hold Up P. S. C. in Running In Another High Tension Wire.

CONFERENCE HELD TODAY.

Work Suspended for the Time Being but Matter Will Be Further Argued at a Meeting Tonight.

It having been learned by Mayor Charles J. Fisk and other city officials, that it is the intention of the Public Service Corporation to string from the Cranford power plant to this city, several conferences have been held with a view to avoiding this if possible. The matter was brought to the attention of the city officials through the erection of new and larger poles East of Richmond street. Inquiry was made and the Public Service Corporation stated that it is the desire to obtain current for lighting the Netherwood section from the Cranford plant and this would require a high tension wire.

This morning there was a conference in the Mayor's office, which was attended by Mr. Fisk, Councilman F. E. Mygatt, chairman of the public affairs committee; R. Henry Depew, president of the Plainfield Protective Association; G. W. V. Moy, counsel for the P. P. A., and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh. The officers of the Public Service Corporation at Newark, were communicated with by telephone and they have agreed to suspend operations for the present, pending another conference to be held at the Mayor's office tonight. The city officials do not want any overhead high tension wires in the city, preferring that they should be placed underground. It is to that end they are working now.

According to the proposed plan o the company, current from the Metuchen plant will be used chiefly to illuminate the West End of the city, while the current from Cranford will be distributed in the Netherwood district, and both will be expected to divide the work of lighting the centre of the city, while the electric plant on Madison avenue will be used almost exclusively to furnish power for the trolley service over this division of the company's lines.

A few years ago a high tension wire was run into the city from the Metuchen plant and at that time there was considerable opposition to it. There seems to be a question whether the city has any jurisdiction in the matter, unless it can be prove that such an overhead wire is absolutely dangerous to life, limb and property. However, it is the intention to prevent the stringing of such wires overhead if such a thing is possible.

Church Aids Needy Minister.

One of the best boxes of clothing, housekeeping articles and things generally needed in the home of a needy western minister's family, was packed Tuesday by a committee of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, of Trinity Reformed church, and sent to Rev. A fine new suit of clothes for the minister, besides clothing for the daughters, was among the useful things in the box, which was valued at $139.59. At the same time a barrel was packed and sent to the Schofield School at Aiken, South Carolina, valued at $10.55.

She also leaves nine grand children and eleven great grand children. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from Mrs. Randolph's home and the interment will be in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

PLANNED TO MARRY; IN LOCK-UP INSTEAD.

Randolph Carter, colored, of Westfield, hired two automobiles on Wednesday night to come to Plainfield intending to marry a local girl. He used only one car, and instead of getting married got drunk, with the result that he landed in the town lock-up, and yesterday morning was haled before Judge Toucey and fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct.

Carter paid his fine and then paid the proprietor of Woodruff's garage $10 for the use of the automobile. The other auto hired by Carter stood in front of the Quackenbush garage for four hours at Carter's expense. The charge for this car was $15.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The members of the Baptist church and their friends sprung a Hallowe'en surprise party on their pastor, Rev. Franklin Mathiews, at the parsonage last night, after the prayer meeting. The affair was a success in every way, although there was no reason why the pastor should not have known something was in the wind, from the size of the audience, although the weekly meetings have been increasing in attendance since Mr. Mathiews began his work here, and he may have thought that his fondest hope had been realized, that is that the members of the church would all turn out and support the mid-week meeting. Be that as it may, he was agreeably surprised when he returned to the parsonage to find that his flock had preceded him and were awaiting his coming in Hallowe'en attire, sheets and caps. The parson entered into the spirit of the affair at once and the evening was spent in playing games and enjoying vocal and instrumental music. During the evening refreshments were served, the principal feature on the bill of fare being pumpkin pie. The festivities lasted until about 11:30 when pastor and people parted, each feeling that the ties of pastor and people had been drawn, if possible, a little nearer together by the pleasant event.

The Board of Education have engaged Miss McClay, of Plainfield, and Miss Turnbull, of New York, as the two new teachers for the two classes which will be formed from the increased enrollment of several of the rooms. Both Miss McClay and Miss Turnbull come well recommended to the board and will prove valuable acquisitions to the corps of teachers.

Election day is but two days away. The vote this year should be a record-breaker as the voting list is larger by thirty than any previous year. This looks as though the leaders have been hustling to get the vote registered. The next thing to do is to get it out.

The regular services will be held at the Baptist church tomorrow morning. Morning preaching at 10:45. At the close of the sermon the monthly communion will be held. B. Y. P. U. meeting 7:15, followed by the evening sermon at 8 o'clock.

George A. Clark has been enjoying a week's vacation from his position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in New York.

Better take care of your gates, etc., before night falls, as this is Hallowe'en night, and portable property is apt to disappear.

John Dunn, a former resident here, but now of New York, has been visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Frank Hull, of Green Island, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Corey, of Park avenue.

The weekly prayer-meeting of the Methodist church will be held in the church tonight.

How She Got It.

A little girl was sent by her mother to the grocery store with a jug for a quart of vinegar.

"But, mamma," said the little one, "I can't say that word!"

"But you must try," said the mother, "for I must have vinegar, and there's no one else to send."

So the little girl went with the jug, and, as she reached the counter of the store, she pulled the cork out of the jug with a pop, swung the jug on the counter with a thud, and said to the astonished clerk:

"There! Smell of that, and give me a quart!"—Mother's Magazine.

Buttons.

All buttons are now made of the same material as the dress, or to match the revers, collar or their facings. They are large for the coats, but not of such great dimensions when adorning the skirtt. Large flattt buttons are to be seen on the latest hats. They are made to appear as though fastening the wings or other trimming in place. The effect is very smart and novel.

Cross-Questioned.

Policeman (to tenant of flat)—And you say the rug was stolen from your hall. Can you give me any particulars about it?

Tenant (nervously)—Oh, yes. It was a fancy reversible rug—red on one side and green on the other.

Policeman (impressively)—Ah—and which was the green side?—Punch.

BABY'S PRAYER.

Oh, God is near the cottage when the evening shadows creep,
And baby lips are murmuring: "I lay me down to s'eep!"
No matter what the distance is where baby says her prayer,
The omnipresent God of Love is always watching there!

Ah, He who quotes then pflkOt .h
Ah, He who notes the sparrow's fall and buoys the robin's flight,
Shall He forget the hour of dusk
when baby says "good night?"
Shall He, aloof from baby's prayer and baby's laughter purled,
Deny himself the sweetest chord that charms a raptured world?

Ah, God is near when baby prays beside her downy bed,
And God will send his angels down to watch above her head—
To guard her through the Sleepy Way, the "bogey" wood of night,
And give her back to mother's arms
when Phoebus takes her flight

Ah, now the baby lisps: "Amen!"
and mother tucks her snug,
And kisses her, and pats her hair and calls her "mother's bug!"
And then she tiptoes from the room,
as evening shadows limn,
And leaves her baby fast in sleep,
to angel guards—and Him!

—Byron Williams.

LOVE SONG.

Like a vine around the lattice
You have been through varied fates,
Clinging softly 'round my shoulders
Since the day we two 'came mates;
When the world was cold and heartless,
Gray and bleak the skies above.
O the warmth of your embraces!
Need I tell you, faithful love?
(Reader, don't get so disgusted,
We're no sighing lovelorn "pote"—
No, indeed, we're just addressing Random lines to last year's coat.)

—Buffalo News.

Laying Bare the Fact.

Nice Old Lady—Will you kindly tell me if the lady who writes "The Mother's Page" every week in your paper is in? I want to tell her how much I have enjoyed reading her articles on "The Evening Hour in the Nursery."

Office Boy—That's him over there with the pink shirt, smokin' a pipe. —Minneapolis Tribune.

The Clubman.

She—When a woman wants a husband, you don't suppose she goes and looks in a club for one, do you?

He—Well, if she's a married woman the chances are that she does.—Yonkers Statesman.

WINGS AND FEATHERS.

The "bird on Nellie's hat" has grown from a modest little talkative affair to the proportions of an eagle —and a screaming eagle, too.

Wings are larger than they have ever been, and seem to be increasing rather than decreasing in dimensions.

Sometimes they enfold almost the whole of the hat, the milliner having acquired the art of draping and pleating them after the fashion of a length of cloth or silk. In some cases as many as six distinct wings will be used on one model, three on each side, and placed after the fashion of Mercury wings, one slightly overlapping its neighbor, but as each creator of modes has her own ideas with regard to their adjustment, it is more than difficult to arbitrate on the subject, and some startling and entirely original schemes in this connection will make their appearance during the autumn.

In the majority of instances wonderful color effects will be seen, the breast feathers being dyed and shaded so as to produce a soft appearance.

An Honest Test.

A young man in quest of a situation entered the aparatment of a high bank officer and made know his errand.

"Well," kindly said the captain of finance, "there's an opening in the bank for the right young man, and there have been several applicants for it already. Are you energetic and willing to learn?"

"Try me, sir."

"That's good for a starter. Do you gamble?"

"No, sir. I have a mother to support and can't risk my earnings that way."

"Ahem. Now"—here the great man squared himself before his applicant in indication that the most important question was now to come. "Do you ever go fishing?"

"Yes, sir," replied the young man without hesitation. "Wash fishing yesterday."

"Ah! and what kind of a catch did you make?"

"Only one little perch," smiled he.

"Good! You're the young man I've been seeking. All the others answered up all right until I put that last question; then the ylied!"—Exchange.

Cookies for Place Cards.

At a party given for a little girl of eight years the place cards were made with cookies covered with white icing and the names were written on each with red sugar. The sugar was melted and a fine brush was used to write the names. These name cakes proved a happy surprise to the little folks.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

A proposition worthy of the attention of all the large cities in this country is under consideration by the city fathers of Chicago. There is no doubt in the minds of any baseball fans that the Windy City has gone completely off its equilibrium on the subject of the national sport, and this craze has reached a state where it gives promise of doing some good. During the recent great fight in the National League and the close race for the pennant in the American League, it is said that in nearly every street or alleyway and in every lot and at almost any time during any day the younger generation in the city of stock yards were busily engaged playing ball. It reached a stage where it was really dangerous for pedestrians to be abroad. It was up to the public officers to solve the problem of safety for the citizens. It took some time to dope out a method of procedure.

At last a solution has apparently been decided upon, and if it is carried out the small boys of the Windy City will certainly believe that Santa Claus is none other than the Mayor and his Council. At first an order was issued to the police department that no ball playing should be permitted in the streets, and the police had their hands full chasing youngsters who, being Americans, just simply had to play baseball. It is now planned to secure the permission of the owners of all vacant lots within the city limits to allow the city to construct diamonds, dressing rooms, bleachers and score boards on them until such time as they are rented or sold. This can be done at an estimated cost of only $600 per lot. These lots will then undoubtedly make good training schools for both the Cubs and the White Sox to draw upon for ball players.

It would appear that President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg Baseball Club is afraid that if the American Association should succeed in placing a ball team in the Smoky City his path in the future will not be rosy. Despite the fact that a new site for a Pirate ball park has been secured it it said that Dreyfuss will still pay rental on Exposition Park and will continue to do so for several years until he is absolutely sure that there is no danger of the minor organizations gaining a foothold in the Pennsylvania city.

GENERAL SPORTS.

Some 200 candidates at Harvard are in active training each day for the track team which will represent the Cambridge College in 1909. Capt. Rand is regarded as one of the most proficient leaders which the Crimson runners and jumpers have had in years, and under his guidance a splendid team is expected to be turned out. Rand himself is a hurdler of class, having won both the high and low hurdles in the 1907 dual meet with Yale. He was a member of the Olympic team which represented America in England and took fourth place in the Olympic high hurdles. Lawrence and Barr are showing up exceptionally well in the pole vault, the latter athlete having recently cleared the bar at 12 feet 4⅞ inches in exhibition, a mark which is bettter than the Harvard record.

The Minnesota track team may have as its coach Dick Grant, the former Harvard runner. Grant has been doing some running with the varsity cross-country candidates and has told the board of control that there is some very likely material in college from which to mould a good track team. Grant has made a favorable impression among the students, and the athletic authorities have asked the former Crimson man to take charge of athletics at Minnesota.

Practice has begun for the candidates for the basketball team at Tufts. Kimball, Hutch, Wallace, Dickinson and Knight of last season's squad remain in college and the freshman class offers some promising material. A provisional schedule of fifteen games, with one open date, has been arranged, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Cornell, Williams and Pratt Institute of Brooklyn being on the list.

BOWLING.

The Central Journal Bowling League tournament will begin about the latter part of November. There will be one change in the makeup of the league this season, the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. taking the place of Cranford Casino. The Park Club, will, as usual, be a factor, and there is much interest in the announcement that Mulford, who was the star bowler on the Roselle Casino team, will become a member of the Park Club five. He is now residing in the Netherwood district of the city. F. O. Ball will be the captain of the local team this season and members of the club are now trying out for positions.

GOLF.

The active golf season will close at the Park Golf Club on Election Day, and it is expected that the season's competitions will be concluded at the Plainfield Country Club the same day, although both courses will be kept open as long as the weather remains favorable.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Cumberland County Teachers' Institute will be held at the Bridgeton High School on November 7.

Florence Smith, daughter of Rev. Stewart Smith, of Sandy Ridge, was bitten in the face by a dog.

A Salem county jury awarded to Berry & Ackley, of Malaga, $700 damages when their suit against Constable R. F. Demaris for false arrest was retired.

A jury at Woodbury yesterday awarded to Joseph Lange $700 in his suit against the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad for damages caused by a brush fire.

Woodbury Presbyterians have called Rev. John Edwin Triplett, of New York, to the pulpit made vacant by the death of Rev. George W. Tomson last spring.

Upsetting a pot of boiling water, Stanley Wood, nineteen months, of 620 Berkley street, Camden, was scalded on the right side from his neck to his waist yesterday.

Frederick Smearer, of 1713 Fillmore street, Camden, a foreman at the Camden Coke Works, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg yesterday when kicked by a horse.

James Jaiger, of 176 Oak street, Paterson, aged sixteen years, while cleaning a rifle yesterday afternoon accidentally shot himself through one of the toes of his left foot. The wound was cleaned and dressed at the General Hospital.

The Monmouth County Teachers' Institute opened in the Neptune High School building yesterday, to continue until this afternoon. For several years Monmouth and Ocean County Institutes were held jointly. This year the Ocean county teachers held their institute at Lakewood.

Plunging into Beach Thoroughfare, Atlantic City, while he was endeavoring to drag Ada Myers, ten years old, from the water, Otto Manz, a hotel man, kept his grip upon the girl's dress until help reached him. She had been in the water for fifteen minutes and was completely exhausted.

Harold Lewis, who posed as a "wild man" in a side show on the Boardwalk, Atlantic City, during the summer, and was earning a big salary, was up before Mayor Stoy yesterday as a vagrant, and ordered to quit the city or go to jail. The police raids wrecked his fortune, because they uncovered the deception, which ruined business.

The sudden breaking of a guard railing on an outside stairway caused Mrs. Mary Meyers, of 284 West Twenty-fifth street, Paterson, to suffer serious injuries yesterday afternoon. The woman fell a distance of about fifteen feet, landing on her right side. Two ribs are crushed and the physicians say she may have sustained a fracture of the pelvis.

After deliberating for more than seven hours, a jury at Paterson in the case of Eva Schwartz, by her next friend, against John W. Gyles, returned a verdict of $250 for the plaintiff last night. The suit was brought for $5,000 for personal injuries sustained by the child in being run over by a rig belonging to Mr. Gyles and driven by a man in his employ.

The friends of Bennie Lemon, thirteen years old, of Vineland, are urging his claim for a Carnegie hero medal. Last July he plunged into the death hole in Muddy Run stream, where several persons have drowned, and brought a woman to shore who was sinking for the last time. The lad only succeeded in grasping her hair with two fingers, and he tugged away until she was safe.

In peril of drowning, three occupants of the launch Flirt, Messrs. Caster, Crampton and Knight, were saved yesterday by the crew of Little Beach Life Saving Station. They are residents of Beach Haven, and were bound for Atlantic City. The craft stranded on the beach near the government station, and was in a bad way when the seamen came up and picked the men from the floundering craft and landed them on the beach.

Cleaning White Silk.

If one desires snowy whiteness, silk should never be allowed to become badly soiled—that is, so that the silk is yellowed. Dust the garment and wash in rather warm (not scalding hot) water with white soap. Rinse well, the last water being quite blue. Hang up and allow to get just dry enough to press nicely with a warm iron. If this is followed out, white silk will stay white. Care must be taken with the blue water not to have it too blue, and yet blue enough to help the silk retain the "new" shade. Should the silk merely need sponging, no iron should touch the surface. If rolled while damp on a broomstick, it will dry in a day or so. When there are grease spots, apply the time-honored remedy, powdered magnesia, to the wrong side under a cold pressure; then, after some hours, rub off; and if not wholly cleansed, apply again.

How They Managed It.

"Do you sell postage stamps here, young man?" quarled the old lady.

"No, ma'am," answered the junior drug clerk. "We just give 'em away at cost."—Chicago News.

Will There be Degrees of Happiness in the Other World?

16th of a Series on Heaven by REV. DR. CHARLES E. HERRING

Degrees of happiness and glory in the other life! There is no doubt about it, for scripture gives us very definite information upon the subject. Paul says to the Corinthians, "There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead." This is in line with the words of Daniel, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars forever and ever."

The Lord says with reference to obedience to His commands, "Whosoever, therefore, shall break one of these least commandments and shall teach men so, shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosovere shall do and teach them the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven That kingdom, of course, begins here, but it is carried over into the other world.

Jesus spoke of the special place the disciples would occupy in the other life. They would sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. Matthew Henry comments on this passage with these words. "There are higher degrees of glory for those who have done and suffered most."

Perhaps you have thought of the parable of the laborers in the vineyard, as teaching that all men would be on the same plane in the other life, for the reason that those who had borne the burden and heat of the day, received no more than those who were hired at the eleventh hour. But the design of that parable was not to teach the equality of reward in the heavenly world, but rather to teach that the Gentiles had equal privileges with the Jews in sharing the blessing of the Gospel. The Lord in the parable was antagonizing Jewish pride.

In the heavenly world, it will be as it is in this, we shall see, as we bring with us the faculty of seeing. The glories of heaven will only partially be ours, if we have no well-trained spiritual faculty to appreciate them. A ramble through the woods and the fields will mean infinitely more to the man who knows how to appreciate the beauties of nature, than to the man who knows practically nothing about these things. In every sphere of life we see and love as we bring with us the power of seeing and loving. There will be degrees of glory and happiness in the other life because there will be degrees of knowing. Thomas Dick, in his "Philosophy of the Future State" says "Suppose a negro slave, who had been recently converted to Christianity, and a profound Christian philosopher were to enter the eternal world at the same time, is it not reasonable to believe that there would be a difference in the amplitude of their intellectual views?" He further says: "In the course of ages, the negro may equal the philosopher in the extent of his intellectual acquisitions." We know that a man with a trained mind will appreciate things that appeal to the intellect, while an untrained mind will find no satisfaction in them; so a spiritual man, who has trained his spiritual faculties will behold glories in the other life that cannot immediately be revealed to a man, who, only in his last days has begun to think of God and divine things.

Think of the Apostle Paul in his old age saying, "I have not yet realized the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, but I am pressing on." He might have waited the few remaining years of his life and taken things easy until his faith had been transformed into sight.

Why did he think of struggling then? Simply because this life does count. Any special degree of glory or happiness that may be ours in the other life, will not be because of the capriciousness of God, but because we have developed a large faculty of appreciation.

Perhaps you say that degrees of happiness in heaven will only make those who are lower in the scale dissatisfied with their position, but "it is natural," says Harbaugh, "that when it rains, more drops fall on the wide spreading oak, than in the cup of the violet, yet both are watered; so when the glory streams from all the heavens upon the spirits of the saints, those of widest capacities receive most; while all will be fully blest and fully satisfied." Heaven is the place where all will be satisfied according to their varied capacity, and even in that world there will be a chance for a man to improve his opportunities.

We shall carry into that world our present faculties, our ideas and habits; and for that reason our place there, will be according to the place we have occupied in this life. If a man's thought on this earth has been for temporal things alone, what poor man he will be in that eternal realm.

The apostle, in the Epistle to the Hebrews, spoke of two kinds of Christian men. Those who were using the very best material in building up their Christian character, and those who were using material that would not stand the test. The first he says, would receive a reward. The fire would destroy the worthless material of the second, while they themselves would be saved, yet so as by fire. Some, then, are gloriously saved while others are barely saved. Does that not mean degrees of happiness, and glory in the other life?

Some of God's saints on earth have endured the greatest trials, but these trials have simply been developing their faith and character, and have made them better fitted for the eternal glory. It is a comforting revelation, that the sufferings of this present life, in some way, work out the eternal glory. I don't know how, for that has not been revealed to us. We do know that in this world, suffering is not useless, for it makes a man's character as nothing else can make that character. A man is more of a man because he has passed through the valley of deep darkness. He passes through it to the other side, a better and a stronger man, than when he entered it.

There will be degrees of happiness in the other world for this reason too. When a man looks down upon the activity of the world, don't you suppose he will see the result of his labor in this world, and all that he endeavored to do bearing fruit? He will see the people he has helped, and that helpfulness going on from generation to generation, and though the world count him dead, in reality, he is still living in what he has done and is doing for the world. Think of laying up that sort of treasure, so that when you reach the other side you will see the work that you started still blessing the world. It pays to be exactly obedient to the Master. He knows a great deal more than you do, what will bless the world. Your obedience to Him is simply the laying up of treasure for yourself. This is the best time and the only time that you can lay up that sort of treasure.

There are two kinds of helpfulness. There is the helpfulness that has relation simply to a man's temporal life, and there is a helpfulness that looks beyond this earthly life. Let us help men's bodies, but let us not forget that the spiritual need of men is of greater value. Our Lord's thought was the eternal blessedness of men.

The spiritual things you are doing are not done for a moment. They are done for eternity. The good deeds you perform here, will finally react upon your life, and bless you through all eternity. If you have had great opportunities for doing good here, and have not availed yourself of these opportunities, I fear that when in that glorious world, you look down upon this world, you will not have the perfect satisfaction that humble soul in glory possesses who did what she could. Your memory will go with you into that world, and this world and its need wil not be out of your vision. The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews pictures the saints as witnesses about the race course. They once were contestants. Now, they are spectators. We are the runners today. By and by, we shall be the spectators, and we shall see the result of our activity on the earth. We shall see certain men in the race, because our consecrated effort put them there.

There are stars of various magnitudes in the heavens, and they are symbolical of God's people in the heavenly world. I think the stars of the first magnitude will be the twelve disciples of the Lord, whom we are told, will sit on twelve thrones and judge the twelve tribes of Israel. Then there will be the heroes whose names are on that great roll of honor in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. But among the bright luminaries in that world, will be the consecrated souls who have served God to the best of their ability here, and whose steady faithfulness, God abundantly rewards. May you be among these faithful.

WHITMORE NOT GUILTY.

Theodore S. Whitmore, the Brooklyn motorman, was acquitted last evening in the Hudson County Court of Oyer and Terminer, at Jersey City of the murder of Lena, his wife.

The jury retired a few minutes before 5 o'clock, and came to an agreement in an hour. When Foreman Henry Mandeville announced that it was "Not guilty" Whitmore briskly stepped forward, embraced his counsel, Alexander Simpson, kissed him on the cheek and showed great emotion.

After the formalities of dismissal Whitmore arose, suffering from the reaction, and exclaimed: "They have taken everything from me, and I go out a pauper." His father and brother quieted him.

Lena Whitmore was lured to the Lamp Black Swamp, at Harrison, on the night of last Christmas, rendered helpless by a blow on the head and hurled down an embankment into a tidewater pool, and was drowned. Whitmore was tried once before for the crime, the jury disagreeing.

HOPE CHAPEL'S CHOIR GIVES PLEASING CANTATA

Under the auspices of the choir of Hope chapel, and under the direction of Mrs. L. R. Howard, who acted as leader, organist and soloist, a cantata entitled "The Seasons," was given at the chapel, last night, before a large audience. The choir was assisted by Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, violinist, and Joseph C. Martin, basso. The affair was an unqualified success and $50 was realized as profit for the organ fund, for which it was given.

The work of the chorus and the soloists deserves special mention. Those who took solo parts included Mrs. L. R. Howard, Mrs. M. W. Clark, Miss Eunice Eckert, Joseph C. Martin, John Slorah and Thomas Hendry. Miss Bertha Jones was the pianist and Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston violinist, and the success attained was due in a measure to the musical interpretation of "The Seasons."

The cantata was so well rendered that many expressions of commendation were heard at its conclusion. Those taking part adjourned to the dining room, where refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. At this time Mrs. Howard was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers by Mrs. M. W. Clark on behalf of the choir. Those who took part in the cantata were as follows:

Sopranos—Mrs. M. W. Clark, the Misses Mary Mortimer, Elsie M. Rimmer, Edna Eckert; altos—the Misses Elizabeth Slorah and Eunice Eckert; tenors—John B. Slorah, Harold Brownell, Thomas Hendry; baritone—Charles Vincent, Fred Wharton, Edward Jones; bass—Joseph C. Martin.

James Penny was in charge of the box-office and the ushers were Allen Snyder, Clinton Firstbrook, Peter C. Sweeny and Frank M. Rimmer.

Pretty Near It.

"Now," said the teacher, who had been giving an elementary talk upon architecture, "can any little boy tell me what a 'butttress' is?"

"I know," shouted Tommy Smart. "A nanny goat."—Herald and Presbyter.

Much the Same.

Mrs. Homer—Mrs. Naggsby was here today. She reminds me of an automobile.

Homer—What's the answer, my dear?

Mrs. Homer—She's always running other people down.—Chicago News.

MARTINE IS BUSY.

Spoke at Five Different Meetings in the County Last Night.

In an effort to out-Bryan, "The Peerless One," by a whirlwind speaking tour, James E. Martine made four speeches in Elizabeth and one in Cranford last night. After his remarks at Cranford, he spoke at the Sacred Heart Academy, at Elizabeth, making the trip by auto. From there the machine whisked him to the Marine Club, Elizabeth, where he addressed an enthusiastic audience of 600 votes. Later he spoke at the La Veene Association and at Turn Hall.

"Yes, I verily believe that the people will rule," said Jim, somewhat hoarsely, upon his return home today.

Foresters Entertain.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, received two applicants for membership at its meeting last night. Important amendments to the by-laws were confirmed and the Court decided to hold its annual entertainment and dance early in January, next, when a high-class vaudeville entertainment will be offered, something that will eclipse all previous efforts. In the good and welfare of the order an informal program of vocal and instrumental music was given by the members. There were several visitors from out of town Courts. After the entertainment cigars were passed. James M. Smith and Thomas Fitzgerald were in charge.

Loses Fingers in Machine.

Charles Drake, aged nineteen years, employed at the grocery store of Thomas Callahan & Son, on Richmond streett, suffered the loss of three fingers yesterday afternoon while grinding sausage at Smalley Bros.' market on North avenue. In some way the young man's hand was caught in the machinery and before it could be stopped three fingers were badly crushed. Dr. P. J. Zeglio, who was called, had the boy taken to the hospital, where the injured members were amputated, after which he returned home.

Epworthians Celebrate.

Under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, a Hallowe'en social was held in Vincent chapel, last night. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the league and all thoroughly enjoyed the usual Hallowe'en "stunts." The affair was in charge of the social committee of the league, and refreshments suitable to the occasion were served.

Joseph C. Miron and Martha George in Julian Edwards' new comic opera, "The Gay Musician," at the New Plainfield Theatre, Monday, November 2.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

With a remarkable record of successes to its credit, Julian Edwards' new comic opera, "The Gay Musician," with the original company that played for 100 nights this summer at Wallack's theatre, New York, comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. It has been many years since a comic opera met with such marked and popular favor as has "The Gay Musician." In New York city, on hot summer nights, when people gasped for a breath of air, "The Gay Musician" drew vast crowds, so potent were its charms and so magnetic the company singing it. In Philadelphia and Baltimore, "The Gay Musician" again drew crowded houses, and it recently broke all records in the Hollis street theatre, in Boston, where it opened the season of that noted theatre and played to capacity at every performance. The secret of the success of "The Gay Musician" is easily told. In the first place, the public has tired of the so-called "musical reviews" and the slang and horse-play foisted upon play-goers as "comedy." In the "Gay Musician" there is every element to please and delight, as its music is of that kind that lingers in the brain and one continues to hear the lilting waltzes, dreamy love songs, stirring marches and choruses with which Composer Julian Edwards has filled his score. Among its noted members may be mentioned Amelia Stone, the dainty prima donna; Joseph C. Miron, the basso comedian, a big favorite here; Templar Saxe, the baritone; Lottie Kendall, the comic opera star; Harry Short, the dancing comedian; Martha George, the former grand opera singer; Carroll McComes, a sweet ingenue dancer and whistler; Haydn P. Clifford, William S. Gill, L. R. Jefferson, a trio of fun-makers hard to duplicate; Irene Messenger, Marie Baxter, Florence Roblee, Francesca Le Clair and others who are prime favorites in comic opera. The chorus has been termed "the best singing chorus in comic opera today."

Neil Burgess, the greatest of all rural eccentric comedians, comes to the New Plainfield theatre Election Day, afternoon and night, in that well known comedy, "The County Fair," and, judging from the demand for seats, it is plainly evident that he has lost none of his old time popularity. "The County Fair" is one of the plays that is dear to every New England home, and with its many years of life, it has lost none of its merits. The same delightful situations are presented even in a more entertaining way, and Mr. Burgess, himself, is more commanding of attention than ever. As Abagail Prue, he impersonates with pure taste, the droll character and leaves nothing to be desired. The famous race scene where "Cold Molasses" wins the race and saves "Aunt Abby's" house from a rascally money lender who holds a mortgage on it, and the barn scene are all new this season. Mr. Burgess has introduced in the barn scene a male quartette which is said to be a pleasing feature of the entertainment and strict attention has been paid to the staging of the play in every detail.

There has never been staged a play dealing with the story of life that has the beauty, the pathos and the power of reaching the heart as that possessed by "Lincoln at the White House," the attraction that will be given at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. When considering the names in that powerful aggregation of talent presenting this play, the theatre-going public will be convinced that the production is of very superior merit. The characters are so important and unique in idea that any but the most experienced actors would ruin them. In engaging the company, Benjamin Chapin, the author and dramatist, under whose personal direction and supervision the play is being presented, was careful to select actors especially adapted to the requirements of the characters, and the remarkable success this attraction has achieved is due to the realistic manner in which the play has been staged. There are no individual stars in the make up of the cast, but each actor contributes his share in the interpretation of the story in such an artistic manner that the ensemble resulting entitled "Lincoln at the White House" is entitled to the well earned reputation of being the best acted drama on the road.

That everlasting favorite, "Skipped by the Light of the Moon," the best farce comedy ever written, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, with a cast of comedians, singers and dancers, including such well known fun-makers as Messrs. Harry Burnham, R. A. Bresee, Joseph Ransome, John B. Coary, C. W. Gould, C. W. Carstairs, Misses Diana Dewar, Laura Dacre, Ada Wagner, and Ida Wesner.

THE ONLY WAY.

Many Plainfield Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years with less vitality suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one reemdy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

John W. Snedeser, 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all persons suffering from kidney complaint. I had this trouble for some time and was in a bad way. When I awoke in the morning I felt unrefreshed and during the day suffered from a dull backache. My condition gradually grew worse and I always felt weak, tired and depressed. My mother finally to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did si with the very best of results. I am now entirely free from kidney trouble and my back does not bother me in the least."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

POSSIBILITY OF THE FUTURE.

When Navigation of the Air Shall Have Become Common.

The man from Mars checked his aerolite. He saw below him what resembled a huge rat trap. An immense steel frame composed of light rods entirely covered the buildings beneath it. The steel frame was of sufficient height to just clear the loftiest skyscraper.

As the man from Mars stared at this contrivance a section of it opened inward and he and his trained aerolite dropped through. As he alighted in the city hall square a man in uniform hurried up to him.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting outside," he said in choice Volapuk, "but at first I couldn't quite make you out. I'm the guardian of the sky trap."

"Glad to know you," said the man from Mars. "And now tell me what in the name of all that's wonderful this wire cheese box means."

"Why, that's our balloon guard," laughed the officer. "You see the airships and balloons got to be such a nuisance that we had to put up this frame. Why, they used to drop all sorts of things on us. Sometimes they'd drop themselves. Two of our best citizens were killed over there in front of the cafe by a fat aeronaut. They'd have airship picnics, too, and throw the scraps all over us. There was no use legislating against 'em—before we could enforce the law they'd be three counties away. And they'd hang shawls and overcoats over their numbers so we couldn't take 'em. Finally, when things got too bad, and the mayor himself was felled by a cheese sandwich just as he was bowing to the governor's daughter, we put up this balloon guard."

The man from Mars took out his notebook.

"How very curious," he said.

A Novel Bottle.

In furnishing information concerning Calcutta's supply of the various "soft" drinks, Consul General William H. Michael refers as follows to an improved bottle in use:

This bottle is so blown as to contain in the neck a round glass stopper, which is forced upward by the gas in the bottle and holds the gas perfectly. An expert can remove half the contents of one of these bottles, and by a shake force the ball up into the neck, and thus preserve the remaining half for future use. It is an ingenious device, and every way superior to the old-style corks. In opening a bottle a wooden, cup-shaped device, which fits in the hollow of the hand and contains a short nipple, is placed over and against the glass ball stopper and pressed downward. This causes the ball to drop down into the neck of the bottle, prevents too rapid escape of gas and foam, and, if only part of the contents is required, the ball may be forced back into the position as stopper.

Imaginary Necessities.

"Were it not for the thousands of people who are slaves to imaginary necessities we might have avoided the panic of last October," says a writer in Appleton's. "It was these people indirectly who brought it on. It was these people who suffered most when it came. The laws of nature are iron in their retribution. The man who is earning $30 a week and spending $15 does not fear panics. Neither does the man who is earning $50,000 a year and spending $25,000. Sailors who do not know how to reef their sails would be at the mercy of squalls. People who do not know how to cut down their expenses are at the mercy of panics. A certain rich New Yorker, who retired from the stock exchange recently, started business 40 years ago with three friends. When times were prosperous he could not afford to live as well as they did. When times were hard they had to borrow money of him in order to live at all."

Woman Tougher Than Man.

Although men, as they run, are perhaps muscularly stronger than women, their ability to withstand the elements and their reliance upon clothes places them considerably below the so-called weaker sex in the matter of unclothed toughness. Women wear clothes for ornament; men use them as a protective covering. A group of men marooned, clothesless on an island in the temperate zone might be expected to die off in a month from draughts and colds and rheumatism. The health of women similarly placed would suffer little from the enforced exposure. The fact appears to be, therefore, that in everything but muscle—in vitality, ruggedness, character, disposition, brain power, etc., woman is the tougher, not the weaker, sex.

Disappointed.

The old countryman with the faded satchel stood in front of the side-show tent with a look of disgust on his face.

"What's the trouble, sir?" asked the oily-tongued individual who was telling the crowd about the wonderful wild man inside. "You look disappointed."

"I am," grunted the old man. "I heard that there was a crowd of barkers down at the side show and I ain't heard one of you bark."

Putting It Up to the Querist.

The next letter the information editor opened contained this question:

"What is the correct pronunciation of 'irrefragable?'"

"Consult your unabridged," he wrote, and savagely impaled both the query and answer on the copy hook.

For somebody had carried away the office dictionary.

Raw Cherry Pie

Wife Tries Hard to Please.

"Then make it yourself, if you know more than anyone else about it," said Mrs. Adams, coldly.

Mr. Adams wagged his head sorrowfully.

"Nobody," he said, slowly, with an irritated eye upon his boss, "can discuss anything with you, Minnie. The moment I mention that pie you rush ahead as usual, and jump all the hurdles before you get to 'em. What I said was that a cherry pie would be—"

"And because I try to please you and tell Gussie to fix one you insult me!" cried his wife.

Both members of the Adams family tightened their lips and drew in their breath through distended nostrils. Gussie, the cook, cannily observing these signs, withdrew hurriedly.

Mr. Adams suddenly relaxed his features and smiled wearily.

"Let the infernal pie go," he said.

Mrs. Adams sighed.

"Why should it be let go?" she demanded. "For goodness' sake, what ails you? Upon my word, I cannot understand the processes of your mind, Frank. Only you can hardly know more about cooking than I do, you know. If you mean that your mother made pies with raw cherries, I have only to say that there are pies and pies."

"My maternal parent," retorted Mr. Adams, "made no pies. The servants made 'em. You told Gussie to cook the cherries. Well, I may be a fool, but, by gosh! you don't cook 'em, madam. They're put in raw—raw!"

Mrs. Adams smiled this time. She made it an indulgent smile that would prickle and burn him.

"All right, dearest," she said, soothingly. "Certainly they shall be raw."

She uttered the sentence in the tone she would employ when addressing a weeping infant or a fretful idiot.

"Gussie!" she called.

The cook appeared and saluted.

"Mr. Adams doesn't wish cooked cherries in his pie," she said. "He wants them raw."

Gussie bowed with dignity.

"Yessum," she answered.

"She'll have that pie for dinner, Frank," said Mrs. Adams.

Watched by the eyes of the ladies of the household, Mr. Adams hastily disposed of the substantial but important portion of his dinner, and happily announced that he was ready for pie.

He tried it.

"Well?" queried his wife. Despite her well-put-on air of unconcern, it was only too evident that she did care a little about his opinion.

"You want to know my honest feelings?" he asked. "Well, this pie's soggy. And I tell you, Minnie, the cherries ain't right. They were cooked."

The meal was finished in a dreary silence.

In the kitchen only the smash of crockery sounded. Gussie was angered. "I thought it was a very nice pie," said Mrs. Adams, an hour later.

Mr. Adams yawned.

The pioneer pie had been concocted of raw cherries. They made another, filling it with stewed cherries. Mr. Adams said that probably it was the crust.

"By George, I could make a pie myself!" he ejaculated. "You fix the crust and I'll tend to Mister Pie. You cook the fruit too long."

"The crust," shouted his wife and Gussie, "that's the main part."

"Not in our pies," said he, stubbornly. "The cherries all soak up. Now, honest, haven't you been kidding me? These pies had cooked cherries in 'em, sure."

Mrs. Adams protested.

"It's the oven, then," she decided. "It doesn't go right."

"Get a pound of cherries, stone 'em and throw 'em in with some sugar," said he, authoritatively. "The pie'll come out as it should."

Two more pies did the household make, and each time the cherries were massed in red profusion, as he had directed. When the last sample was pronounced unfit for consumption, Mrs. Adams went to the kitchen and consulted with Gussie. They awaited Mr. Adams' departure, then went into a bedroom and there, giggling, they took a box from a closet and began snipping at what it held.

"That's plenty," said Gussie.

At dinner the cherry pie came on.

"These haven't been cooked so much," said Mr. Adams, cheerfully.

The pastry lattice work showed the ripe, shiny cherries beneath it.

"There," said Mr. Adams. "At last. That pie's right. Gimme a big piece, I'd stake my life you've hit it, and you ought to be glad I told you."

He began to eat.

At the first bite his mien became thoughtful.

"See; we should have cooked 'em," reproached his wife. "You don't like it."

"Yes, I do," said he, fiercely.

One large slice was downed.

"I—guess that'll be enough," he murmured, faintly.

"It's the way you said to make it," cried Mrs. Adams, accusingly.

"And it's a blamed good pie," his manner was valiant; "best I ever had. But I'm tired of pie. Those cherries were bully. Where'd you get 'em?"

His pale face excited no compassion in Mrs. Adams, for she knew he was lying, and theirs was a home where cherry pie would never be made to suit all parties.

"From my spring hat," she said.—New York Telegraph.

THE BRASS BOWL by Louis Joseph Vance

BRIMFUL OF EXCITEMENT

Read it and you will say so

A story of incident and mystery in New York, exciting, compelling, desperately interesting. The action of the entire story takes place within thirty-six hours, and never were hours so crowded with unexpected happenings. Mr. Vance has a splendid faculty of invention and this new novel strikes far from the beaten track of fiction.

It will be printed serially in this paper, and will be a rare treat for our readers.

Queenie Sees a Game of Ball

"Never again," Freck said, as he climbed on the stool. "Anybody ever seeing me do it again can take my bankroll."

"What is it this time?" the waiter asked, as he rested against the counter prepared to steal a few minutes of the boss' time.

"Took Queenie to the ball game yesterday, that's all. Talk about your dense fogs. Queenie's got the diamond-studded belt when it comes to being the original doughhead. I tried to wise her up going out on the car, but it wasn't any use.

"'If there's anything you don't grasp about this game wait till you get home,' I told her. 'I'll draw you a diagram after the game. Don't show me up by asking a lot of dippy questions in the grandstand.'

"'All right,' she replied.

"We takes seats in the grandstand. 'Tain't nothing like I thought it would be,' she pipes. 'Who is that man way over yonder?'

"'That's the center fielder.'

"'What does he do?'

"'Catches flies.'

"'Is there many flies out there where he is?'

"'Sometimes.'

"'I don't see him catching any.'

"'Why don't he get busy?'

"'He will soon as the batter knocks one out there.'

"'Now, Mr. Smarty, if you think I came out here to be ridiculed by you, you're mistaken. You can't tell me they can knock a fly that far. Besides that man with the club has to defend himself all the time or that man will hit him with the ball. The rascal threw three times right at his head. If he hits him I just hope that he will take that club and hit him. See there, he just threw another one at him. What does he get if he gets hit with the ball?'

"'A base.'

"'What? One of those whitewashed sofa pillows?'

"'Uh-huh.'

"'They've only got four of them. What do they do when they give those four away? Get some more?'

"'Yes'm.'

"'Now, smarty, he did hit that poor man. I wouldn't let him hit me for a leather sofa pillow, let alone one of those cheap ones.'

"Then I missed three good plays explaining to her that the guy was hit by a pitched ball and was permitted to take first.

"'Why didn't he run down this way?' she asks, pointing to third.

"'The other's the closest.'

"'No, it isn't. Same distance.'

"'It looks the closest, anyway.'

"'Isn't.'

"'What are you whooping about?'

"'Ole Beck just stole second.'

"'It's still there.'

"All the gang close to me was popping their sides laughing.

"'Get out, you shrimp, he was safe a mile,' I yells.

"'Who you calling a shrimp?' Queenie butts in.

"'The umpire.'

"'What did he do?'

"'Called Beckley out.'

"Well, Mr. Beckley's big enough to fight his own battles. You needn't be calling the umpire names.'

"'Look out, you bonehead. Keep awake down there,' I whoops.

"'Who's asleep?'

"'The guy on first.'

"'He is not. I just saw him move.'

"Can you beat that? Imagine yourself trying to explain a double steal, fielder's choice, a sacrifice hit or the squeeze play to that kind of talent. It was funny at first and then it got tiresome. I got sore and left in the sixth inning. Missed the only no-hit game ever pitched in Kansas City."

"That was touch luck, sure," the waiter said. "I got a new girl and I'm thinking of taking her out. She's never been to a game."

"Well, if you think she's different from all other women that's a swell way to find out that she ain't."

"How did Queenie like the game?"

"O, she thought it was great."

"'I'll know more about it the next time I go,' she said.

"It's a cinch she will if she waits for me take her," Freck said as he slipped off the stool.—Kansas City Star.

Montcalm's Burial Place.

After having been forgotten for many years the burial place of Montcalm, the French commander of Quebec when it was captured by Wolfe in 1759, has been rediscovered. After the famous battle in which the commanders of the hostile forces lost their lives Montcalm was buried in a shell-torn grave in the Ursuline chapel in Quebec. There was no table to denote the exact spot, and before a generation had passed there was much speculation as to the probable locality of Montcalm's resting place. There still lives in the Ursuline convent, however, a nun who is more than 90 years of age. A few years during her novitiate in the convent were passed under the superiority of La Mere de St. Ignace, who, as a girl, had herself stood beside the shallow grave into which the remains of the great French general were lowered. By La Mere de St. Ignace the incident was told, and the exact spot pointed out, more than 70 years ago. Subsequent investigation has verified the old nun's story. The rough coffin was found, formed from the panels of an oaken door, the hurried construction of which is recorded by an eye-witness who helped to prepare the body for burial.

SCHOOL DAYS.

The Reader was up in the attic,
The Speller was under the bed,
The Grammar, with vagrance erratic,
Had hied itself out to the shed;
The 'Rhithmetic lay in the cellar,
The Jography hid like a fool * * *
Oh, we do enjoy to hunt things for that boy,
And get Johnny ready for school.

The lunch box, all covered with lichen,
We found in the orchard at last,
The book strap was down in the kitchen—
A dozen times we had searched past,
We dug out his shoes and new trousers,
We purchased his compass and rule * * *
Oh, heaven forbid how we worked for that kid,
To get Johnny ready for school!

We found all his trappings so bonny,
We stacked them in bundles around—
Yes—they were all there * * * all but Johnny—
And he was nowhere to be found.
The schoolbell was tolling: "Come—children—"
"Where's Johnny?" we moaned.
"Drag the pool!"
Oh, heavens, it's sad how we toiled for that lad
To get Johnny ready for school!

"DODGERS" MANAGER SEEKS "CLIF" RANDOLPH'S SERVICES.

"Clif" Randolph, box artist for the Clinton Avenue baseball team, who has signed a contract with the Newark Eastern League team for next season, is being anxiously sought after by President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn Nationals. Ebbetts has been corresponding with the local twirler and is anxious to give him a tryout with the "Trolley Dodgers." Manager Stallings, of Newark, however, is well pleased with the deal he has negotiated with "Clif" and it looks as though the Brooklynite would have to take it out in wishing.

Randolph has an enviable record made by his season's work on the slab for the local nine and is the only member of the team who will not play with the Clinton Avenues next season. He was used in twenty-three of the season's twenty-five games and has a record of 222 strike-outs. But 102 hits were made off his delivery and he gave only 76 bases on balls. The club scorer has 5 wild pitches marked up against him and records show that 24 players got in the way of his bends.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton won the nine-hole golf tournament for women at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, and the cup offered by Miss Maud VanBoskerck. There were seven entires and each one posted a score. Owing to the high winds the scores were naturally large. Mrs. Stockton's gross and net score was the best. On Monday the women will hold an approaching and putting competition.

The Owl Social Club held a unique affair at Debele's Hall last night, which was in the nature of a country dance. The hall was decorated to represent a barn and the guests wore costumes to correspond with the surroundings. About 300 invitations were sent out and the majority of the recipients responded and greatly enjoyed the affair.

BATTING AWARDS PRESENTED.

Captain "Brit," James Emery and "Jack" Martin Receive Prizes For Stick Work—Dancing Concludes Evening.

Celebrating the conclusion of a highly successful season, members of the Clinton Avenue baseball team gathered at the home of Captain "Brit" Martin on West Third street last night The knights of the wagon tongue turned out in force, reinforced in numbers by a delegation of their most ardent feminine rooters and the evening was passed with informal jollification. Mrs. Martin, wife of the captain and president of the club, was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Ernest Dorflinger, Mrs. Richard Scott, Mrs. Minnie Stoeckle, Mrs. Norman Barnes, Miss Clara Gulberg and Miss Agnes Hendry. The house was tastefully decorated with carnations and chrysanthemums, the predominating colors being pink and green. A banquet was served at 11 o'clock and covers were laid for thirty-five.

At the business meeting which preceded the social festivities, the year's officers of the club were reelected. A feature of the affair was the presentation of the batting trophies. This brought Captain "Brit" into spot-light prominence and in a "graceful speech" he responded to vice-president Norman Barnes who presented him with a silver water set, the club's award for the highest batting average through the season. "Brit's" average was .340. With a record of .304 with the stick, James Emery was awarded the second batting prize, a handsome silver loving cup, and a similar trophy was presented to "Jack" Martin, whose season's work showed an average of .302. These presentations were made by Captain Martin. The team's record for the season shows 16 victories, 8 defeats and a tie game.

Following the presentations came speeches by President Martin and Manager Dorflinger and after that there were piano selections by Mrs. Stockle, Allan Snyder, Hanford Moffeet and Charles Gilman in addition to this dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

SUMMIT TRUNK MYSTERY GROWS

Pedler Arrested by Summit Authorities After Strange Discovery in Woods.

Frank Smith, a watercress pedler, of Summit, was arrested yesterday and held pending a further investigation into the finding of a female skeleton in a trunk in a woods near Summit. Acting on a tip whose whose source the police will not reveal they went to a certain place in the woods and found a trunk containing a skeleton. Smith said the trunk had been discovered by an acquaintance of his who had formerly worked in the American Hygiene Institute, which is not far from where the find was made. The latter, Smith says, took him to the spot about two months ago and showed him the trunk and the skeleton.

In fear of arrest, he says, he kept still about it until a short time ago, when he wrote a letter to a New York paper describing the find, and asking if anybody was missing from that city. Originally the trunk had been buried, Smith said, but when he first saw it it had been dug up by his friend of the institute, who happened to discover it by accident.

The police claim to have informa- which involves others in at least the discovery of the skeleton. There is nothing in the trunk to indicate the identiy of the person whose body was put into the trunk, and the bones show no bullet holes or other disfigurements.

A Girl of Feeling.

She stirred and stirred as his talk ran
Of nature all in tune,
He asked her if she did not feel
Out there beneath the moon
That he and she were all there was
Beneath the sky's expanse.
She said, "You may feel that, but what I feel, by gosh, is ants!"
—Houston Post.

A Simple Remedy.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the startled housekeeper, "do you think we had better notify the health department and have it fumigated?"—Baltimore American.

Evidence to be Sifted.

"Deudction is my strong point," declared a youthful law student. "For example, there is a heap of ashes in our yard. That is evidence that we have recently had fires."

"And, by the way, John," interposed his father, "you might go out and sift that evidence."—Philadelphia Inquirer.
